Springfield District Supervisor Pat Herrity believes the proposed changes to the zoning ordinance will cause legal issues for Fairfax County.

Group Assembly Proposal Could Limit Home Gatherings

Residents voice opposition to proposal at public meetings.

After a heated public meeting on a proposed change to the Fairfax County Zoning Ordinance, which would limit gatherings of more than 49 people to three times in a 40-day period in a residential dwelling, Leslie Johnson, the zoning administrator for Fairfax County, told residents she doubts the proposal will go any further, based on the feedback that has been received.

This came after every resident at the meeting spoke out against the change, which many see as unnecessary and an infringement on their rights to peacefully assemble.

Still, the proposal is set to be presented to the Board of Supervisors in June.

Michelle O'Hare, the deputy zoning administrator for Fairfax County, told residents that the proposal is a way to respond to incidents that have occurred in which there are large, frequent gatherings in residential areas.

CURRENTLY, the zoning ordinance does not define which size or frequency is appropriate at a residential dwelling. But many residents are concerned that the proposal limits the right to assemble and will cause legal issues for the county.

"While there have been some complaints about frequent and large gatherings creating issues such as lack of parking, noise, and traffic, I have serious concerns about such a sweeping change to the zoning ordinance," Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) said in a statement in his regularly-issued Herrity Report. "I believe the County is risking a lawsuit and/or a Constitution challenge by interfering with peoples' right to assemble."

Also taking issue with the proposal is the Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Washington, the JCC of Northern Virginia, Temple B'nai Shalom in Fairfax Station, and several other synagogues in the area.

Stephen Gell, former president of the Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Washington, spoke against the ordinance at the meeting.

"There is an obligation in many Jewish homes to erect sukkot, which could result in having more than 50 people over," Gell said.

In addition, a letter to the Fairfax County Department of Planning and Zoning from the JCRC cited other concerns religious communities have with the proposal.

"Jewish mourning rituals or 'shiva' calls for seven days of mourning by family members in their home. The congregation, family and friends are called to participate in prayer and support for the bereaved. These gatherings on occasion may include more than 50 individuals participating," the letter stated.

According to administrators at the meeting, there have been 12 complaints of large gatherings within the past year.

Residents argued that the proposal would punish everyone for violations made by a small group of people.

"While there have been a number of complaints about group assemblies they have been relatively few," Herrity stated.

ALSO AT ISSUE, opponents at the meeting argued, is who would enforce the regulations and how much it would cost the county. According to Herrity, there are existing ordinances that can be used to address problems such as noise and parking.

According to Johnson, the Board of Supervisors asked the zoning staff to look at developing a new proposal. She would not, however, tell residents the specific supervisors that asked for such a proposal.

Proposed changes to the noise ordinance were also discussed at the meeting. According to Lorrie Kirst, the senior deputy zoning administrator, the two main goals of the proposed ordinance are to minimize night time noise and to guarantee a quiet environment for residents.

While some residents, including Joyce Harris of McLean, have complained that noise caused by loudspeakers in their neighborhoods is getting to be too loud, the JCRC also cited concerns with the proposed noise ordinance.

"While the goals of both of these ordinances are meritorious, these proposals as written would have a direct negative impact on our religious observances and some of our routine activities," the letter stated.

The public meeting on May 19 was the final of three meetings, but the proposal will be presented to the Board of Supervisors in June.

Natalia Rivero Nogales, a senior at West Springfield High School, has been recognized for her hard work by being awarded a $1,000 scholarship from the Fairfax County Hispanic Leadership Alliance.

Honored for Enthusiasm and Dedication

THE CONNECTION

When Natalia Rivero Nogales graduates in a month from West Springfield High School, she plans on majoring in psychology so she can become a counselor and help people, something that she says is her goal in life.

It's this dedication and enthusiasm that made Nogales a more than qualified candidate for a $1,000 scholarship from the Fairfax County Hispanic Leadership Alliance.

"The scholarship is a wonderful recognition of her participation in the Hispanic Heritage Club," said Susan Lampazzi, a Spanish teacher at West Springfield High School. "Natalia was a student in my Spanish class during her freshman year. She was a good student and she enjoyed learning Spanish. She still enjoys speaking Spanish with her friends."

Nogales, a Springfield resident, was honored with the other Fairfax County winners at a banquet featuring Superintendent Karen Garza on May 7.

Every year, the Hispanic Leadership Alliance, an organization within Fairfax County Public Schools that promotes understanding of Hispanic culture, awards exceptional students who demonstrate leadership with scholarships. The students are often the first in their families to attend a post-secondary institution.

Nogales is Bolivian and moved to the United States in 2000. Her family celebrates Bolivian holidays, and continues to recognize their heritage.

The pride Nogales feels for her culture is evident through her participation in activities such as International Culture Night and Spartan fest.

"For example, she was excited to tell people all about the Hispanic food that she helped sell at Spartanfest," Lampazzi said.

Because her parents worked hard but regret not finishing college, Nogales is determined to complete her degree. She plans on attending NOVA for two years and then transferring to Virginia Commonwealth University.

"This way I am saving money," Nogales said.

She says her parents have been very supportive and have always encouraged her to attend college.

"As a culture, we are so caring," Nogales said. "We love everyone. Right now, an aunt is staying with me and my parents just love her."

Besides her brother, who is attending college in Bolivia, Nogales will be the first in her family to attend college. She is excited to earn her degree so she can begin helping others by being a therapist.

Nogales describes herself as outgoing, kind, nice and talkative. In addition to the Hispanic Heritage Club, she is involved with Interact Club, a community service organization. "I am so grateful to the Hispanic Heritage Club for pushing me towards this opportunity," Nogales said. "No one hides their culture here at West Springfield, and I am grateful for that."

US Army Garrison Fort Belvoir, Fairfax County, Virginia THE US ARMY COMPLETES FIRST FIVE-YEAR REVIEW FOR CLEANUP SITES AT FORT BELVOIR NORTH AREA

The US Army has completed the first five-year review of the environmental remedies undertaken at two sites located at Fort Belvoir North Area, 7501 Heller Road, Springfield, Fairfax County, Virginia. The remedy for the first site involved ground-water well installation and monitored natural attenuation. The remedy for the second site involved soil removal, groundwater well installation and monitored natural attenuation. Because hazardous substances remain onsite above risk based levels that prevent unrestricted use and exposure, the Army is required to evaluate the protectiveness of the remedy at least every five years in accordance with the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Recovery Act. The five-year review found that the remedies at Fort Belvoir North Area currently protect human health and the environment because the contamination remains on site and the treatment system is effectively reducing contamination levels. The United States Environmental Protection Agency agrees with the protectiveness of the remedy.

If you have any concerns about the environmental remediation efforts at Fort Belvoir North Area please contact Patrick McLaughlin, Environmental and Natural Resources Division Chief. A copy of the final report is available at the information repository or from the contact below.

Police officers from jurisdictions around the area, including Fairfax County, stand next to the Fairfax County Police Department's police car that displays messages intended to prevent distracted driving.

Although April was designated as National Distracted Driving Awareness Month, the issue continues to affect drivers in and around Fairfax County throughout the year.

According to the Fairfax County Police Department, distracted driving resulted in 1,175 crashes in 2013. In the Lee district, Franconia Road and South Van Dorn Street was a top location for crashes involving distracted drivers.

A recent survey has also found that distracted driving is on the rise along Interstate 95, although construction of the express lanes has kept the area busy with construction.

The report, released on May 8 by Transurban-Fluor and AAA Mid-Atlantic, found that distracted driving rose to 62 percent this year, up from 56 percent in 2013.

"Distracted driving is dangerous under the best conditions - it is even more dangerous in a work zone," said Aubrey Layne, Virginia Secretary of Transportation, in a press release on May 8. "Transportation safety and the safety of those who report to work each day to improve Virginia's infrastructure is our top priority. Drivers can make our roads significantly safer by taking one simple step - put down the phone while behind the wheel."

THE REPORT surveyed 1,023 drivers who live in Northern Virginia and travel along the express lanes construction. The number of distracted drivers who have had an incident or a near-miss is now at 31 percent, up from 24 percent in 2013, the report says.

The survey also found that work-related demands could be a cause of distracted driving, as 54 percent of distracted drivers were found to have at some point responded to an issue relating to work. And, those who respond to work-related issues are more likely to respond to texts and emails.

"The issue of distracted driving in Virginia starts and ends with this: if you're driving distracted, you're dangerous to everyone on the road," Mahlon G. "Lon" Anderson, AAA Mid-Atlantic spokesman, stated in the May 8 press release. "Employers must actively work to change their culture and discourage employees from driving distracted by changing policy. When it comes to distracted driving, being passive won't work. Changing behavior to save lives demands aggressive action."

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, the Mount Vernon-Lee Chamber of Commerce, and the Greater Springfield Chamber of Commerce joined other chambers throughout the area at the second annual "Orange Cones. No Phones." Distracted Driving Safety Campaign press conference to remind the public not to use their cell phones while driving and to avoid distracted driving.

IN MARCH, the Fairfax County Police Department held its first class on distracted driving to train officers on the dangers of this occurrence. Distracted driving is anything that causes drivers' eyes to leave the road, their hands to leave the wheel, or their mind to be taken off driving.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, more than nine people are killed every day in crashes involving a distracted driver. And since construction of the 95 Express Lanes is continuing from Stafford County into Fairfax County near Edsall Road in Springfield through the end of 2014, it may continue to be a problem for commuters in the area.

Remembering on Memorial Day

Fewer deaths as military operations wind down, but 22 veterans a day die of suicide.

In Arlington over the coming Memorial Day weekend, the organization TAPS, or Tragedy Assistance for Survivors, will hold its 20th annual Military Survivor seminar and Good Grief camp for young survivors, children of all ages. TAPS offers support to anyone who is grieving the death of someone who died in the military, whether from combat, suicide, terrorism, homicide, negligence, accidents or illness. <http://www.taps.org/>

One veteran of Iraq and Afghanistan recently related that he had lost more of his military family to suicide post-deployment than he did from combat. Reports by the Veterans Administration set the number of suicides among veterans nationwide at about 22 per day.

On Memorial Day, we remember all of those who have died in military service, more than 400,000 in World War II, more than 30,000 in Korea, more than 50,000 in Vietnam.

Since Sept. 11, 2001, more than 6,400 U.S. military service men and women have died in support of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Nearly 50,000 U.S. military service members have been wounded, although that number is likely to be revised upward. Last year, the military confirmed traumatic brain injury in more than 220,000 of the more than 2.3 million troops who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan. The long-term consequences of many of these injuries are unknown, but they will require a national commitment to excellence in health care and services for both active duty military personnel and veterans. Virginia's U.S. Senators Mark Warner and Tim Kaine continue to advocate for better service from the Veterans Administration.

Since Memorial Day 2013, with military operations winding down in Afghanistan, the Department of Defense announced the deaths of two military service members from Virginia. Army Sgt. Lyle D. Turnbull, 31, of Norfolk, died Oct. 18, 2013 in Kuwait, from a medical emergency. Capt. Brandon L. Cyr, 28, of Woodbridge, was one of four airmen who died April 27, 2013, near Kandahar Airfield, Afghanistan, in the crash of an MC-12 aircraft.

1st Lt. Robert J. Hess, 26, of the Kings Park West neighborhood of Fairfax, was killed by enemy fire on April 23, 2013, Afghanistan. Hess was known as "RJ" and graduated from Robinson Secondary School in 2005, where he played football, lacrosse and was the captain of the swim team. He was a U.S. Army Blackhawk helicopter pilot who deployed to Afghanistan on April 11, 2013. His family remembers his sense of humor and his natural leadership ability.

Lance Cpl. Niall W. Coti-Sears, 23, of Arlington, died June 23, 2012, while conducting combat operations in Helmand province, Afghanistan. Coti-Sears loved music, played the guitar, composed songs and entertained family and friends at holiday gatherings. Niall was very close to his grandfather, William Coti, who was a Marine. "He was always my protege," William Coti told the Arlington Connection. "He always wanted to be a Marine and he followed my example. It weighs heavily on me that this had to happen."

Chief Warrant Officer Five John C. Pratt, 51, of Springfield, died May 28, 2012 in Kabul, Afghanistan, when his helicopter crashed. Staff

Sgt. Jessica M. Wing, 42, of Alexandria, Va., died Aug. 27, 2012 in Kuwait City, Kuwait.

In February, 2012, Brig. Gen. Terence J. Hildner, 49, of Fairfax, was the highest ranking military officer to die in the war. Hildner died Feb. 3, 2012 in Kabul province, Afghanistan.

OTHER VIRGINIA DEATHS in Afghanistan in the year before Memorial Day 2013: Sgt. Aaron X. Wittman, 28, of Chester, Va., died Jan. 10, 2013 from small arms fire. Sgt. David J. Chambers, 25, of Hampton, Va., died Jan. 16, 2013 from a roadside bomb. Sgt. Robert J. Billings, 30, of Clarksville, Va., died Oct. 13, 2012 when enemy forces attacked with an improvised explosive device. Staff Sgt. Jonathan P. Schmidt, 28, of Petersburg, Va., died Sept. 1, 2012 from enemy small arms fire. 1st Lt. Stephen C. Prasnicki, 24, of Lexington, Va., died June 27, 2012, from a roadside bomb.

Here we remember the local men and women who have died since Sept. 11, 2001 in the wars that resulted from that day:

Aaron Carson Vaughn, 30, was one of 30 American service members and 22 Navy SEALs killed Aug. 6, 2011 when their Chinook helicopter was shot down in Afghanistan. Vaughn's family has ties to McLean and Burke. He is survived by his wife, Kimberly, and their two children.

Islip, 23 of Richmond, was killed Nov. 29, 2009, in Afghanistan.

Stephan L. Mace, 21 of Lovettsville, died Oct. 3, 2009 in Afghanistan.

Bill Cahir, 40 of Alexandria, died Aug. 13, 2009 of a gunshot wound while conducting combat operations in the Helmand Province of Afghanistan. After 9/11, Cahir decided to leave his career as a journalist and join the Marine Corps. His application to become a Marine was denied because of his age, but he lobbied members of Congress to get a special exemption.

Lance Cpl. Daniel Ryan Bennett, 23 of Clifton died Jan. 11, 2009, in Helmand province, Afghanistan.

2nd Lt. Sean P. O'Connor of Burke died Oct. 19, 2008 while stationed at Hunter Army Air Field, Savannah, Ga. O'Connor was an athlete in soccer, baseball and football who attended Fairfax County Public Schools and was a 1999 graduate of Bishop Denis J. O'Connell High School in Arlington.

Sharrett, was on hand as the Oakton Post Office on White Granite Drive was renamed to honor his son. But the senior Sharrett has battled to learn the truth about his son's death, that he was killed by his lieutenant in the confusion of a firefight. In, April, 2012, Sharrett Sr. obtained documents confirming some of the details of his son's death and a subsequent cover-up.

Students at Norwood School participate in Poetry Day, an annual event at the school. Poetry is a way to help children develop essential skills while having fun.

You're Never Too Young for Poetry

Local educators say exposing children and even babies to rhyme and rhythm can help develop reading and language skills.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Though Keith Ward's son is still a baby, the young child is already being exposed to exposed to not just silly stories, but poetry, and a variety of poetic forms at that.

"My son is only 6 months old, but soon I will be challenging him to find, for example, just the right word for the shade of green he is trying to describe — or imagine," said Ward, who is head of the English department at the Madeira School in McLean. "Maybe it's a word and a color we have yet to discover. He's working on it, though."

Local researchers and educators say that young children enjoy poetry. In fact, hearing rhythms, sounds and language patterns play important roles in a child's literacy development.

"Rhythm and rhyme are some key factors in early literacy, and even something as simple as reading and memorizing nursery rhymes with your children can have a huge impact on their later development as readers," said Holly Karapetkova, an associate professor of literature at Marymount University in Arlington. "One research study found that the 3-year-olds who knew eight nursery rhymes were the best readers in third grade. Hearing rhyme and rhythm in language can help children develop phonological awareness and predict word patterns and sounds."

"Without realizing it, students hear poetry and think deeply about sounds and structures in sentences. As a result, they become better readers, thinkers, and writers," said Blake Howard, an English teacher at The Potomac School in McLean.

Howard's students recently studied structural elements, "Such as stanza formations, meter and rhyme, and sound devices like consonance and assonance in poems by Shelley, Keats, Dickinson and Frost," he said. "They practiced scansion of evident rhythms in metrical poems. They learned how and why those devices enhance tone and thematic purpose in the selected poems. Next, they wrote original poems. Some students crafted sonnets with meter and rhyme. They admitted — some reluctantly — that the exercise of reading and writing poetry has made them appreciate the value of precise word choice and balanced syntax."

Ward also encourages the exploration of a variety of poetic forms. "Many students enjoy haiku, too, which are fun and approachable," he said. "They often reward the young poet with a profoundly beautiful result, which builds confidence and appreciation."

THE TYPE OF RHYME doesn't matter, however. Young students at Grace Episcopal School, in Alexandria, explore a different nursery rhyme each month as part of their Music and Performing Arts class.

"We repeat the verses out loud week after week to internalize the cadence, define any challenging words, pair motions with phrases, and culminate the whole affair by acting out each month's poem — complete with props and costumes," said Penelope Fleming, the school's librarian. This [emphasizes] the notion that language has rhythm and also expands students' vocabulary."

"A good poem really comes alive when it is read aloud," said Barbara Vaughan, a sixth grade teacher at Norwood School, in Potomac, Md. "There is such variety in form, length, and subject. Poetry can help readers pause and look at the world in a different way.”

Never Too Young for Poetry

In fact, poetry can be instrumental in a child’s development. “Rhyme is a great way to encourage word play in younger children,” said Vaughan. “With older students, it can be the basis of a more sophisticated structure for a poem. Many poems are wonderful sources of figurative language, creating rich images in the reader’s mind. They can be powerful examples that encourage children to use language in creative and unexpected ways.

Poetry that is written for children is often rich in rhymes. “Rhyming is a wonderful way to develop phonemic awareness,” said Tyffany Mandov, Lower School reading specialist at Norwood School. “Phonemic awareness, or the ability to recognize and manipulate distinct sounds, is the earliest step in learning to decode words.”

“The brain loves rhyme and rhythm and children will naturally want to read and reread poems with their parents and caregivers,” said Karapetkova. “The more young children learn to enjoy reading and language, the more likely they are to continue that love throughout their lives.”

READING POETRY TOGETHER, especially funny poems, and asking a child to guess the rhyming word is a way of reinforcing phonemic awareness and introducing letter patterns, said Mandov. “Playing rhyming games is another fun way for preschool and kindergarten children to reinforce these skills. While driving in the car, try a rhyme chain. Ask your child for a word that rhymes with cat. Perhaps your child will say ‘bat.’ Then you give a word that rhymes with bat and continue rhyming back and forth. See how many rhymes you can make.”

“A good way to encourage children to create their own poetry is to devise alternate lyrics to the tunes of familiar songs, an easy activity that can be incorporated into bath time, car trips or even a way to pass the time while waiting in line,” said Fleming.

Karapetkova played similar games with her children. “These games are a favorite way to pass our time waiting in line or sitting in the car,” said the Arlington mother of two. “We start with a word — simple words with lots of rhymes for younger children and more complex words for older children — and see how many rhyming words we can come up with. We might also start with a word on a billboard or a word from a product while we’re shopping at the supermarket.”

'You Are Not Your Mistakes'

BY JOAN BRADY

"S he was one of the most disagreeable people I had ever met," says paws4people Chairman and COO, Terry Henry, remembering his reaction to meeting Rebecca at Lakin Correctional Center, more than three years ago.

Seeing her now with her earnest smile and a well-behaved puppy happily nestled in her lap, it's hard to imagine the Rebecca he describes.

The old Rebecca had a nickname she chooses not to explain, because it reflects a part of the past that she doesn't want to talk about. And it was the old Rebecca who committed murder during a roadside altercation. That same bad attitude she had in her early 20s got her kicked out of the "paws4prisons" assistant dog training program in her 40s, three years ago.

Rebecca's childhood is devoid of memories of birthday parties, school concerts and family trips. The second of four children, what Rebecca recalls is abuse, as far back as she can remember, the only one of her siblings, she says, to suffer at the hand of her mother.

It's hard not to feel the pain with her as she recalls how she felt when she was fired from the paws4prisons program. "[I was] embarrassed, ashamed and hurt." And then she adds, "It was life changing though and now

Harper, a labradoodle trained at Lakin Correctional, with Julia, 14. "Wherever Julia needs extra supervision, companionship, responsibility or a bridge to human connection, Harper is there," says Julia's mother.

I'm thankful for it."

After 19 years in prison, she had a goal. She was determined to get back into the assistance dog training program. Rebecca is serving a life sentence, without the possibility of parole. She wanted her time to mean something. After a year of continuous re-application, Rebecca was conditionally reinstated.

She describes how it felt to come back, now two years ago. "I was still embarrassed. ... I felt like I was still being judged." But then she realized, not only was she not being judged, but "they were trying to help me to understand myself. ... They wanted to show me how to change."

This support was new for Rebecca, "It was the first time I felt like someone cared about me. It's not easy to feel deserving, when no one had ever cared before."

Learning to accept caring support was just one of her challenges. Cece Miller, Director of the paws4prisons program, really pushed her to grow; trainers have to pass a rigorous academic curriculum that includes tests and essays. They must become proficient public speakers. And they must be able to take direction and correction and work with others.

Two years after that reinstatement, Rebecca has earned her role as a leader in the program says Cece Miller, Director, paws4prisons. "I am very proud of her and I have loved watching her grow."

Rebecca relishes the opportunity to help others. "They have a story. They have prob-

Sharing Burden of PTSD

BY JOAN BRADY

Paws4people assistance dogs sprinkle the country, matched with children and veterans whose lives have been forever changed. More than ten of those dogs have benefited from Tiffany's loving training at Lakin Correctional Center in West Virginia.

While paws4people breeds dogs with specific qualities to help ensure more successful assistance dogs, the organization also rescues dogs domestically and even some from Afghanistan.

Tiffany says her biggest challenges have come working with dogs who have been traumatized. It's difficult, when they can't talk to you about what happened, "to reprogram a scared dog to letting him know that the world is ok and people are ok."

The work that Tiffany does is as healing for her as it is for the dogs she trains and the clients who are matched with her dogs.

She describes a challenging childhood in which her parents split up when she was five. When her mother remarried and started a second family, Tiffany moved in with her beloved grandmother and was raised jointly by her grandmother and her father.

Her voice cracks a little when she talks about feelings of isolation and not fitting in at school. By 13, she was acting out and turning to drugs and alcohol that she felt allowed her to fit in somewhere.

At 14, her grandmother and father agreed that a change of scenery might help. What followed was a wrenching move to South Carolina to live with her dad. But Tiffany didn't find it any easier to fit in in South Carolina, especially, she remembers with a wry smile, with her blue hair. From that point, she was passed back and forth between grandmother's home and father's home whenever she got into trouble.

"I felt like nobody really cared what happened to me... I just acted crazy and acted out and rebelled... I made bad choices and mistakes and ended up here."

Tiffany's life stopped when her fiancé died of a drug overdose. Suffering from PTSD herself, it's important to Tiffany that she is able to help the paws4people veteran clients with their PTSD by training dogs that will allow them to resume normal activities like going into a grocery store and getting gas.

Sabrina Rigney, ex-Air Force, was thankful to meet Tiffany and to learn more about NOEL, who will become her assistance dog.

"It was really great to meet someone who has had a chance to get to know and love NOEL. And she didn't mind me pestering her with questions about what NOEL likes, what she doesn't like." The nuggets shared by Tiffany will help Sabrina get through the long months of training both she and NOEL will go through before NOEL can join her permanently at home.

Tiffany gives her all to the dogs she trains, the clients who get matched with them, and her two half-brothers. She especially worries about the brothers, aged 17 and 19, with whom she speaks daily.

"I try to stay so close to them to keep them from turning out like [me] ... I ask them about their day. Every day. I try to relate to them ... because I just wish that I would have had somebody doing that for me."

Veteran Sabrina Rigney, right, was matched with NOEL, trained by Tiffany, serving 15 years to life at Lakin Correctional in West Virginia.

She thinks that if there had been a program with dogs for her when she was younger, one where she could get the caring support and job training she is now getting, "things would have been completely different."

And completely different would mean that Tiffany's fiancé was still alive and she, not serving a sentence of 15 years to life in prison, for providing the drugs that killed him.

Dogs' Unconditional Love

Lakin hoping to be matched with a psychiatric assistance dog. As a medic, she did one tour in Kuwait and then another in Baghdad. She described tending to a 19-year-old soldier as he begged her not to let him die. "You pretty much know that when they say that, they're gone. I'll never forget that," she tells her audience.

After her third tour, back in Northern Virginia, Sabrina was scheduled to be a living kidney donor for a close friend, when her orders to redeploy for the fourth time came in. She declined redeployment in order to move forward with the kidney donation and was later denied the opportunity to re-enlist, after eight years of service.

Her pain is palpable as she describes what it felt like to lose her military family.

Sabrina suffers from PTSD. While she is employed as a paramedic, she often finds it difficult to be around people. Some days she can't bring herself to leave her home. There are 22 suicides of veterans every day, she tells her audience. And three times, she was almost one of them.

When she began working with a therapist who included a therapy dog in their sessions, tiny pieces began to heal. Today she hopes that she will be matched with an assistance dog who will help her to get her life back.

Those listening to Sabrina on both sides of the aisle nod in sympathy and wipe away tears.

Two other veterans with PTSD tell their stories. All have military friends who have committed suicide. One says he lost more of his fellow soldiers to suicide after deployment than during combat.

By the end of the day, each veteran has been joyfully matched with a dog and trainers stand by proudly while pictures are taken. Later, there is time to socialize.

"It was really great to meet someone that has had a chance to get to know and love NOEL," says Sabrina of Tiffany, one of the trainers of the golden retriever Sabrina has been matched with today.

Many of the trainers have had little encouragement in their lives. And it's isolating to be in jail where inmates share stories of being abandoned by friends and family. But today, they bask in the applause for the difference they are making.

This is a three-legged stool of inmate trainers, dogs and clients – with the paws4people organization creating the right environment for each group to thrive as they travel their personal journeys of redemption and healing accompanied by the caring support of others and the unconditional love of dogs.

As trainers file out and the civilians behind them, there is a connection between those who sat on either side of the aisle that will remain forever unbroken.

lems. [I can] help to teach them to be better people."

For her, it's not as much about the dogs she trains, although that's very important. What touches her the most is "watching the other girls' faces... watching them grow and heal [because of the dogs they have trained.]"

Julia, 14, is on hand to show the trainers how well she is doing with Harper, a Labradoodle who was trained at Lakin. Julia has a genetic disorder which causes abnormal blood vessel malformations to grow in her brain. She has been through four surgeries to date, to stop brain hemorrhages.

"Harper fills the holes in Julia's life," Julia's mother says. "Wherever Julia needs extra supervision, companionship, responsibility or a bridge to human connection, Harper is there."

Julia would not speak to the audience, but happily took center stage to show off her assistance dog, Harper.

Rebecca, who met Julia before she was matched with Harper, describes how she felt when Julia began demonstrating. "At that moment, you are thinking, well just think if she didn't have that dog, she would probably still be closed up. And now... she is so outgoing, happy and confident. [she has] self respect and self esteem... [it] touches your heart."

And Rebecca herself has touched the heart of Terry Henry.

"I have never witnessed a more dramatic change in a person than the change I have witnessed in Rebecca. ... The world is now a much better place and Rebecca has only begun to have an effect."

With the caring motivation of paws4people, Rebecca has learned a critical lesson: "You are not your mistakes."

South County Bats Come Alive in Conference 7 Tournament

Stallions produce season-high 13 runs against Woodson.

PHOTOS BY CRAIG STERBUTZEL/THE CONNECTION

The South County baseball team produced its best offensive performance when it mattered most.

With its season on the line, the Stallions produced double-digit runs for the first time during the 2014 campaign and defeated Woodson 13-4 in the Conference 7 tournament quarterfinals on May 19 at South County High School. The Stallions pounded out 15 hits en route to securing a regional berth and advancing to the conference semifinals, where South County faced West Potomac on Wednesday, after The Connection's deadline.

"Everyone was seeing the ball well," South County senior designated hitter Dan Graham said. "That's something we haven't done all year is put up big numbers. It definitely felt good coming out with a big win. It builds confidence."

The Stallions took control in the third inning, when they scored five runs with two outs and built a 6-1 lead. Left fielder Kyle Foley and center fielder Jon Gentry each had an RBI single in the inning, and third baseman Taylor Platas had a two-run single.

Graham went 2-for-2 at the plate with a double and an RBI. Right fielder David Gemma finished 2-for-3, Foley went 2-for-4 with an RBI, and Platas was 1-for-2 with three RBIs.

"I think they stepped up and did a great job," South County head coach Robbie Smith said about the Stallions. "[They] did everything that I've asked."

While South County had a big night at the plate, junior right-hander Michael Cook gave the Stallions a solid start on the mound. Cook earned the win, allowing three hits and one unearned run over five innings. He walked one and struck out three.

"I thought he did great," Smith said. "We talked before the game about being confident and doing your job and not trying to overpower anybody and that's what he did. He stayed within himself and he's a great pitcher when he does it."

Sophomore right-hander Wyatt Hough suffered the loss for Woodson, allowing six runs — five earned — and six hits over 2 2/3 innings.

Senior third baseman Michael Szabo had a strong night at the plate for the Cavaliers, finishing 3-for-4 with a double and two RBIs.

Conference 7 has been a league of parity this season. South County, which won the 2013 Patriot District title, entered the tournament as the No. 3 seed despite a 6-6 record against conference foes. The Stallions' overall record improved to 11-10 with Monday's victory.

West Springfield entered the tournament as the No. 1 seed and earned a first-round bye. West Potomac is the No. 2 seed and defeated No. 7 T.C. Williams, 3-1. No. 5 Annandale defeated No. 4 Lake Braddock, the 2013 Northern Region champion, 3-2.

"It's anybody's tournament," Smith said. "It's been that way all year. There's not one dominant team. Everybody's played close games throughout the year, so it's anybody's ball game."

The winner of Wednesday's South County-West Potomac matchup would face the winner of West Springfield and Annandale in the conference championship game on Friday, May 23.

to coach [and] they're very resilient."

South County boys' soccer coach Erich Gunderman stood on the visitors' sideline at West Potomac High School on Tuesday night and put into perspective the Stallions' unlikely postseason journey.

"We lost to Hayfield 6-1," Gunderman said, "and now we're here."

When the Stallions suffered that lopsided loss to the Hawks on April 21, their record dipped to 1-6-1. South County concluded the regular season with a 2-9-2 record, including 1-4-1 against conference opponents, and entered the Conference 7 tournament as the No. 7 seed.

Thanks to some resiliency, however, the Stallions went from last place to "here," which is on their way to the conference championship game.

Junior forward Eusebius Dorr scored a first-half goal and No. 7 South County hung on to defeat No. 6 West Potomac 1-0 on May 20 in the conference semifinals. The Stallions will travel to face No. 1 T.C. Williams at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 22 for the conference title.

"Absolutely, the kids have come together [and are] starting to do the things that we knew they were capable of and they're working hard," Gunderman said. "It's a great bunch of kids that enjoy being around each other. They're fun

South County kept its season alive by upsetting No. 2 West Springfield 2-1 in overtime in the quarterfinals on May 16. Junior defender Connor Cavoto scored on a penalty kick in overtime to lift the Stallions over the Spartans and secure a regional berth for South County.

"They're a good team. Take nothing away from West Springfield," Gunderman said. "They had some players that were out. Hey, it's an opportunity and we took advantage of it."

The Stallions (4-9-2) weren't done, however, as they found a way to beat West Potomac and continue on to the conference final, where they will face T.C. Williams. The Titans advanced to the championship game with a 1-1 (4-3) penalty-kick shootout victory against No. 5 Annandale in the other semifinal match on Tuesday. T.C. Williams (12-2) defeated South County 2-0 during the teams' regular-season meeting on April 4.

"It's going to be fun," Gunderman said. "Playing over at their place in the hot sun, it will be a challenge for us. TC, hey, they're the No. 1 seed for a reason. They have a lot of talented athletes over there, [they are] well coached by Marty [Nickley] and we have our work cut out."

"We're the underdogs coming in, but maybe it'll be our time."

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY OF THE ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT AND DRAFT GENERAL CONFORMITY DETERMINATION FOR THE PROPOSED COVE POINT LIQUEFACTION PROJECT

The staff of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC or Commission) published a Notice of Availability of the environmental assessment (EA) and Draft General Conformity Determination (DGCD) for the Cove Point Liquefaction Project (Project) proposed by Dominion Cove Point LNG, LP (DCP). DCP requests authorization to construct and operate facilities to process and export domestically sourced liquefied natural gas (LNG) at the existing Cove Point LNG Terminal in Calvert County, Maryland. The Project would enable DCP to export approximately 5.75 million metric tons per annum of LNG via LNG marine carriers that would dock at the existing offshore pier.

The EA assesses the potential environmental effects of the construction and operation of the Project in accordance with the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. The DGCD was prepared pursuant to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's General Conformity Regulations (40 CFR Part 93, Subpart B), and addresses air emission impacts associated with the Project.

The EA and DGCD are available for review and comment. The FERC staff mailed copies of the EA with the DGCD to federal, state, and local government representatives and agencies; elected officials; environmental and public interest groups; Native American tribes; potentially affected landowners and other interested individuals and groups; libraries in the Project area; and parties to this proceeding. In addition, the EA with the DGCD has been placed in the public files of the FERC and is available for public viewing on the FERC's website at www.ferc.gov using the eLibrary link. A limited number of copies of the EA and DGCD are also available for distribution and public inspection at:

Federal Energy Regulatory Commission
Public Reference Room
888 First Street NE, Room 2A
Washington, DC 20426
(202) 502-8371

Any person wishing to comment on the EA or DGCD may do so. To ensure that your comments are properly recorded and considered prior to a Final General Conformity Determination and Commission decision on the proposal, it is important that the FERC receives your comments in Washington, DC on or before June 16, 2014.

For your convenience, there are four methods you can use to submit your comments to the Commission. In all instances please reference the Project docket number (CP13-113-000) with your submission. The Commission encourages electronic filing of comments and has expert staff available to assist you at (202) 502-8258 or eFiling@ferc.gov.

1. To submit brief, text-only comments, you can file your comments electronically by using the eComment feature on the Commission's website at www.ferc.gov, under the link to Documents and Filings.

2. To submit comments in a variety of formats by attaching them as a file, you can file your comments electronically by using the eFiling feature on the Commission's website at www.ferc.gov under the link to Documents and Filings. New eFiling users must first create an account by clicking on "eRegister." You must select the type of filing you are making. A comment on a particular project is considered a "Comment on a Filing;" or

3. You may file a paper copy of your comments at the following address:

Kimberly D. Bose, Secretary
Federal Energy Regulatory Commission
888 First Street NE, Room 1A
Washington, DC 20426

4. In lieu of sending written or electronic comments, the Commission invites you to attend a public comment meeting in the Project area. We encourage interested groups and individuals to attend and present oral comments on the EA and DGCD. The meeting is scheduled as follows:

Date and Time Location
Saturday, May 31, 2014
1:00 - 6:00 p.m.
Patuxent High School
