Arlington Public Safety officers and staff stand at attention as a moment of silence is called at 9:37 a.m.

Remembering 9/11

More than 100 people gathered on the edges of the plaza outside the Arlington County building on Thursday morning, Sept. 11, to remember the events of Sept. 11, 2001. County officials and staff along with numerous public safety officers filled the plaza for the 9:30 a.m. ceremony. The Arlington County Public Safety honor guard presented the colors. Liza Hadskins sang the National Anthem. Firefighter Jerry Hanson, Sheriff Sgt. Richard Laureano and Police Lt. Kip Malcolm placed a wreath at the base of the flagpoles in the plaza and lowered the three flags to half-mast in respect for all those who died.

The Arlington Public Safety honor guard presents the colors at the annual 9/11 Remembrance Ceremony on the plaza at 2100 Clarendon Blvd.

Neighbors and office workers snap photos of the ceremonial guard and wreath at the foot of the flagpoles at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Thomas Jefferson Working Group Members Named

Arlington County Board appoints group of 20 group to make recommendation on site.

The Arlington County Board has appointed 20 members to a newly created Thomas Jefferson Working Group, which is expected to make a recommendation on a proposal to build a new elementary school on a county-owned public park.

Education leaders say a new school is needed because of rising enrollment, and that contracting it on land that is currently part of the Thomas Jefferson Park would provide the most amount of seats for the least amount of money.

But neighborhood residents in Arlington Heights are concerned about the lack of open space, and they are concerned about the county giving up open space it already owns.

The conflict created the need for a working group, which has been charged with looking at all the options and coming up with a series of recommendations. The group includes representatives from various advisory boards and commissions, nearby civic associations, Arlington Public Schools and civic representatives.

They will begin meeting this month to complete the Thomas Jefferson Site Evaluation process and make a recommendation to the County Board on whether or not an elementary school should be built there.

Former planning commissioner and civic leader Carrie Johnson has been appointed chairwoman of the group. County Board Vice Chair Mary Hynes will serve as the board's liaison.

THE CONNECTION

The first annual DogFest Walk 'N Roll in the area kicked off early Saturday morning, Sept. 13, as close to 30 teams queued up on Pentagon Row to support Canine Companions for Independence.

CCI is a non-profit organization dedicated to the raising and training of highly specialized service dogs for people with disabilities. The average cost of raising and placing one of these dogs is approximately $50,000, according to Debra Mackenzie, development director at CCI's Northeast Region.

The event, organized by Laura Clark of CCI's Capital Chapter, featured a festival after the walk that included vendors and activities for participants.

Demonstrations by graduate teams exhibited the different tasks service dogs are trained to perform. Contests enabled attendees to show off their dogs. Live music was performed by acoustic guitarist and singer Alicia Rae.

Awards were given to teams and individuals with the highest funds raised. "We had some major fundraising achievements individually," said Clark. "The overall team raised over $6,300 through their team, which is the Middleburg CCI Labradorables." The top individual fundraiser was Caroline Elgin, who was also a member of the Middleburg CCI Labradorables team, raising over $3,200.

Currently, the D.C. DogFest has received close to $45,000 in donations. According to Clark, there are still two weeks left to donate to help the event reach its monetary goal of $60,500.

The Dairy Godmother, based in Alexandria, provided popsicles for both dogs and people.

Participants prepare to round the final turn during DogFest's opening walk.

Service dog Cosmo and handler Kathleen Tevnan opened the event with a speech highlighting the ways service dogs change their handlers' lives.

Stephanie Cibello and her service dog Kirk demonstrated Kirk's skills, such as retrieving dropped objects and carrying shopping bags.

Service dog-in-training Romer III relaxes after the walk.

A Different Path to a 4-year Degree

NOVA's Guaranteed Admissions Program gives students opportunities to attend their dream schools.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Noor Naveed immigrated to the United States from Pakistan with her family shortly after the 9/11 attacks. The family settled in Northern Virginia and, years later, Naveed graduated from Hayfield Secondary School in Alexandria. She dreams of becoming the first person in her family to graduate from college.

"My mother was forced to drop out of junior high and at 32 got her GED. I just knew that there wasn't anyone in my immediate family who had graduated from college and was determined to be the first person," said Naveed. "I knew I wanted to [go to] George Mason because I didn't want loans and I knew I could pay for George Mason out of pocket."

Naveed used Northern Virginia Community College's Guaranteed Admissions Program to complete her associate of arts degree and is now finishing a bachelor's degree in criminology, law and society at George Mason University in Fairfax.

"Counselors were great at telling me what classes I should take so they would transfer," she said. "Almost all of my classes transferred."

NOVA's admissions agreements guarantee current and future NOVA students who earn associate degrees admission to more than 40 four-year colleges and universities.

Students have to meet certain academic requirements, such as earning a minimum grade point average, to be accepted into their chosen four-year colleges.

"It's very beneficial to the students because before these agreements, there weren't any parameters as to what it takes to be admitted to universities," said Julia Brown, coordinator for transfer policy at Northern Virginia Community College. "As long as you have a certain GPA, the guaranteed admission agreement takes all of the guess work out of whether you will qualify. It is a huge relief. ... Students don't want to waste money or time by taking a class that isn't needed."

NOVA officials say that popular majors include engineering, nursing, computer science and general studies.

For example, a student can earn an associates degree in engineering from NOVA then transfer to Virginia Tech's College of Engineering or the University of Virginia's School of Engineering and Applied Science. A student who might be unsure of the major he plans to pursue can earn a general studies degree and then transfer to George Mason University.

George Mason University, University of Virginia and Virginia Tech are the top transfer schools for NOVA graduates.

"The [Guaranteed Admission Agreement] program allowed me to complete my associate's degree close to home.

The GAA gave me the opportunity to transfer to my dream school, James Madison University, with ease and with no debt," said Amy Zuaso, a first-year advising specialist at NOVA. "At NOVA, I met with a JMU transfer representative that informed me about a full ride scholarship program, The Centennial Scholars Program, that I applied for and was awarded. Starting at NOVA first and using the GAA helped me graduate from a four-year school and to be the first person in my family to graduate from college."

Zuaso is now completing an online master's degree in counseling at Liberty University in

‘D.C. Daniel, Washington Superhero’

Sue Pyatt, author of “Call Me Madame President” and owner of Kinder Haus Toys, spins a tale that’s just right for kids 4-9 years in “D.C. Daniel, Washington Superhero.” Her hero, 8-year-old Daniel, witnesses a candy-store robbery on Capitol Hill committed by a very nervous bad guy who slips and drops his bag of stolen money and candy. Quick-witted Daniel retrieves it from the side-walk and leads the robber on a fun-filled chase through many Washington landmarks and on to the exciting climax. This bumbling thief is a bad guy kids will love to hate. Dana Saxerud, who also illustrated Pyatt’s second book, “President Amanda’s Whistle-stop Trip,” adds charm to the story with her illustrations. Saxerud is also a long-time resident of Arlington. For many years, she has worked as an illustrator, muralist, and painter in the Washington, D.C. area.

Book events will take place Saturday, Sept. 20 and 27 from 1-3 p.m. at Kinder Haus Toys, 1220 N. Fillmore St. Pyatt and Saxerud will sign. Daniel will read. Call 703-527-5929.

The Beacon Welcomes First Tenants

Donohoe Construction turned over the first phase of occupancy at the new Beacon at Clarendon West after receiving the Certificate of Occupancy from Arlington County in August, marking a project milestone. Developed by ZOM and USAA Real Estate, this 187-unit apartment building project consists of a six-story and 10-story tower built over a common three-story underground garage just across from the Clarendon Metro Station. Amenity spaces include a rooftop pool and 4-Season Sky Lounge, a community room with a panoramic terrace, a ninth floor club room with green-roof access, and a resident-exclusive fitness center. The Beacon at Clarendon West was designed by Esocoff & Associates and constructed by Donohoe Construction Company to achieve LEED Silver certification.

Yorktown Field Hockey Falls to Herndon

The Yorktown field hockey team ran into a buzzsaw on Sept. 11, facing the undefeated Herndon Hornets. The Patriots were seemingly under constant attack, defending against 31 penalty corners. While Yorktown battled, Herndon still managed to score four times and win 4-0.

Herndon head coach Mary Miller wasn't particularly pleased with the Hornets' performance, due in part to Yorktown's defense.

SPORTS BRIEFS "Sometimes it's hard to get the ball in the cage," Miller said. "... I thought their goalie played really well and I thought their defense played well."

Yorktown senior goalkeeper Ally Cedrone-Ricks made several saves, keeping the Patriots in the game.

The loss dropped Yorktown's record to 1-7. The Patriots have struggled offensively this season, scoring in just two games. One of those was a 7-0 victory against Osbourn at the Herndon tournament on Sept. 6. During that game, sophomore forward Sydney McMahon, senior forward Lexi Peck and freshman forward Rebecca Joskow each scored twice for Yorktown. Freshman forward Katie Calvo also scored.

Junior forward Kathleen Herrlein scored during a 2-1 loss to West Potomac on Sept. 5, and Joskow had an assist.

Yorktown will host Falls Church at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 17.

OBITUARY

Brendan Bernard Francis McKay, 30

Brendan Bernard Francis McKay, 30, passed away
Monday, September 8, 2014, in Rome, Italy, following a tragic accident.

An AmeriCorps volunteer, artist, multi-instrumentalist, snowboarder, world traveler, counselor, historian, Ph. D.
candidate, and Seanchai in the Irish storytelling tradition, Brendan was born June 30, 1984 in Summit, New Jersey, the second of Bernard and Mary McKay's four children. He grew up in Alexandria and McLean, Virginia, where he graduated from McLean High School in 2002.

Brendan began undergraduate studies at Virginia Commonwealth University, later attended Western Connecticut State University and John Cabot University in Rome, and in 2012 graduated magna cum laude from Rhode Island College with a Bachelor's in History. Most recently, Brendan completed his Master's degree in International Relations at St. John's University in Rome, Italy in June 2014.

Throughout his teens and early twenties, Brendan struggled with addiction issues. With the support of loved ones, he participated in therapeutic and rehabilitation programs in Utah, New York, Pennsylvania, Florida, and Kansas. In 2008, Brendan emerged from this period secure in his recovery, and with a renewed passion for education, adventure, and experience which would come to define the rest of his life.

From 2008-2010, Brendan served with AmeriCorps as a volunteer with Big Brothers, Big Sisters in Worland, Wyoming. Within a matter of months he was promoted to Vice President of Development, going on to raise hundreds of thousands of dollars on behalf of at-risk youth, before leaving to accept a position as an AmeriCorps Program Manager in Rhode Island. Before leaving Wyoming he was urged by locals in Worland to stay and run for mayor. He was flattered and seriously considered it.

Brendan is remembered fondly by his loved ones in the U.S. and around the world for his legendary sense of humor, a classic Irish storyteller vividly sharing his many adventures. He ran with the bulls in Pamplona, Spain. He rode a hot air balloon through the Atlas Mountains of Morocco. He skied across the Swiss-French border in the Alps, not entirely on purpose. Completing an Asian journey that included Malaysia, Cambodia and Nepal, he returned to Rome over the Himalayas and Mt. Everest. He criss-crossed the United States by car, camped in the badlands of North Dakota, and lived on a mountain in Southern California. During academic travel to North Korea he became one of only a small number of Americans to have seen the demilitarized zone from the north side.

Brendan was also intellectually brilliant. He was an enthusiastic reader, with particular interest in philosophy, history, physics, and comparative religion. His collection of unusual tattoos included the Fibonacci sequence on his arm. His creativity and humor led to unique inventions; on one occasion, Brendan created what he called a "Scrabbanjelo," a playable banjo which he constructed from the wooden box of a Scrabble set — a game at which he was renowned as unbeatable.

At the time of his passing, he was looking forward to his doctoral work at King's College in London. His studies were to focus on the little-told story of the town of Fiumi on the Italy-Croatia border, which formed its own independent state in World War I in defiance of the warring countries around it.

Brendan's 6' 6" physical presence was the outer manifestation of an unusually humble, sensitive, self-deprecating person, whose generosity, kindness, and compassion for friends and family alike will never be forgotten. His beloved dog, Anastasia, is the physical embodiment of that kindness. Brendan had encountered a group of drug dealers about to shoot a young puppy for which they had no use. He persuaded them to let him adopt her in exchange for what little money he had in his pocket, a meager five dollars. For more than a decade, Anastasia has been a cherished member of the McKay family, displaying a level of emotional intelligence that is extraordinary to find in an animal.

Brendan was not immune to accidents, and indeed had scars going back to toddlerhood. But he always stood up, brushed himself off, and went at life again, charging boldly at every experience the world could offer. His enthusiasm for adventure inspired all who knew him.

Brendan is survived by his parents, Bernard and Mary, his two brothers, Patrick and Conor, his sister, Rosemary, sister-in-law Nora, and his beloved, Camilla Valeriano. He will be sorely missed.

A memorial service and Mass of Christian Burial will be held at Our Lady of Mercy Chapel at Salve Regina University in Newport, Rhode Island, on Saturday September 20, 2014, at 9:00A.M. A reception will follow at Ochre Court on the University campus. All are welcome.
The family suggests, as an alternative to flowers, that contributions could be made to the Brendan McKay
Memorial Scholarship Fund, Salve Regina University, Ochre Point, Newport, Rhode Island 02840 USA.
