

Local Performing Arts Studio Expands in BIG WAYS to Serve Community Better

Introducing the New Metropolitan School of the Arts

By: Jacqueline Doherty

Metropolitan School of the Arts adds the area's first exclusive secondary school for performing arts—and more—to its line up.

Exclusive secondary school for the performing arts

On September 3, 2013, the sun gleamed overtop the historic brick buildings onto the dew covered grassy quad of the newly constructed Metropolitan School of the Arts in Lorton, VA. The glistening effect was a perfect welcome for the twelve incoming high school students who shape the inaugural class of The Academy. (The former Metropolitan Fine Arts Center moved their Fairfax Station location on Silverbrook Road to the Workhouse Arts Center on Ox Road in June 2013 in preparation for the launch of the Academy).

The Academy at Metropolitan School of the Arts is a fully accredited secondary school serving performing artists in grades 7-12. "Our goal is to be the fourth arts centered boarding school in the United States, modeling after Interlochen, Walnut Hill and Idyllwild," states Melissa Dobbs, President and Founder. "We are at the very beginning stages of our long term plan, but the train has left the station. We are on the path to fulfilling this vision for our community."

Accredited academic curriculum customized for young artists

Each morning, students engage in classic school subjects like math, science, history, English and foreign language. Metropolitan School of the Arts has a contract with a virtual school that delivers a customized academic curriculum for each of their twelve students. The curriculum is taught and administered by on site teachers and academic experts. "We currently offer four different math classes, three languages, four science courses and three English classes," says Academy Director, Nicole Zuchetto. "Our academic program provides a mastery-based, progressive learning environment that provides the flexibility and rigor required by the unique needs of performing arts students. We offer a blended program that integrates arts and academics into a unique educational experience that speaks directly to the hearts and minds of young artists." In addition to the college prep courses, honors and AP classes are options as well.

Professional arts training for the serious student

The comprehensive arts program includes a weekly private piano and voice lesson, daily dance class in ballet, modern and/or jazz, yoga, music theory, group chorale and acting fundamentals. If that seems like a lot, students also participate in a OneVoice workshop with Robbie Schaefer from famed music group, Eddie from Ohio. In this workshop, students learn to use their gifts to make positive contributions to their world through the power of giving, sharing and love. Theater Chair Matt Bassett explains, "We are a training program for serious young artists. We dive deep into the process of the performing arts so students leave here equipped with the skills they need for the professional world." Performing opportunities are also available for students throughout the year.

Local and national support from highly regarded professionals

Local and national artists are catching wind of the great things happening here in Northern Virginia. Guest teachers are making their way onto the Metropolitan School of the Arts campus. In February, MSA plans to welcome Tim Federle, Broadway performer and author of Better Nate than Ever, for a workshop and seminar.

What are the students saying?

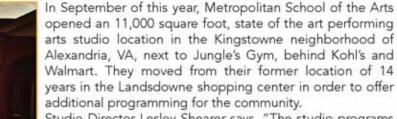

Lexi Rhem, a sophomore, explains, "We're not like any other school. We are all motivated students who work hard on our academics so we can work hard and focus on our passion and what we love. I am so thankful to have this opportunity." Cayli Dobbs, a freshman, says it all, 'This school has changed my life. Period."

Interested in being a part of history?

Auditions for the upcoming school year are approaching. "We plan on accepting 50 students for the 2014-2015 school year, however, that number will depend on the number of applicants we receive and the audition process," says Dobbs. Auditions will be held in February 2014. If you are interested in auditioning, please contact Nicole Zuchetto, Academy Director, at 703-339.0444 x 3, or e-mail nzuchetto@metropolitanarts.org.

NEW PROGRAMS for the NEW YEAR

New Kingstowne studio location

Studio Director Lesley Shearer says, "The studio programs have grown faster than anticipated since opening in 2001. This is attributed to our wholehearted dedication to providing the highest quality performing arts training to each student who enters the door." Every year, the studio has added additional members to its teaching staff and has upgraded facilities by purchasing new pianos and regularly renovating the studios. Metropolitan School of the Arts offers training to over 1,000 students each week at two locations in Alexandra and Lorton, VA.

Metropolitan School of the Arts now offers over 300 weekly classes and music lessons in 9 state of the art dance studios and 6 state of the art music studios spanning over 20,000 square feet of training space. The studio programs include everything from youth and adult dance classes in ballet, tap, jazz, contemporary, hip-hop, Irish, hula and social dance to music lessons for all ages in piano, voice, guitar, violin, fiddle, and drums. Theater classes in acting and music theater are also offered alongside a fully comprehensive adult fitness program offering yoga and barre fitness classes. The studio ballet program is affiliated with the Royal Academy of Dance in London, whereby students have the opportunity to participate in internationally accredited ballet examinations. Shearer explains, "Now, we can offer more simultaneous classes and lessons to busy families to save hours of commuting time between activities."

Qualified faculty and staff for all ages and levels

Metropolitan School of the Arts has over 70 faculty members in dance, music theater and fitness. Many of the faculty members have master's degrees in their field of work and all have professional performing credits, national and international producing or directing experience or similar backgrounds. Metropolitan School of the Arts students have gone off to perform on Broadway, national tours, local and regional theater, professional dance companies (Mark Morris) and have been accepted into the most prestigious colleges and universities, including Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, New York University (Tisch), Pace University, Elon University, Marymount Manhattan, Fordham University and The Juilliard School, among others. The studio accepts students from beginning through advanced levels and ensures that students are matched to teachers who best relate to them and meet their individual needs and goals.

A new after school program with a twist

In response to a colossal request from community members, Metropolitan School of the Arts recently introduced MetroClub. MetroClub is an arts focused after school program (based in the Alexandria location) that includes safe and convenient transportation from select area schools. Each day, students engage in an enriching arts lesson in dance, theater, music, visual art or yoga. Healthy and nutritious snacks are offered and focused academic support is built in so members work on their homework (and sometimes finish it) before the day is over. The emphasis is on learning to enjoy the arts and to have fun in a safe and encouraging environment. MetroClub currently offers space for 20 students per year.

ENROLL TODAY! Metropolitan School of the Arts is now accepting registrations for the current session. Registration for summer camps and classes begins February 1. For more information, please visit the school website at metropolitanarts.org or call 703.339.0444.

Delegate Dave Albo (R-42) speaks on the floor of the Virginia House of Delegates.

Albo Looks at Year Back, Year Ahead

Q&A with Del. Dave Albo (R-42).

Q: What do you think was a major success

A: The transportation bill was not only the most important bill of 2013, but the second most important bill we've passed in my twenty years in the General Assembly. We found a solution that lets us keep 100 percent of our money.

Q: What are some transportation priorities in your district?

A: Right now we've got a problem with Rolling Road. It's the same two—lane road that it has been since the 1800s. It hasn't been much of a problem until the National Geospacial Agency went up about a year and a half ago and brought 7,000 jobs, and now things are becoming a real nightmare. My main goal right now is repavement - some residential roads haven't been repaved in 15 years.

Q: What do you think will be most important in the upcoming General Assembly session?

A: I'm sure the ethics thing is going to be a big issue. The problem with the ethics thing is, number one, it is already illegal, there's a guy sitting in prison for taking gifts, so I'm not quite sure that there's a lot we need to do because it's already illegal. There are some improvements we can do, such as better transparency. On education, I know that the Republican Caucus is looking to do some revamps on the SOLs. A lot of us, including me, feel like there is too much testing right now. The concept is still pretty good, I still want to make sure that teachers are accountable to teach the kids, but a lot of us feel like it's been a little bit out of control. We're looking at extending some of the testing back, giving the teachers a little more time to spend on other things. On higher education, Tim Hugo and I are still in the battle of the century against these schools to add more in-state slots.

Q: What issues do you think people in your district are most worried about?

"The stuff that I want to happen is not going to make headlines, which is "General Assembly Passes a Balanced Budget, and Dave Albo's roads get repaved."

— Del. Dave Albo (R-42)

A: People are most concerned about jobs. The weird thing about that is, I'm the first person to tell you that the government doesn't create jobs. If it did, the Soviet Union would still be in business. What we do best is we create an atmosphere that makes businesses want to come here. That's why we passed the Transportation Bill because no new business is going to come here if it takes their workers an hour and a half to get to work. The other reason they come here is for schools. One of the reasons why we're trying to do this revamp of the SOLs is because a lot of people don't think they are working like they used to. What we're trying to do is to create an atmosphere where people want to come and start businesses. The other issue, is an issue about being a Northern Virginia delegate, and that is having Southern Virginia take our money is also another constant battle.

Q: What do you think you can expect from Governor elect Terry McAuliffe?

A: No one knows. Don't want to rag on the guy, because he seems like a decent guy, but when you run a campaign that is entirely negative, I have no idea what he is for. All I know is that he doesn't like Ken Cuccinelli. So we don't know what his agenda is going to be. The only thing I heard is that he wants to expand Medicaid, which would be highly problematic.

Q: What headline would you like to see in 2014?

A: I would like to see no headlines. The stuff that I want to happen is not going to make headlines, which is "General Assembly Passes a Balanced Budget, and Dave Albo's roads gets repaved."

"The following items are on my radar screen for the year ahead:

The Silver Line, Phase 1, will open for passenger service through Tysons Corner to Construction associated with rezonings in Tysons will take place throughout 2014. 'Pop-up' activities and uses will provide vibrancy to Tysons while permanent uses are beginning to fill in. The newly redeveloped Springfield Town Center in the old Springfield Mall area will open in fall of 2014.

Herrity's Top Local Issues for 2014

upervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) talks about what he believes will be the top issues this year in Fairfax

- 1. RELIEVING TRANSPORTATION CON-GESTION: Transportation will continue to be a major issue in 2014, but will not be focused on finding funding. Some major transportation issues will be:
- Making sure that the funding from the new transportation bill is spent on the projects that give us the most congestion relief and biggest impact for our taxpayer dollars.
- Getting an Express Lanes-like solution to I-66 congestion underway that will bring congestion relief and effective mass transit and carpooling to the most congested corridor in the region
- Examining the possibility of having Braddock Road reclassified in the state system to a primary road – like we did with the Fairfax County Parkway - to ensure more state dollars for improvements and maintenance, and
- * Moving forward my proposal for a Corridor Improvement Study on the Fairfax County Parkway to develop and rank the best solutions to parkway congestion, including widening and grade-separated interchanges.
- 2. DEFEATING THE THREAT OF RESI-DENTIAL STUDIO UNITS (RSUS) TO OUR

Supervisor Pat Herrity

SUBURBAN NEIGHBORHOODS: There has been some progress in keeping the problems caused by the density of the RSUs from our suburban neighborhoods, but there is more to be fixed in the proposed ordinance. The Planning Commission will make its recommendations early in the year. We need to protect our suburban neighborhoods.

3. PREPARING FOR THE AGE WAVE: As Chairman of the 50 Plus Committee, I will be working with the Board of Supervisors to prepare a new 50+ plan to prepare for the age wave, as the baby boomers are hitting their 50s and 60s. Fairfax County will see an 88percent increase in residents over the age of 70 by 2030.

4. FIGHTING DEBILITATING LYME DIS-EASE: 2014 will see us continue our efforts to fight Lyme disease. Although the pilot on the four-poster deer-bait station that I requested will not be complete until early 2015, 2014 will mark the final year of the pilot, and the data collected will be pivotal in seeing whether or not these stations could be a tool we could use to eradicate this debilitating disease in our area.

5. COMBATING SEX TRAFFICKING: This ugly business has increased as gangs have found it more profitable than weapon and drug sales. 2014 should see us fight back against this crime with the new Human Trafficking Unit that Fairfax County installed to work with our regional partners. And I'm sure we will see further efforts to eradicate this terrible crime from tireless advocates Congressman Frank Wolf and Del. Barbara Comstock."

Supervisor Jeffrey McKay (R-Lee District)

"My New Year's resolution is to make sure I keep the right grounding between my responsibilities to my constituents and my responsibilities to my family, and that's tough. It's the toughest thing about this job. Making sure you have that work, life, balance is really important. I need to make sure I stay focused on that balance."

"This time of year, every year, you have to remind yourself to step back and ask what is the most

Sleep Deprived

To the Editor:

My name is Andrew and I am in 7th grade at South County Middle School. I am contacting you today about an important issue: FCPS high school start times. Because of where I live, I would have to wake up at 5:30 a.m. to get to the bus stop. I feel sleep deprived now waking up at 6:30 a.m. I would lose another hour in high school. I understand that the FCPS school board is considering a change in the start time. I am all for this change. It has been proven that sleep deprived teens get worse grades and are more accident-prone while driving. If the start time gets pushed back, FCPS students will be happier, safer, and they will get better grades. Please join me in support of pushing high school start times back.

Spiritual Wellness in the New Year

What is it and how does one achieve it?

It's about being connected to something greater than one's self. "It doesn't have to be a higher power," she said. "It can be your community or nature, but the key piece is that there is a connection to something other than yourself."

Elizabeth Rees, the associate rector at St. Aidan's Episcopal Church in Mount Vernon, said, "I would say at its heart, spiritual wellbeing is knowing ourselves to be loved and cherished by God and then living into that

Rees believes self-love is also a component of spiritual well-being. Prayer is an important part of many religions. "That is why people can find contentment in prayer and places of worship and as well as in other contexts."

Jackson-Cherry said, "When I'm working with clients, I find that people who have the healthiest spiritual well-being are people who have a sense of purpose in life or have a meaning in life. They might not have achieved it, but they are working toward it. Having a sense of purpose or meaning in life leads to contentment." So how does one find a sense of purpose and meaning in life? "We've talked about this question a lot," said Rees. "What comes up most frequently is the idea of finding ways to live in the present, slowing down and finding God present in the moment. ... Hearing where other people are finding God, and taking the time to look for God acting in my own life and share that with others makes me much more aware of God all around, and helps me to remember that God is also acting in and through the people around me." Children in Fairfax County's foster care program range in age from infant to 18-years-old and are in the program because they need a safe home where they can build their confidence and feel a sense of belonging. Unless gifts are donated to the program, many of these youths will not receive any holiday gifts at all and need everything from winter clothes to educational toys.

Fairfax Symphony Orchestra Promises 'Intense, Personal, Intimate Experience'

ave you heard? The next performance of the Fairfax Symphony Orchestra (FSO) chamber series, will be in a special location; the Harris Theater at George Mason University. It will give audiences an intimate setting to encounter first-class classical music. As a unique treat, there will be an after-performance event bringing the music, the musicians and the audience even closer together.

According to FSO Music Director Christopher Zimmerman, the new venue for the Jan. 18-19 performances "will allow for an intense interaction" between audience and the FSO. He selected music that "reflects this in its emotional charge and content; that is, a concert which leans more towards the intense, personal and intimate experience."

Zimmerman wove together a musical concert to celebrate the 100th birthday of Benjamin Britten, one of the 20th Century icons of classical music with compositions by Edward Elgar and Dmitri Shostakovich. "It occurred to me that the focus on him [Britten] could be deepened by pairing him" with other major modern composers.

The performance will include Britten's "Serenade for Tenor, Horn, and Strings" with William Hite, Tenor, Shostakovich's "Chamber Symphony in C Minor," Britten's "Simple Symphony" and Elgar's "Serenade for Strings."

Describing the concert in visual imagery Zimmerman called Britten's "Serenade" a "rich and multi-layered" poem. "The music is highly expressive and concentrated atmospheric: the sense of night, sleep, shadows, farewell and other nocturnal elements are omnipresent, as well as the opposite allusions to greetings and biguous emotions," said Zimmerman.

Zimmerman said the Shostakovich "Chamber Symphony" was "one of the most direct and simply-stated of all his works, capturing the horrors of Stalinist-Soviet repression and the composer's life within that, in all its sorrow and hopelessness." Elgar's "Serenade for Strings" was described as "strongly wistful."

The Harris Theatre, with its 460 seats, is noted for a "live" acoustical sound well suited to music events such as an FSO chamber performance.

When asked to sum up how music can affect a listener, Zimmerman said, "in both the sounds and what lies behind them, [music] heightens and enriches our perception of life." He added that musical entertainment can be like poetry, "there are no hard and fast rules. It's not cool or uncool, it's not fashionable or unfashionable." Just open yourself to it. Let it resonate inside you. Enjoy.

Top Sports Moments of 2013

he year 2013 provided several exciting moments in local sports. For Woodson, the boys' basketball team's epic comeback earned the Cavaliers a Northern Region title. West Springfield's Caroline Alcorta had a memorable senior cross country season. Lake Braddock's boys' basketball team won its first district title since 2002, South County's girls' track team won a pair of state titles and the Edison girls' basketball team won a region championship.

Here is a look at the top moments in Burke/Springfield/Fairfax/Fairfax Station sports for 2013.

Woodson Boys' Basketball Wins Region Title

Trailing Wakefield by 19 points entering the fourth quarter of the Northern Region championship game, it appeared the Woodson boys' basketball team would have to settle for the state playoff berth it clinched by winning in the semifinals.

Twelve minutes and one furious comeback later, Woodson was heading to states with the program's first region championship in the school's 50-year history after a 75-70 overtime victory.

Wakefield led by as many as 22 points in the second half and held a 52-33 advantage entering the fourth quarter. But Woodson, which had struggled offensively for three quarters, opened the fourth with an 11-0 run, cutting the Warriors' lead to eight. The Cavaliers, a strong outside-shooting team, continued their comeback with a barrage of perimeter shots. A Peter Murray 3-pointer cut the Woodson deficit to five. Forty seconds later, Alex Boock's 3-pointer cut Wakefield's lead to 55-52. Murray made another 3-pointer with 1:20 remaining, tying the score at 59-all and the game went to overtime

In the extra period, Damian Bell's 3-pointer gave Woodson a 62-61 lead — the Cavaliers' first lead since the 5:33 mark of the second quarter. After a Wakefield free throw tied the score at 62, Woodson's Tommy Stepka knocked down a 3-pointer with 2:10 left in overtime, giving the Cavaliers a lead they would not relinquish.

How did the Cavaliers pull it off?

"It's funny because I've been asked that several times," Woodson head coach Doug Craig wrote in an email. "Our kids were just so confident. I remember them coming into the huddle between the third and fourth quarters. Our kids were absolutely not panicked, unnerved, or distraught. There was just a sense of resolve. They just knew they were going to get back in the game, even with how well Wakefield had played. Our kids had a supreme confidence that we could shoot our way back into the game because we had been a team all year that could score points in bunches. We talked

In the final 12 minutes, Woodson outscored Wakefield 42-18. The Cavaliers outscored the Warriors 26-7 in the fourth quarter to force overtime.

Murray and Boock each scored 19 points for Woodson. Stepka scored 12 points, and Eric Bowles and Bell each had 11. Murray was named tournament MVP while Stepka and Boock made the all-tournament team.

"Damian Bell, who was perhaps our 10th or 11th guy on the depth chart, hadn't played much the last month of the season. We were going so bad offensively and Damian could really shoot it. We went to him in the last minute of the third quarter through the end of the game. We were looking for a spark and he scored 11 points in the last 13 minutes of the game. He hit a 3 and all of a sudden the confidence spread like wildfire. In the fourth quarter and overtime, we hit like nine threes by four different players. All of a sudden guys that were struggling all night seemed to find their confidence. It really all began with the 3 Damian hit in the last minute of the third quarter. He'll be the guy I will always laud to future teams about staying prepared to play. Biggest game in school history and he hasn't played in a month and comes up huge and really propelled us."

After the game, the Cavaliers paid tribute to former Woodson coach Red Jenkins.

"After the game in the locker room was pretty special and no one got to see it," Craig wrote. "It was the school's 50th anniversary and our first region championship. We had won 19 district titles and been in the regional championship game several times without winning. So many great teams and players (Tommy Amaker, Pete Holbert, Greg Williams, etc.) at Woodson through the years that never quite got it done. After the game our players and coaching staff invited several people in the locker room that had been a big part of Woodson basketball over the years. We had two of the three former head coaches (Red Jenkins and Mike Pflugrath), two former DSA's (Tom Casey and Phil Turner), a couple of former assistant coaches, as well as our principal and current athletic staff. The team presented the regional championship trophy to Coach Jenkins and asked him to accept it on behalf of all the players, coaches, assistant coaches, managers that had been so close and had never quite got it done. Fifty years and so much history, we were so fortunate that Coach Jenkins and others could still be there to be a part of it. A lot of people over the years put in work to get the program there. Our kids really understood how important it was to the school community and wanted to share the moment with some of those people."

Woodson went on to reach the state semifinals.

Spartan Harrier Alcorta Produces Fantastic Senior Season

Caroline Alcorta's senior cross country season was one to remember.

After the West Springfield harrier won the Conference 7 championship on Oct. 30, Alcorta won the 6A North region title on Nov. 6 with the third-best time in the history of the Burke Lake Park course (16:31). After committing to the University of North Carolina, Alcorta went on to win the Group 6A state championship on Nov. 15 at Great Meadow, finishing with a course-record time of 17:13.

Next, Alcorta won the Foot Locker south regional on Nov. 30 in Charlotte, earning her a trip to nationals. On Dec. 14, Alcorta earned All-American status by placing third at the Foot Locker Cross Country Championships national meet in San Diego. She finished with a time of 17:31.

"I think my favorite part of the XC season for Caroline was her winning states," West Springfield head coach Chris Pellegrini wrote in an email. "It was the first individual XC state championship in our girls' history, and she looked relaxed and comfortable the whole time."

Pellegrini noticed Alcorta's level of confidence grow.

"I think one of the reasons why Caroline has had such a great fall was because she has gained a lot more confidence from her previous seasons of running," Pellegrini wrote. "Her mentality heading into each race has been excellent, and she's provided the other girls on the team a great example of the type of approach that is successful. This type of approach has allowed her to just go out and execute the race plan, rather than worrying too much.

"Her performances at Foot Locker South and Foot Locker Finals in San Diego were really gravy at the end of the season, and it was nice to see that she can match up well at the highest levels."

Edison Girls' Basketball Wins Northern Region Championship

The Edison girls' basketball team stumbled out of the gate in the 2013 Northern Region championship game, falling behind South Lakes 20-5 at the end of the first quarter and trailing by as many as 17 points.

But thanks in large part to then-freshman Jada Graves, who scored a game-high 23 points, the Eagles battled back and won their first region title since 2007, beating South Lakes 60-52 on Feb. 23.

South Lakes' 6-foot-2 center Abby Rendle finished just shy of a triple-double, totaling 14 points, 12 rebounds and nine blocks. But Rendle didn't stop the 5-foot-9 Graves from being aggressive on offense.

"I'm not scared of anybody," Graves said after the game. "I was going to take it and try to get her in foul trouble. If she blocks it, [I'm] just going to go again."

South Lakes led 50-47 with 4:27 remaining in the fourth quarter, but Edison answered with back-to-back 3-points from Megan Hendrick and Lindsey Krisak and closed the game on a 13-2 run.

"I remember vividly when it hit me late in the game that we were going to pull off the win!" Edison head coach Dianne Lewis wrote in an email. "South Lakes was a very good team and I knew the game could go either way. And when it was apparent we were going to get the win, I was trying very hard not to smile until the buzzer went off. But, I was just so happy for the girls. No one expected it from them and that's why the win was most special."

Edison finished the season with a 24-5 record after falling to Colonial Forge in the state quarterfinals.

"Last year's team consisted of six players new to varsity basketball (five freshmen)," Lewis wrote. "Another three players played the previous year but were still trying to find their role on the team. Early in the season was a challenge; I would teach a new drill and we would have a question and answer period longer than the drill! But what I realized about them is that they wanted to learn and they were not afraid to compete against the best! There are no drills to teach passion for the game, and that's what they had. It was very refreshing!"

Lake Braddock Boys' Basketball Wins Patriot District Title

In back-to-back February nights, the Lake Braddock boys' basketball team knocked top seed and eventual region champion Woodson out of the Patriot District tournament and defeated South County to win the district title.

Lake Braddock defeated South County 50-40 on Feb. 15, giving the Bruins their first district title since 2002. Lake Braddock trailed by two with 3:05 remaining in the game, but closed the contest on a 15-3 run.

"(My) fondest memory of the moment would have to be the sheer joy on our guys' faces," Lake Braddock head coach Brian Metress wrote in an email. "Having been beaten badly by Woodson at Woodson earlier in the year and again on our own home court toward the end of the season, the upset of them in the semis, followed by then beating one of our arch rivals, South County, really made it special for the guys."

Lake Braddock's Will Gregorits scored 21 points in the district final and was named tournament MVP. A.J. Alexander finished with 16 points.

"The most important reason for our victory, I think, was that we had a gritty group of guys who every day at practice just came out and tried to get better," Metress wrote. "We were a much better team at the end of the year than we were at the beginning. At the beginning of the year we were a team finding it hard to win consistently, but by the end of the year we were a team which was tough to beat night in, night out."

Lake Braddock finished the season with an 18-8 record and reached the region quarterfinals.

South County Girls Win Indoor, Outdoor Track Titles

The South County girls' track team captured the school's first team state championship when it won the indoor title in the winter.

What did the Stallions do for an encore? Win the outdoor title.

South County won the girls' indoor track state championship with a score of 52 on Feb. 23 in Hampton. The Stallions won the outdoor title with a score of 50 on June 1 in Newport News.

"The most memorable moment was the fact that it was the school's first team state championship and to come back in the outdoor season and win the outdoor state championship is even better," South County head coach TD Holsclaw wrote in an email, "because to duplicate and keep the team focused for that period of time is an accomplishment. Our ladies had a mission and they accomplished it with a lot of pressure on them."

Felicia Majors led the way for South County, winning individual state championships in the pole vault and long jump during indoor, and the 400 during outdoor, along with placing high in several other

"I would say the most important reason we were able to win is that we had a very talented athlete in Felecia Majors and when she was tired or down because of another performance, the girls grouped around her for overall moral support to keep her focused," Holsclaw wrote. "We also had other athletes that stepped up in individual events and relays."

Students on a field trip to Hemlock Overlook Regional Park participate in a team-building exercise.

Students participate in an activity during a Hemlock Overlook Regional Park program. The Northern Virginia Park Authority has just received a $10,000 grant from the Dominion Foundation, part of which will go towards the Field Trip Grant Program that allows children to go on field trips to Hemlock.

Field Trip Grant Program Exposes Children to Nature

Grant brings local elementary and middle schools to Hemlock Overlook Regional Park in Clifton.

By Janelle Germanos
The Connection

he Dominion Foundation's grant of $10,000 to the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority will allow for children from local elementary and middle schools to attend field trips at Hemlock Overlook Regional Park in Clifton as part of the Field Trip Grant Program.

"They go and spend the whole day in this beautiful wooded park with lots of fun activities, and at the end of the day, the culmination is the zip line through the forest," said Paul Gilbert, the NVRPA executive director. "You're literally going through the canopy of the trees. It's just a lot of fun."

The Field Trip Grant Program helps schools that have higher percentages of subsidized lunches because those schools are more economically challenged and have difficulty sending their kids on field trips, Gilbert said.

"With budget cuts over the past few years, a lot of schools have less transportation money. One of the things about our grant program is we'll select a school and give them $1,000 to help offset their cost. They can apply it to transportation or to the per child fee for the field trip. We try to make it as flexible and easy to use as possible," said

According to Gilbert, Hemlock Overlook features team-building exercises, as well as environmental education that aligns with the Virginia Standards of Learning.

"Just last year, we helped about 750 kids go through this program through this grant. That's just through the grant. About 10,000 kids a year go through the Hemlock Program," Gilbert said.

The donation helps NVPRA's larger goal of getting more children and families outdoors.

"There's been a big movement to get more kids engaged with nature outdoors. That's what this effort, Nature Nuts, is about. We set a goal of having half a million kids in Northern Virginia to have a meaningful outdoor experience through the regional parks over a five year program," Gilbert said.

According to Brian Bauer, the marketing and communications administrator for NVRPA, getting kids outside can be difficult, especially with modern conveniences like iPhones and video games.

"Based on jobs and hours and traffic and everything else, it's hard to get kids outside. Especially this time of year, when we get home at night, by the time we get in our parking space, it's practically dark," Bauer said.

Gilbert said that giving kids more unstructured time outside can be good for their imagination and creativity, and can build confidence.

"I think because of society and technology and the rest of it, we have to be intentional about getting kids involved with nature. With just the Hemlock experience, if kids go and have this wonderful and positive experience, running around the woods and doing fun things, they are going to remember that forever," Gilbert said. "You build your mind, your body, and everything else in the process of these outdoor experiences."

According to Gilbert, the recession may have drawn more people into NVRPA parks.

"Our camping and picnic reservations and water park attendance have been increasing quite a bit. People have been finding our parks, enjoying them and using them more than ever," Gilbert said.

Although Bauer and Gilbert recognize that it may be difficult for parks to compete with electronics, the benefits of being outdoors are worthwhile.

"Just go visit a park. Take your kids to the playground, or take them for a hike on a trail," Gilbert said.

Carolyn Moss, the managing director for state and local affairs for the Mid-Atlantic Region for Dominion, said that Paul Gilbert's leadership of NVRPA is exceptional. Moss said they chose to support NVRPA because their environmental education programs reach a large number of children.

"We look forward to support them for many years to come," Moss said.
