Tribute to Margaret's Garden

ArtSpace exhibit features art inspired by local gardener.

BY ALEX McVeigh The Connection

lmost 50 years ago, Margaret Thomas moved to Herndon, and after the death of her husband in 1974, she began using her five-acre farm to grow irises, selling them by the bunch for 75 cents each. Since then, the gardens surrounding her house became a haven for local artists and floral enthusiasts alike, open until sundown to anyone that wanted to take a look.

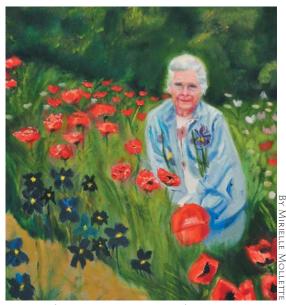

Thomas, who passed away May 25, 2011, is still fondly remembered by local artists, many of whom spent the last month displaying their garden-inspired work at Herndon ArtSpace.

Forty artists working in a variety of media submitted their work, each focusing on their lasting memories of a place that was special to them.

"When I first discovered Margaret's garden many springs ago, I was taken with the amazing colors and varieties of the flowers, especially the irises. My mother loved irises and they grew in our yard in Arlington when I was growing up," said Marianne Cordyack, who made several ceramic plates for the exhibit. "I was also taken with Margaret Thomas, who was so kind and interesting and knew everything about each variety of her flowers. I ordered some beautiful white irises that spring, picked them up ready to plant in the fall. They are still growing and blooming in my yard in Reston, having been divided many times.

The works featured a wide variety of viewpoints on the garden. Many featured brightly-colored irises, poppies and foxgloves. Several pieces also included partial or complete views of the Thomas house and a few even featured Thomas herself, surrounded by the flowers she loved. More than the flowers, the artists recalled how welcoming and accommodating Thomas was to her visitors.

"For us her garden was a yearly event. In the early spring we got in touch and together we went to paint in plein air the beautiful flowers," said Laura Chirillo. "Margaret was always most gracious and hospitable and I must say sometimes tolerant of all of us stepping throughout her garden."

"Mrs. Thomas Among Her Flowers," on display at Herndon ArtSpace as part of an exhibit paying tribute to Thomas, who had a local garden where she welcomed artists.

Another photographer, Lori McLaughlin, took her photos in September, many of pink and purple asters on the north side of the garden.

"I love the way the haziness of the summer combines with the purple flowers to create an almost psychedelic reality," she said.

For some artists, the garden reminded them of one of the most famous gardens in all of art history, Claude Monet's Giverny gardens in northern France. Diana Eichler, a painter from Reston, recalled one day as a student in the mid-nineties when she brought her equipment to the garden and got to work.

"Margaret's garden was stunning that day, and we were all a part of it," she said. "When I finally visited Monet's garden at Giverny some years later, I was struck by the similarities. Margaret's garden was her palette, just as Giverny was Monet's."

Fighting Crime, Discretely

App offers discrete method of sending tips to police.

erndon native and chief executive officer of CrimePush, Shayan Pahlevani, is considering donating the CrimePush app, which allows users to discretely report crime, to the Herndon Police Department.

The app is free to download, but police departments, colleges and other schools typically pay to have it customized for their purposes. CrimePush also receives funding from state grants and from inves-

Pahlevani, a Capitol Hill resident, got the idea for the app after having his car broken into twice and being robbed at gunpoint. He then began working with his brother Eman Pahlevani and Samier Mansur with the goal of empowering people by creating a userfriendly way of contacting the police.

"So, the three of us—it was our brainchild—came up with the app together and left our day jobs to do this full time and try to do some good," Pahlevani said.

The app lets users report crimes by selecting from categories such as vandalism and sexual harassment and writing a message that will be sent to their police department's email. The app also uses a GPS to send the police the location the message was sent from.

CrimePush also has the ability to record audio and video or take pictures of crimes as a means of providing evidence for the police.

"If there's a video of an altercation happening, they might respond quicker," Pahlevani said.

Emails sent by CrimePush are checked during regular business hours and are not intended to replace 911 in case of emergency.

In addition to reporting crime, the app also has "check in," "distress" and "safety box" features, which were launched middle schools and high July 10 with the CrimePush schools.

messages to send to their emergency contacts, letting them know if the user has arrived somewhere safely.

The distress option allows users to either select a preset message or one of their own to send to their emergency and medical contacts and to their Facebook page.

The safety box contains a map of your GPS location, a list of numbers for organizations such as poison control and the National Domestic Violence Hotline and converts a phone's flash into a beam for use as a flashlight.

Pahlevani said they are also developing a "police dashboard," which will allow the police to run filters and searches on reports as well as record various data on crime, such as time of year and location, that could help to better predict crime patterns.

"All those analytics can really tell a powerful story and ultimately cut back on crime by allowing police to have better resources to fight it," Mansur

Time for School

Advice on how to transition from a laid-back summer to a hectic academic year.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL THE CONNECTION

hen Ellen Feldman's 5-yearold son started school last fall, one of the biggest adjustments for the single mother of two was having to adhere to a schedule.

"All of a sudden we went from being able to do things on our own time frame to having to wake up and be at a certain place at a certain time," said Feldman. "Sending my son off to school for the first time was exciting, but also difficult."

From purchasing school supplies and new clothes to reuniting with friends and leaving home for the first time, the start of a new school year can bring about emotions that range from delight to anxiety.

"Back to school, which is a positive experience, has stress built into it," said Linda

"But I Don't Want to Go to School"

Separation Anxiety and Other Resistances to School.

'Separation anxiety is a natural and healthy emotion," said Linda Gulyn, Ph.D., a professor of psychology at Marymount University in Arlington. "Developmental theory will say when children have separation anxiety, it is a sign that they are attached to the parent. That is a good sign.'

Understanding an older child's resistance to school: "From a psychological point of view, it is important for parents to acknowledge the child's feelings," Gulyn said. "Even if you're looking at your 14-year-old and thinking she's being absolutely unreasonable, you have to say 'I understand how you feel. I get it.' Then the teen feels that they are being respected.

For a lot of teens, there is a lot of pressure going into school mode, so that is legitimate anxiety. They might be saying, 'I now have three A.P. (Advanced Placement) classes. I have to play volleyball. I have to work parttime. I have all this stuff going on,' so the pressure is real," said Gulyn.

Gulyn, a professor of psychology at Marymount University in Arlington, Va. "Any change is stressful, even a positive change. But kids will adapt quickly." The transition, said experts, is more manageable when parents develop a plan before the first day of classes.

"The more structure parents can give their kids before school starts, the better," said professional organizer Cecilia Anderson, a former teacher and the owner of Splendidly Organized, Inc. in Vienna. "If kids are given total free reign during the summer, they are not going to be in the right mindset for Michele Claeys, associate head and middle school principal at the Norwood School in Potomac, believes that final days of summer break can be an ideal time for an academic brush-up: "There are often skills that aren't used throughout the summer, but are important as school starts. Having children of all ages read as much as possible for pleasure throughout the summer, but also in the days leading up to the start of school, is a good idea because it is a sustained experience where they are focused on something for a long period time." Claeys and let children choose one thing from also recommended giving children an opportunity to discuss their reading with friends.

EXPERTS ALSO SUGGEST establishing a sleep routine with a consistent bedtime. "If parents get started a full week ahead of time trying to get children into the routine of being awake and alert for the morning, it gives them a chance to get their bodies adjusted to the schedule that they will have to maintain for the whole year," said Claeys.

Reintroducing a back-to-school morning ritual can be an anxiety-inducing exercise for some, especially after two months without a rigid agenda. According to professional organizers, a tactical plan can make the daybreak drill more pleasant.

"Do as much a you can the night before. For parents who pack their kids lunches, it is important to have things ready to go and put in bags," said Anderson. For children who want the freedom of packing their own lunches, Anderson recommended dividing lunch options into food group and > allowing children to select one item from each group.

> "You want to give your child a balanced meal," she said. "One day there might be tuna sandwiches, and turkey sandwiches on another day, and whatever snack goes along with it like cut-up vegetables. Have those ready to go and in bins each bin. That way kids will have more ownership over their lunches and there will be few complaints."

Don't underestimate the importance of breakfast either: "A child won't have all faculties for learning if they haven't eaten well," said Anderson. "Some kids don't have lunch until 1 o'clock, so to go from 6 a.m. until 1 o'clock without food is tough. They need something that has protein. It doesn't have to be home-cooked eggs. It can be turkey sausages or lunchmeat, but a bag of chips and a monster drink is not a good breakfast."

Cecilia Anderson, a former teacher and the owner of Splendidly Organized in Vienna, encourages parents to begin creating a structured schedule for their children before the start of school.

Vienna-based professional organizer Susan Unger of ClutterSOS tells parents to create a color-coded calendar that includes each family member's events and activities.

TO AVOID a last-minute morning search for errant permission slips or stray report cards, Vienna-based professional organizer Susan Unger of ClutterSOS urges parents to create a command center, a central location where all papers that must be signed and retuned to school are kept. She adds that a chart outlining the morning tasks is another useful tool: "If children have a check list to look at, they can ask themselves, 'Have I brushed my teeth?' or 'Have I combed my hair?' The night before, choose clothes and put the backpack by the

Use a family calendar. "Another important thing is having a calendar that lists activities and sporting events and putting it in a place where everybody can see it and everybody knows the schedule," said Unger. "It also helps to color-code the calendar, so have one color for each child."

Before heading out to purchase new supplies or clothes for school, organizers suggest taking inventory. "You can see what you already have and what you need and make a shopping list from that," said Unger.

One of the most important components of creating a good start to a new school year is attitude, education experts agree. "Generally, it is helpful if parents help children see school as a fun, happy place where they can be stimulated and learn," said Claeys.

Making Beautiful Music

Students participate in Franklin's Band and Orchestra Camp.

By Bonnie Hobbs The Connection

ake 710 students, 35 teachers and musical instruments of every size and shape and you get Franklin Middle School's Band and Orchestra Camp. This year's camp, the 27th annual, ran June 25-July 20; and over those four weeks, attendees received four hours a day of intensive instruction.

Rishabh Misra, a fifth-grader at Greenbriar West Elementary, was there for his second time. After seeing many of his older friends play the violin, he started playing it last summer and came to camp to learn it better.

"I like hearing how the bow can make a sound on the strings," he said. "At camp, the teachers are really nice and there's not as much homework. I'd recommend it to others because it's fun, you get a lunch break and you get to do music theory, too, not just playing."

Madelin Ward, a Franklin seventh-grader, chose the flute because of a relative who played it and discovered she liked it, too. "You get to create your own sound without a reed," she said. "And I can fit it in my backpack."

AT CAMP FOR THE FIRST TIME, Madelin said, "I wanted to get better at my instrument. I learned how to transfer easier from a natural note to a flat and I've definitely improved on sight reading. I also had a lot of fun."

Classmate Matthew Ehlers plays tenor saxophone and was at camp for his third time. "I like it so much because the saxophone teacher in my instrumental class, [Stephanie Longaria], is really good and helped me learn my scales," he explained. "I'd definitely recommend the camp to people wanting to improve. It doesn't take up all your day and all the teachers are great."

Franklin eighth-grader Mark Stewart plays the tuba.

Stephen Matthie is the orchestra director at Rocky Run Middle and has taught at the camp for five years now. This year, he directed the most advanced orchestra.

"I love the kids and we have a lot of fun," he said. "It's summer camp, so they want to be here and play their instruments. Otherwise, they might not have played at all [until school resumes]. If you don't play for months, you lose it, so this keeps them fresh and they don't have to play catch-up later."

Oak Hill fifth-grader and violinist Brandon Nguyen was a second-year camper and said he learned "a lot of stuff. This used to be my brother's violin so it's pretty special and I put karate ribbons on it when I learn new things. This year, I learned how to do slurs and shifting."

Starting School Prepared

First day of school on Sept. 4; local nonprofits provide school supplies and weekend food.

ith school beginning in a few weeks, area charitable organizations have been collecting contributions of new backpacks, calculators, other school supplies, money and gift cards and winter coats to help the tens of thousands of truly needy Northern Virginia students.

In Fairfax County alone, more than 40,000 students are poor enough to qualify for subsidized meals, and those students have mostly not had access to those meals over the summer since Fairfax County Public Schools no longer operates summer school.

Working poor families cannot easily outfit one or more children properly for school (think of the cost of a graphing calculator).

"For many families in our area who are working hard but struggling to make ends meet, the prospect of finding the funds to purchase new supplies for their children each year can be stressful," said Lisa Whetzel, Our Daily Bread's executive director. The organization was still $3,000 and 200 backpacks short of its goal last week. To at 703-273-8829 or holiday@ODBFairfax.org, or visit www.ODBFairfax.org.

One organization, Doorways for Women and Children in Arlington, aptly describes the challenges of some of Arlington's students on its website: "Embarrassed and disappointed that their family can only afford to prioritize necessities as simple as groceries and rent, children living in poverty share a very different schooling experience then many of their peers."

On Thursday, Aug. 30, county firefighters will distribute backpacks and school supplies for children throughout Fairfax County. They will distribute approximately 2,000 backpacks, with supplies to school administrators, teachers, and local shelters for children in need.

United Community Ministries also helps local students. Send donations to United Community Ministries, 7511 Fordson Road, Alexandria. Contact 703-768-7106.

Once school begins, some local nonprofits will start a different kind of backpack program, one that provides "weekend backpacks" for these children who might not have enough to eat. The weekend backpacks contain childfriendly foods that are high in nutritional value. Beginning in September, schools will assist in the distribution of these bags.

Getting Our Trees Back

To the Editor:

When I returned to Great Falls, after only a week away, I was absolutely shocked to find that our small but charming shopping place was completely changed—in fact I had to do a double take and almost did not recognize the placeit was totally naked. In one fell swoop, all the small flowering trees in the center of the parking lot had disappeared. We now have a very common-or-garden shopping center without the unique character and charm it had. We now have a center similar to all the other suburban shopping centers—flat, boring, sunburnt, naked places. We will not be greeted with dogwoods and redbuds next spring. At least we will not have to "fight" for some of the shade given by those trees next summer. When I asked around as to the reason for this "massacre," the answer was July 29, 2012.

1. Without those trees, customers will be able to better see the signs of the stores. Is this a fair exchange for the lives of those small trees? (which are not oaks and maples etc., so they will not grow to majestic heights and threaten to crash).

EDITORIAL

2. We, the people, have no right to question what has been done, the perpetrators claim they have had the Fairfax County permission. Is this our local democracy in action?

I think I can say that most us Great Falls residents will like to have our trees back - not in the size of new, weak saplings but of the same size and height when the old ones were killed. In some countries, for every tree one cuts down, one has to plant two more. All we are asking is to have replaced those which the perpetrators have killed.

TJ on Hot Seat

To the Editor:

TJ (Thomas Jefferson High School) has often been cited as one of the best schools in the country. It has been put on the hot seat for not prioritizing diversification of racial origins among the students it enrolls. Reading current newspaper reports on the Olympics in England has caused me to question this criticism of TJ. Photos show the three female sprinters representing the USA to be black and photos of the winning eight USA female rowers to be all white. Does this represent mistaken priorities held by our Olympic officials? Should striving for excellence be diluted by a policy of diversification? Should TJ have a quota in the future on accepting Asian students for admission? No easy answer to these valid ques-

Questioning a 'War on Women?'

To the Editor:

Recent criticisms of Barbara Comstock's position on so-called "women's issues," and the concomitant accusations of a Republican "war on women" have left me frustrated. Our Constitution does not, and should not, guarantee access to free abortion and contraception. While some may believe that these represent important women's health issues, others put a much higher priority on treating actual illnesses that afflict many women, such as cancer and heart disease. A great deal of research suggests that both abortion and contraception may increase a woman's likelihood of suffering from these prevalent life-threatening health problems. Whatever your position, it is extraordinarily unfair and deceptive to characterize those who prioritize health care issues differently as conducting a "war on women" or even as being insensitive to women's health issues. As a woman myself, I rather prefer to see any government funds or any mandated funds from employers go to help those who need to fight life threatening illness. Moreover, I cherish the freedoms granted to me by our Constitution and Bill of Rights, which will diminish if the HHS mandate stands.

Believe it or not, there are many women who feel that no employer should be forced to provide abortion, abortifacient drugs, or artificial contraception. Many women note that there is no evidence that any of these things have improved women's health. On the other hand, much proof exists that they have led to far more problems than they were supposed to solve.

Runners prepare to enter the South Lakes High School track, the final leg of the Reston Youth Triathlon, Sunday, Aug. 12.

Triathletes Swim, Bike and Run in Reston

Second annual youth triathlon raises scholarship funds.

> BY ALEX MCVEIGH The Connection

wo hundred and fifty children spent their Sunday morning swimming, biking and running around Langston Hughes Middle School and South Lakes High School on Aug. 12 as part of the second annual Reston Children's Triathlon, hosted by the YMCA, Fairfax County, Reston and the Reston Association.

Triathletes, ages 6 to 14, swam, biked and ran various distances depending on their age groups. Six to 8-year-olds swam 50 meters, biked 1.1 miles and ran .7 miles. Nine to 11 year-olds swam 100 meters, biked two miles and ran one mile, while 12 to 14-year-olds swam 150 meters, biked two miles and ran 1.4 miles.

SWIMMERS STARTED at the Ridge Heights Pool and biked along Ridge Heights Road and South Lakes Drive before running to the South Lakes track, where the finish line and cheering families awaited them.

"It was definitely very hard to finish, but my goal was not to have to walk the whole time and I didn't have to," said Stephanie Morgan, 11, of Falls Church. "The swimming might have been the hardest, because at the beginning you once you try to get on your bike of track and field events in the all soaking wet, you realize there's a lot more to go."

Douglas Janssen, 11, of Ashburn, said running was the toughest part for him.

"Biking and swimming are fun, because they're something you can do and be a little more relaxed," he said. "But running is mostly just for exercise and it's a little boring. And it wears me out more than the other two, so I'm glad it was last."

Herman Smith of Reston says the triathlon has led to several big changes for his daughter, Hannah,

"Signing up for the event helped her learn how to ride a bike without training wheels, it always scared her, but once a few friends signed up, she didn't want to feel left out, and that meant dedicating herself to learning to ride," he said. "Between training for this feel like you can go on forever, but event and watching the last week Olympics, I think she'll be really motivated to ride, bike and swim from now on.'

With the event in its second year, some children, such as Gina Tutt's daughter Hailey, 9, used their experience to better prepare.

"Last year she was excited to be doing things with kids, and while she attended a few of the training clinics, it was definitely about having fun," she said. "But as she was getting ready for this year's, she was really dedicated. She was going on practice runs, rides and swims, and checking her times and she even practiced the transitions to shave off as many seconds as she could."

FUNDS RAISED AT THE EVENT went to youth scholarship programs, and 40 of the participants were able to do so because of scholarships that helped them register and get the equipment needed to participate.

"We didn't want people with an interest to not be able to participate because they didn't have the money to get a bike or pay the entry fee, so we were able to provide new bikes and helmets that they can keep," said Larry Butler, RA's director of Parks and Recreation. "We hope this event helps introduce a healthy lifestyle to the

Butler also said he hopes the event would foster future inter-

"With three different activities, hopefully they can find one that they really liked," he said. "And if they find they like the biking, running or swimming, maybe that's something they can keep doing and eventually graduate to our Sprint Triathlon, or Fall Triathlon, in a few years."

Swimmers prepare to start the first leg of the Reston Kids Triathlon at Ridge Heights Pool, Sunday, Aug. 12.

Triathletes begin the biking portion of the Reston Kids Triathlon, Sunday, Aug. 12.

A Pill a Day...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Hopefully will keep the cancer at bay. (I'd say "away," but let's be realistic, three and a half years past a NSCLC diagnosis, there is no way, generally speaking, that stage IV lung cancer disappears into the ether; it's classified as stage IV for a reason. However, there are many - and varied – non-traditional and not particularly Western and/or A.M.A./American Cancer Society-approved alternatives to fight this insidious disease, many of which, about 20 or so, I have incorporated into my overall treatment regimen. Moreover, if my continuing survival reflects anything, it is an affirmation of what former N.C. State basketball coach Jim Valvano said in 1993, in one of his last public appearances before succumbing to bone cancer, on ESPN's inaugural ESPYs Award show, as the first recipient of the "Arthur Ashe Courage and Humanitarian Award": "Don't give up, don't ever give up." And so I haven't.)

Besides, where's the future in giving up or giving in? That's not to infer that the last few years haven't been incredibly challenging, because they have. Emotionally for sure, physically not quite as much. Although chemotherapy is all it's cracked up to be; some treatment (drugs) were definitely worse (side effects/quality of life) than others. Fortunately for me, amazingly in fact, through it all, I have been relatively asymptomatic with minimal/manageable side-effects and zero hospitalizations. Nevertheless, cancer's reputation as a killer is well-documented and hardly the kind of diagnosis one can ever take with a grain of salt – maybe better taken with a grain of alcohol.

Every day, every doctor's appointment, every scan, every time you have your blood drawn, every change in how you think and how you feel, relate to the undeniable fact (and believe me, I've tried to deny it; it's a good defense/self-preservation mechanism) that you (meaning me) have cancer, and not just a garden variety, but rather the incurable kind, according to my oncologist: stage IV. Defined as metastasized, inoperable, with a "13-month to two-year prognosis." (Given to me late February, 2009.)

But here I am, still. I have outlived my prognosis (but hopefully not my usefulness) by a significant – to me, length of time: years, depending how you calculate. However, does that significance move me closer than ever to the end of my writing all these lines? I don't want to think that, but whatever cancer does to you physically, it's equally bad - in my experience/opinion on your mind/thought process. Thinking straight, thinking clearly, thinking objectively, thinking unselfishly; all become collateral damage as a result of your cancer diagnosis. Fighting through these difficult-to-control emotions is the bane of my existence, an existence I'm lucky to still have. My next CT Scan is in September, two months after I will have been taking my daily "targeted therapy" chemotherapy-type pill. Then I'll know how I really feel. Until then, life goes on. And so far, this pill seems not to be making a bad situation any worse; a non-side effect for which I am extremely grateful.

"For elementary-age students, this camp is equivalent to what they'd get in one or two years of school," said Camp Director Lawrence Walker. "They only get 17 days of music in a school year vs. 17 classes during camp, but four hours/day with three different teachers."

He said middle and high school kids obtain an understanding of the chromatic scale—every note their instruments can possibly play, plus a better command of their instruments. Some also come to camp to learn new ones.

Every day, each student had an instrument master class, a sectional class and four full band or orchestra rehearsals. "In the instrument classes, kids only work on technique, tone quality and articulation for their particular instrument," explained Walker. "That's where their skills come from so they can play with feeling and interpretation. It's like a private lesson on a larger scale."

In woodwinds, brass and percussion sectionals, teachers worked only on the music the students would play in their larger band or orchestra at camp. Students fixed details they needed to work on and solved any technical problems they had.

Then they put it all together to perform in either advanced, intermediate, cadet or beginning band or orchestra. They auditioned, the first day of camp, and were placed according to their skill level.

NEW FRANKLIN BAND DIRECTOR,

Kurt Holscher, replacing Walker who just retired after 28 years there, directed the camp's concert band. "We've got great kids who seem enthusiastic and work really hard," he said. "And this keeps them playing over the summer and makes our job easier in the fall. We won't have to remind them how to play. They get a lot of extra instruction so it's good experience for them."

In his first year at camp, Franklin eighthgrader Mitchell Holloway played percussion in the symphonic band and had a great time. "I heard about it and it sounded interesting," he said. "I learned new songs and made new friends."

Clarinetist Katie Hoang just graduated from Franklin and will attend Oakton High this fall. She selected the clarinet because "I thought it was challenging, most of my cousins play it and I didn't enjoy playing strings. This camp improves my skill level to be in Oakton's marching band. It's fun playing different types of music at different skill levels at camp."

Franklin Glen's Michele Anderson picked up her son Bennett after class. After graduating from Lees Corner Elementary, he'll attend Rachel Carson Middle this fall. "He wanted to come because he changed instruments from trombone in fifth grade to drum in sixth and wanted to improve before middle school," explained Anderson. "And I believe he has."

"There are some great instructors here who commit their time to helping these students," she continued. "It's a great opportunity and the kids also get to be around new people playing the same instrument they do."

"It's fun," added Bennett. "I learned a bunch of different techniques and would recommend this camp to others because you get more one-on-one instruction."

Pleased, Walker said it was another successful camp. "I started it when we had just 80 kids," he said. "I never knew it would grow to be this kind of opportunity for students." And although he's retired from FCPS, he'll continue as the camp's director.

"I live right here in the community and I'm the founder," he said. "I get to see kids give their best, at different levels—from the polished musician trying to improve and meet their teachers' goal, to the struggling beginner who doesn't accept failure because of this goal and the reinforcement from their teacher and the other kids."

Besides, added Walker, "I enjoy interacting with some of the finest educators in the country—from military bands, public schools and the private sector, plus outstanding college students. And I believe, if you conquer the attitude of any child, you conquer the aptitude. If you and the person teaching you believe you can do something, then you can do it."

Saxophone players perform with the symphonic band.

Franklin eighth-grader Mitchell Holloway plays the drums in the symphonic band.
