Virginia Voters Get More Choices in 2013

Northern Virginia has most two-party races on ballot.

BY VICTORIA ROSS
THE CONNECTION

While the Virginia governor's race is the one getting the most attention, both nationally and in the state, Virginia's House of Delegates race is shaping up to be the most competitive in a decade.

According to an official candidate list released last week by the Virginia State Board of Elections, 57 House seats will be contested this November—marking only the second time in the last decade where at least half of the 100 House seats will have more than one name on the ballot.

2013 is the second election cycle since the House Republican leadership redrew district boundaries following the 2010 Census. In 2011, voters in nearly two-thirds of the 100 House districts had no choice on the ballot.

Of the 57 contested races, 44 include races with at least one Republican and one Democrat, and most of the two-party races on the ballot will take place in Northern Virginia (see chart.)

Throughout the state, 43 of the 100 House districts are uncontested, meaning there is only a single candidate on the ballot. Delegates Ken Plum (D-36) and Charniele Herring (D-43) are the only uncontested candidates in Fairfax County.

Republicans enter the election with a commanding 67-32 margin over the Democrats, although there are nearly three times as many Democrats challenging incumbent Republicans from two years ago. In June 2011, according to the Virginia Public Access Project, about 15 percent of the 100 House of Delegates seats were being contested between a Democrat and a Republican.

Each member of the Virginia House of Delegates serves two-year terms, represents approximately 80,000 citizens and receives an annual salary of $17,640. By contrast, the Virginia Senate consists of 40 members. Each member is elected for a term of four years and receives an annual salary of $18,000. A senator represents approximately 200,000 citizens of the commonwealth. The Virginia General Assembly meets annually, beginning on the second Wednesday in January, for 60 days in even-numbered years and for 30 days in odd-numbered years, with an option to extend annual sessions for a maximum of 30 days.

The Senate of Virginia and the Virginia House of Delegates, both bodies of the Virginia Legislature, meet in the historic capitol building in Richmond. For more information on the state legislature, go to virginiageneralassembly.gov.

Food for Trees Program Honored

Rotary recognizes Vincent D'Avena with Business of the Year Award.

Vincent D'Avena, the owner of A.V. Remodeling & Construction, was awarded Rotary International District 7610's Business of the Year Award at their annual conference for his company's annual holiday charity program, Food for Trees.

Food for Trees will be in its fifth year of selling trees to collect food for those in need during the holidays this year. The program began in 2009 when Vincent D'Avena wanted to find a way to give back to the community, and the holidays seemed like the perfect time. Vincent thought if he could purchase Christmas trees directly from the grower, at cost, he could pass that savings along to everyone he knew and in return ask them to make a food donation when they picked up their tree.

"McLean Rotary became aware of A.V. Remodeling when the company asked the club to co-sponsor their annual Food for Trees program in December 2012," said Jan Auerbach of McLean Rotary. "McLean Rotary was most happy to help spread the word about the program."

In 2012, the Food for the Trees program sold 110 trees and donated over $3,000 worth of food to Share of McLean, the local food pantry, and another $1,000 worth of food to the food pantry at McLean High School.

"We are very thankful to the McLean Rotary for their participation in the program and for helping us to spread the word about the program," said Vincent D'Avena. "The response and support of the program has been wonderful. We hope to triple our orders and donations this year," added D'Avena.

"The trees were beautiful, but buying them was a 'feel good' opportunity when you knew you were also helping those in need by donating food," Auerbach added. "They have already set a date for the fifth annual Food for Trees program (Dec. 7-8, 2013) and McLean Rotary will once again be a proud co-sponsor."

Founded in 2004 by Vincent D'Avena, A.V. Remodeling & Construction is an award winning home remodeling firm, dedicated to quality craftsmanship, universal design and environmentally intelligent remodeling, serving Arlington, Falls Church, Great Falls, McLean and Vienna. Arrest Made in Child Pornography Case

Detectives detained and arrested Juan Carlos Moza Moreno, 20, of 2216 Pimmit Run Lane Thursday, June 27. He was charged with possession of child pornography and use of communications systems to facilitate certain offenses involving children. The charges came following an investigation where a 16-year-old boy from McLean was allegedly provided a cell phone and coerced to transmit sexually explicit images of himself to Moza Moreno.

An investigation continues and additional charges are possible.

Moza Moreno was transported to the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center.

Book Collections in Support of Scholarships for Women

The McLean Area American Association of University Women's (AAUW) Annual Used Book Collections are Saturday, July 20 and Aug. 10 at the Sun Trust Bank, 515 Maple Ave., Vienna, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. All kinds of books in good condition, especially children's books and DVDs, are needed for the 44th annual Used Book Sale.

The Used Book Sale will be Sept. 20, 21, 22 at the McLean Community Center on Ingleside Avenue in McLean. Proceeds go toward scholarships and professional development for women and girls. In addition to the well-sorted hardbacks and paperbacks in the main sales rooms, there will be special children's and "treasures" rooms at the sale for the most valuable items collected.

At last year's September Sale there were an estimated 46,000 books on display sorted into 32 categories and AAUW members gave more than 1700 volunteer hours to generate over $36,000 in revenue. Call 703-527-4206 with any questions.

Your Dog Could Be a Lifesaver

Old Dominion Animal Health Center of McLean has partnered with Blue Ridge Veterinary Blood Bank (BRVBB) of Purcellville as a canine blood donor host site. Beginning July 24, BRVBB will be at ODAH Center every five to seven weeks to collect blood from volunteer dogs. Only professional veterinary staff will draw the blood, taking 10-20 minutes, while providing gentle holding, hugs and treats for your pet.

Visit www.dogsdonateblood.com for details on qualifications and BRVBB's requirements and standards for donor dogs. Please call ODAH Center at 703-356-5582 to schedule an appointment

First Seasonal Bear Sightings Reported

Police received the year's first seasonal reports of bear sightings on Monday, June 24 around 8 a.m. in the Tysons Corner, Vienna area. The first dispatch call was for Jarrett Valley Drive and Edgepark Road at around 1:30 p.m. Callers reported a medium-sized black bear in a yard. Shortly afterwards, another call reported that the bear tore down a birdfeeder. Animal control officers searched the area but did not locate it.

According to animal control officers, the sight of a black bear should not cause panic, as these sightings are not unusual at this time of year. These bears typically avoid humans but encounter them during their search for food. Most often, they will keep moving through an area following failure to find any. Animal control officers do not take actions to attempt to remove bears from a neighborhood unless the animal is sick, injured or threatening to public safety.

If addressed quickly, wildlife issues caused by food attractants can be promptly resolved by observing the following precautions: trash should not be stored on porches, decks or in vehicles; birdfeeders should be removed if a bear has been sighted nearby; garbage should be taken to the curb on the morning of pickup, rather than the night before; electric fencing inexpensively and efficiently deters bears from gardens, dumpsters and other potential wildlife attractants.

The plaza in front of downtown McLean's Palladium Building was the site of the weekly Civic Place Green event, a concert by rock and roll group The Grandsons Saturday, July 13.

"It was a beautiful day for a show, can't ask for better weather," said Georgia Peeler of McLean, who was sitting outside of Starnut Gourmet when the concert began, and stayed for almost an hour. "The plaza is a neat venue for an outdoor show."

Some in attendance said they enjoyed the music, but the layout of the plaza wasn't ideal.

"I come to Starnut and the Vineyard a lot, and I think the water sculpture is very nice, but I don't think it's placed to make a good concert," said Sammy Weisman of McLean. "The sculpture is a visual barrier from the main deck where most of the seats are, and even the people who brought chairs and sat on the grass didn't seem like they could get a good view. Maybe it would be OK for dancing though."

Some visitors, regulars to the concerts, brought chairs to set up in the grassy area of the plaza, others stayed for a few songs and stood at the edge, or sat on tables in front of Starnut.

"They played music that was good for the outdoors, including some great covers," said Jessie Kaiman of McLean. "I only could stay for a few songs because I'm in the middle of errands, but I'm thinking about stopping by their show tomorrow."

The Grandsons also played the weekly concert at McLean Central Park Sunday, July 14.

The Palladium houses Starnut Gourmet, Bach to Rock, The Vineyard and Chain Bridge Bank on the ground level, and has 69 residential units.

From right, Alan MacEwan and Chris Watling of The Grandsons perform in front of the Palladium in downtown McLean Saturday, July 13.

The Palladium is at the corner of Laughlin Avenue and Lowell Avenue. The concerts will continue through the end of July.

Jazz group Project Natale will play Saturday, July 20 and blues group Scott Ramminger and the Crawstickers will perform Saturday, July 27. All concerts are from 5 to 7 p.m.

There will also be three concerts on Saturday, Sept. 7, 14 and 21 at the Palladium, all three from 5 to 7 p.m.

Share Wisdom With Newcomers and Others

Connection Newcomers and Community Guide publishes in late August.

Our Insider's Edition Newcomers and Community Guide will publish the last week of August.

What tips do you have for someone getting to know your community? We're hoping to share the places, activities, events, organizations and volunteer opportunities your neighbors might not know about. What great places and activities do you think newcomers should know about? Events that should not be missed? Organizations that do a great job?

Places to volunteer? Tips for navigating your PTA or your school's front office? We'd love to have your photos to go along with your suggestions.

Faith organizations, nonprofit organizations, clubs, environmental groups, advocacy groups, youth sports teams and others who offer events open to the public are invited to send a paragraph about the organization and how to get involved.

We will publish a selection of local tips along with a plethora of information useful to newcomers and long-time residents alike, including our award-winning Insider's Guide to the Parks, information on how to vote and more.

See last year's community guides by going to www.connectionnewspapers.com/PDFs/ and scrolling down to Newcomers.

What would you like Congress to do regarding gun violence?

Comments by participants in the Reston-Herndon Alliance to End Gun Violence monthly vigil at NRA Headquarters on Sunday, July 14.

—JASMINE KANG

Bob Hatfield, retired, Oakton

"Be courageous, think beyond the influence of the NRA and remember that U.S. citizens vote."

Erin Moran, student, McLean

"For now, background checks would be the biggest step. For assault weapons, I don't see any reason for someone to be carrying those."

"I'd like Congress to pass reasonable laws—not depriving people of guns but having laws that keep people safe."

Anne Alston, retired, Herndon

"I would like to see magazine sizes reduced and I don't know if we're going to get around to that so, at the least, some regulation on background checks."

Del. Ken Plum (D-36), Reston

"I'd like to see Congress pass legislation regarding universal background checks and outlaw assault weapons, which are weapons of war and don't belong in a civilized society."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Climate Change: An Existential Threat

To the Editor:

It would be difficult to overstate the importance of the president's bold new plan to cope with climate change, through maximum use of his executive authority to by-pass GOP obstructionism.

The president clearly understands that climate change poses both an immediate threat to our health and ultimately an existential threat to human existence.

The president's plan announced Tuesday, June 25, is a comprehensive approach to cutting the pollution that causes climate change and threatens public health, setting us on a path to make our communities healthier, safer and more resilient.

As Virginians, we should be especially grateful and supportive of the president's plan because rising sea levels, dangerous storm surges and intense hurricanes already pose serious threats to coastal cities in the Southeast, and climate change will intensify these impacts.

My 27 years of active military service included nine years of wartime service in Vietnam. Now out of uniform, and a permanent resident of our great commonwealth, I am joining fellow Virginians, many of whom are veterans, to fight a war that strikes closer to home—a war on public health in the immediate future and a long-term existential threat.

Fuel industry and congressional allies are already trying to block EPA's efforts to develop the new standards for power plants. This attacks our children and families. The Union of Concerned Scientists estimates that global warming will cause an additional 2.8 million cases of asthma attacks and other respiratory problems by 2020.

The long-term threat is existential. The rise of sea levels flooding coastal cities may spawn civil wars as people move inland and wars among nations in a desperate struggle for clean water and other resources.

Claude Moore Colonial Farm Turns 40

Longtime friends, volunteers celebrate 40 years of colonial-style farming.

By ALEX McVEIGH
THE CONNECTION

Claude Moore Colonial Farm opened its doors on July 26, 1973, with the idea to show what life was like 200 years ago. Forty years later, it still provides a glimpse of daily life for farmers in 1771.

The farm welcomed friends and longtime volunteers to celebrate the last 40 years and look to the next 40 years Thursday, July 11.

“What’s great about this gathering tonight is that it’s a dynamic example of what determined, purposeful, dedicated people can do when they put their mind to something,” said Margi Vanderhye, president of the Friends of Claude Moore Colonial Farm. “They find opportunities where they can see them, overcome obstacles that get in their way and they achieve a result that people wouldn’t believe possible, just like those farmers back in 1771.”

Vanderhye presented Anna Eberly, director of the farm, with a gift: a book containing an oral history of the farm’s last 40 years.

CLAUDE MOORE was established by the National Park Service after they determined there was a need to portray the lives of ordinary men and women involved in colonial agriculture.

It became privately operated through a cooperative lease agreement in 1981, the only such privately operated park in the National Park Service. Since 1981, the Friends of Claude Moore Colonial Farm has invested more than $2 million in the park, including complete infrastructure upgrades.

Claude Moore hosts seasonal market fairs, a well as more than 100 different education programs and products. This year they launched a rail splitting program that has provided true Revolutionary era fencing for the grounds, and they are launching a woodland husbandry program to catalog native and invasive plants.

The park features eight full and part time employees, and more than 300 individual volunteers and 35 groups provide more than 20,000 volunteer hours per year.

“The people are the highlight of this farm. Our hundreds of

Market Fair Set for July 20-21

Claude Moore Colonial Farm will host its seasonal 18th century Market Fair this weekend. The farm will be in full swing, with staff and volunteers in character and costume.

Activities will include period music and dance, blacksmith and cabinetmaking demonstrations, as well as rosemary chicken, fresh vegetables, roasted olives, fruit pies and fresh ginger ale. Also for sale will be original jewelry, soaps, lotions, herbs and flowers.

Admission is $6 for adults, and $3 for children age 3 through 12 and seniors. The fair will be open from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. More information is available at www.1771.org.

volunteers make it a special place with their energy and enthusiasm. Not only do they come up with the ideas, they turn them around fast,” Eberly said. “We have volunteers who have served here for all 40 years, or 35 years, we have families with their third generation of volunteers.”

John Toups got involved with the farm in the early 80s, when Rep. Frank Wolf (R-10) solicited the McLean business community for support.

“We first came together in the early 80s to give financial support to the farm, and I think we’ve helped it remain a special place,” he said. “This place has always had great support from the people who decided to get involved.”

One of the longest tenured volunteers is Jinks Holton, wife of former Virginia Governor Linwood Holton. She first visited the farm as part of an overnight camping group.

“As soon as I came here, I saw how much fun the place was, especially with all the animals and the way they connected with the children,” she said. “After a while, you’d get to know the animals, get a sense of their personality. At times it seemed like they knew you, they would welcome you every time you came to the farm, especially the pigs. I also learned how to make apple butter right here on the farm.”

David Ludwinski leads Cynthia Taylor, 9, in a dance at the 40th anniversary party for Claude Moore Colonial Farm Thursday, July 11.

Holton said she believes the farm is a valuable resource to children from around the region and beyond.

“For children these days to see how children lived in 1771, to see how early they had to get up, how hard they had to work just to cook breakfast, it’s very important,” she said. “I think a lot of adults should learn it too.”

FOR THE FARM’S NEXT FOUR DECADES, and beyond, Eberly said she hopes to see a continuation of the last four, with one change.

“I’d like to see this place achieve some form of financial independence, a strong financial backbone,” she said. “We’ve spent a lot of time living hand-to-mouth over the past 40 years, and we’ve been able to not only survive, but flourish, and all we can ask for is for that to continue.”

As someone who has seen the farm expand from the original farmhouse to 52 different buildings, Holton has a simple vision in mind for the next 40 years.

“In 40 years, I’d like to see this place exactly the way it is,” she said. “I’m sure everything around it will have changed a whole lot, so preserving this place will be that much more important.”

A Two-time International Winner

McLean native and TJ student Joe Broom is first to win International Euphonium Institute Festival twice.

CHELSEA H. BRYAN
THE CONNECTION

For his 16th birthday, McLean native and rising junior at TJHSST Joe Broom specifically asked his parents not to get him a car. This was because he had something better in mind: a new euphonium.

For the first ever two-time consecutive winner of the International Euphonium Institute Festival, it's an appropriate coming-of-age gift.

In 2012, Broom won the student division of the festival's competition. This summer, the 16-year-old competed against adults to win the competition's artist division.

The International Euphonium Institute Festival features some of the world's best euphonium and tuba artists teaching and inspiring the top young talent from around the globe. This year, the festival, held annually at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., had its largest-ever attendance and the solo competition had a record number of entrants.

"The repertoire for the competition was challenging and all of the competitors were experienced players," said Broom. "I worked hard to prepare. I knew I would have to play well to win against a group this good."

At this year's festival, the faculty included professional musicians from five countries representing three continents, and drew participants from nations around the globe, including Colombia, the Bahamas and Australia, as well as the United States.

Broom cited being in the good company of those who share his passion for music as one of the best aspects of the festival.

The young artist is establishing himself as one of the nation's finest young musicians. In 2012, he won a seat in the National Symphony Orchestra Youth Fellowship program as the only euphonium player in the fellowship's 33-year history. In 2013, he became the youngest ever National YoungArts Week winner in music. For that honor, he was selected from more than 10,000 applicants. He has been a member of the Brass of Peace Scholarship Ensemble for Gifted High School Students since 2011.

He is coached by international euphonium virtuoso Steven Mead, and studies with Lee Rogers, principal trombonist of the Washington National Opera, through the NSO Youth Fellowship program. He made his solo debut at the Kennedy Center this spring, and performs regularly at venues throughout the DC metropolitan area.

Creating Fresh, Healthy Summer Treats

Local chefs offer refreshing, healthy snack ideas to keep children satisfied all summer.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Enticing children to forgo strawberry-flavored candy and choose fresh fruit in its natural form can be challenging. After all, lemonade, popsicles and cookies with milk are considered summertime classics.

Some local culinary enthusiasts say there are an abundance of summer treats that can be made at home and keep children fueled and healthy all season long, however. They offer several suggestions that are ideal for after-camp snacks or whenever the munchies hit.

"When I think of healthy eating and kids and summer, the first thing I think of is fruit," said Andrea Nelson of Creative Kids Kitchen in Arlington. "Beyond the natural sugar factor, most fruit has as much vitamins as a vegetable."

One treat that tops Nelson's summer treat menu is fruit gazpacho. "It is made with a medley of fruits like watermelon, blueberries, honeydew melon. If you have a particularly picky eater, you can puree the fruit.

From left: Katie King, Sasha Fedorchak, Lucy Rogers, Eliza Grace Ulmer, Haley King and Grace Griffin prepare to cook in Arlington, Va. Local culinary enthusiasts say there are an abundance of healthy summer treats that can be made at home.

You can involve the kids by getting them to help wash and cut the fruit."

Christine Wisniewski, an instructor at Culinaria Cooking School in Vienna, also recommends making use of the bounty of fresh fruit available during summer. "Sliced peaches or nectarines with a dollop of sour cream and a light sprinkle of brown sugar are a sweet, tangy treat. Or sweeten some Greek yogurt with a little bit of honey and use it as a dip for strawberries," she said.

Nelson turns the abundance of blueberries that are now available into blueberry biscuits. "They are super easy to make and blueberries are inexpensive right now," she said. "I also make baked strawberry, banana and quinoa muffins using nonfat Greek yogurt. They are healthy and gluten free."

Nikki Drummond of Tiny Chefs Cooking School in Potomac, Md., and Alexandria, McLean, Oakton and Springfield, uses her classroom to offer children alternatives to prepackaged, sugar-laden treats. "We make fun fruit kabobs with a yogurt dip made with plain low-fat yogurt and honey and cinnamon," she said. "The kids cut up the fruit so they are having fun."

Drummond also teaches students to make a healthy dessert using uncooked oatmeal, wheat germ and chocolate chips. "We call them breakfast balls, but you can keep them in a container and kids can snack on them throughout the week," she said.

To cool kids down after a day of playing in the sun, Wisniewski offers homemade frozen bananas and sorbet. "[To make] frozen bananas, halve a banana crosswise, insert a popsicle stick in the cut end, freeze for one hour," she explained. "Dip frozen bananas in melted chocolate. Only dip one side if you want to limit the chocolate, then dip bananas in fun toppings like sprinkles, toasted coconut, chopped nuts, or crushed cookies."

To make sorbet, Wisniewski combines fruit and simple syrup. "To make a simple syrup, [use a] one-to-one ratio of sugar to water and bring to a boil to dissolve sugar," she said. "Reduce heat to very low and simmer 10 minutes. Cool, combine syrup with pureed summer fruit. Try berries, peaches or mangos. Add a pinch of salt, and a squeeze of citrus juice. Chill until the sorbet mixture is very cold."

For those who want culinary simplicity during the summer, Wisniewski said, "Fresh cherries or grapes heaped in a bowl of ice are more refreshing than those served alone. Even the largest watermelon disappears quickly and keeps kids hydrated when left on the counter for snacking. Some people opt for a sprinkle of salt on their watermelon." For a more sophisticated palate, she suggests adding a squeeze of lime, or a small sprinkle of mild chili powder or cumin.

A bird's eye view of the Great Falls Swim & Tennis pool on the busiest day of the year.

Great Falls Swim & Tennis Hosts Fourth of July Party

Sheri Landfair and her lifeguards throw one of the most anticipated and underrated parties of the summer.

The Great Falls Swim & Tennis club celebrated America's 237th birthday this past Thursday the Fourth of July. On what has increasingly become the biggest event on the pool's calendar over the past decade, patrons and lifeguards celebrated together for the 41st consecutive time.

During a week that had scattered thunderstorms plastered all over various kinds of weather maps on differing weather apps, the sun prevailed on the most patriotic day of the year. On a sweltering 90-degree afternoon, the pool's 81 degree felt icy-cold.

The heat was a non-factor in stopping this party, however, which was operated and run by World Pool Service Business Manager Sheri Landfair. She and her staff of 15 lifeguards were able to accommodate a near over-capacity crowd. There was a guard at every station serving cotton candy, popcorn, snow cones, watermelon and even beer out of a makeshift bar manned by Alex Williams. There was also a moon bounce on the green beach lawn for the kids as a DJ blasted music and monitored games throughout the day.

FOR THE GUARDS, many will attest to the fact that there is never a dull moment when working with Landfair, especially on the fourth. With so much chaos on the biggest party of the year, it's imperative for the staff to have a maximum of four guards up in the chairs surrounding the pool's perimeter. Sometimes guards have to walk around the pool's edge in order to provide extra eyes. Needless to say, this holiday is meet with some dread from the guards as they are forced to tell patrons "there are no chairs" or suggest, "I need a five hour energy in this grape snow cone." With all the food floating about, the worst has to be telling patrons for the umpteenth time to keep that under the pavilion or on the grass.

With that said, there is more fun that outweighs

Grillmaster Denny Sisson mans the hot dogs for the party; the club went through nearly 500 dogs.

any sort of bad with the games and community that allies itself with the day's festivities. A fan favorite is the greased watermelon game where a Crisco covered watermelon is thrown into the deep end and two teams attempt to move the slick watermelon to the other side and up on the pool deck. The children played boys vs. girls and then two all male adult teams entered the water when no women stepped up to play.

There was also a 200-meter relay race between the adults and the lifeguards during one of the mandatory breaks when one has to be over 18 to remain in the pool. With the kids on the sides cheering the adults on for an upset, the guards took great pleasure in annihilating whatever little competition they faced.

THE EIGHT-MAN TEAM of Luke, Skylar and Gabe Fowler, Eric Lee, Sarah Romer, Andrew Miner, James Cutler and Ryan Natal crushed a pathetic attempt by the parents in root to victory. Of course, the latter is a colligate swimmer for William & Mary.

Landfair must have been proud. Cutting a watermelon in the snack bar (the pool seemed to have an endless supply of them) she commented on how she "runs all our parties like this now because everybody loves the setup and it's not too expensive for the club." She gushed about the way her lifeguards worked together at last year's party, when the pool had been without power for an entire week before regaining electricity the night before the fourth.

"I think last year was more fun and a little better because of how everyone worked together after the derecho," she said. Then she hustled off to serve the fruit to the guests. On a day when the city decided not to have fireworks, Landfair and her guards provided all the fireworks they would need.

Sounds of Summer Fun

McLean students enjoy Summer Strings Camp.

By LORI BAKER
THE CONNECTION

The strings students, made up of mostly rising fifth and sixth graders, packed up their instruments, adjusted their masks and robes, and said goodbye to their orchestra director, who was dressed as a rock star. They had just completed one of their final rehearsals before the students of this summer strings camp would present a concert open to their parents and the public.

The pieces sounded remarkably professional for an orchestra comprising mostly middle school students dressed in wacky costumes. The students were dressed in their silliest or scariest costumes on one of their favorite days of camp, "Wild and Wacky Wednesday." The Scream was there, as was a giant squid, a few hippies and rock stars, and a collection of crazy hairdos and homemade costumes. Director Ruth Donahue knows how to make a summer strings camp fun. And that may be the secret to its success. The week-and-a-half program, which is held at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, is less formal than school orchestra, according to many of the students.

"It's not really serious," said Spring Hill student Richard Wang. "You get to have a lot of fun. It's not as serious as other camps

I went to where you can't play kick ball and kick the ball onto the roof."

Donahue is the orchestra director at Spring Hill Elementary School. She started an orchestra camp when she lived in Oklahoma in 1983, and continued the tradition when she moved to Fairfax County in 1988. She offers the camp each year. "I noticed how middle-schoolers who have orchestra every day during school months learn and improve so much faster when rehearsing daily rather than weekly," she said.

Though the camp is fun, Donahue has been pleased with their progress. She expects them to work on their sight-reading skills, and to work on correct positioning and tone. They learn many styles of music including Baroque, classical, Romantic and contemporary. They also learn some history and discuss what the world was like when composers such as Bach, Mozart and Beethoven created their masterpieces.

The camp themes, games, prizes and certificates help bring many campers back each year. And although it is fun, even the students seem to recognize that they are improving. "You learn lots of new pieces," said Spring Hill student Nima Razavi. "And I think it's only for the people who want to do it. It pays off. Music lovers always want something new to do. And you have some fun, you learn some new pieces and you get better for the next year."

"Focus-Pocus"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I imagine most of you readers are familiar with the phrase, "Hocus-Pocus," the magician's nonsensical expression of sleight of hand, as words spoken and arms waved as the rabbit wiggles out of the magician's hat, among other deeds/ extractions of "wow!" The idea being to trick, deceive, obfuscate and ultimately amaze the audience into believing the unbelievable and to not see what they should be able to see.

"Focus-Pocus" is this cancer survivor's sleight of brain – as I refer to it, as I attempt to live longer and prosper without paying too much attention to the undeniable fact that I have a terminal disease: stage IV, non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC), one that kills way more than it is cured. I have found however, that living in dread – and in acceptance of my presumptive reality/status, is no good for my head (emotionally/mentally speaking) so I try to deviate, whenever possible, from that norm and not conform, and hope that living is indeed its own reward.

Oh sure, I scan the weekly Health & Fitness section in The Washington Post, especially if there's a cancer reference; if sitting and waiting somewhere where reading material is present, if there's a lung cancer-related article, I will read it immediately; and if there's a segment on television concerning cancer, I will watch it or record the program to watch later. I don't exactly live under a metaphorical rock, but nor can I make cancer my life's pursuit, as odd as that may sound; since presumably, I am pursuing life despite the fact that having cancer is definitely having some say in that matter.

Thinking positively and keeping my sense of humor are the two most effective tools in my anti-cancer arsenal. Employing these weapons of mass (as in tumors) destruction are what I live for: Duh! So doing, and assimilating this figurative weapon array into my attack requires very little, really; this is my personality and my nature, so it's no particular challenge. It's who I've been, it's who I am, it's just me. Still, as many of you know, cancer has a way of intervening, especially physically, but most assuredly, mentally as well. It creates darkness and fear and anxiety and all the less-than-ideal characterizations you can imagine – whose intrusions you are often powerless to stop. Yet somehow, you must.

In the nearly four and a half years since my diagnosis, I have tried to defend against them. Occasionally by embracing them, but more often, as is the subject of this column, by ignoring the reality of them, almost like a magician attempts to do with his audience; that what you see, what you get, is not necessarily what you feel – or so I tell myself repeatedly. And though it might seem difficult to trick oneself as easily as it might be possible, with a wink and a nod, to trick another, a better-than-expected life expectancy might depend on it. And at this juncture, having outlived my original prognosis by more than three years, I don't see any reason to change my focus.

Kenny Lourie is an Advertising Representative for The Potomac Almanac & The Connection Newspapers.
