Virginia leaders tout merits of Springfield site for FBI HQ relocation.

BY VICTORIA ROSS
THE CONNECTION

A high-ranking delegation of Virginia politicians gathered in Springfield Tuesday morning in a renewed effort to convince the Federal Bureau of Investigation to relocate its headquarters to a warehouse site in Springfield.

The move in the high-stakes, highly competitive regional competition comes after site selection guidelines eliminated almost all other Northern Virginia locations.

U.S. Sens. Mark Warner (D) and Tim Kaine (D), U.S. Reps. Jim Moran (D-8), Frank Wolf (R-10) and Gerry Connolly (D-11), Governor-elect Terry McAuliffe (D), State Del. Vivian Watts (D-39), Fairfax County Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee) and others held a news conference on Tuesday, Dec. 17 at Northern Virginia Community College's Medical Campus Tuesday to send a message that the Springfield site is the ideal choice.

IN LATE 2011, the General Services Administration (GSA), which manages federal properties, announced plans to move the FBI's main office out of the run-down, dilapidated J. Edgar Hoover Building on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Since then, several jurisdictions across the Washington region have made it clear they have the ideal location for the bureau's move.

But the Virginia delegation made the argument that the federally-owned warehouse in Springfield makes the best location for the FBI to consolidate as many as 11,000 employees for a number of reasons, including the fact that the GSA already owns the warehouse, which guarantees that federal government ownership of the campus is both clean and easy.

"Virginia checks every box," Warner said, "transit accessible, fiber-wired, synergy with FBI Quantico... Many FBI employees live in Virginia, and it is easy for DC and Maryland residents to commute."

Citing the bi-partisan display of unity in the effort, Kaine said he was "brought into this process by our three members of Congress - Connolly, Moran, and Wolf...It is characteristic of us in Virginia that we all work together."

Wolf, who chairs the appropriations subcommittee overseeing the FBI, said the site is ideally located, with easy access to the CIA and Quantico.

Connolly agreed: "The FBI's ability to interact with other federal anti-terrorism offices located in NoVA is critical."

Supervisor McKay, whose district is home

"We're going to win this on the merits, not on politics. We had a number of sites in Virginia, but we put our parochial interest aside to support the best site for Northern Virginia and for our national security."

— U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11)

U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) joins other high-ranking Virginia politicians in backing the Springfield site for the new FBI headquarters. The GSA is expected to announce the site selection in 2015. From left - Secretary of Commerce and Trade Jim Cheng, who represented Governor Robert McDonnell; U.S. Rep. Jim Moran (D-8) and Fairfax County Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee).

A map of the warehouse site in Springfield shows the location's prime proximity to major transportation. The site is adjacent to the Franconia/Springfield Metro Station, VRE, AMTRAK, bus service, and every highway except Route 66.

He pointed out that airport access will soon be served by two Metro stations once Rail to Dulles is complete.

Fairfax County would also benefit by high-paying jobs that would come to the area, and redevelopment of the site would spur construction of other office projects nearby and expand commercial tax base.

"You know the site makes perfect sense when the entire Northern Virginia Congressional Delegation, the Governor, the Governor-Elect, and State elected and appointed officials - both Democrats and Republicans - all agree on something," McKay added.

ACCORDING TO OFFICIALS, the decision by the GSA will be made in 2015. While other regional sites have been eliminated for various reasons, Maryland is still in the running with its site in Prince Georges County.

But Connolly predicts the Springfield site will be the chosen one.

"We're going to win this on the merits, not on politics. We had a number of sites in Virginia, but we put our parochial interest aside to support the best site for Northern Virginia and for our national security."

FACETS, a non-profit in Fairfax that helps those affected by poverty, hosted a Holiday Sibling Shop on Dec. 16 at the Ragan Oaks Community Center that allowed children living in an affordable housing community to shop for donated gifts to give to their siblings during the holiday season.

According to James Wilson, a community advocate for FACETS, the Holiday Sibling Shops not only give children the chance to shop for gifts, but also reduce stress the families may face.

"More importantly, knowing that their kids are going to be able to get gifts for their siblings and it is not an additional expense the parents have to budget in with the other things they have to worry about such as rent, work, and other expenses," Wilson said.

Gifts at the Holiday Sibling Shops are donated and the event takes place at FACETS Education and Community Development locations in the affordable housing communities.

"We really enjoy giving gifts to kids that would probably not have anything," said Liz Griffith, the development coordinator for FACETS. "It makes them feel more normal and they don't feel so left out."

The Holiday Sibling Shop, which also took place at three other affordable housing communities throughout the week, included volunteers from Bank of America, Deloitte, and INOVA Health.

Edgar Guerra, who works at Bank of America in Fairfax and volunteered at the Holiday Sibling Shop, lived in an affordable housing community as a child and remembers participating in FACETS activities and services at the community center in his neighborhood.

Guerra grew up in Robinson Square, which has a recreation center serviced by FACETS. He later became a volunteer for FACETS, working as a peer lab assistant and a homework help volunteer. He also spoke at the FACETS

"I like the concept that families are able to get presents. It is nice to help families who cannot afford them."

Benefit Breakfast in 2009.

"When I saw the FACETS posting, I knew I had to go. FACETS has been a wonderful organization, in my experiences volunteering," Guerra said.

Guerra said that the community centers serviced by FACETS provide important resources and positive reinforcement for children living in the affordable housing communities.

"I was happy that there was a positive place to go to," Guerra said. "It was great to have those resources available."

Volunteers at the event helped children pick out gifts for their siblings, and also helped wrapped the gifts.

Alma Wilson, who works for Bank of America in Alexandria, brought her daughter Kira to the Holiday Sibling Shops because she thought it would be a good experience.

Preserve 3-2-1 for Housing

Housing for all income levels near transit supports vibrant communities and job growth, reduces traffic.

BY MICHELLE KROCKER
AND JIM EDMONDSON

In the latest edition of The Herrity Report, Springfield Supervisor Pat Herrity proposed “redirecting developers’ $3 per square foot contribution for buying rent-controlled housing units into a trust fund to pay for public school renovation and construction.”

The report proceeds to make several unsubstantiated claims regarding the number of people living in subsidized housing and the growth in both the number of subsidized units and number of households in Fairfax County. However as in the past, The Herrity Report does not provide the full picture of the housing policy under discussion, and misrepresents the facts.

The Board of Supervisors adopted its housing policy in 2010 as a part of the larger plan for the redevelopment of Tysons. It is now under consideration, at the request of the board, for application in other designated high density, transit and business centers in the rest of the county. Called the ‘3-2-1’ policy, the proposal by county staff would apply a contribution from commercial development to support the construction of workforce housing in the transit or business area, as it does in the Tysons plan. The contribution would be applied on a sliding scale based on a proposed development’s proximity to a transit station. This proposal will go before the Planning Commission and then the Board of Supervisors in the first quarter of 2014.

Why is this policy important?

❖ To accommodate projected job growth and remain competitive within the region, it is important to ensure housing opportunities for the workforce of the future at all income levels;

❖ Developing housing at transit stations and adjacent to employment centers encourages use of mass transit, walking and biking which can lead to fewer cars, and less congestion; it also enhances Metro revenue and reduces the pressure on local government to provide subsidies for the system;

❖ Linking commercial development (jobs) and housing via a linkage program is an acknowledged “best practice” in hundreds of communities across the country to ensure an adequate supply of housing to support job growth.

❖ It recognizes the changing preferences of workers/taxpayers/voters, particularly young people, to live near where they work.

The proposed policy anticipates that the contributions will be made to a housing trust fund used by the county to leverage private sector financing to develop the needed housing.

The housing that is constructed will not be owned or purchased by the county. In fact, very little of the affordable housing in the county is owned by the government.

Securing decent housing that is affordable remains a challenge for Fairfax County households earning less than $60,000.

Meeting the growing needs of our school system is also an important issue. Both education and safe, decent housing are fundamental to the well-being of our community, and residents want leadership that seeks to find workable solutions. Failing to recognize the importance of both and pitting one issue against the other are not the answers, and the citizens of Fairfax County deserve better from elected officials.

Michelle Krockner is executive director, Northern Virginia Affordable Housing Alliance. Jim Edmondson is president of AHOME, which promotes affordable housing opportunities for families at all income levels.

Parents Advocate for Class Size Caps

To the Editor:

On Saturday, Dec. 7, Fairfax County Public Schools (FCPS) Superintendent’s (Dr. Karen Garza) conducted a “Listening Tour” meeting at Cooper Middle School in McLean.

Many parents who spoke at the meeting were concerned about large class sizes in their children’s schools. This is not a problem in most FCPS schools - the average elementary school class in FCPS has only 21-22 students, and plenty of FCPS elementary schools average 20 or fewer students per class.

However, large class sizes have become the norm in Vienna, Oakton, McLean and Great Falls schools. Teachers unlucky enough to be assigned to the 30+ classes are often pushed to the limit in terms of what they can do to control classroom behavior and alleviate student stress. At Wolftrap Elementary, teachers have even created a “coping couch” for stressed kids to help them escape from the crowded, noisy and chaotic atmosphere that is so often inevitable with such excessively large classes.

The school system is looking at county-wide increases in average class sizes. Without some type of class size cap, this would create a situation where most of the county’s students had reasonable class sizes (e.g., 16 to 26 students), but even more students in the Vienna, Oakton, McLean and Great Falls would have more than 30 students in their rooms - which are no larger than the rooms being used to hold 17 or 22 students elsewhere in FCPS.

After seeing their children crammed into oversized classes for years, parents formed Class Size Counts last year. The group is working with State Delegate Barbara Comstock to address the class size issue at the state level, Supervisor Foust, several School Board members and Superintendent Garza at the county level. The Class Size Counts online petition, with over 1,000 signatures, asks that the Fairfax County school system not increase average class sizes without simultaneously implementing class size caps:

http://www.ipetitions.com/petition/stop-oversize-classes-in-fairfax-countyschool/?utm_medium=email&utm_source=system&utm_campaign=Send%2Bto%2BFriend

At Cooper Middle School, Dr. Garza reassured parents and teachers in the room that she is working to fix this problem, by drafting an FCPS regulation that would impose class size caps.

Class Size Counts applauds Dr. Garza for taking a stand on implementing caps so that all children in FCPS can receive a decent and fair education.

Interestingly, the School Board member whose district includes many schools with the largest class sizes - Jane Strauss - also told parents at a Longfellow PTA meeting that she opposed a class size cap, and preferred to continue using the FCPS “staffing reserve.” Several years ago, parents submitted a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request for emails and other documents regarding the staffing reserve. The documents painted a picture of a slush fund with no apparent criteria or controls.

Home for the Holidays: Surviving a Long Trip

Keeping children entertained on lengthy airplane rides.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Liz Henry is nervous about her upcoming flight to San Francisco. It's not TSA regulations or long lines that are causing her anxiety, however. It is traveling alone with her three children — all of whom are under the age of 6.

"My kids are 5, 3 and 1," said Henry, who lives in Vienna. "I'm taking them to visit my family for Christmas, but they've never flown before. I have a lot of DVDs packed, but I don't know how far those will get me. I don't like pacifying my kids with videos, but I don't think I have a choice."

Going home for the holidays often means boarding an airplane with high-energy children and setting in for a long ride. Parents such as Henry scramble to find ways to fill the time in a way that keeps their child entertained without disturbing other passengers. Local education experts say there are options that don't involve the last resort of videos and electronic games, however.

Len Annetta, Ph.D., of George Mason University traveled to Italy recently with his wife, Jennifer, and his children Samantha and Joey. Annetta kept his children occupied during the long flight with cloud games and by helping them practice Italian.

"Reading is always a good choice, but for many children, it cannot hold their attention for long plane rides," said Len Annetta, Ph.D., a professor in the College of Education and Human Development at George Mason University. "Games like Scrabble challenge players' literacy skills in a fun way. Crossword puzzles are also fun and engaging."

Annetta, who recently returned from a family trip to Italy, has firsthand experience with surviving lengthy plane rides with children in tow. "I took the whole family, including my 13- and 11-year-old children," he said. "My children are older, but we played a name the cloud game. Of course, we were above the clouds, so it made it a bit more difficult."

When traveling abroad, a long flight is an ideal time to learn more about the culture or language of your final destination. "My children tried a crash course on Italian," said Annetta. "They learned a few words they used during the week we were there. This was a free app on the iPod that we downloaded before we left."

Bethesda-based psychotherapist Katie Cogan, Ph.D., recommends activities that engage a child's imagination, particularly for younger children. "You always have your imagination with you no matter what," she said. "You can say to a child, 'Tell me a story,' or you can take turns telling stories with your child. When you're on the plane, you can help your child imagine what it will look like when we get there."

For young children, Cogan said, "Using what's inside you to create a world that already exists. It is called active imagination. Use your creativity to do anything. If you're with a young child, you can ask 'How many things can you think of that are red?'"

Cogan also advises helping children make up a story, particularly about their final destination. "If it is a small kid, give them the first part of the story or the first word and let them take it from there," she said. "Have paper with you, and you can have your child tell you the story and either write it down or have your child write the story down and color it."

Annetta said, "Journaling your experience is a fun way to practice writing while telling the story of where you are going or where you've been."

In Harmony With Celebration Singers

Springfield show choir has been going strong 40 years.

The all-volunteer Celebration Singers performed their final holiday concert of the year on Sunday, Dec. 15 at St. John's United Methodist Church in Springfield. The group started at Springfield Methodist Church in the 1960s by the name of the Wesleyan Singers. Some of the ladies have been singing together for 40-plus years. And through the years, membership has reached 66 people, but has since dwindled to 18.

The all-female ensemble sings three, four, and five-part harmonies with huge audience interaction. They sing and dance at nursing homes, assisted-living facilities, benefits for Make-a-Wish and the Salvation Army, Fischer House at Walter Reed Hospital, and even the White House.

Anne Miller, 77, of Fairfield, Va., near Lexington, started directing the group in 1971 and has remained ever since. "It's just something I love," said Miller who has been singing since age 6 and hails from Clinton, Okla. "I love to direct, I love to sing and I love to make people happy."

Miller was married to Grant Miller, an Air Force Lawyer, and directed the Tripoli Choral Society while they were stationed in Libya. She received a master's degree in vocal performance from the University of Hawaii in 1969 and moved to Northern Virginia in 1971. That year, she performed in the Leonard Bernstein Mass at the grand opening of The Kennedy Center in front of Jackie Kennedy.

Betty Aldrich, 70, of Falls Church says Miller is amazing in her ability to pull out choral perfection from the group. "She teaches us how to center," said Aldrich who's been a member since the mid-1980s.

Celebrating in Harmony

"She gets a beautiful sound with us."

Jenny Squire, 64, of Springfield, who wrote the script and emceed along with Karen Weinberg, agrees: "She gets from our group a sound that nobody else could get." Squire is also passionate about performing live at nursing homes and hospitals. "It provides them with a window on the world that they can access," she said. "We provide live entertainment, which means it's one-on-one." She loves to see responses like foot tapping or people mouthing words. After a performance, the singers usually go out and shake hands and greet people. "It's all about reaching them," she adds.

For their Christmas Show on Sunday, the group wore brightly colored handmade costumes and danced to the choreographed songs, "O Holy Night," "Hanukkah's Child," "Christmas Waltz," and "African Advent Carol," among others.

For Willa Lutz, 64, of Falls Church, she enjoys the friends she's known for 20 years. "I like to sing and dance," she added.

Nora Steiger, 85, of Springfield has been singing with the group for 40 years. She plays a washtub bass using a broomstick and one string, sometimes called a "stumpf-fiddle." She calls Miller "very patient and gentle."

Lydia Garner, 62, a one-year member from Sterling, says Miller adds humor to the mix. She says she loves "the gratification of knowing I brought a smile to people's faces."

For Karen Weinberg, 58, the Celebration Singers is "like a family." She enjoys the camaraderie and says it's more than just singing. "We get as much out of the performance as (the audience) does."

"It's really like a big caring family of all sisters," added Gayle Parsons, 63, of Springfield, a pianist who's been with the group six years.

After Labor Day, the group goes to the Middlebrook Retreat Center for two days where they begin practicing the songs and choreographing the moves. After polishing the show for about three months at Burke United Methodist Church, they are ready to give their holiday concert.

Alice Groenig, 64, directs a subgroup called "Sounds of Joy," that does smaller shows with eight singers. A member for 28 years, she enjoys "the joy and happiness of seeing people's faces who don't get to see live entertainment."

Celebration Singers is always looking for new members. If interested in joining, email Jenny Squire at JennySquire@yahoo.com.

Del. Filler-Corn Co-hosts Open Resources Forum

How to provide students new education resources at no charge.

On Dec. 2, Delegate Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41) co-hosted a forum with David Anderson, executive director for Higher Education, Association of American Publishers and Nada Dabbagh, professor and director of Division of Learning Technologies, George Mason University to discuss new technologies and affordable options for higher education textbooks. This forum brought together several important stakeholders involved with higher education and the development and usage of textbooks. "I was honored to lead this forum that continued the vital discussion of how we can reduce costs for our students and families through the use of new technology and resources in textbooks and class materials" said Del. Filler-Corn. "We have continued to see a rise in the price of textbooks and other auxiliary materials in higher education. We need to use new resources as a way to reduce costs and ensure that students are getting the most out of their higher education."

This forum was the result of a yearlong discussion from Delegate Filler-Corn's 2013 bill, HB 1777, with a goal of creating an Open Education Resource Council tasked with developing and acquiring open education resources that could be provided at no charge to students. This bill was referred to the Joint Commission on Technology and Science during the 2013 General Assembly session and has drawn wide interest from different parties. The primary focus of the forum held at George Mason University was a discussion of Virginia colleges and universities using open education resources (OER). OER materials are textbooks or other auxiliary resources developed and produced with no copyright restrictions. This makes them available for anyone to access and use at their disposal. Often these materials are developed by university professors with expertise in their field and peer reviewed for accuracy of information. "Several states are currently utilizing OER materials as a way to reduce cost burdens on their students. These books are available at no charge and accessed digitally at the student's convenience. This is an excellent method to increase affordability, while still providing accurate information and quality material," Del. Filler-Corn said. Representatives from George Mason University, the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV) and the VCCS attended the forum to add their input on the idea. Additionally, representatives from the major textbook publishers and Fairfax County Public Schools were also in attendance.

Just south of the Fairfax County Parkway overpass, workers put decking on a reversible express lanes ramp in fall 2013.

JOE ROMEO

A Year in a Fast Lane

2013 was a big year for transportation projects in Northern Virginia.

Construction dominated the scenery on I-95/395 between Garrisonville Road (Route 610) in Stafford County and Turkeycock Park near Edsall Road in the north as the 95 Express Lanes project crews advanced work in the 29-mile construction corridor keeping the project on-track to open to traffic in early 2015.

The 2013 work focused on clearing the roadbed in the median for the new Express Lanes and building new ramps and foundations for nine new bridges including four flyover ramps connecting the Express Lanes to the general purpose lanes and other I-95/395 overhead crossing roads and two new bridge structures on the I-95 mainline over streams and creeks.

One of the major bridge construction efforts was demolishing and re-building the Telegraph Road bridge carrying traffic serving the Quantico, USMC facilities on both sides of I-95 requiring a 9-month long detour. Once the old bridge was demolished, the median ground between 95 north and south was excavated to provide room for new 95 Express Lanes and the new Telegraph Road bridge was built over the summer and will reopen this winter. Currently, new bridges crossing Aquia Creek, Chopawamsic Creek, Russell Road, Joplin Road, Route 1 and Furnace Road are under construction and will be completed this year.

Keeping Motorists Informed

Throughout the year, Virginia Megaprojects continued its public outreach program that keeps motorists informed of construction and providing commuters with alternate travel options. One popular program has been the Woodbridge Tysons Express buses, the Saturday Metrodirect Bus between Potomac Mills Mall and the Springfield-Franconia Metro Station. Also, the new dynamic travel-time sign comparing HOV travel times to the general purpose lanes and placement of additional message boards and signage are other methods the VDOT Virginia Megaprojects team employs to keep motorists aware of highway conditions.

Construction impacts are also announced on the Megaprojects e-news, an electronic newspaper that is distributed on a bi-weekly and monthly basis. To sign up for the e-news, email requests to info@vamegaprojects.com.

Building the new flyover ramps required the placement of steel beams over the I-95 lanes and several midnight to early morning detours were implemented allowing crews access to place steel beams across the 95 lanes. The flyover ramp south of Dumfries was done first, followed by the flyover near Alban Road in Springfield, and the flyover at Garrisonville Road in Stafford County. Beam placement for the final flyover ramp at Turkeycock Park near Edsall Road will be completed in January 2014. At the Fort Belvoir North Area in Springfield, beams will be placed over I-95 South and Backlick Road in early January and a detour will be in place for this overnight activity. Although this is not part of the 95 Express Lanes project, it is in the same corridor and will impact motorists traveling at night.

In 2014, crews will be finishing the flyover ramp connections, placing pavement, installing sound walls and erecting signs and toll gantry's throughout the corridor.

From the air, decking is nearly complete on the reversible 95 Express Lanes ramp in the Newington area.

Caroline Alcorta finished 16th at the Foot Locker Cross Country Championships national meet as a junior in 2012, missing by the slimmest of margins the All-America status that accompanies a top-15 finish.

Alcorta was disappointed but not devastated, knowing she'd have one more shot to crack the top 15.

This year, Alcorta won the south regional in Charlotte on Nov. 30, earning a trip back to nationals. The West Springfield senior had her sights set on becoming an All-American, saying a top-15 finish would be "nifty."

This time, she left no doubt.

ALCORTA PLACED THIRD at the Foot Locker national meet on Dec. 14, finishing with a time of 17:31 at Morley Park in San Diego. Last year, Alcorta missed a top-15 finish by less than a second. This year, only two runners were faster and she finished 22 seconds ahead of the 15th-place harrier.

Alcorta said her goal was to finish in the top 15, but her "stretch goal" was to place in the top five.

"I'm happy with the effort I put into it and how it turned out,"

Alcorta said. "I couldn't ask for anything better than a top-five finish."

As a senior, Alcorta got used to self-motivating as she would build large leads en route to victory. During the VHSL state meet at Great Meadow, Alcorta won the Group 6A championship with a meet-record time of 17:13, finishing 39 seconds faster than her nearest competitor. Alcorta won the 6A North regional meet with a time of 16:31, the third-fastest time in Burke Lake Park history, and finished 48 seconds ahead of the second-place harrier. West Springfield coach Chris Pellegrini told Alcorta to focus on running her own race without letting any outside factors change her approach.

"I'm happy with the effort I put into it and how it turned out. I couldn't ask for anything better than a top-five finish."

— West Springfield senior Caroline Alcorta

On Saturday, however, Alcorta had to chase a couple harriers, something she said helped her run a better race.

"My coach and I talked about even if I couldn't win I would race to try and win," Alcorta said. "That would push me to do the best I could. ... I know I'm supposed to run my own race, but at the same time it's nice to know there are people to help you. ... Looking ahead to see the people you're trying to catch is really big."

Tessa Barrett, a senior from Waverly, Pa., won the event with a time of 17:15.4. Hannah DeBalsi, a sophomore from Westport, Conn., finished second with a time of 17:25.3.

Alcorta started running cross country as a sophomore and continued improving. Shortly before the 2013 state meet in mid-November, Alcorta committed to run for the University of North Carolina.

"I started doing cross country because I found a sport that I really love," Alcorta said. "... I just followed what I wanted to do and what I really enjoyed doing and it just turned it really well."

Alcorta was one of five Northern Virginia harriers to compete at nationals. Lake Braddock senior Katy Kunc, who started running cross country during her junior year as a way to condition for soccer, finished 19th with a time of

West Springfield's Berglund Reaches 1,000 Career Points

West Springfield guard Amy Berglund looked up in the stands and saw her mom hold up two fingers.

The Spartans were hosting Madison on Dec. 7 and Berglund was closing in on 1,000 career points. Betsy Berglund signaled to her daughter, letting the Spartan senior know she needed two more points to reach the milestone.

With about a minute remaining in the fourth quarter, Berglund dropped in a reverse layup, giving her 21 points for the game and 1,000 for her career. Along with the personal achievement, Berglund helped the West Springfield girls' basketball team beat Madison, 63-50.

"It was really special scoring my 1,000th point because it was a culmination of so much time and effort that I have put into basketball," Berglund wrote in an email. "It was especially great reaching that mark in a tough game against a strong Madison team."

Berglund is a four-year varsity starter for the Spartans. She's been part of two Patriot District championship teams, one Northern Region championship team and twice experienced the state tournament, including a trip to the state semifinals as a freshman. She was a first-team all-region selection as a junior.

"It became my goal to score a 1,000 points after my freshman year," Berglund wrote, "because I had scored almost 300 that year and I realized it was definitely a reachable goal."

Berglund averaged 18.4 points through West Springfield's first five games this season. The Spartans started 5-0, including a 54-53 victory over T.C. Williams on Dec. 13, during which Berglund scored 11 points. T.C. Williams won the Patriot District title last season, snapping West Springfield's streak of three consecutive district championships.

"The TC game was such an intense game and it was an amazing team win," Berglund wrote. "We were super excited to get the win over the tough opponent that TC is. It is a positive step toward our team goal of winning the district title. I think that our team still has many things to improve on and we know that every opponent is going to put up a tough fight so we focus on one game at a time."

Kunc said having Christen at the meet made things "so much more comfortable."

IN THE BOYS' RACE, Edison senior Louis Colson finished 32nd with a time of 15:58.7, and George C. Marshall senior Mackenzie Haight took 34th with a time of 16:06.1.

Grant Fisher, a junior from Grand Blanc, Mich., won the event with a time of 15:06.5.

"I'm disappointed with how I finished," Haight said. "My goal was (to finish in the) top 15 for All-American. I don't think I executed my race how I planned it. I wanted to run an aggressive race and I found myself at the back of the pack."

While Haight wasn't pleased with his finish, he said he enjoyed the experience. The five Northern Virginia harriers arrived in San Diego on Thursday, Dec. 12 and returned home on Sunday. Kunc said the runners felt like "professional athletes" and were treated like "royalty."

"It's incredible," said Haight, who will compete for William and Mary next year. "The entire experience was surreal — one of the best weekends I've ever had in my life. I would never trade the experience for anything."

OPINION

Obama Care and the Individual Market — Not a Failure

By ELLIOT K. WICKS, PH. D.

Recent news stories have focused on people who bought health insurance in the individual market, rather than through an employer, and whose policies have been canceled. Some then found that coverage available through the new "Obamacare" Marketplaces (or Exchanges) is more expensive. Their anger is understandable, but the issue needs to be put in context.

A great many of those losing coverage and facing higher premiums were the beneficiaries of the insurers' policies that denied coverage to the really sick and charged very high rates to the moderately unhealthy.

Without the reforms of the Affordable Care Act, insurers would continue to deny coverage to many thousand of people with pre-existing conditions and charge unaffordable premiums to older Americans or those with less than stellar health.

The new law prohibits such discrimination in the individual market: no one can be denied coverage or charged more because of a pre-existing condition, and an older person cannot be charged more than three times as much as a younger person. Thus, differences in premiums for people with different risk levels will be greatly reduced starting in January.

If we want to ensure that everyone, regardless of their age or health condition, can get affordable coverage—which Obamacare promises to do—we have to accept the possibility that some people will pay more for coverage. The nature of insurance is that healthy people subsidize sicker people. Healthy people agree to this arrangement simply because they never know when they are going to be part of the unhealthy 10 percent of any population group that accounts for about 70 percent of the costs in any year.

Older or sicker people will incur higher medical expenses. And if they are all now to get coverage and not be forced to pay very high premiums, other insured people, the younger and healthier, will have to pay more than they did in the past—unless substantially more younger and healthier people are brought into the insurance pool. That is why the mandate that everyone have coverage is so important. The premiums these newly insured lower-risk people will pay are necessary to offset the costs of covering the less healthy people who are newly insured.

In short, some people may face higher premiums, but that seems a reasonable price to pay for enhancing fairness and preserving the health of the entire population.

Of course, some people will pay more because the old insurance policies they had provided woefully inadequate protection that would have left them deep in debt if they had a serious medical event. The Affordable Care Act sets minimum standards for coverage, and so some people who bought these skimpy individual plans lost that coverage. Naturally, when they go to the Marketplace to buy comprehensive replacement coverage, the premium is often higher.

But it is essential to understand that many of these people will be eligible for federal subsidies that make the net cost lower than what they were previously paying. Subsidies to make Marketplace coverage affordable are available to individuals and families well up the income scale—to all with incomes up to 400 percent of the federal poverty level ($94,200 for a family of four in 2013). The size of the subsidy declines as income increases, but many middle-income people will be eligible for some assistance.

It is also important to keep the big picture in mind. Most people are covered by employer-based insurance, not the individual market. The individual market is a small part of the total insurance market, and many who buy such coverage keep it for only a short period of time, often less than a year. A study by Mathematica Policy Research found that during an average month, only 5.3 percent of the under-65 population had individual coverage, but fewer than half of that population group (2.1 percent) had that coverage for the entire year.

This "churning" is easily explained: many people who buy individual insurance do so as a stop-gap strategy to protect themselves until they get a job that provides better, less expensive coverage. They are people who leave a job that provided health insurance but have not yet found a new job that offers coverage, students who graduate and lose their school-based coverage, or 27 year olds who have "aged out" of their parents' plan.

The fact is that the individual market has never worked well, which is why the ACA focused especially on reforming it. Large premium increases, loss of coverage, and instability have always been characteristic of this poorly functioning market.

The lesson is that now is not the time to endorse legislation like that recently passed in the House that would perpetuate a broken and inequitable individual market and jeopardize the reforms that would bring good, affordable coverage to many thousands who until now have been denied such protection.

Woodlawn Reinvented

Horses will be evicted

THE CONNECTION

In the coming year, the National Trust for Historic Preservation will step aside and let a nonprofit organization known as Arcadia Center for Sustainable Food and Agriculture take control of operations and interpretation. The move will mark a drastic departure for the plantation estate, which will discontinue its longstanding relationship with Woodlawn Stables. The horses will become a thing of the past and the museum will feature new interpretation that leaders at the National Trust hope will expand into a destination for visitors to eat, learn and garden. "What you usually would not hear on a tour here is much about the agricultural history — why this was part of Mount Vernon originally, how Washington farmed this area, why he thought that this particular site where we are standing would be, as he called it, a great seat for a gentleman," said John Riley, interim director at Woodlawn. "The Trust is going to look at the agricultural history through Arcadia and with Arcadia, which predates equestrian facilities by 100 years here."

That means the end of an era for the Mount Vernon neighborhood, where Woodlawn Stables has been a popular destination and a cherished memory for many families through the generations. For more than 30 years, the business has leased a property at the southeast corner of Route 1 and Mount Vernon Memorial Highway. That longstanding history was challenged last year when officials at the Federal Highway Administration began an effort to widen Route 1, a process that will eventually lead to demolition of Woodlawn Stables.

"Naturally, we are disappointed," said Cynthia Mitchell, owner of Woodlawn Stables. "It does seem as if our roots have gotten pushed a little further away from us, and we tend to be pushing businesses such as this one that provides jobs in the local community out further and further."

SINCE WOODLAWN was acquired by the National Trust for Historic Preservation and opened as a museum, visitors have learned about the story of Nelly Custis Lewis and Lawrence Lewis. But they would not have learned much about the agricultural history of the site — why it was part of the original Mount Vernon estate and how George Washington farmed the area. By the time Woodlawn opens again in the spring of 2015, leaders at Arcadia hope to have transformed the experience.

"We hope to bring a new life back to the house and the grounds, and make it the vibrant center of the community it once was," said Arcadia founder Michael Babin in a written statement. "We look forward to expanding our farm production, farmer training and our educational programs and sharing Woodlawn's inspiring agricultural and social history with the region."

Supporters of Woodlawn Stables say they are devastated by the news, especially considering the federal mitigation money that will be available because of the demolition of the existing stables. Some were holding out hope that the National Trust would incorporate horses into their property after Route 1 was widened. Now that it's clear that won't happen, supporters of the stable say they hope the federal money might be earmarked for a barn at the equestrian center at Laurel Hill in Lorton.

"We're saddened to see that they have decided to go with a path that strays away from Woodlawn's history," said Shelley Castle, founder of a group known as Save Woodlawn Stables. "This has been a horse farm or livestock for more than a century, and we think this greatly diminishes the historic value of the property."

LEADERS AT THE TRUST disagree with that interpretation. They say Arcadia's new focus on agriculture will return the property to its roots, a time when George Washington sought tenants to farm parts of 8,000 acres of Mount Vernon estate. Like Washington, the Trust is now hoping its new tenant might plant a seed for future generations by recreating the Woodlawn experience.

"Washington came to the realization that tobacco — year after year — was going to ruin his land, and that's why a lot of people were moving out west to find new land. But he didn't want to move west," said Riley. "So he hoped he was creating an example for American farmers in terms of being able to stay on the land you were on and making fruitful."
