en years ago, five-yearold Harris LaTeef heard about Great Falls' need for a new fire station, so he tried to do what he could to raise money for a new station: he opened a lemonade stand. While LaTeef's stand raised $307.41 in a little more than four hours, it wasn't enough. But on Saturday, March 10, LaTeef, now a freshman at Langley High School, was able to attend the grand opening of the new fire station he tried so hard to raise money for.

"It really feels like coming full circle, I was here when the old station was demolished and I have a brick for the old station, now I'm here in a brand new station," he said. "And it's even more spectacular than I could have imagined."

LaTeef was one of hundreds of Great Falls residents that turned out for the official opening ceremony of the new Great Falls Fire Station. The station became operational in November, but this was the community's first chance to get a glimpse inside.

community, and it demonstrates what happens when a partnership really comes together," said Frank Smith, Great Falls Volunteer Fire Department chief. "This would only be possible with the persistent effort of the citizens of Great Falls. We've attempted to build a state-of-the-art fire system in the county, and a state-of-the-art station here in Great Falls. It gives us the ability to rapidly respond to the emerging needs as the community evolves over time."

IN JULY 2001 the Great Falls Volunteer Fire Department voted to replace the old station. The Great Falls Volunteer Fire Department currently assists Fairfax County Fire and Rescue with operation of the station.

"While replacing the beloved old station was questioned, the volunteers who owned the station and property felt that our career staff, the folks who risk their lives for our safety and property, deserved better conditions," said Joan Bliss, president of the Great Falls Volunteer Fire Department.

The early part of the decade was marked by fundraising efforts from the volunteers. After five years of fundraising, they came up with another solution, a partnership with the county.

"Folks joined the Volunteer Fire Department to run ambulance and fire calls, not to spend most of "This fire station is here for this their time fundraising," Bliss said. In 2007, we turned our property over to the county, along with a substantial cash percentage of the $12 million needed for a joint new station."

> Supervisor John Foust (D-Dranesville) was elected as the joint station was getting off the ground. He credited his predecessor, Joan DuBois, for her efforts getting the project underway before he took office.

"Almost exactly four years ago, I met with the Great Falls Citizens Association to go over plans for the station. They approved of the project, but there were still some issues that needed to be resolved," he said. "I'm so pleased that we were able to work with the community and the county staff to be able to get the adjacent property, so our new station could have its own septic field so it wouldn't be on pump and haul."

Fairfax County Fire Chief Ronald Mastin said he believed the new station would enhance the ability of the Great Falls Fire Department to perform its specialized functions.

Ferreiro, a Fairfax resident, has authored several books on the history of science and technology. His book "Ships and Science: The Birth of Naval Architecture in the Scientific Revolution. 1600-1800" received the North American Society for Oceanic History's John Lyman Award for best book in science and technology.

"While the old station allowed us to serve the community for many years, this new station offers many more opportunities for us in the way of training space and the ability to house all of our firefighters in a great and safe working environment," he said. "In Great Falls, the station has a little bit different mission than our other stations, and that's Great Falls Park."

THE GREAT FALLS FIRE STA-TION is responsible for water and other rescues in the park, and the new station gives the firefighters more room to store the specialized boats and other equipment needed. Other improvements include an additional 2,000 square feet of expanded living quarters, workout facilities, training room, office space and equipment storage.

James Patterson, director of Public Works and Environmental services for the county, said the design represented the latest evo"If you look at this facility, having four open bays to bring fire trucks in and out, you end up having a structure that's similar to a highway bridge," he said. "The rails that run along the top of the bay help collect the diesel exhaust and get it out of the building. The bi-fold doors are all about speed, about how quickly we can get the trucks out."

Many of the community members who came to explore the station, met the firefighters and examined some of their equipment, said they were glad to see firefighters in a new building.

"These are the guys and girls that, when push comes to shove, will be out in the community risking their well-being for our safety, and it feels good to know that they will be in such modern facilities," said Cheryl Parsons of Great Falls. "When you consider the long shifts they put in, and how much of their lives are spent here, anything short of the very best just isn't good enough."

Langley Gears Up For Case Day

20th annual Case Day will debate Miller v. Alabama, Jackson v. Hobbs.

> By Alex McVeigh The Connection

News

angley High School seniors are currently putting the finishing touches on their 20th annual Case Day, which will take place Monday, March 19. This year's cases will be Miller v. Alabama and Jackson v. Hobbs.

The cases deal with a fourteenyear-old who committed capital murder, and whether or not it is considered cruel and unusual to sentence him to life in prison. They will be heard March 20, by the Supreme Court, and several Langley students will attend.

"We wanted to get a lot of people involved in this process, especially since it's so relevant to us, which is rare in a Supreme Court case," said Alicia Underhill, one of the event's chairs.

Shams Haidari is part of the counsel, and she said it was difficult to separate from such a grue-some crime.

"The first thing I had to do was reconcile my emotional reaction with what the law says, and every time you take a look at the case, more questions and layers come out," she said. "But it's been a lot of fun to prepare with my fellow counsel, and even ones on the other side. While we know one of us will win and one will lose, we're all just hoping that each other can present the best case possible, it's not too competitive."

MEMBERS of the school's Psychology Club, History Honors Society and Science Honor Society will give presentations relating to the cases. While the History Honor Society will give information about the current Supreme Court Justices, the Psychology Club will examine the development of young minds.

"We want to examine the developmental, the social aspects of things like family life and peer influence on young people," said Nick Rifken, chair of the co-curricular committee and president of the Psychology Club. "We took the position that young people shouldn't be given life in prison, because so much about their life, like their family, they didn't have a choice in."

Other groups who have submitted amicus briefs for the case will send representatives to Case Day to give their thoughts on the cases.

"We invited all the groups who submitted briefs, groups like Amnesty International and the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund to come present to us," said Kimiya Haghighi.

"They'll give a panel discussion about what is in their briefs, and they'll try to influence the justices here, just like in the real trial."

Other committees performed more local outreach.

Langley High School seniors rehearse their presentations for the 20th annual Langley Case Day.

Miriam Ahmed of the education committee went to Spring Hill, Forestville, Great Falls and Churchill Elementary Schools to engage students about aspects of the cases.

"We just planned a short lesson about the three branches of government, but the students were so interested, and kept asking such engaged questions, that we ended up talking for most of our hour there," she said. "They were asking about the judicial system, commenting on things they thought were fair or unfair and some even had questions about things like the Miranda rights process. Their questions got hard, but it was really nice to see that interest."

THE EVENT CHAIRS Chaffee Duckers, Sun Park and Underhill have been hard at work on Case Day since December. Since that time, they've had to plan out almost every minute of the day, decided who to include and exclude, as well as coordinate with all the committees.

"What makes this so different is that it's almost entirely student run," Park said. "You get so used to having a checklist of steps, but this is really this big nebulous task involving hundreds of people, so it really takes some time to figure out."

Duckers said it was less stressful than anticipated, thanks in large part to the efforts of the teachers who volunteered to assist them.

"No matter what, teachers have been there to help, and they really helped a lot, they're just the best," she said. "At first we were worried about having enough to fill the day, but soon it became clear we had to start trimming and cutting."

Langley Case Day will take place throughout the entire school day Monday, March 19. More information is available at www.langleycaseday.com.

"This month Great Falls Studios artists reveal their true colors. Lurking beneath the group's seemingly calm collective countenance lives a creative madness" said Will Tuthill, a printmaker who curates the gallery on behalf of Great Falls Studios. "Among this unique collection of largely unexpected images, there's a full range of expression from simply unusual to complexly bizarre. So open your mind along with your eyes and prepare to expand your horizons in addition to enjoying a touch of humor."

The Great Falls Virtual Gallery opened in 2011. Each month it displays a different themed exhibit of work by artists in Great Falls. Twice a year, the site features work by children at local schools. The April theme is "Growth."

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC OF AN APPLICATION BY WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY FOR APPROVAL TO RECOVER HEXANE COSTS CASE NO. PUE-2012-00014

On February 3, 2012, Washington Gas Light Company ("WGL" or "Company") filed an application with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") requesting approval to recover $1,252,580 of costs relating to the non-Btu component of hexane injections for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2010, and $12,908 of costs related to the actual under-collection of non-Btu related hexane costs incurred during the fiscal year ended September 30, 2009 ("Application"). In its Application, WGL explains that it has been injecting hexane into its system since February 2006 to replace heavy hydrocarbons in liquefied natural gas that enters the Company's distribution system. WGL's Application advises that pursuant to a Stipulation explanation and were the Company's distribution system. accepted by the Commission in Case No. PUE-2006-00059, the Company's performance-based rate regulation ("PBR") plan docket, the Company may request approval to recover the non-Btu portion of hexane costs in excess of $400,000 if the Company's return on equity is less than 10% in any PBR annual period. Under the terms of the Stipulation accepted in Case No. PUE-2006-00059, the cost recovery of the non-Btu component of hexane will be limited to that amount in excess of $400,000 required for the Company to achieve an earned return on equity of 10.0% for that PBR period under WGL's PBR Plan. The Company's Application advises that for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2010, the Company earned less than the company earned less than the company's Application advises that for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2010, the Company earned less than a 10% return on equity. WGL therefore proposes to collect its actual Virginia-jurisdictional non-Btu hexane costs in excess of $400,000, or $1,252,580, as well as an additional $12,908 of non-Btu hexane costs under-collected for the fiscal year ended September 30, 2009.

WGL proposes to collect the non-Btu hexane costs from its customers receiving service under Rate Schedule Nos. 1-Residential Service, 1A-Residential Delivery Service, 2-Commercial and Industrial Service, 2A-Commercial and Industrial Delivery Service, 3-Group Metered Apartment Service, 3A-Group Metered Apartment Delivery Service, 4-Interruptible Service, and 7-Interruptible Delivery Service, 8-Developmental Natural Gas Vehicle Service, and 10-Large Volume Delivery Service. The Company's Application further notes that it proposed new Rate Schedule Nos. 5-Large Commercial and Industrial Service, 5A-Large Commercial and Industrial Delivery Service, 6-Large Group Metered Apartment Service, and 6A-Large Group Metered Apartment Delivery Service in its currently pending general rate case, Case No. PUE-2010-00139. If the Commission approves the Company's proposed rate schedules in its general rate case, the Company will also recover the non-Btu hexane costs from customers receiving service pursuant to these new rate schedules.

WGL proposes to collect its non-Btu hexane costs through an adjustment to the distribution charge for these rate schedules. WGL's Application advises that the hexane charge will be computed on a cents-per-therm basis comprising a current and a reconciling factor. According to the Company's Application, the current factor, if applicable, will be calculated annually by dividing the non-Btu portion of hexane costs approved by the Commission by the total weather normalized throughput for the year. The reconciling factor proposed by WGL will be the difference between the actual amount to be charged and the actual amount collected during the twelve-month period. WGL proposes to implement the current factor as an adjustment to the distribution charge in the first billing cycle month following the Commission's approval of the Company's Application to recover the non-Btu portion of the costs of its hexane injections. The Company's Application also includes testimony and exhibits showing the computation of a proposed charge of $0.0020 per therm, which will allow the Company to collect the proposed $1,252,580 of non-Btu hexane costs expensed in fiscal year 2009. year 2010 and the $12,908 of non-Btu hexane costs under-recovered in fiscal year 2009.

The details of WGL's proposals are set out in the Company's Application. Interested persons are encouraged to review the Application and other materials filed with the Application for the details of these proposals. Interested persons should also be advised that after considering the record in this case, the Commission may change the tariff revisions proposed by the Company or take other actions with respect to the recovery of the non-Btu component of hexane costs that differ from the proposals set out in the Company's Application.

The Commission has entered an Order for Notice and Comment that, among other things, docketed the Application as Case No. PUE-2012-00014 and established a procedural schedule for the filing of comments, requests for hearing, and the filing of testimony or a Report by the Commission Staff. Interested persons are encouraged to review the Commission's Order for Notice and Comment for details on how to participate in this proceeding.

Pursuant to the Commission's Order for Notice and Comment, interested persons may file written comments or requests for hearing with the Clerk of the Commission on the proposals set out in the Company's Application on or before April 27, 2012. Clocks Not Turned Back

To the Editor:

"Reenacting A Dark History?" your March 8 editorial, claims that Virginia Republicans want to turn back the hands of time to a more racist and misogynist period in our history. First, the claim that requiring voter identification would suppress minority turn out is simply false. African-American turnout for the 2006 midterm election in Georgia was 42.9 percent. After the photo i.d. law was passed in Georgia, black turnout rose to 50.4 percent in their 2010 midterms. The African-American turnout also rose in Mississippi and Indiana after those states required similar photo i.d's for voting. Also, to say that there is no evidence of voter fraud and there is no need to safeguard our elections is simply to ignore the facts. Why just a few days ago, the former West Virginia sheriff plead guilty to stuffing ballot boxes with illegal absentee ballots in an attempt to steal that state's 2010 Democrat primary. This year alone, there have been indictments, prosecutions, and convictions of voter fraud in states ranging from Maryland, North Carolina, California, Texas, Wisconsin and more. Most people don't find it that arduous to produce an i.d. to vote, particularly since they have to produce one to buy alcohol, open a checking account, or pick up concert tickets. In requiring voters to produce an i.d. to cast a valid ballot, Virginia would be safeguarding the integrity of its

he Commonwealth of Virginia and ing email at stop lights on our smart phones, that there are families who need to go the library to check theirs. If anything, in the current environment, the libraries should be open more hours, not fewer.

When Fairfax County Public Schools eliminated the year-round school calendar, followed by some of the county's poorest schools, and summer school, poor students were most affected, losing access to meals in the summer as well as a needed boost in instruction.

Similarly, some schools systems eliminated the telephone hotline to find out if schools are closed in inclement weather. Everyone checks that online, right? Or gets their daily email update?

Requirements to present a variety of identification to do a variety of things also present bigger challenges to poorer residents.

writing on the wall from the U.S. Justice Department about making it harder to vote.

More than 600,000 registered voters in Texas do not have the identification that the voter identification law would require, according to Tom Perez of the Justice Department, including a disproportionate number of minority voters, and more than 10 percent of Latino registered voters.

The analysis will reveal similar disparities in Virginia. The Governor can save Virginia money, time and trouble by vetoing the bill now.

To the Editor:

Last November's elections are not so distant that we have all forgotten the issues raised by the many candidates for local office. We heard a lot about transportation and education. The candidates competed to portray themselves as the most representative of this area, with voters' concerns closest to their hearts. We sent the elected officials off to carry our concerns to Richmond, the Board of Supervisors, and the School Board, there to be our strong advocates. Have they been doing as they promised? It appears that some are and some definitely are not. Unfortunately, Del. Barbara Comstock falls into the latter category.

To show what's happening at the local level, the most recent Connection carried a report from Sharon Bulova, recently re-elected Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, discussing the Board's priorities. As promised during the election cycle, the Board is focusing its attention on transportation, fiscal management, and education. But contrast this good news to what is coming out of Richmond. Rather than focusing on voters' concerns, our state legislators have produced bills on personhood, defunding abortions, requiring invasive and unnecessary exams for women seeking abortions, loosening restrictions on gun ownership, and advocating for prayer in public schools. Transportation bills have focused on taking away local control or restricting the types of contracts municipalities can use in seeking bids. Del. Comstock voted for all these measures. With her help, Virginia is becoming the tag line of a national joke. Is this what you voted for? Is this the direction we want to go? Is this what we sent Barbara Comstock to Richmond for? I think I am not alone in responding with a resounding "No!" Election time is not the only time to hold our representatives accountable for their actions. Del. Comstock is heading in the wrong direction. Please join me in urging her to respect the promises she made to her constituents during the campaign.

Kleinman of Transitions will decorate the master bedroom. "The room is architecturally challenging with many doors and minimum wall space," she said. "The focal point in the room becomes the sliding glass doors that look out into the garden. I use the garden view as my inspiration. Choosing fabrics in lush greens and warm browns, I brought the colors of the garden indoors. I believe master bedrooms should be serene so I used lots of different textures and very little pattern."

"For instance, the coverlet fabric is a sophisticated fabric with a water color quality to the flowers on it, but the club chair is slip covered in a fun confetti print in pinks and purples that she might have had as a child."

Elizabeth Krial, of Elizabeth Krial Design in Reston, was one of 23 designers selected to make over the 2012 D.C. Design House. Krial will design a modern nursery.

and pattern is a play on this celebratory mode. I am thrilled to help people who see the space take away some element in the design that might fit their home or their lifestyle," she said.

Victoria Sanchez of Victoria Sanchez Interiors in Alexandria is creating a teenager's retreat. "I have chosen a very lively, colorful design scheme from Missoni and will be using Mid-Century modern furniture," said Sanchez. "This room is designed to be a perfect hangout for teenagers and will reflect the energy teenagers create."

Nancy Twomey of Finnian's Moon Interiors in Alexandria will design a boy's bedroom. "I love good design, but I also know children. Children's rooms are messy places, so it is best if there is an inherent order in the design elements, starting with the palette," said Twomey. "My 2012 D.C. Design House room has a serene quietude in its bones, but it isn't sleepy. It has timeless, classic ingredients such as menswear fabrics, juxtaposed with modern, playful ones."

Elizabeth Krial of Elizabeth Krial Design in Reston will create a modern nursery.

"The most afforded luxury in my space is the natural sunlight that washes the room," she said. "As a designer, I have added luxurious layers of softness and comfort through textiles. The modern nursery has a lightness that will remind you of the hope and joy that a new baby brings."

Matthew Moore of John Matthew Moore Fine Art in McLean will decorate the foyer and staircase. "My design philosophy is clean, classic spaces. My favorite period in design is the late fifties and sixties," he said. "I feel that that is the time when American design came into its own. I've chosen this style for the entrance and reception hall [because] the home was built in that period. It's a sophisticated design that would be as much at home in the fifties as it is now in the present.

Shanon Munn of Ambi Design Studio in McLean will decorate the master deck. "My concept for the space is to have an outdoor retreat,"

The Chateau was designed by architect, Ron Hubbard, who uses innovative green technologies such as three geothermal fields and 14 radiant zones using more than 10,000 feet of buried line to heat and cool the home. 27,000 square feet of living space inside (13,500 finished), plus more than 3,000 square feet of exterior living space comprised of balconies and patios. Many of the outdoor living areas are constructed with stamped concrete and provide ample space for large parties, and some for more intimate gatherings.

The property also includes a 3-bedroom guest suite in one wing of the home, and an indoor pool and fitness center in the other. The Chateau has an eight-car garage.

said Munn. "I chose pieces that are scaled similarly to indoor pieces and provide a great lounging spot. We chose patterns that are interesting and bold. We plan to take the existing railing, currently an eyesore, and make it a highlight of the deck with a long row of custom benches and pedestals strategically placed to create focal points and to hide the dated metalwork."

Annette Hannon of Annette Hannon Interior Design in Burke designed the parlor. "The [parlor] is the first living area a visitor will enter," said Hannon. "My goal was to create a comfortable, luxurious space someone would want to linger in long after the party's over. I felt it was essential to add layers of interest in the room."

Paul VI, Tim Higgins of Great Falls Enjoy a Perfect Season

Based on recent analysis by ESPN, Paul VI Catholic High School, based in Fairfax, plays in the best high school basketball league in the country, the Washington Catholic Athletic Association (WCAC). The analysis is based on the fact that most of the players in the league wind up playing division 1 college basketball, as well as this year there being three teams that were ranked in the top ten nationally by various polls. Additionally, many of the players are ranked in the top 100 in the country. The league includes such well-known basketball high schools as DeMatha, Gonzaga and O'Connell. Paul VI just accomplished what has never been done in the 50-year history of the WCAC, a perfect 21 game, undefeated season in the WCAC, beating DeMatha on Monday, Feb. 27 at American University for the championship. Langley, McLean Enjoy Successful Ice Hockey Seasons

Local high school rivals face off in postseason quarterfinals.

evin Diner scored twice and Evan Sterling had a goal and three assists as Langley High School posted a 6-1 upset win over McLean in the recent quarterfinal round game of the Northern Virginia Scholastic Hockey League (NVSHL) playoffs at SkateQuest Reston.

With the victory, Langley advanced to the semifinals where they lost a close game to Stone Bridge High at the Ashburn Ice House.

The annals of cross-town rivals Langley and McLean ice hockey have produced several unusual scenarios over the years, and the quarterfinals round playoff game added yet another chapter to that legacy.

Down 1-0 on an early goal by Diner, McLean captain Nick Baker had to step into his team's goalie position after the McLean starting goalie left the game on a penalty. Baker was valiant and blocked several Langley scoring bids, including a rocket slap shot with his glove, during the final five minutes of the opening period. Paul Forest eventually took over the goalie duties for McLean to start the second period with Langley ahead, 3-0.

McLean played with heart, determination

League action. Two weeks ago, the two teams met in a postseason game with Langley prevailing.

who played goalie in youth hockey 10 years prior, made several spectacular saves. But Langlev players Atte Happonen and Drew Schneider finally broke through in the last three minutes of the period to essentially put the game out of reach. Grady Payne scored a late goal for McLean but Sterling answered 45 second later and the Saxons were on their way to the semifinals.

"It was an unusual game, what with the goalie getting that penalty, but once the second period started, both teams settled down and it was a good, two-way game," said Langley coach Rob Faktorow.

Indeed, both teams had ample scoring opportunities with Langley goalie Ryan Framinan looming large on several McLean shots, particularly in the second period when a Highlander comeback was still a possibility.

Stone Bridge Barely Edges Langley, 5-4, in OT.

Two nights following the win over McLean, the Langley hockey squad, in a fastpaced Wednesday thriller in Ashburn, wowed its fans by nearly defeating the defending champion Stone Bridge Bulldogs.

The Saxons were outshooting Stone Bridge throughout the first period of the NVSHL semifinal game and jumped out in front on a goal by Evan Sterling. The second period saw three goals by each team in back and forth fashion, with Langley's Kevin Diner netting two scores. The period ended with Langley in front 4-3 and the teams dead even at 21 shots each.

In the third period, Stone Bridge put furious pressure on Langley keeper David Altman, finally edging ahead of Langley in shots on goal. An amazing performance by Altman and a tight Langley defense held Stone Bridge off until Stone Bridge pulled its goalie. Using the extra man advantage, the Bulldogs were able to tie the game with just 51 seconds left.

In overtime, with a first-ever trip to the finals on the line, Langley continued to deliver its best game of the season. Nevertheless, with only three minutes left, Stone Bridge was able to overpower the tiring Saxon squad, claiming the 5-4 win and advancing to the NVSHL championship game.

EARLIER IN THE POSTSEASON, Langley had been victorious over Bishop O'Connell High (Arlington) in a first round contest, earning the Saxons a berth in the quarterfinals against McLean.

In a Friday night affair, Langley routed O'Connell, 9-2, behind a team-record five goals from Drew Schneider. Also for Langley, Logan Pontell added two goals while Ture Linden and Colin Framinan added one each.

The win enabled the Saxons to move on to play McLean. During the regular season, Langlev had lost to McLean - the first time in 10 years that the Saxons had fallen to their local rivals. So, going into the quarterfinals round playoff meeting, Langley was determined to avenge the regular season loss.

"Our players were determined to start a new winning steak," said Faktorow, the Langley coach.

Langley went on to the decisive playoff win over McLean, placing them into the semifinals round where they saw their successful season end with the loss to the powerful Stone Bridge program.

McLean Hosts Annual Boar's Head Feast

Choir Department welcomes community to Medieval-themed dinner.

By Alex McVeigh The Connection

he McLean Choral Department presented its annual Boar's Head Feast Saturday, March 10, featuring a three-course Medievalstyle dinner and performances by a variety of choral groups.

The Madrigals spent the evening at center stage, with their 16 members donning Renaissance garb and weaving songs from different centuries into a lively program, all told in rhyming verse.

Along with the Men's and Women's Choir, the Madrigals performed carols from Finland and Spain, songs in Latin and Celtic, along with popular tunes from artists such as Queen, Billy Joel and Solomon Linda.

"Performing 'Bohemian Rhapsody,' in all its parts and harmonies, was one of the toughest songs, but the most rewarding," said senior Chris Chen, who played the king. "But it came out well, and that was the product of a lot of hard work."

"Orphans of the Storm." 8 p.m. McLean Community Center, 1234

Junior Wolfe Glick agreed, saying "it was fun to work it out and get comfortable singing it together."

Between songs, the Madrigals told a story of a royal meal cursed by a witch, which causes the king, his queen, their son and his wife to argue with a visiting duchess and her family, as well as the witch and her family.

The event, which raises funds for the choral department's annual scholarships, almost never came to be. Originally scheduled for Jan. 21, the event was postponed when inclement weather closed schools and cancelled activities for the day.

"Up until a month after the original date, we weren't sure that it would even be rescheduled," said senior Nick Stone. "But we're glad we could put the show on, it's a cool tradition."

This was the 59th annual edition of the Boar's Head Feast, which is one of the McLean Choral Department's signature events. The chorus is ranked ninth nationally.

"Early Results" Show Stable Disease"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

There's five words e-mailed from my oncologist that I can live with (Duh!). Certainly better than the previous nine words e-mailed eight weeks ago regarding my then current CT Scan: "Scan results show progression. We'll talk more on Friday." Not that early results (I think 'early results' means after the first two infusions) guarantee any future results, but half good is better than all bad. Continued 'progression' (growth and/or movement; meaning the chemotherapy was having zero effect) would have been disappointing (you think?), so reading 'stable' in my doctor's message was welcome news indeed; any port in a storm, as they say. And make no mistake about it, when you're diagnosed as a terminal patient, who's now outlived your original prognosis - by years - every day is a storm, and any place of refuge, leaky or otherwise, is a welcome sight. Just as pilots say: "Any landing you walk away from is a good one," I'm going to create a corollary for cancer patients: any scan that doesn't cause your oncologist to advise you to get your things in order ("Five Wishes") is a good one. And so Tuesday, February 18th was real good – for "Kenny-with-cancer." Alive and reasonably well.

However, just as life goes on, so too do the diagnostic scans and all the associated anxiety and hopes and prayers as well. It's a balancing act to be sure, to be always living on the edge (make that precipice), but obviously I'm grateful to be doing so - despite the emotional upheaval. Though I've been there - and still doing it, it doesn't make any of it easier going forward. Being familiar with the chemotherapy (the "second line" I'm now enduring) - and its side effects from three years ago when I was originally diagnosed and treated, doesn't really lesson the anxiety of it, it more reinforces the fear of it. Regardless of the success I've had fending off cancer's ravages, it's difficult to rid yourself of the inevitability of its power.

At least now there are e-mails (and Web sites to access) between doctor and patient to maintain the lines of communication and facilitate the prompt exchange of information, and to shortcut the previously interminable waits patients had waiting for scan/lab results. The results are not immediate, let's be realistic; but they are sort of predictable, time-wise, and in that predictability evolves a certain calm. And however 'calm' can be introduced into the doctor/cancer patient equation, it exponentially improves the patient's quality of life.

Now when you have your follow-up appointments - and certain information has already been communicated, these appointments can be more productive, less emotional and more strategic moving forward rather than spent reacting to medical facts only recently in evidence. After all, the oncologist is trying to keep you alive, and any methodology that enhances that relationship and improves the quality of the time between doctor and patient is better for all concerned. The emails blunt some of that unproductive but predictable emotion, which then enables the doctor and patient to more intelligently and dispassionately consider the options/treatments available. At some point, however, reality has to be addressed (I wouldn't say embraced, though). Way back when, my oncologist advised us that none of this was going to be easy, and he was right. But his honesty - and treatment has made it a bit more bearable for me. I wouldn't characterize or dare say that there's a recipe for success in anything he or I have done together or that I've done independently of him; so far, so good though. I am alive three years post-diagnosis after originally receiving a less than encouraging prognosis: "13 months to two years."

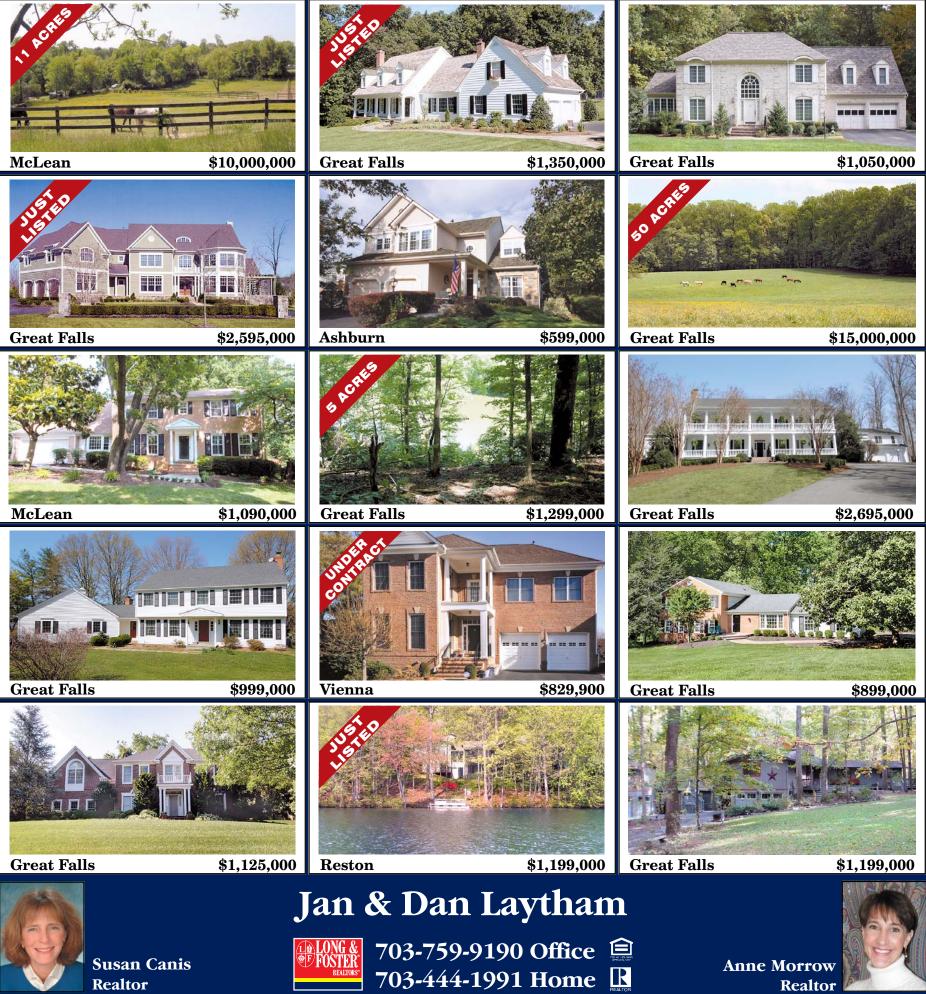

Within the next month, I will have had two more chemotherapy infusions followed up by yet another CT Scan, and this fun will begin all over again. I can't really say that I'm looking forward to it, but being terminal is all it's cracked up to be, and looking forward is still better than not being able to look at all.
