Bikers Ride for Wounded Airmen $25,000 raised.

BY SANDRA MARTINEZ
THE CONNECTION

About 2,000 cyclists soared through the courses as the Air Force Cycling Classic raised $25,000 for a charity that supports wounded airmen. The Air Force Association Wounded Airman Program received the money through pledges made by those participating in Sunday's Air Force Cycling Challenge Crystal Ride as part of Team Sabre.

"The Air Force Association is very pleased to be selected as the principal beneficiary of the 2012 Air Force Cycling Classic," said Mike Dunn, AFA president and CEO. "Our Wounded Airman Program allows us to provide a level of comfort or support to the men and women who have served and sacrificed for this country."

Sponsored by the Boeing Company, the annual two-day event returned to Arlington this past weekend. Spectators cheered from the sidelines as the cyclists pedaled through a variety of tourist landmarks, including the Pentagon and Air Force Memorial.

The event featured professional races, amateur cycling and courses for children. The event kicked off in Clarendon on Saturday, June 9, and then moved to Crystal City on Sunday for a second day of riding. Heidi Mack, the reigning Miss America, signed autographs at the Nutrilite booth. This year's expo had nearly 20 booths, ranging from USAF Recruitment to 5-Hour Energy.

"The event draws huge crowds to businesses in Clarendon and Crystal City, and also helps to boost Arlington's reputation as a serious cycling city," said Rob Laybourn, director of the cycling event.

The Air Force Cycling Classic began in 1998, and boasts the Washington, D.C. region's premier professional bike races. In 2008, the Air Force Cycling Challenge Crystal Ride was added, and has grown to become the area's largest non-competitive, participatory ride.

Black Box or Black Hole?

Ballston residents concerned new theater could become financial drain for county.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

When the Arlington County Board approved a new nine-story mixed-use commercial building in Virginia Square earlier this year, it was a deal that seemed too good to be true. Herndon-based developer Crimson Partners would construct a $3.7 million “black box” theater with seating for 150 people in exchange for $1.3 million worth of bonus density. The community would get an amenity identified in its sector plan, and the developer would get to build a larger building. But now that the project is moving forward, some are starting to wonder about whether or not the black box would become a black hole.

“We don’t want this to be a drain on the county,” said James Schroll, president of the Ballston-Virginia Square Civic Association. “The last thing we need is another Artisphere.”

Budget documents show that the county spends $3 million a year on the Rosslyn cultural center known as Artisphere, which takes in about $1.5 million in revenue. Ballston residents are concerned that the new 13,000-square-foot theater proposed in Virginia Square would be a similar burden. Although the main use of the new facility would be for theatrical productions, the list of allowed uses includes events, conferences, religious uses and civic events.

In exchange for bonus density, a developer is building a new theater for Arlington.

County officials say the ancillary uses will not inhibit the theater’s revenue potential. Some aren’t so sure.

“Instead of a black box theater, this is a financial black hole theater,” said Robert Atkins during the public hearing. “This will be a net loss as opposed to a net benefit.”

FOR MANY YEARS, the site has been home to the Arlington Funeral Home, which has now moved to a different location. Recent years have seen a number of proposals for the site, although none of them came to fruition. Back in 2004, the County Board approved a project for the site. But that never happened. Then, in 2007, elected officials approved an amended version of the project, known as “The Club on Quincy.” But the Florida-based developer went bankrupt in 2008, and the development never happened. Now county officials are hoping that the current proposal might finally transform the block into a more urban landscape.

“Hopefully, this time is the charm,” County Board member Walter Tejada said before the vote in January.

Even before the proposal was approved, doubts were already building about the fi

Community Discusses, Votes on Relocation of Trailers

Current placement receives no votes.

BY EDISON RUSS
THE CONNECTION

A public discussion on the placement of the trailers at Jamestown Elementary School was held June 4 to address community concerns with the initial placement.

Arlington Public Schools presented four options for trailer placement along with a table that outlined the pros and cons of each location.

Two additional placement options were suggested by the community, including swapping the current location of the trailer with the playground, and placing the placing the trailers in the parking lot.

There were two votes on which option the community preferred. The first vote weighed all the options against one another, and B and C were the top choices, with 29 and 26 votes, respectively. When weighed against each other, B received 36 votes and C 34.

The current location of the trailers, option A, received no votes.

“The default position should be what is in the best interest of the children,” said April Lehman, a community member who attended the meeting, “and that has not been the case during this entire process.”

Several members of the community cited that one of their biggest concerns with the current placement of trailers between the playground and the baseball field is that it would be difficult for staff to keep an eye on children playing at both locations.

Parents were also concerned about the space lost to the trailers. Lehman said that the Jamestown community uses the playground as its “bigger backyard,” and that the trailers reduced the available space by one-third.

Another concern with location A was that its distance from the school would make it difficult to quickly gather students into the building in case of emergency and that the ramps that are required by the Americans with Disabilities Act to lead from the trailers to the school would further reduce space.

Parents were also concerned that the lost space could be a potential hazard for children who might collide with the trailers while chasing after a homerun ball, or that children might poke sticks beneath the trailers or climb onto the roofs. Assistant Superintendent of Facilities and Operations Clarence Stukes said that skirting would be installed around the trailers to address the latter two concerns.

One mother said that her concern with option A was that her fifth grader who would be taking class in the trailers would be unable to focus with children from other grades playing all around the classroom. Jamestown principal Kenwyn Schaffner said that grades 1-5 have their recess and lunch at from 12:15 to 1:15, while only the kindergartners play earlier. Schaffner also said that P.E. is usually conducted inside the gym or on the side of the school with options C and D.

The trailers were installed to deal with capacity issues. Jamestown’s enrollment is

Mitchell Wins Cappie

H-B Woodlawn High won a Cappie trophy at Sunday night's 13th annual Cappie Awards at The Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. Senior Kamau Mitchell received the honor June 10 for Comic Actor in a Play for his school's production of "The Foreigner."

"This is insane; it's hard to believe," said Mitchell. "I'm truly blessed. I stayed confident, though. I expected the worst, but hoped for the best."

Following graduation, he's headed to Howard University to major in Musical Theater in the Bachelor of Fine Arts program.

Overall, Westfield High won the most Cappies, garnering 10, including Best Musical, for "Crazy for You." The Best Play winner, McLean

636 students. Without the trailers, the school's capacity is 597 students. According to Arlington Public Schools Public Relations Specialist Frank Bellavia, the five units that are to be installed add four classrooms with an extra 24 seats each, for an additional total of 96 seats, making the school's capacity 693 students.

Bellavia said the trailers cost between $250,000 and $300,000, with $190,000 going toward the five units and $60-$100,000 going toward installation and infrastructure. The current location of the trailers is optimal for utilities, so costs would increase in making the necessary changes at other locations. Options C and D both are also on public property, so placing the trailers there would require 4-6 additional weeks to get permission for installation.

Stukes said that the school hopes to have the installation completed before the teachers return in mid-August and that a decision on trailer relocation could be reached by the time the Jamestown school year ends.

nancial viability of the theater. Planning Commissioner Charles Monfort expressed concerns when the commission considered the proposal, noting that the experience with Artisphere indicated that the county does not have a good track record in planning art facilities. Commissioner Steve Cole said it was troubling the Planning Commission was expected to advise the County Board on the proposal without first seeing a business plan. Commissioner Inta Malis noted that the theater space will be owned by the building owner and leased to the county. Commissioner Terry Savelle suggested that if Arlington-based theater groups are unable to contribute to the operating costs, the county should consider looking beyond its boundaries to other groups in the larger metropolitan area.

"The public plaza will enliven Virginia Square, and the Black Box Theater will add a significant cultural destination to this part of the Metro corridor," said County Board Chairwoman Mary Hynes in a written statement following the vote. "This project brings us closer to realizing the community-crafted sector plan's vision of Virginia Square as a center for arts, culture and education."

Signature Commissions New Musicals

Continuing in its ongoing efforts of supporting new musical theater works, Eric Schaeffer, Artistic Director of Signature Theatre, announced that the Tony Award-winning theatre is commissioning two musicals under Signature's American Musical Voices Project (AMVP): The Next Generation. Composers Joshua Rosenblum (Einstein's Dreams, Fermat's Last Tango) and Josh Schmidt (Adding Machine, A Minister's Wife) will be creating new musicals for future seasons at Signature.

In December of 2011, Rosenblum and Schmidt were awarded "honoree grants" and shared selections from projects in development at a special performance held at Signature Theatre.

The AMVP, founded in 2006 thanks to a generous grant from The Shen Family Foundation, is the largest single musical theater commissioning and producing initiative of any U.S. theater, and has commissioned 14 works to date (nine under 'The Next Generation' which supports emerging composers). The Shen Family Foundation also awarded Signature a substantial grant in order to fund the AMVP: The Next Generation, with five rising composers becoming the initial recipients of grants to develop full-length musicals.

Trends in Landscape Design

Local tastemakers offer suggestions for making the most of backyard space.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Whether creating a tapestry of bold colors, a sanctuary to escape stress or simply a low maintenance landscape, local designers say taking a backyard from dull to dazzling is easier than one might think, and offer insight into hottest landscape elements as well as trends in sustainable design.

"The biggest overall trend is that people are cocooning — that is, people are staying at home and creating multi-use spaces," said landscape architect Mark White, owner of Garden Wise in Arlington. "They want to be able to cook outdoors and have a dining area. They might want a water feature. They are creating a place for a mini-vacation in their backyard."

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE. From custom waterfalls to simple, self-contained systems in an urn, fountains and ornamental water features are surging in popularity as homeowners strive to create a tranquil oasis in their backyards.

"Given the state of the economy and the fact that people are leading hectic lives, many are wanting calm spaces in their backyards," said White. "They are using water elements to create soothing sounds."

LET IT RAIN. Rain gardens are popular as eco-minded homeowners look for ways to decrease water pollution. Rain gardens allow rainwater runoff from surfaces like roofs, driveways and walkways to be absorbed into the ground instead of storm drains.

Landscapers at George Mason University in Fairfax, created rain gardens across campus using water-loving, native plants. The gardens help alleviate storm-water runoff and pollution.

"Also, rain gardens help to eliminate standing pools of water that might otherwise have been the perfect breeding ground for mosquitoes," said Archie Nesbitt, landscape supervisor at George Mason.

HARVESTING RAINWATER. "Many people are now collecting rainwater in rain

Landscape designers say yards that incorporate both edible and decorative plants are popular. Herbs and patio vegetables are ideal for small outdoor areas.

barrels and using it to water their plants," White said. "You can connect a hose to the barrel and use it to water your garden."

HOW DOES ONE'S GARDEN GROW?

Landscapes that incorporate both edible and decorative plants are popular now and serve dual purposes: providing both food and beauty. "There has been a huge interest in vegetable gardens, container gardens and fruit gardens, especially dwarf fruit trees, tomatoes, peppers and herbs," said Sherrye Schenk of Potomac Garden Center in North Potomac.

MAKING ROOM. Designers can make accommodations when space is scarce.

"Because many of the yards in this area are small, people don't have the space to dedicate to a larger garden, so we're putting plants in containers and growing what is known as 'patio vegetables,' which don't get as large," said White. "For example, there are certain varieties of tomatoes and eggplants that are suitable for a smaller space."

KEEPING BAMBI AT BAY. Homeowners who live in areas where deer abound also search for plants that don't attract these four-legged friends.

"Anything that is deer resistant is popular now," said Alex Dencker of Behnke Nurseries in Potomac. "Nandina and cherry laurel are deer resistant. 'Green giant arborvitae' works if you're looking for screen plants to create privacy. They grow tall very quickly.”

GOING NATIVE. Designers say indigenous plants often grow beautifully with little maintenance and no fertilizer. “Whenever possible, allow things to be what they want to be ... the more a planted area can be self-sustaining [and] not require upkeep, the better,” said Nesbitt.

Drought tolerance is another bonus that makes native plants favorites among homeowners and landscape designers. “Purple cone flower are popular, as are creeping phlox which blooms early, provides great ground cover and requires little maintenance,” said Dencker. “Black-eyed Susans and redbud trees are also native plants that have colorful buds. There are so many birds and other critters that need our native plants to survive. That is another reason why our native plants are so important.”

Staving Off Mosquitoes

Nothing spoils a backyard barbecue like a swarm of bloodthirsty mosquitoes. How does one keep bugs at bay without harsh chemicals? Local experts offer tips.

FANS. Landscape architect Mark White of Garden Wise in Arlington, says installing a ceiling fan on a covered patio is an effective method. “They create enough air current to keep mosquitoes from lighting on top of your skin,” he said.

ALL-NATURAL SPRAYS. Alex Dencker of Behnke Nurseries in Potomac, says oil-based sprays help keep the mosquito population under control. “Oil-based sprays like cedar oil and clover oil keep critters off without using nasty chemicals,” he said. “Most of these repellants come in sprays or granules.”

LEMON. White recommends a lemon-scented plant called lemon bomb as a barrier for repelling mosquitoes. “Lemon scented plants do a bang-up job of keeping mosquitoes [away],” he said. “They provide a scent all over your garden and mosquitoes don’t like it. I have it planted all over my yard and on Memorial Day we had no mosquitoes, which is unheard of in Northern Virginia.” He added that citronella geranium plants are also effective mosquito repellants.

INSECTS AS WEAPONS. Sherrye Schenk of Potomac Garden Center in North Potomac, says that preying insects can keep mosquitoes and other pests under control. “Praying mantis and lady bugs work well.”
