Battleground Northern Virginia

Competitive state races give voters more choices this election cycle.

> By Victoria Ross The Connection

he 2012 presidential election is history, and that means another three years before a major election for Virginia voters. Right? Not so fast.

While this year's combative race for governor is clearly the one to watch, savvy Virginia voters know that every year is an election year in the commonwealth, and this year is no exception.

According to an official candidate list released in August by the Virginia State Board of Elections, the state's House of Delegates race is shaping up to be the most competitive in a decade.

Fifty-seven House seats are contested this November — marking only the second time in the last decade where at least half of the 100 House seats will have more than one name on the ballot.

2013 is also the second election cycle since the House Republican leadership redrew district boundaries following the 2010 Census. In 2011, voters in nearly two-thirds of the 100 House districts had no choice on the ballot.

Of the 57 contested races, 44 include races with at least one Republican and one Democrat, and most of the two-party races on the ballot will take place in the state's political frontline—Northern Virginia.

To help voters make informed decisions about their choice for state lawmakers, who make critical decision affecting residents' everyday lives, we sent short questionnaires to all house candidates whose names qualify to appear on the ballot. Please note that responses to our questions are published as submitted by the candidates. They are not edited except to comply with predetermined and stipulated word limitations.

Two Challenge Filler-Corn in 41st District Del. Eileen Filler-Corn challenged by Republican Fredy A. Burgos, Independent Christopher F. DeCarlo in the 41st district.

What is your legislative priority this session?

Burgos: My legislative priority would be to remove money as a requirement to take state business licensing exams. People should be judged by their ability, knowledge and experience not by the size of their wallet or purse.

DeCarlo: To fight the political party business model that has corrupted our government and emphasize that constitutionally the people are supposed Delegate—37th District Republican Patrice Winter is challenging Democratic incumbent David Bulova in the 37th district.

Job description: The House of Delegates has legislative power, with the Senate, to enact laws. Delegates serve a 2-year term and are eligible for reelection. The salary is $17,640 per year. A delegate must be at least 21 years old at the time of election and be a resident of the district he/she seeks to represent.

Q: What is your legislative priority this session?

Winter: As a health care provider, I have seen how Affordable Care Act has affected patients and even how companies are doing business. Seeing Virginians have access to highquality and affordable health care is a top priority.

Bulova: My focus will continue to be on our economy and quality of life, which are integrally linked with transportation and providing our children with a world-class education. I will also fight for meaningful ethics reform.

Q: What makes you the better candidate?

Winter: Issues in education, healthcare, small businesses are important to many in the 37th District. I have significant experience in these areas as a health care provider who owned a practice for 17 years and an educator at George Mason University.

Bulova: I am a problem solver and have successfully worked in a bi-partisan manner to pass legislation on transportation, education, identity theft and human trafficking. I work hard to be open and accountable to district residents.

Q: In your role as a state legislator, how would you impact the lives of your constituents?

Winter: We are more effective as statesmen, not politicians. A statesman listens to constituents, responds and acts. Engaging constituents in the legislative process is a key component in the actions of an effective state legislator.

Bulova: My most important job is to empower constituents to have a voice in our government. In Richmond, I serve on committees and commissions that make key decisions surrounding education, health care, housing and water supply.

Q: Tell us something about yourself that you think people would find surprising—a hobby, a talent, or an interesting fact.

Winter: I was the student representative to my town council my senior year in high school. Also, as the American Physical Therapist Association spokesperson, I was interviewed by "O" Magazine.

Bulova: I love history and believe in its importance in education. I can often be found volunteering at Gadsby's Tavern Museum, hanging out in colonial costume with re-enactors playing Washington, Jefferson and Madison.

NEWS Sheriff's Race Heats Up

Kincaid, Wolfe trade barbs over guns, vandalism.

By Victoria Ross The Connection

ike many of her neighbors, Vienna resident Jane Li said she didn't know Fairfax County had a sheriff's department until a few weeks ago.

"That's when I started to see the campaign signs along Hunter Mill Road, and I thought I should find out what the sheriff does," she said.

The sheriff's office, with more than 600 employees and a $60 million budget, has three primary functions: operating the Adult Detention Center, providing security in the courthouse, and serving civil papers, such as eviction notices, child protective orders and subpoenas.

"The police do a good job of rounding up the bad guys, and the sheriff's deputies make sure they stay where they're supposed to," said Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee), a reserve deputy sheriff himself. "Most people don't know the sheriff exists because they're not doing anything wrong."

"This race matters," McKay said. "There's the potential for a lot of things to go wrong in courthouse security. We've never had that happen. No one has escaped from the jail; no tragedies at the courthouse; the sheriff's department returns money to the general fund, and deputies do a lot of things that we take for granted."

Fairfax County Sheriff's Capt. Stacey Kincaid, the Democratic candidate, and her Republican opponent, retired Fairfax City Police Officer Bryan A. Wolfe, agree the campaign is an opportunity to educate residents about the role of sheriff.

But that may be the only issue on which they agree.

Kincaid, a 26-year-veteran of the sheriff's department, said her first order of business if elected would be to sign the Civil Service Protection Agreement which guarantees due process for department employees.

"I've been on record and said countless times that the primary thing it does it prevents any employee for being fired without just cause and prevents any political retaliation," Kincaid said.

Wolfe does not see the protec-

Stacey Kincaid, a 26-year veteran with the Fairfax County Sheriff's Department, in front of the Fairfax County Democratic Committee headquarters on Oct. 21.

Stacey Kincaid has made diversity a key issue of her campaign:

"Diversity is as important to me as it is to the citizens that I will serve. When I became a deputy sheriff in 1987, women were underrepresented in policing. The same can be said of many other underrepresented groups as well. The Fairfax Sheriff's Office has been slow to adapt to the change. No longer can values be self-serving. It is my belief that the Office of the Sheriff must face up to the evolving needs of the community and the expectations placed upon its top leadership. I am committed to developing new strategies and approaches that can be used to increase our effectiveness and, in turn, better serve our community. I am deeply committed to equal protection of the rights of all members of our community."

tion agreement as a priority. "That's a critical difference between me and my opponent," Kincaid.

Instead, Wolfe said his first act as sheriff would be to "modernize" the department with video recording equipment in the jail.

"Video cameras protect inmates and deputies in the jail and the cameras protect the taxpayer from frivolous lawsuits and suspicion of law enforcement generated by lawsuits," said Wolfe, who said that Kincaid "has said several times that it's too costly" and "it's a solution for a problem that doesn't exist."

Bryan Wolfe, a retired officer with the Fairfax City Police, was selected Officer of the Year twice during his 26 years with the police department.

On the Issues

Bryan Wolfe has said better programs for the mentally ill would be a top priority if he is elected sheriff:

"The mentally ill are currently thrown in with hardcore criminals in a toxic situation. That's why I want the mentally ill whose only offense is causing a disturbance or committing a misdemeanor diverted into a program that helps the underlying problem, which is psychiatric and not criminal.

"As sheriff I want to start a Crisis Intervention Team approach modeled on the program currently in effect in Memphis. I propose that deputies receive an initial 40 hours of specialized training from experienced mental health professionals and law enforcement experts. After completing the initial training, qualified deputies would have annual in-service training and an additional eight hours of classroom work. The goal of this new CIT program is to provide immediate response to situations where the mentally ill are in a state of crisis and to prevent, reduce or eliminate potential injuries to deputies and inmates. Finding appropriate care whether in the ADC or in an and working on a treatment program will help keep the mentally ill out of jail."

Potomac Marlins 'Swim Pink'

Volunteers and swimmers from the Potomac Marlins gathered at the Lee District Recreation Center in their "Swim Pink" attire for their fundraiser meet, the PVS October Open Saturday, Oct. 19. The Potomac Marlins conduct this annual fundraiser to raise funds for the Susan G. Komen for the Cure Foundation, a nonprofit working to put an end to breast cancer.

This year, Speedo supported the annual fundraiser by providing shirts for the Marlins Coaches and donating caps to the event winners of the October Open.

The Marlins raised $3,150 for the Susan G. Komen Foundation. In addition to the Breast Cancer Awareness fund, the Marlins also support the Fairfax County Special Olympics State Qualifying swim meet held at George Mason University in April.

or voters in Virginia, it is hard to over- EDITORIAL state how important it is to go out and vote next week. All Virginia voters will see statewide races for governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general, plus one delegate race. In addition, there are a few local races in Alexandria and Arlington, a bond question in Fairfax County and a referendum question about the housing authority in Arlington.

These off-year elections attract many fewer voters.

In 2008, 74.5 percent of Virginia's registered voters turned out to vote in the presidential election. In 2009, the last time Virginians elected a governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general and members of the House of Delegates, just 40.4 percent of registered voters came out to vote.

That is to say that 1.7 million voters went missing in the commonwealth.

Last November, more than 70 percent of Virginia's registered voters turned out. Will this November see 40 percent or less? Choices at the statewide level could hardly be more stark. and low turnout will make the outcome unpredictable.

This week's Connection includes what you need to know about the mechanics of voting and what is on the ballot.

Don't be among the missing.

Voter Identification Rules Same as Last Year

Virginia's existing voter ID requirements will change in July 2014. A law requiring photo identification at the polls was signed into law in May 2013, but this new photo identification requirement will not take effect until July 1, 2014.

When you arrive at your polling place, a voting of-ficial will verify that your name is on the registration list. Voters will be asked to present one valid form of identification this year when voting, any of the following: Virginia voter registration card; Virginia driver's license; military ID; any Federal, Virginia state or local government-issued ID; employer issued photo ID card; concealed handgun permit; valid Virginia student ID; current utility bill, bank statement, government check or paycheck indicating the name and address of the voter; Social Security card.

Vote 'Yes' on the School Bond

To the Editor:

I am writing to help inspire your readers to vote "yes" on the 2013-2014 Fairfax County School bond referendum on Nov. 5th. If you vote yes you are supporting prudent reinvestment of money back into our world class school system that helps attract new businesses to Fairfax County, one of the best places to live and work in the U.S. Delaying capital improvements will result in a lower quality education to a growing student population.

Our children deserve to have excellent facilities, resources and a highly educated and talented staff so they can be successful through college and in their working years.

These school bonds are issued at a low interest rate and will fund the construction of new schools and improve more than 20 FCPS facilities across the county! As you know, construction costs are at an all-time low and therefore the timing is now.

We need to make those improvements! Our continued growth has resulted in more students being taught in temporary "trailer" classrooms because the current school buildings do not have the space for increased enrollment. Building more classrooms will provide the learning environment our kids need and will maintain Fairfax County's reputation for top-notch public schools.

When your readers vote "yes," they are also supporting over 2,000 community organizations that use these FCPS facilities and about 250,000 of your friends and neighbors that participate in recreational activities on school grounds.

The benefits to our children and the community are invaluable and the only vote that makes sense is "yes." On Nov. 5th, please vote to support our schools by voting "yes" on the school bond referendum.

Fairfax County Sheriff's Race Heats Up

held by Democrat Stan Barry, who retired midway through his fourth term in July.

If elected, Kincaid will become the first woman sheriff in the County's history, and one of a handful of women sheriffs in the nation. A 26-year veteran of the sheriff's office, Kincaid has worked all four divisions. She began her career with the sheriff's office in 1987 as a summer intern, and in 2008, she received the agency's highest honor, the Distinguished Service Award.

A self-proclaimed "rookie politician," Kincaid soundly defeated acting Sheriff Mark Sites for the nomination in a July caucus, 63 percent to 37 percent. She won with the guidance of Kate Hanley, a family friend and former chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

Wolfe garnered the Republican nomination in late August. Although he has been endorsed by several prominent local Republicans, he has not received any campaign contributions from the Fairfax County GOP. While the race has put the sheriff's office in the spotlight, it has also exposed the uglier side of politics. One of Wolfe's first acts as a candidate was to do "oppo research" on Kincaid and her family. Through the Freedom of Information Act, he requested all of Kincaid's emails, iPhone photos and texts.

In August, he called Kincaid a "hypocrite" on gun control issues, and said he was motivated to run for the office after hearing Kincaid say she supports expanded background checks on firearms. Wolfe, an NRA member, opposes such measures.

While declining to confirm or deny Kincaid's allegations that she recently purchased two AR-15 rifles, Kincaid said she is a responsible gun owner and has purchased firearms legally.

On Friday, Oct. 25, Fairfax County Republican Committee (FCRC) Chairman Jay McConville entered the fray with a statement tearing up a flower bed on his also denouncing Kincaid as a hypocrite" for her gun purchases.

"When addressing the nominating body of the Fairfax Democrats, Stacy Kincaid said that she was in favor of both an assault weapons ban and a ban on high capacity magazines," wrote McConville.

"Specifically she railed against the notion that anyone would need either. I guess that is what she needed to say to get the nomination. Why then, did Stacy Kincaid order and purchase, for her own personal use, both an AR-15 Rifle and multiple high capacity magazines? This is hypocrisy of the most blatant sort, and should cost her the election now that it has become known," McConville said in the statement.

Kincaid declined to comment on McConville's statement, but said she stood by her earlier statements.

Wolfe also alleged that Kincaid's supporters tried to intimidate him by vandalizing his vehicles and property in Clifton.

"They are bullying me ... and now the intimidation factor is affecting my volunteers," Wolfe said in a phone call on Friday. "(My volunteers) don't want to drive their cars into Fairfax County with my signs because they're afraid their vehicles will be vandalized. They tell me 'This has gotten too hairy for me'."

Wolfe said the repeated vandalism has impacted his entire family. "I just want the race to be over. I want to get my life back," he said.

"Unfortunately vandalism seems to be a common occurrence. My campaign has had a number of instances where my signs have been stolen or destroyed," Kincaid said in a call Sunday.

"While the appropriate response is to report these incidents to the police, as a law enforcement officer, I have no intention of diverting police resources for such childish behavior," she added. "Campaigns are about discussing the issues and making the community a better place and there is no place in campaigns or otherwise for acts of vandalism to personal or campaign property."

The two major party candidates are joined on the ballot by independents Robert Rivera, a security analyst and former sheriff's deputy, and Chris DeCarlo, a propane salesman.

A frequent candidate for local offices, the 55-year-old DeCarlo, who is also running against Del. Eileen Filler-Corn, the Democratic incumbent in the 42nd district, has livened up the race with rap videos against government corruption.

The program, designed by a panel of safety experts, focused on building the skills of young drivers in several key areas.

The program demonstrated the dangerous effects of distractions in the car like texting while driving or carrying too many passengers. Teens also learned how to steer a car safely out of a slide.

The exercises put students in real-world driving scenarios in a controlled environment so they could be equipped with knowledge that could save their

Vote Yes on Referendum

To the Editor:

As a former Fairfax County teacher, I know that many families move to our area in part for the excellent reputation of our school system. It attracts families and businesses alike because an excellent school system is an investment in the economy and the community. I encourage all county residents to vote "Yes" on the School Bond Referendum on Tuesday. Nov. 5 to continue Fairfax County's trend of excellence in education.

In order to build our reputation and keep Fairfax County as a destination for the best and brightest, we need to make a much-needed investment in our school infrastructure. Students benefit from modern facilities with safe, designated learning spaces. The bond will provide tax-free, low-interest funding for a number of renovation projects across the county and millions of dollars for much needed infrastructure projects and school security enhancements. With continued growth and high enrollment expected over the next five years, now is the time to make improvements to get our kids out of temporary "trailers" and into classrooms that are more conducive to learning.

Invent the Future®

As a result of the economic downturn, construction costs and interest rates are at an all-time low. Now is the best time to take advantage of these low costs and make an investment that will pay dividends for the future of our children and the future of Fairfax County.

Vote "yes" for the School Bond on Nov. 5th!

Making Voters Feel Welcome, No Matter Their Language

County election officials have stepped up outreach efforts and volunteer recruitment efforts.

By Victoria Ross The Connection

t's been nearly a year since more than 450,000 Fairfax County voters cast their ballots at 237 precincts in the 2012 presidential election, and for most voters, the process was quick and painless.

But long lines and even longer wait times at some polls frustrated voters and prompted Fairfax County to investigate what went wrong.

Making sure that history does not repeat itself, Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova set up a special bipartisan Election Commission less than two weeks after the 2012 election to look into what caused the long lines, whether poll workers were trained properly and why some voters just gave up and went home.

Appointed by the Board of Supervisors, the 2013 Bipartisan Election Process Improvement Commission consists of county residents who represent the county's supervisory districts, communities within the county and organizations. Katherine Hanley, former chair of the the Board of Supervisors, and Stuart Mendelsohn, former Dranesville supervisor, co-chaired the commission.

One of the key reasons for the problems, election officials said, was a shortage of poll volunteers.

This year, Cameron Quinn, the county's chief election official, and the county's Electoral Board have been working together to implement some of the 50 recommendations made by the bipartisan committee in May.

"We've been doing a number of things since January to improve outreach and make things go smoothly for every voter this year," Quinn said last week. "We've done a lot more targeting of messages to people who need it, senior and disabled population, and we've been able to provide more bi-lingual volunteers at precincts that need language assistance."

In addition to printing all voting materials in English and Spanish, a federal requirement, Quinn said the county will have English/Spanish bi-lingual volunteers at every precinct, as well as Korean-speaking volunteers at some polling precincts with large Korean populations.

"I was touched with Korean community's efforts to help us translate materials and provide volunteers," Quinn said. "And so we're trying to encourage other pockets. My next target is Vietnamese. We've also printed recruitment brochures in Farsi, Arabic, Chinese Korean, French, and Spanish." Another key improvement was raising the

Highlights of Bipartisan Election Commission's Report

Last fall, the Board of Supervisors appointed a 26-member Bipartisan Election Process Improvement Commission to look into some of the problems encountered by voters and election officers during the 2012 general election, including long lines. In March this year the commission released its report, offering over 50 recommendations, including:

recommendations, including:
Use electronic poll books at all precincts
Avoid parent-teacher conferences on Election Day

 Encourage voters to use optically scanned ballots, reserving touch-screen machines for voters with disabilities

Enable dedicated phone lines for the chiefs to use to reach the registrar and elections offices
Purchase new voting equipment to modernize and improve the voting process pay of election volunteers, from $100 to $175 per day, which Quinn said has helped in the effort to recruit more volunteers.

The county also encouraged absentee voting, starting the process three weeks earlier at satellite sites. As of Oct. 23, Quinn said there have been more than 17,248 absentee applications, a 50 percent increase from 2012.

"The Electoral Board agreed with the vast majority of the recommendations the commission made and most of those recommendations are being implemented right now or will implemented in the future," said Brian Schoeneman, a Fairfax County attorney and secretary of the Electoral Board. Consider raising election officers' pay and increasing the number of rovers

"One thing we knew even before November was that we needed to begin thinking of replacing our aging voting equipment," Schoeneman said. "We have made significant progress in that area and are evaluating a variety of systems with a goal of implementing a new, fully integrated system by November 2014."

The Board of Supervisors allotted $6 million for new equipment this year, which Quinn said gives the election office "more breathing room" to implement some improvements.

Last week, the Sully District precinct, received its first Ballot on Demand machine. Adrienne Free of Fairfax, an election official stationed at the precinct, said the new technology would make it easier for both voters and volunteers.

"We have literally dozens of different ballot combinations of offices," Free said. "With the new equipment, we won't have to print as many ballots."

In some election years, like the upcoming 2015 elections, election officials will juggle more than 80 different ballots to accommodate the various jurisdictional boundaries across Fairfax County.

The multiple ballots are especially difficult to handle with absentee ballots and absentee in-person voting at the satellite locations and the Government Center, where officials have to have every single ballot combination available to allow every voter in Fairfax to vote.

"Ballot on demand technology lets us get around the need to print thousands of copies of each ballot and have them available, especially in the satellites and Government Center," Schoeneman said.

Instead, election officers can print the ballot for voters at the time they check-in, saving the time of finding the correct ballot, saving the money of printing thousands of ballots no one will ever use, and reducing errors caused by handing out incorrect ballots to voters.

"Many jurisdictions around the country are moving to this model and we hope Fairfax — if the tests are successful — will help lead the way here in Virginia," Schoeneman said.

SPORTS Lake Braddock QB Wins Battle of Future UNC Teammates

Henderson's Bruins beat Titans, lineman Clarke, linebacker Carney.

By Jon Roetman The Connection

ith the Lake Braddock football team threatening to score early in Saturday's contest, T.C. Williams linebacker Malik Carney tackled Bruins quarterback Caleb Henderson for a 3-yard loss on second down.

Two plays later, with Lake Braddock facing fourth-and-short inside the TC 5-yard line, Carney smashed Henderson to the ground short of the first down.

Lake Braddock again drove deep into TC territory on its next possession but failed to reach the end zone. Titans defensive tackle Jeremiah Clarke stopped Lake Braddock running back Trevor O'Brien for a 1-yard loss on firstand-goal from the 5 and the Bruins would eventually settle for a field goal.

The Lake Braddock-T.C. Williams matchup on Oct. 25 pitted future University of North Carolina teammates against one another. Carney and Clarke, who will play defense for the Tar Heels, had their moments, but the rest of the afternoon belonged to the Bruins and UNC quarterback commit Henderson.

HENDERSON THREW A TOUCH-DOWN PASS and rushed for two more scores as Lake Braddock cruised to a 44-0 victory at T.C. Williams High School, improving the Bruins' record to 8-0. Lake Braddock has outscored its five Conference 7 opponents 271-0.

Henderson completed 11 of 26 passes for 182 yards and carried 12 times for 120 yards against TC, according to stats from the Post's allmetsports.com. Henderson's 45-yard touchdown run gave the Bruins a 24-0 advantage in the second quarter. His 16-yard scoring scamper extended the Lake Braddock lead to 31-0 with less than two minutes left in the opening half.

The Bruins' first possession of the second half ended with a 26-yard touchdown pass from Henderson to AJ Alexander.

T.C. Williams entered the game with a 5-2 record, but the Titans and their Division I defensive duo had no answer for Henderson and the Bruins.

"It's a lot of fun," Henderson said about facing his future UNC teammates, Clarke and Carney. "I get to see what my team's going to look like. They look pretty big and athletic so I'm excited to play with them."

Henderson was the first of four Northern Virginia prep football players in the class of 2014 to commit to the University of North Carolina, committing as a junior on April 11. Clarke (June 16), Carney (June 22) and Yorktown running back/defensive back MJ Stewart (July 15), who will play DB for the Tar Heels, eventually also decided to play at Chapel Hill. Clarke, who also plays left tackle on the Titans' offensive line, finished with two tackles against Lake Braddock while battling ankle and Achilles tendon injuries.

"It's fun going against somebody that's going to be your future teammate," Clarke said. "... It's fun to get a last play in before you're not allowed to hit [Henderson]."

Clarke said already knowing a few of his Tar Heel teammates will help with the transition to college. stars. Carney also received offers from Tennessee, Connecticut, Marshall, Pittsburgh and Toledo, among others.

"It's great because you already have some friends," he said. "You don't have to worry about that awkward stage."

Carney, listed at 6-foot-2, 208

Against Lake Braddock, Carney tallied six tackles, two tackles for loss and one sack.

"Just seeing what [Henderson is] going to bring to the table," Carney said when asked about the experience of playing against future college teammate Henderson. "Just going against [him], being competitive. Just acting like I don't know him at all."

Carney is also a running back for the Titans. He carried 15 times for 46 yards against the Bruins.

LAKE BRADDOCK will host South County on Friday, Nov. 1 in a game that will likely decide the top spot in the Conference 7 standings. T.C. Williams will travel to face West Springfield.

Delegate—41st District

deal with the lasting effects of the sequester and the government shutdown—jobs and the economy is also a major priority.

What makes you the better candidate?

Burgos: I am more qualified to represent District 41 because of the most important issue facing our district which is the economy and jobs. For 25 years I have worked for small business in the home improvement industry and 12 years running my own small business right here in Burke. I have learned how to negotiate with people and how to come up with incentives to come together.

DeCarlo: I have experience with how money has corrupted the process of governance and I want to dispel the myth that candidates have to sell their soul to the devil before they can be elected.

Filler-Corn: With a long history of service to Virginia and Fairfax County, I am proud to have a reputation for working with members of both parties to bring back more funding for our schools and our roads throughout our community.

In your role as a state legislator, how would you impact the lives of

your constituents?

Burgos: If I were our state legislator I would impact the lives of my constituents by working hard to make sure that the state government moves out of the way of economic opportunity and progress.

DeCarlo: By promoting the principles of democracy as we were taught in school and striving to restore their trust in their government.

Filler-Corn: My experience working for Governors Mark Warner and Tim Kaine, and serving as Delegate for 3 1/2 years prepare me to successfully navigate state government on behalf of my constituents. My goal is to assist residents of my community. I am available and accessible, always.

Tell us something about yourself that you think people would find surprising—a hobby, a talent or an interesting fact.

DeCarlo: I am a 55-year-old white male that has written and produced five anti-corruption rap videos that are posted on YouTube.

Filler-Corn: I hold regular office hours monthly at neighborhood coffee houses throughout the 41st district, where I meet with constituents to discuss issues, potential legislation and anything of importance to residents.
