15th annual Labor Day Clifton Car Show raises money for local charities.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

The Labor Day Car show in Clifton had humble beginnings. Fifteen years ago, it was only founder and organizer Jim Chesley, and 24 other car enthusiasts. They raised $100 to donate to charity.

Each year they brought it back, it grew, and so did the donations. By the fourth year they cracked $1,000. The event has now raised over $245,000 — not including this year’s efforts.

“It’s a beautiful part of Fairfax County that opens its doors for charity,” said Supervisor Pat Herry (R-Springfield). “It’s a strong community here.”

The 2014 edition was the biggest yet, with 330 show cars, as well as a number of trucks and motorcycles. The two beneficiary charities are Life with Cancer (www.lifewithcancer.org) and the Northern Virginia Therapeutic Riding Program (www.nvtrp.org).

“I love [the show], I spend all year working on it,” said Chesley. “I’m 66. At my age, the best thing I can do is help people who need it. These two places, I see them, feel them. You see faces; it’s not like giving to something online.”

The show’s primary food sponsor was the Clifton Lions Club, whose members helped park cars at dawn and arrived the night before to begin cooking 30 pork butts for sandwiches. “It basically takes all 34 of our active members,” said club president Richard Kurz. “And 100 percent of the proceeds go to the charities.” Another major draw of the car show was the Richard King Annual Fireman’s Chili Challenge, which took place by the main performance stage, set back behind Clifton Road.

This year’s winner was Station 42, the county’s newest station in Wolf Trap. First prize includes a $1,000 donation made to the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) in the station’s name, as well as half a day off. And, naturally, bragging rights.

“There’s a lot of trash talk,” said Captain II Willie Bailey. “I heard one [firefighter] say ‘Yours is only good on hot dogs.’”

Second place went to the Fire & Rescue Training group, earning a $500 MDA donation in their name. The highly competitive event was judged by a panel of four blind-folded judges selected from motorcycle clubs in attendance. Their decision was unanimous. The day was capped off by a performance from rock ‘n’ roll legends The Fabulous Hubcaps. It was the group’s first time playing at the Clifton Car Show. Despite the heat, it’s fair to say they got the crowd’s motor running with covers of old favorites like “My Girl” and, appropriately, “Hit the Road, Jack.”

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

Although it has been many years since I was a teacher in the classroom, I still get a nervous stomach around Labor Day each year in anticipation of the beginning of a new school year. Teaching is the hardest work I have ever done in my life including being a legislator. I taught before the era of Standards of Learning (SOLs) and massive standardized testing. The challenge I and my colleagues had in our time was to recognize, nourish and expand individual students' knowledge, talents and abilities. Today's teachers have unfortunately been forced to teach to standardized tests that do not recognize individual student's knowledge, talents and abilities nor do the tests or the assessment process of teachers recognize their unique skills and talents.

I attended the annual meeting of the National Conference of State Legislators (NCSL) recently where Sir Kenneth Robinson, noted author and speaker, spoke about the need for revolution—not reform—in public education. (www.ncsl.org/research/education/q-and-a-sir-ken-robinson.aspx) He expressed concern that schools are organized on an industrial model—I have described it as a factory—where all the children are expected to come out alike at the end of schooling. At the same time we recognize in society the special talents individuals may possess, the orientation of many schools for too many years has been to ignore individual differences and to have identical expectations for all students. Schools cannot operate successfully as a factory of the past where every student becomes the same widget, but schools need to adopt a mass customization model where every student is recognized as a unique being.

As Sir Kenneth Robinson expressed it, "education is meant among other things to develop people's natural abilities, and I believe it really doesn't do that...To focus on them in the traditional school setting, very many brilliant people are weaned away from the very talents that excite them." For Robinson, schools should focus on awakening creativity and developing natural curiosity. "Much of the present education system in the United States fosters conformity, compliance and standardization rather than creative approaches to learning," he says.

Clearly the standards and testing programs have gone too far, and fortunately the push back from students, parents and teachers is finally being recognized by legislators. The General Assembly reduced the number of SOL tests required, and a commission established to look at the issue is likely to recommend even more reduction. Graduation requirements need to be made more flexible in order that students can more fully develop their individual talents. Sir Kenneth Robinson's curiosity and creativity need to be rewarded in the classroom.

The anticipation I feel with back-to-school time is shared by parents, students and teachers alike. The excitement needs to be recognition of the great things that happen in classrooms every day. The managers of that process—the teachers—deserve our gratitude, recognition and better pay. When you talk with a teacher, please join me in thanking them for their dedication and hard work.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Citizen Oversight Needed

To the Editor:

I rarely agree with Connection editorials, but the one deploring how our police have become militarized ("Accountability for Police in Northern Virginia," Connection, Aug. 20-26, 2014) is praiseworthy. I'm a retired Navy officer and have had no run-ins with any police.

Your editorial should have mentioned the mindless opposition of our Fairfax Co. Police Dept. (FCPD) to any sort of citizen oversight committee who might expose the facts behind the dirty laundry your editorial highlighted. A related problem is the number of accidents caused by speeding police cars.

The Fairfax Co. violent crime rate is happily quite low, yet we have a bloated PD. Recent media reports noted that the number of murders in our county is tiny, yet inexplicably two different sets of statistics exist.

Why does Fairfax Co. need police helicopters? What crimes have they solved?

Why do we need a FCPD marine patrol when most of the Potomac belongs to Maryland and armed, US Coast Guard boats patrol it from Station Washington? What terrorist attacks has our marine patrol intercepted?

FCPD have so little serious crime to address that it wastes time on revenue generators like the annual "50 Means 50" to intimidate drivers on Fairfax Co. Pkwy where the speed limit could be 55 if not 60. When our police devote massive resources to minor speeding infractions one wonders if reasonable budget cuts couldn't be made.

Why does GMU have police? Why not just private security guards? GMU police harassed a male, Moslem student in the library and shot at a car near one of the parking garages. Campus crime is so low that Mason cops write tickets on Braddock Rd. Can anyone recall one positive anti-crime accomplishment of the GMU police? Crossing a campus street in a crosswalk I was nearly hit by a fire chief's car on a Sunday morning. When I reported it at the huge new GMU police station, zero action was taken to contact the Fairfax City FD.

Uniforms set a tone. Some police forget that they are "peace officers" and should do all they can to diffuse a situation. When you come in dressed like a member of the military of a banana republic, don't you set a confrontational tone? Are brown shirts the best choice for our sheriffs? Do they and the state police wear drill sergeant-like hats to intimidate? Why do they need a hat? Contrast today's militarized police uniforms with those worn in 19th C. America. In that era, our police looked like today's Bobbies in the UK. Why can't today's police wear slacks and a polo shirt?

I suggest your reporters ask what things have been transferred to FCPD by DOD, DOJ and DHS. Don't assume that military gear comes solely from DOD. Then contrast with what has been transferred to Vienna, Fairfax City, Falls Church, Clifton, Herndon, and Fairfax Co. Sheriff.

Aside from intimidation and beligerence, there's "professional courtesy," a euphemism for police ignoring violations by police. I slugged into D.C. in August and rode in an ex-police car that still looked the part (antenna, search light, gray paint, etc.). The owner said he blew thru a Reston speed trap doing 85 and the FCPD just waved. Driving into Arlington at 6:30 a.m. on the HOV stretch of I-66E, a single D.C. cop in an unmarked, white SUV roared up onto my tail then flipped on his blue lights so he could pass. I've had D.C. cops in marked cars speed up on me on I-66W in Ballston with their blue lights on. Recall the incident with D.C. cops escorting Charlie Sheen from Dulles into D.C. in a high-speed motorcade? Various non-VA police with a single occupant drive with impunity in the I-395 HOV lanes during commute time. Do folks drive around with those black-blue-black "Thin Blue Line" stickers on their rear bumper indicating they are connected to the police so they won't be ticketed? Does the notion of the Thin Blue Line reinforce the militarization your editorial deplored by implying our police are all that separate us from the barbarians at the gate?

Wouldn't we all be better off with a county where our police apply the rule of law impartially and aim to defuse situations rather than aiming at citizens?

$12 Million Suit Against Fairfax County Police

2013 shooting victim's family seeks damages in wrongful death case.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

The year-long silence surrounding the police shooting of John Geer has been broken — but not by Fairfax County Police or the U.S. Department of Justice. John Geer was shot to death by Fairfax County Police on Aug. 29, 2013.

On Tuesday, Sept. 2, the Geer family's lawyer, Michael Lieberman, filed a civil suit in Fairfax Circuit Court seeking $12 million in damages from Fairfax County Police. In the suit, Lieberman is demanding a jury trial.

The 29-page complaint lists Maura Harrington, Geer's domestic partner of almost 24 years and mother of their two daughters, as the representative of the John Geer estate. According to the document, Geer had been speaking with his daughters before police arrived.

For the now-fatherless girls, the damages sought in the complaint are meant to compensate for "sorrow, mental anguish and solace which include society, companionship, comfort, guidance, kindly offices and advice" of Mr. Geer as well as the loss of his financial support.

The complaint specifically targets two Fairfax County police officers, and their supervising officer and Chief Edwin Roessler Jr. It contains eight counts of wrongful death, gross negligence and failure to return personal property taken from John Geer's home.

ON AUG. 29, 2013, a Fairfax County police officer shot Springfield resident John Geer in the doorway of his home. In the hour before officers entered Geer's home to check on him, he died.

Harrington had called police after Geer became angry over her saying she was going to end their relationship, throwing her clothes out into the street.

"They responded with a SWAT team, a helicopter, an armored vehicle and other resources that were just totally outrageous for a call such as this," said Nicholas Beltrante, executive director and founder of the Virginia Citizens Coalition for Police Accountability (CCPA).

Two officers confronted the unarmed Geer at his threshold, before one of them fired at Geer's chest at close range.

"HE WAS A SOCIABLE GUY," said Jerry Santos, a friend of Geer's. "Relaxed. Charismatic. He was just confident — never saw him upset, angry." The two shared an affection for fishing, going out for deep sea like tuna and mahi mahi together numerous times.

A longtime photojournalist and broadcast news editor, Santos said, "I've spent a lot of time, in a lot of situations where I have to deal with the cops.

This has absolutely warped my perspective when it comes to the way America does policing.

"There's nothing worse," he continued, "than when the state kills a citizen and there's no appropriate process of justice that takes place."

The police have not released the names of the officers, incident reports or any explanation of the events that led to Geer's death.

Fairfax County police detectives initially conducted a criminal investigation and handed their findings over to the state's attorney's office.

They otherwise kept the public out of the loop, in similar fashion to the 2006 shooting of optometrist Salvatore Culosi.

In that case — another where SWAT was involved — Culosi's parents settled with Fairfax County for $2 million after filing a wrongful death suit.

"They have all been stonewalling," said Beltrante. "It's just outrageous."

"I filed a heavy Freedom of Information Act," Santos said, of an attempt to obtain information on the Geer shooting from Fairfax County police, "and I got a letter basically telling me to go pound sand."

Beltrante said he has spoken with Geer's father Don — as well as several witnesses — numerous times to create a case file for the CCPA.

He founded the organization in 2010 after the police shooting of David Masters, with the main objective of getting the Board of Supervisors to appoint a citizens' complaints oversight board for the police.

In February 2014, about five months after the Geer shooting, Fairfax County Commonwealth Attorney Raymond Morrogh cited conflicts of interest and said he was handing the case to the U.S. attorney's office in Alexandria.

The attorney's office for the eastern district of Virginia has declined to comment.

NOW, MORE THAN A YEAR after the death of Geer, a 46-year-old father of two daughters, the unnamed officer involved is still on desk duty and a federal criminal investigation has had all local parties "in a holding pattern," according to Roessler.

"Based on the policeman's bill of rights," said Roessler, "I have to wait for the criminal investigation to be concluded before I can launch one. There needs to be a firewall there."

"It frustrates me, but that's the way our law is written," said Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield). "It's moving. We need to get it right. But a year is way too long. For the family, we need to reach resolution."

"The county has provided all the information that's required, been asked to provide," Herrity added. "It's now in the hands of the justice department."

That information — whatever the county knows — has yet to be made public.

For the next Board of Supervisors meeting on Sept. 9, Herrity said he's asked for an update "on what, if anything we know."

Roessler said he's continuing to communicate with both the officer and the Geer family. Their most recent contact was Aug. 28, he said. "I'm their police chief," he said. "I feel I have an obligation to make sure we dialogue. If we have any concerns we discuss it."

For citizens like Beltrante and Santos, that isn't enough from their police chief or their supervisors.

"Their silence is absolutely deafening," said Santos.

Back Pain?

Fairfax, VA – According to a recently released back pain relief report, most back pain sufferers have no idea how to eliminate their pain. Some use heat, others ice. From sleeping on the floor, to pillows underneath the legs, back pain relief techniques vary. But thanks to a free report, local back pain sufferers finally know exactly what to do. To get a copy of the free "Back Pain Relief Report", call toll-free, 1-888-259-0404. (Toll-free, 24 hour recorded message) or go to www.helpbackpains.com

Lake Braddock's Edwards Makes First Start at QB

Bruins defeat West Potomac in season opener.

BY JON ROETMAN

Kyle Edwards started 13 games at safety and outside linebacker during his sophomore year, but the experience failed to fully prepare him for Aug. 29.

After an offseason of hype and questions, Edwards made his first start at quarterback for the Lake Braddock football team. He replaced All-American Caleb Henderson, now a freshman with the University of North Carolina Tar Heels. Facing West Potomac on the Bruins' home field, Edwards assumed his role as field general for a Lake Braddock program that has won five consecutive district championships.

"I started 13 games last year but not at the position I'm playing right now," Edwards said following Friday's season opener. "Definitely, that first quarter, throwing the ball was kind of awkward. ... Playing 13 games on the defensive side of the ball, that's a whole different mindset. I was definitely prepared for the speed and the physicality, but I had to get used to throwing in front of 2,000 people."

Edwards struggled at times, but the junior did enough to lead Lake Braddock to a 30-6 victory over Conference 7 foe West Potomac. Edwards had a rough night in the passing game, completing just 8 of 19 attempts for 104 yards, but had multiple throws dropped by receivers. Edwards also lost a pair of fumbles.

On the positive side, No. 12 rushed 15 times for 109 yards and two touchdowns. His 32-yard scoring scamper early in the fourth quarter gave Lake Braddock a 24-0 lead.

"I thought the quarterback did well [for his] first time out," Lake Braddock head coach Jim Poythress said. "We dropped a lot of balls."

What has Poythress told Edwards about replacing Henderson?

"Be himself, that's it," the coach said. "Really, what else can you say? We've produced quite a few quarterbacks and we expect him just to maintain the status quo and get it moving. ... I thought he ran the ball well, he was effective on most of the passes. How many were dropped?"

After the game, Edwards discussed how he's handled the repetitive questions about replacing Henderson, who led Lake Braddock to a 21-3 record over two seasons and helped the Bruins reach the 2013 6A North region semifinals.

"As many times as I've been asked about it, it doesn't cross my mind when I'm out on the field," said Edwards, who is listed at 6 feet 2, 210 pounds. "We're trying to do something ourselves. I was part of a team last year, we were 12-1, and now we have to start from scratch. ... People ask me questions, but I'm not really thinking about it, honestly." Edwards won't have to carry the offensive load by himself. Against West Potomac, senior running back Dejoun Lee rushed 16 times for 147 yards and two touchdowns. His 60-yard touchdown run gave the Bruins a 30-0 advantage with 6:20 remaining in the fourth quarter.

"[West Potomac was] running after him all night," Poythress said. "... When he gets loose, he's a problem for people."

Lee has faith Edwards can perform at a high level.

"We can't live in the past," Lee said. "We had a great quarterback, we're going to develop a just-as-good quarterback, hopefully, for Kyle's sake. I think he can be that good, and I think he will be that good."

Senior receiver/defensive back AJ Alexander, listed at 6 feet 4, 225 pounds, is a Division I recruit. On Friday, he caught two passes for 54 yards and finished with eight tackles and a pass break-up.

What has it been like transitioning to a new quarterback?

"It's different. It's not better, it's not worse, it's just different," Alexander said. "You've got to work on your timing. [It was] two years ... with Caleb Henderson, getting the same kind of ball every time, as opposed to having someone come in and throw you a ball differently."

Lake Braddock's next challenge is a home game against Stone Bridge at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 5. Edwards figures to get more comfortable in his prominent position as the season progresses. Maybe he'll even have fewer questions to answer about replacing Caleb Henderson.

"Caleb Henderson is a heck of a player and his legacy deserves to be asked about and I hope he does well at UNC," Alexander said. "But it's on to a new chapter now for him and Lake Braddock football with Kyle Edwards as our new quarterback."

Taking On the 'Silver Tsunami'

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

The "Silver Tsunami" is coming, the steep increase in the 50-and-up part of the county population.

"It's here," said Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield). "We're already living in it."

Between 2005 and 2030, the number of individuals 50 and older is projected to grow by 40 percent in Fairfax County and the number 70 and older is projected to grow by 80 percent. Herrity attributes the changes to both the aging of Baby Boomers, and the general increase in life expectancy.

With those significant changes to community demographics already underway, the Board of Supervisors and Fairfax Area Commission on Aging initially drafted a plan back in 2007 to make sure the Silver Tsunami was a factor in county planning.

In 2013, Herrity and the commission decided the plan needed a major facelift. They spent the summer reaching out to communities around Fairfax County through public forums, including groups that speak Korean, Vietnamese, Spanish and Arabic. (According to the 2011 American Community Survey by the U.S. Census Bureau, 26.7 percent of residents in Fairfax County speak a language besides English at home.)

The idea was to facilitate dialog on how to make the county more aging-friendly and to consider cost-effective strategies to help people manage their housing and transportation needs and age in place.

"The need is clearly there for us to take action," said Herrity. "We went to the communities, heard their concerns. This is our attempt for an attainable, affordable, actionable plan to address what we heard."

Now Herrity and the commission are ready to present the new and improved 50+ Community Action Plan to the Board of Supervisors at their meeting on Sept. 9, and expect the board to approve the plan at the Sept. 23 meeting.

The plan in its entirety is available in PDF form through the county's website at www.fairfaxcounty.gov/olderadults. The plan addresses aging-friendly needs in six key areas: Transportation, Housing, Safe and Healthy Community, Community Engagement, Services for Herrity to present 50+ Plan to Board of Supervisors next week.

Older Adults and Family Caregivers, and Long-term Planning.

Within each of these categories are a range of community-driven initiatives designed to function with little or no government direction. In most cases, a local civic leader or "champion" would coordinate with a county staff member if necessary, but otherwise work independently, and require a lot of engagement from the community.

THE INITIATIVES RUN THE GAMUT

from simply encouraging people to volunteer for Meals on Wheels and medical appointment driving programs, to creating partnerships that would offer low cost or free case management and mental health treatment.

one facet includes supporting the Jewish Community Center of Northern Virginia's effort to provide a ride scheduler system for community-based organizations, partnering with multiple nonprofits. It won't exactly be Uber for the elderly, but federal grant money will help make their services much more widely available to get seniors to doctor's appointments, the grocery store, etc.

Home Sharing is an experimental initiative. Many older adults live in homes with extra bedrooms and want to remain there as long as possible. At the same time, many adults with limited income are looking for affordable rent.

The guide will provide advice on how to safely share a home. The idea is to match aging adults with Senior Living Time to Downsize?

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

When Beverly Quinn's fourth child, a daughter, got married, she decided it was time to downsize. The 69-year-old widow moved out of the 4,000-square-foot home in Vienna, Va., where she and her husband raised their children and into a 1,300-square-foot townhouse in North Potomac, Md., which meets her new needs perfectly.

"It's a big change," she said. "But I guess that is part of downsizing."

One of the most difficult parts of Quinn's transition was boxing up more than 30 years of memories, and deciding which items to move into her new home, which to give to her children and deciding which to donate or discard. It's a familiar conundrum for many seniors: organizing, decluttering and resisting the desire to take more than their new, smaller homes can accommodate.

"We see it all the time with our members," said Barbara Sullivan, executive director of Mount Vernon At Home, a nonprofit that helps senior citizens age in their own homes. "Our volunteers help with downsizing by reorganizing, cleaning out closets, and decluttering."

Downsizing is also emotional: "Moving from a 4,000-square-foot home into a retirement community or small 800- to 1,200-square-foot apartment can be difficult," said Daniel Sanders, president and CEO of Four Sales LTD, a professional estate sales, auctions and personal property appraisals company. "There is often a conflict between what Mom and Dad want them to take with them and what they can actually accommodate."

When tackling the downsizing process, Sanders suggests a few guidelines: "We strongly recommend using an emotional yard stick to determine whether to keep or not keep something," he said. "Look for things that have a memory associated with them. Like, 'Remember when Mom and Dad went to Rehoboth [Beach] and bought this Murano glass bird? It was one of the best days of their lives.'"

"A personal space is like an autobiography. People are complex so it is often difficult to find just one style that fits every impulse."

— Susan Hergenrather, Ph.D., professor of interior design, Marymount University

Those mementos go on a list of items to consider keeping, said Sanders. He recommends waiting 24 hours and then trying to cut the list in half. "Depending on the age of the parent, it's good to work in two to three hour shifts, take a break and do another two to three hour shift.

"We want to build mild frustration because you begin to make decisive decisions that are more precise," he said. "And you are less likely to rethink and over-think."

When cleaning a larger home in preparation for a downsize, Sanders suggests that families go through each room of the house in a systematic fashion, collecting family photos; family records like birth, death and marriage certificates; and financial records.

"You'd be surprised by how much you accumulate over the years," said Quinn. "The process is draining, both physically and mentally. The only bright spot was that I was going to be living closer to my children and grandchildren and I liked my new town house."

Once seniors have pared down their belongings and begun the moving process, some, like Quinn, begin to look forward to starting anew and designing their new homes to reflect their new styles and needs. However, it's not only important to arrange furniture and accessories tastefully, but in a way that takes issues like safety hazards and new lifestyle issues into consideration.

"The best advice is understanding that personal style is rooted in your past, places that you love, the present, what you love today, and the future," said Susan Hergenrather, Ph.D. associate professor of interior design at Marymount University in Arlington, Va. "A personal space is like an autobiography. People are complex, so it is often difficult to find just one style that fits every impulse."

Quilting Studio Adds to Dream Home

At 72, Wanda Rogers engages in an early American craft she first learned from her grandmother.

BY JOHN BYRD
THE CONNECTION

Quilting takes patience; ditto the steps entailed in setting up a quilting studio all of one's own.

Such are the reflections of Wanda Rogers, 72, who is now tapering off a 51-year professional career, and increasing precious hours spent in the pursuit of a mountain-state handicraft she learned from her mother and grandmother.

"We were all quilters where I grew up in West Virginia," Rogers recalls. "My mother, my grandmother, my aunt. The originality of a quilt's pattern is the larger artistic goal, but it takes a lot of concentrated quiet time to achieve it. Between raising children, moving frequently and then working, there just weren't a lot hours for quilting before now, much as I love it."

The particularly hectic phase of Rogers' young married life included setting up 18 different households in places where husband Ted, an Air Force pilot, was stationed. In the early 1980s, the family finally settled into a 2,533-square-foot ranch house on two acres near Springfield.

Three years ago, when Ted retired, the couple collaborated with remodeler David

Foster in transforming the ranch into a substantially enlarged and upgraded “dream house,” complete with a two-car garage topped by a future quilting studio.

“I knew my plans were getting closer to reality when we added drywall to the attic room above the garage,” Rogers says. “Once the space was shelled-in, I began to see how the studio would look and function.”

For the next three years, however, Rogers kept up her a daily work schedule with a healthcare consulting firm, a job that required frequent out-of-town meetings.

“We had installed temperature controls in the studio when we remodeled the house,” Rogers says. “Everything was well-insulated and bright, so I moved-in an easy chair and started thinking about what I wanted to do.”

Last year, Ted presented Wanda with a professional quality Bernina Sewing Machine, and the studio makeover got underway in earnest.

“We designed the suite specifically to support Wanda’s creative process,” says Foster, who has operated Foster Remodeling Solutions for more than 35 years. “We had to allocate enough floor space in the middle of the room so she could completely lay out a quilt in progress. Her process also requires a way to keep carefully catalogued materials within easy reach.”

AT 400 SQUARE FEET, with large windows on both the eastern- and western-facing walls, the studio is flooded with natural light during the day, an effect Wanda finds inspiring. The hickory wood flooring, apart from its lovely aesthetics, is entirely functional as a surface for cutting and assembling fabrics. Built-ins on either side of the assembly area have been custom-designed to hold specific fabrics and other essentials. Rogers says some of the fabrics date back to the 1930s and were passed down from her grandmother.

“All the women in the family were active in quilting bees” Rogers recalls. “One of my aunts’ designs was featured over the cover of a national magazine. We were also active in the National Quilting Symposium”.

But for all its delicacy of color and pattern, a quilt must also be functional as a bed cover. To assure the end-product is well-made, Rogers employs a Bernina “surger” which stitches finished overlock seams on the side of the quilt opposite from the display pattern. Since Rogers likes to regularly consider fabrics in a variety of colors, shades and textures, the studio offers some 64 cubic feet of additional storage space behind each wall.

Like most dedicated artisans, Rogers insisted on a self-sufficient studio that would allow her to stick with a developing vision without interruption. Hence, the kitchenette, the full bath with walk-in shower. Also, the Advantium oven; two-burner cooktop; the WiFi hook-up, the laptop.

“I don’t have to run back to the house for lunch, or a cup of tea,” Rogers says. “The amenities simply allow me to concentrate on the project at hand. That’s what it takes to do this kind of work well.”

While the full bath and refined finishwork will also allow the attic to double as a guest room when needed, Rogers says the studio is fundamentally designed for quilting. By inserting a specially designed cutting board over the sink, for instance, the L-shaped kitchenette surface converts to a work table. There’s even an unseen custom niche to hold the ironing board Rogers uses to flatten fabric.

“I see the studio as an integral part to my life ahead,” says Rogers, adding that that her 10-year old granddaughter now wants to learn quilting from her. “This kind of fulfillment isn’t just good luck; it’s something you have to plan.”

On a related note, David Foster observes that the studio is consistent with the kind broader-scale retirement home upgrades his firm has been seeing in the recent past. Seventy-five percent of his current clients are now over 55; as of last year, 44 percent had come back to him for a second project.

“We’re seeing a lot more interest in a phased development approach to retrofitting the family house for retirement,” Foster says. “To save money on future projects, a remodeling client sometimes asks us to insulate and dry-wall a part of the house they don’t plan to actually use for a while. This is a simple way of thinking ahead that adds value and usually doesn’t appreciably increase the existing remodeling budget. There’s a kind of generational search for more enduring housing solutions that’s now underway, and it’s evolving rapidly.”

Foster Remodeling Solutions periodically offers workshops on home remodeling topics. Call 703-550-1371 or visit www.fosterremodeling.com for more. John Byrd (byrdmatx@gmail.com) has been writing about home improvement topics for 30 years.

Pattern originality is one of quilting’s primary artistic goals, Rogers says, adding: “it’s a process that can’t be rushed.”

Situated above the family’s two car garage, the new quilting studio provides the privacy Wanda Rogers was seeking when she decided to resume the craft she learned from her grandmother more than 60 years ago.

Tips for Right-sizing the Next Phase

but elegant living space, Hergenrather says, “First, think about the work the space needs to do.”

WAITING TOO LONG before making the decision to downsize can complicate the process. “It’s always better for someone to downsize to a smaller home before they are in a crisis situation, [for example] suddenly, they can no longer climb a lot of stairs and must move to a single-level dwelling, but often a person will put off that decision until it’s nearly too late,” said Cele Garrett, Executive Director of At Home in Alexandria. “We have some members facing that decision right now and they’ll often admit they should have done it sooner.”

For many seniors, a living space needs to keep them safe. “You might need to add grab bars,” said Sullivan. “Also watch for trip hazards like throw rugs and clutter. Check for furniture that needs to be moved back to make the house more accessible for moving around. Relocate plates, cups and saucers so that they are in easy reach for seniors.”

Sullivan’s organization has volunteers who can help with enlarging bathrooms and widening doorways to accommodate wheelchairs and walkers.

When designing a new, smaller space,

Sanders recommends interior design magnetic floor planning kits, which help determine a person’s furniture needs and placement before they actually move. “The starting point for every good move is the floor plan at the receiving location,” he said.

When moving out of a familiar environment and into new surroundings, there are a few factors that can be overlooked when striving to maintain one’s quality of life.

“Personal style is rooted in your past, places that you love, the present, what you love today, and the future.”

— Susan Hergenrather, Ph.D., professor of interior design, Marymount University

If a senior chooses to live alone, there are several issues that should be monitored, advises Maura Barillaro, a registered nurse with Home Care Assistance in Bethesda, McLean and Fairfax. “Basically, there are so many needs that we see in the elderly, including boredom, frailty, loneliness, mobility issues, progressing illnesses,” she said.

“We would all like to maintain cognitive functioning throughout our lives and this is especially important late in life,” said Pam Greenwood, Ph.D., associate professor of psychology, George Mason University in Fairfax, Va. So when looking for a new place to live, make sure there are opportunities for physical exercise, mental stimulation and social stimulation.

“The strongest evidence concerns aerobic exercise – there are real benefits for mind and brain of moving physically daily,” said Greenwood.

“There is also growing evidence of the benefits of cognitive training for everyday functioning – perhaps the strongest evidence is perception training – visual and auditory perception. Several studies, including our own, have shown broad transfer of benefits from perception training to everyday functioning.”

Engaging over the New Yorker

Members enjoy intellectual stimulation, camaraderie over long term.

THE CONNECTION

There was a time when 83-year-old Bob Kanchuger spent most Friday mornings on a 30-mile bike ride with friends. The group of retirees would pedal toward a local destination – Bethesda, Md., to Old Town Alexandria, Va., was a favorite trek — where they would have coffee and spirited debates on everything from foreign policy to economic inequality before making the return trip.

“One of the things that kept people coming together is that we would have a defined day of riding and we would make sure we had an interesting place to stop and have coffee and discussions,” said Kanchuger, a resident of Potomac, Md., and an attorney who retired from the World Bank Group.

While outdoor exercise was a definite benefit, it wasn’t the best part for all of the group members. “The most enjoyable part was the discussion at our mid-way point,” said Dr. Elliot C. Wilner, a retired neurologist who lives in Bethesda.

Kanchuger wanted to preserve the stimulating discussions even after the bike rides were no longer possible. “It was likely that biking would come to an end because of our age and physical health,” said Kanchuger. “Several of us subscribed to the New Yorker and enjoyed discussing the articles, and that was an activity that would meet some of our social needs of retirement.”

So Kanchuger approached Wilner with the idea of forming a New Yorker magazine discussion group. They invited a few like-minded friends from the biking group. The men meet on the first Wednesday afternoon of each month for two hours of insightful conversation. Group members choose three to four stories from the magazine to read and analyze. Each article discussion is led by a group member who prepares ideas for analysis ahead of time and emails them to the group.

“I’ve gained and reinvigorated friendships,” said Wilner. “I enjoy the intellectually stimulating discussions with bright, educated, well-informed people.”

FOR THE SEPTEMBER MEETING, Wilner suggested two of James Surowiecki’s

columns. “Because they present both sides of an important issue,” Wilner said. “Corporate America has, over the past 40 years or so, evolved a business model that has been almost totally devoted to the personal enrichment of executives and shareholders, with very little concern for the welfare of workers or the nation; and yet there is another, more socially conscious business model that has been shown to be successful but is not widely emulated,” said Wilner.

The men are united, in part, by their affinity for mental rigor. “We all enjoy the intellectual stimulation, but the camaraderie is one of the best aspects,” said Peter Kimm of Potomac, a retired foreign aid official who was for 30-years Director of Housing and Urban Programs at the U.S. Agency for International Development. “We like each other. We’re a diverse group of people – retired doctors, lawyers, engineers ... with a wide range of interests. Everybody in the group is successful.”

Light snacks, coffee and spirited debates characterize most of the meetings.

“We don’t agree on everything,” said 80-year-old Victor Kimm, Peter Kimm’s brother, of McLean, Va., an engineer and retired senior executive for the Environmental Protection Agency. “We’ve seen people who’ve had very different views, but there is a mutual respect. We have different ways of looking at an issue and moving on. I think it has something to do with the age of the group members.”

Victor Kimm, who is also the executive director of SHARE, a non-profit organization in McLean that helps meet the emergency needs of those with limited financial resources, says the men have explored articles ranging from the growing inequity of income in the United States to stories about the group of Chilean miners trapped underground for more than two months.

“There is a certain rigor or discipline in having a monthly meeting where you read and prepare in advance,” he said. “You have to stick with it.”

The bond between the men, however, extends beyond erudition.

“We all greatly value the friendships of this group,” said Ian MacDonald, a resident of Chevy Chase, Md., a former journalist who retired from the International Monetary Fund and who grew up in Great Britain and graduated from the University of Oxford. “And we’ve been there for each other during difficult times.”

unused space in their home with tenants looking for affordable housing.

"We think it's an idea where the time has come and we're pursuing it," said Jim Lindsay, vice president of Adult Companion Care and home sharing champion. Though the concept of matching grad students and grandparents isn't without its wrinkles.

"Who's going to pay for a background check?" said Lindsay. "Who's going to provide care? If she falls down, a college grad student isn't going to be there."

That's where home care groups like Adult Companion Care come in. They're qualified to and regularly perform background checks, and rent money could offset the cost of home care medical service.

"This gives them a mechanism to age in place and keep up with the burdens," said Herrity.

According to the same 2011 Census Bureau study, 76.8 percent of Fairfax County residents 80 or older live in single family homes.

The Commission on ag will regularly — either quarterly or annually — fill out a scorecard of sorts for each of the initiatives and report back to the board.

To help with evaluating the effectiveness of the plan, Herrity enlisted the help of Thomas Prohaska, Dean of the George Mason University College of Health and Human Services. A team of gerontologists from Prohaska's department will help gather and analyze data from the various initiatives.

Prohaska said the county has some work to do. "They're definitely not dead last," said Prohaska, referring to Fairfax County's aging-friendliness compared with the rest of the country, "but definitely not up in front. This is a serious effort they're doing here. If it all comes into place, it will definitely be an improvement in the quality of life."

But Fairfax county isn't far behind with its 50+ plan. "They've got quite a menu of things going on here," Prohaska said. "It will be fascinating. This isn't a one-time thing; this is a sea change."

After The Fall

BY ANN EMMONS
PETRI

It started off like any other February day with our usual trip to the fitness club for morning exercises. What made this day different was that Bill, my 93-year-old husband, slipped and fell on some ice on our driveway, striking the back of his head. He said it didn't hurt.

But the next day he complained of feeling tired and each day after that he felt a little worse. Still, we didn't see any connection to his fall. By the fourth day, however, he was so weak he couldn't even get out of his chair for lunch. It finally dawned on me that something was seriously wrong and I needed to call 911.

It turned out I was four days too late. All this time, because he was on a blood thinner for his high blood pressure, he had been bleeding in his brain. The neurologist at the hospital where the ambulance took him later told me that it was one of the worst cerebral hemorrhages she had ever seen.

IN MY OWN WORDS

The symptoms are similar to those of a stroke and by then he was unable to talk coherently, remember things, or walk. This was a man, who, before he retired, had been a successful United States Government chemical and aeronautical engineer, someone who had his own chem lab in the basement next to a beautiful woodworking shop furnished with tools handed down from his craftsman father. A man who could fix anything.

After the first week in Intensive Care he was moved to a floor which specialized in stroke victims where he spent the next month. Little by little he began to show improvement. His next stop after six weeks in the regular hospital would be a rehabilitation facility where he could receive the daily intensive speech, physical, and occupational therapy he needed. There he would have to relearn the simplest tasks like how to speak, how to feed himself, how to get out of a bed and into a wheelchair, and how to care for himself in general.

A rehab hospital very close to our home in McLean, Virginia was found which had a bed available and he was transferred there by ambulance. Here, he was kept busy most of the day with one kind of therapy or another. After several weeks he graduated from using a wheelchair to a walker and when he wasn't occupied with therapy we practiced using his walker in the halls and some days we even had time to take in a movie in the rehab center's small theater! There was also a Happy Hour on Tuesdays that I especially liked with wine, snacks, and lively conversation!

As I look back during all this time, probably the most positive factor in his long slow recovery has been his attitude. He never stops trying, no matter how discouraging his progress must seem. His attitude is simply amazing. He is always upbeat.

Another positive aspect is that we are the parents of three doctors (and one lawyer) which kind of made us celebrities in a medical setting. One or the other of them was often visiting and conferring with the rehab staff on their father's care even though their specialties (rheumatology, infectious diseases, and oncology) were far afield.

After several months, it was decided that Bill could continue his recovery at home. And so, on May 8, 2014, exactly three months after the initial injury he returned home.

While he was in the rehabilitation hospital I had taken the opportunity to prepare our two story home for his return with grab bars in the bathrooms and shower, and a stair lift so that he could sleep in his own bed.

So, now, here we are, six months later, settled in our own house, with Bill dependent on me for almost everything, including something I was not expecting: making all the decisions by myself. I won't say it's been easy. It hasn't. I have to say, though, that after 61 years of being the dependent one, I am getting pretty good at being the boss!
