Equipment Replacement and ADA-Compliance

Parks and Recreation and Historic Resources offer CIP proposals.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

With an eye on the upcoming City of Fairfax budget decisions, various department heads recently presented their FY 2016 Capital Improvement Program (CIP) wish lists to a joint work session of the City Council and Planning Commission.

First up to bat was Parks and Recreation Director Mike McCarty. His highest priorities are an ADA accessibility audit and plan, a Green Acres feasibility study and a Van Dyck Park stormwater and master plan.

"ADA accessibility to the City parks and their amenities is a critical need," he said. "Green Acres was built in 1960-61 and has accessibility and use issues, and it needs more than quick fixes, going forward. And there's lots of erosion in the northwest corner of Van Dyck Park, near the tennis courts, and it also has access and parking issues."

Brian Knapp, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, said these three studies "really need to be done, and we don't have the people to do it in-house. We're one of the only jurisdictions in Northern Virginia that doesn't have ADA-compliant parks, and the Department of Justice is going to get on us about this."

AS FOR GREEN ACRES, he said, "We do all the other things we can't do at the Sherwood Center at Green Acres. And Van Dyck State Park will close in a year or two without the study and fixes."

McCarty also said maintenance funds are needed to replace the playground equipment at Kutner and Ranger Road parks and the bridge at Providence Park. The bleachers at Pat Rodio and Kutner parks must be replaced, as well as the fences at Pat Rodio and Thaiss parks and Providence Elementary's ballfield.

Regarding the bleachers, he said they "don't meet safety standards; this would bring them up to speed." He's also requesting $30,000 for a portable band shell for Old Town Square "so performances could be done at the park and sound could be projected. And since it's portable, it could easily be used at other parks, too."

After hearing the presentation – which also included trail and restroom projects – Councilwoman Ellie Schmidt asked Knapp and McCarty to make a list of "the most important work to be done, from a safety standpoint." And Councilman David Meyer said he believes "there's support out there to invest in our public facilities."

Councilwoman Janice Miller asked several questions, including: "How many playgrounds need equipment? How does the equipment differ from park to park? Where are the current pavilions and where are future ones planned? How many restrooms do we need, how much will they cost and how will they be maintained?"

"We're looking at spending $220,000 over the next five years to plan the Green Acres and Westmore sites, and we might need Green Acres someday for an elementary school," she said. "And where could we put another recreation site in the city? Can a community group look at this first, and then, a consultant?"

Mayor Scott Silverthorne suggested McCarty and Knapp take all these questions under advisement. However, he added, "Green Acres is long overdue and we should do something about it."

Historic Resources Director Chris Martin also made his pitch for funds, and three of his projects involved Historic Blenheim, a 12-acre site including a brick farmhouse built just before the Civil War. He asked for $65,000 to reconstruct the building's steps and porches so an ADA ramp may be installed. "It'll make the house ADA-accessible," he said. "The cost includes design fees."

Also on his CIP request was $75,000 to stabilize and drain the facility's parking lot. "Due to heavy usage from the museum renovation and building rental, we're re-engineering the lower Blenheim parking lot," said Martin. "And it's basically unplowable in snow; the parking lot eventually turns to mud."

He further asked for $85,000 for the Krasnow Barn reassembly and site-preparation. "The barn was disassembled and is being stored in a deteriorating trailer, and we'd like to get it back up," explained Martin. "It would provide a new attraction for the Blenheim site and a place where groups could hold meetings."

IN ADDITION, Martin's requesting to replace the museum van in the Public Works fleet. "It's a 1996 van that didn't pass inspection and is too large and unsafe to use, anymore," he said. "So we'd like to get a minivan and have the museum's name on the side and to also use for tours of the City."

Councilwoman Nancy Loftus asked if a City vehicle could be repurposed for the replacement van, and City Manager Bob Sisson said they'd check. Regarding Blenheim's parking lot, Loftus asked, "Are we increasing the amount of parking spaces, as well, or just improving the lot?"

Martin then replied that "the overflow parking lot would add 25 new spaces to the 36 existing spaces."

Ending Veterans Homelessness in 2015?

Chairman Bulova, Fairfax County take on national Mayors Challenge.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

The transition from serving in the armed forces to civilian life is often not simple.

While in Fairfax County there are more than 12,000 veteran-owned businesses, indicating a significant measure of success, for others the path is far more difficult.

For a small number of veterans, unemployment, alcoholism, drug abuse or mental or physical disability causes them wind up at rock-bottom: homeless.

In Fairfax County's 2014 "Point-in-Time" count of homeless individuals living in the Fairfax-Falls Church community, veterans made up 8 percent of the total number of 1,225 people. The next Point-in-Time snapshot study will take place on Wednesday, Jan. 28, in coordination with the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments.

Dean Klein, director of the county's Office to Prevent and End Homelessness, said it's difficult to maintain an exact head count because of the transient nature of the group and, he believes, many veterans who are homeless choose to not identify themselves as veterans. He estimates that there are about 150 homeless veterans in Fairfax County.

That population is the focus of First Lady Michelle Obama's Mayors Challenge to End Veterans Homelessness in 2015. Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova announced recently that Fairfax County is joining the over 200 mayors and elected officials nationwide to take on that challenge.

Winterhaven

Each January, hundreds of homeless veterans from around Virginia, Maryland and Washington, DC are brought to the Washington D.C. VA Medical Center for a meal, haircuts and shaves, physical exams, education services and coats. This year's Winterhaven event will take place Jan. 24.

"COULD WE HAVE ALL VETERANS IN A HOUSE by end of 2015? Yes," said Mary Keeser, a governance board member for the Office to Prevent and End Homelessness, and founder of volunteer organization America's Adopt A Soldier.

"Would that prevent them from becoming homeless again? No. We didn't solve the root problems. They need to go back and get training, jobs. Can we work on our preventative measures? Absolutely."

For any case of homelessness, there's no magic bullet.

"That's sort of the end of the spiral," said Bulova, "when someone has had difficulty during their daily life, trying to cope with things that they've experienced when they were serving their country. It may be marital differences, drinking, drug abuse, financial difficulties. And trying to look at some of those root causes, where this all began, is important to ending homelessness."

For "Jones," a mid-30s veteran of the war in Iraq, the downward spiral was a result of his Post-traumatic stress disorder. "He could not sleep, could not live with what he saw," said Keeser.

Jones ended up walking out on his wife and children, his life, to live in the woods south of Fort Belvoir. One day he was approached by a community member who also happened to be a veteran. That person earned Jones' trust and convinced him to seek help from a Veterans Affairs caseworker.

Over the next six months, Jones received counseling services through the VA and a HUD-Veterans Affairs Supportive Housing (HUD-VASH) rental voucher helped secure him an apartment. He found a job through Adopt A Soldier's placement network and is working.

Veterans Treatment Docket

Another collaborative initiative aimed at both preventing and alleviating veterans homelessness is the Veterans Treatment Docket. This concept is a way to defer incarceration, relying instead on regular court appearances, treatment, being assigned a probation officer and working with a veteran mentor.

The judge on the docket will be Penney S. Azcarate, Chief Judge, Fairfax County General District Court, while the rest of the team will include: the Commonwealth attorney, Sheriff Stacey Kincaid, Chief of Police Edwin Roessler, the Department of Veterans Affairs, pretrial services, the Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board, the George Mason University school of law and a mentor coordinator.

"It's a long road to recovery," said Keeser, "but he's a real success story."

THE TOTAL HOMELESS POPULATION, according to the Point-in-Time studies, has dropped by about a third between 2008 and 2014. But resolving homelessness and homeless veterans remains a point of focus for the county, nonprofit service organizations and their corporate partners.

The Mayors Challenge will propel work already in progress.

"It's intended to renew our commitment to ending homelessness for veterans," said Klein, "to raise awareness and bring on new partners."

Fairfax County has a goal on the books of ending all homelessness by 2018.

"We already have a very strong effort in place," said Bulova. "When I was invited to join the Mayors Challenge, I felt pretty confident in doing that."

The county attributes its decrease in homelessness to various assisted housing initiatives and support services, collaborative efforts across faith-based communities, state, federal and local governments, and partnerships with businesses and nonprofits.

Klein cited three major areas where progress can and is being made:

- * Having the right range of programs

America's Adopt A Soldier

The all-volunteer organization promotes "making a difference in the lives" of active-duty and retired service members through a variety of efforts. They send care packages to deployed troops all year-long, collaborate on the Wounded Warrior Path To Strength and "give back" by hosting veteran-focused activities and educational events. Founder Mary Keeser said the organization also collects donated furniture to fill the living space of formerly homeless veterans who have just moved into housing, and periodically helps cover costs like legal fees that are added barriers to individuals making progress in helping themselves.

available, whether for short-term or chronically homeless individuals. "One extreme is high-needs people who need housing with very extensive services. At the other end is rapid re-housing programs," or the infrastructure capacity to quickly re-house someone who has just become homeless.

* Housing resources: Two major funding streams for helping get people into housing are the HUD-VASH rental voucher program from the federal government and the VA's Supportive Services for Veteran Families program. "We're already putting funding towards acquiring or renovating, and subsidizing housing for people who are homeless or about to be," said Bulova.

* Putting the effort together at the community level. "In other communities where we've seen the mayor, or chairman, along with local leaders in public and private sectors, coming together to set the goals," Klein said, "their homelessness is ended."

BUT SUBSIDIZING HOUSING FOR AN INDIVIDUAL in one of Fairfax County's 24,000 one-bedroom units ($1,408 per month average rent, based on the 2013 Rental Housing Complex Summary) alone won't win the war.

"If it was just about finding a roof, that could be easily done," said John MacPherson, executive director of The Lamb Center, a Fairfax- and faith-based nonprofit drop-in service facility for the homeless.

"It's not that simple. You have to find the folks and in some cases coax them into that situation."

For many homeless veterans, the pride they once felt as leaders serving their country switches to shame, leading to an aversion to asking for help when they were once the strong ones providing assistance.

Mental illness and PTSD can compound or heighten that experience, making it more difficult for a veteran to accept help.

"What you'd think just seems normal, getting into housing of any kind would be a good thing," said MacPherson, "is not normal to them."

The Lamb Center has a representative from the VA visit regularly to advise guests on what services are available to them through the government. Some people come back to the center for years, MacPherson explained, before revealing they are a veteran.

"They just feel like they don't qualify," he said.

rently commands the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 8649 in Fairfax Station.

"I got a high in the military," said the Alexandria city resident. "I was at my prime in my life; I felt like was in my 30s."

But a number of issues, not the least of which a divorce, brought Flores back to ground level. He left the Marine Corps and leaned on his friends, family and community for support as he changed gears.

"For a lot of us, our high was that brotherhood, all those men and women that we fought with," said Flores. "It's an elite group. You get this pride."

Flores is studying management and construction engineering at George Mason University, financed by the G.I. Bill. He also works two jobs — one at the Dewberry architecture firm and weekends bouncing at a sports bar — to make ends meet.

But, he said, many veterans have more difficulty making the transition. One bad break turns into another, and especially for those with mental or physical disabilities as a result of their service, they can lose their support system.

"Some people miss those sections of the next step of what they should do," Flores said.

"Financial matters can become a problem, they get bogged down and don't have enough money to pay bills or rent. It becomes an avalanche."

ONE OF THE PROJECTS Keeser and others have been working on is establishing a centralized veterans training and care center. Depending on the facility they end up using, it could be residential or not, and would offer "social grounding" services including nutrition, child life experts and job-oriented education.

"It's the whole-person concept," said Keeser. "Financial management, mental-emotional-drug issues — people would leave there in a year and walk out of the classroom environment to an actual job."

Keeser said such a center would help provide guests links to VA benefits, but for funding they would need to rely on grants and partners from the business community.

"We need to stop the bleeding," she said. "Putting individuals in housing really turns someone around. And part of that moving forward is the job, the pride and the key that opens the door."

RIGHTEOUS OR OUTRAGEOUS?

My boss thought our three game ticket plan was outrageous. I thought it is righteous. So what do you think: righteous or outrageous?

BY ANDY RUGE, ASSOCIATE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR, GEORGE MASON UNIVERSITY

Here's what you get in the three game plan:

- 1. Our very best three games. The three game plan has our three very best games:
 - Nationally-ranked rival VCU? Yep, February 4, see you here.
 - Homecoming against Richmond? Of course, February 14.
 - Frequent NCAA tournament contestant Davidson? Check, January 24.
 These are the games people want to see anyway. With this three game plan, however, you can lock up better seat locations than the single game buyer.
- 2. Free gifts. Heck, everyone loves free stuff, so we included it. At the Richmond game you get a Mason Basketball koozie. At the VCU game you get a Bobblehead of Mason legend George Evans. At the Davidson game, you get a George Mason bobblehead. For each three game package that you buy you get those three gifts.
- 3. Best seat locations. When buying single-game tickets to our best game, you're hoping there are good seats left. Bringing the family? For the big games it's tough to get 4 seats together. And don't forget those high service fees. With this three-game pack you know you've got the good seats, to the good games, already in-hand. No questions asked, no worrying, you know you've got 3 chances to see one of the top-5 basketball conferences in the country, right here in Fairfax. You get big-time basketball at small-time prices.

When I look at the three game plan, it is indeed outrageous. And righteous. It costs start at just $22 per game ($66 total) and youth (12 & under) are just $12 per game ($36 total). You can buy the three-game mini-plan today by calling your Personal Account Representative, Alyssa, at 703-993-3491 or visit GoMason.com/hoops today.

Computers, Radios, Vehicles, Firearms Center Renovation

Pardiny makes his pitch for budget funds.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Everyone wants a piece of the City of Fairfax budget pie, including the Police Department. Below are some of the items its leader requested during a Dec. 2 joint work session of the City Council and Planning Commission.

The first thing on Police Chief Carl Pardiny's FY 2016 CIP list was money for information technology. "We're replacing the department's 22 servers and office computers, plus the mobile laptops used by the officers in their cruisers," he said.

Next came a funding request to upgrade the records-management system the Police Department got in 2006. "It's the backbone of our computerized, data-collection system," said Pardiny. "We need more modern, upgraded software, which will integrate the mapping of calls for service and allow officers to research the whole system from their mobile computers. And it'll be more efficient for the officers."

He said the police radios need an upgrade that will cost $991,000 total over the next five years; for FY '16, the price tag is $198,200. It'll cover 80 portable radios and 61 radios mounted in the vehicles. "Our radios must be compatible with the new radio system in other jurisdictions," explained Pardiny. "We'd do it in phases."

He also hopes to replace certain police vehicles over the next several years and is asking for $122,500 for FY '16. The cost is based on the vehicles' wear and tear and mileage, plus the accessories needed, such as gun racks, lights and sirens.

One vehicle needing replacement is a 12-year-old Ford Crown Victoria with 106,500 miles. Another is the 1997 speed-watch trailer that's now 18 years old. "It's almost an antique now, and we have lots of neighborhood requests for it," said Pardiny. "A new one would cost $15,000 and will allow timely, wireless downloading of its data."

Renovation of the Firearms Training Center is also on the list. The Police Department already received a grant for the work, but debt service must be paid for several years. "Our partner, Falls Church City, will also pay for this," said Pardiny. "But GMU had to back out of the agreement."

He also noted that the renovation price came in $1 million over budget, so the building's had to be scaled back; there will be no second floor and less firing lanes.

Following the presentation, Councilwoman Nancy Loftus asked if the City could "piggyback on [Fairfax] County's [police] radio price." But Pardiny said the City wasn't included in the county's purchase. She then asked if the City could partner with another jurisdiction when buying them but, said Pardiny, "It would require a huge quantity of radios to get the discount."

Two Years Probation for Fairfax Resident

A local man has been sentenced to two years probation and ordered to pay tens of thousands of dollars in restitution to the U.S. Postal Service. He is Brian Kim, 38, of Fairfax.

This past summer, he pleaded guilty in federal court to defrauding the U.S. Postal Service. He admitted doing so by counterfeiting and selling approximately $76,000 in postage stamps at two packaging centers he owned and operated in Northern Virginia. One's in Fairfax and the other is in Arlington.

In a statement of facts filed with his plea agreement, Kim admitted that, from January to October 2013, he counterfeited postal stamps that had been originally printed on a USPS-authorized postage meter.

He then placed those stamps on packages and letters that customers brought to his packaging centers. Neither the customers who purchased the stamps nor the USPS employees who picked up the packages were aware of Kim's scheme.

As an example of his wrongdoing, prosecutors cited one representative day at his packaging centers – Aug. 12, 2013 – when Kim caused the mailing of letters and packages bearing 80 counterfeit stamps, with a total value of $395.70. Two months later, on Oct. 15, 2013, postal inspectors seized approximately $23,974.59 worth of counterfeit stamps while executing search warrants at Kim's businesses.

On Aug. 5, in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Kim pleaded guilty to one count of mail fraud before Judge Claude M. Hilton. He returned Jan. 9 to learn his punishment.

At that time, the judge sentenced him to two years probation – the first six months of which will include home confinement with work release. Kim must also pay $76,000 in restitution, representing the total amount of the illicit gains he received from his fraudulent activities.

Baby Steps, Not Enough

Supervisors should take action, not defer to “outside expert,” on absurd and outrageous behavior of police department.

Finally, now that the Fairfax County Police Department has taken stonewalling into the arena of the absurd, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors has at least said it is time for change. It is a step, but a step that continues the appearance of obfuscation if not outright obstruction.

John Geer of Springfield was shot dead inside the doorway of his own home in Springfield on Aug. 29, 2013. Following an argument with his longtime partner, police arrived at Geer's home and spoke with him for more than half an hour while he stood in his doorway, unarmed, with his hands raised and resting on the frame. As he began to lower his hands, by all accounts still at shoulder level, he was shot in the chest and died in his house without receiving medical attention.

It took more than 16 months, a $12 million civil suit by Geer's family and a court order to get the first tiny bit of information on the shooting, which came earlier this month. Police named the police officer who fired the shot that killed John Geer.

The short written statement by Police Chief Edwin C. Roessler Jr. included some very troubling references that appear to blame the shooting on the fact that Geer was a known gun owner. At least 35 percent of Virginia residents are gun owners; are they all more vulnerable if for some reason police are called to their homes?

EDITORIAL

Now Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova has asked the County Executive to locate “independent expertise in the field of police department operations and, specifically, in the area of policies and procedures with respect to information disclosures in the case of police-involved shootings.”

We agree with Supervisor Pat Herrity, who says: “As elected officials it is our job to make policy, not hire an ‘outside expert’ to do our job for us. ... We currently have the resources of a professional staff at our disposal.” Herrity also notes that the proposal does not contain a provision for public input, and that many county residents have researched this topic and qualify as experts.

A few minutes of research shows, for example, that the National Association of Police Chiefs, for example, has extensive documentation about best practices in a variety of police shooting incidents. (Naming the officer involved after 48 hours is among the recommendations.)

The problem goes beyond Fairfax County, and beyond police shootings.

The first paragraph of Virginia Freedom of Information Act, passed by the General Assembly in 1968, states that all public records “shall be presumed open.” But the legislation includes an exemption that allows police to withhold “complaints, memoranda, correspondence, case files or reports, witness statements and evidence.”

Police officials in Fairfax, Arlington and Alexandria have adopted what they call a “blanket” approach to using their exemption. That means they have decided to withhold any document they can without any analysis of whether they should, whether the case is open or closed, whether they are about a “police-involved shooting” or information requested by a family about a homicide victim, or even about routine police activity in a neighborhood. Not even defense attorneys or victims of crimes can gain access to actual police reports.

This is about lack of accountability and denying the public access to information that must be made public.

Leaders of police departments here are engaged in serious and significant abuse of power. It's time for elected officials to represent the public and impose change on those who would hide behind a culture of secrecy.

Addressing Sex Trafficking in Northern Virginia

By TIM HUGO
STATE DELEGATE (R-40)

Four years ago, I introduced my first piece of legislation to address an issue that I thought happened everywhere but here in Northern Virginia; sex trafficking. According to the Polaris Project, a leading organization in the global fight against human trafficking, over 100,000 children are victims of the sex trade in the United States each year. The Polaris Project ranks Virginia 7th in the nation in the percentage of calls received reporting human trafficking.

Much progress has been made since then to strengthen Virginia's human and sex trafficking laws. As a member of the Virginia House of Delegates, I have worked with my colleagues to enact harsher penalties against those that would do harm to our children for profit and to increase public awareness about the issue. Legislation that I introduced in 2011, 2013, and 2014 made abduction for the purposes of child prostitution a felony, increased the punishment for those soliciting minors for prostitution, and empowered law enforcement to better track down and arrest suspected traffickers.

Unfortunately, these and other new laws are not enough. Sex trafficking is thriving in Northern Virginia due to the area's access to major highways and airports, the affluence of the area's economy, as well as a large transient population. Nationally, it has become the second fastest growing crime industry in the United States after drug trafficking.

Therefore, this year I have introduced landmark legislation, HB1964, which will for the first time in Virginia, create a standalone statute for sex trafficking. The continued gaps in Virginia's laws still do not sufficiently protect the victims or punish the evildoers. HB1964 clearly defines and establishes the offense of sex trafficking as a class 2 felony, which includes the sex trafficking of a minor. It establishes mandatory minimum sentencing for the perpetrator when a minor becomes the victim of sex trafficking, and would criminalize the recruitment of minors and adults for commercial sex.

I am hopeful that the passage of this and other human trafficking legislation this session will provide better protection for our young people and punish those that seek to harm them. I would encourage you to learn more about this issue; learn the warning signs for those young people who might be targeted and trapped in this horrific crime. There are many great organizations both locally and nationally working to end the nightmare that hundreds of thousands of young people are currently experiencing. Some of these organizations are:

Polaris Project <http://www.polarisproject.org/>

Richmond Justice Initiative <http://richmondjusticeinitiative.com/>
Shared Hope International <http://sharedhope.org/>

Passing this landmark legislation will not eradicate this horrific crime, but it will be a good step towards protecting our young people. It has been my honor and privilege to work with so many dedicated individuals, groups, law enforcement agencies and legislators. I will continue to work with my colleagues in the General Assembly to continue this fight against human and sex trafficking. One child taken from his or her home, one young person falling prey to this evil, is one too many. By working together, we can and will send a message to those who would seek to harm our children, that our kids are not for sale in Virginia; not now, not ever.

Delegate Tim Hugo represents both western Fairfax and western Prince Williams counties and is currently the Majority Caucus chairman for the Virginia House of Delegates.

Naomi Project Mentor Training

The Naomi Project, a program of Our Daily Bread, is seeking volunteers to mentor at-risk pregnant or newly parenting women in Northern Virginia for a year or longer, as appropriate. Spanish-speakers are especially needed. The next training session is Saturday, Feb. 7, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m., in the Rowland Conference Center at Kelly Square, 10777 Main St., 3rd Floor, in Fairfax.

The training is all day, beginning with registration and light refreshments at 8:30 a.m. Lunch is provided. The session includes presentations by active mentors and public health nurses, plus segments on resources and developing the mentor-client relationship.

To become a mentor, complete the volunteer application and attend the training. Download the Application at <https://www.odbfairfax.org/NPTraining>.

There's a nonrefundable registration fee of $35 to cover materials for the training session, a criminal background check and food on the day of the session. Please mail the application and check to Jessica Ramones, Our Daily Bread, 4080 Chain Bridge Road, 2nd floor.

The check should be made out to Our Daily Bread, and write Naomi Project Training in the Memo line. Or complete the application and email it to naomi.project.training@comcast.net; then mail the check to Our Daily Bread.

Police to Residents: Lock Your Vehicles

City Residents are encouraged to lock their vehicles at night and during the day time hours to avoid becoming a victim of property theft. Police ask that residents hide any items of value located within their vehicles to avoid vehicle break-ins.

Over this past weekend, approximately 27 unlocked vehicles were entered and rummaged through over the midnight hours. These vehicles were parked in the neighborhoods surrounding George Mason University (Forest Drive, Berritt Street, and Sideburn Road). Items taken ranged from petty change to an Ipad Nano.

On Tuesday, Jan. 20, it was reported that several additional vehicles were entered and rummaged through in the area of Burke Station Road. These thefts occurred over the night time hours on Jan. 19, 2015.

Art Gives Comfort to Hospice Patients

BY ABIGAIL CONSTANTINO
THE CONNECTION

“People who dedicate their time to hospice patients are extremely kind and generous,” said Sophia Youn, creator of heARTpiece, a program at Optum Palliative and Hospice Care in Fairfax, formerly Evercare Hospice, that encourages meaningful interaction between volunteers and patients through art.

Youn, of McLean, minored in studio art at New York University, and started volunteering in a hospice while in college. She wanted to provide comfort to people who are ill. She painted a series of rotatable art as a point of conversation. The paintings gave a bit of autonomy to patients by being able to rotate them. From there she was inspired to make collaborative art with the patients.

Youn conducts a workshop to train volunteers who help patients create their art, which range from paintings to sand art. Patients who have limited fine motor skills or who suffer from dementia can still participate especially through the sand handprint.

Fairfax Firefighters Provide Coats for Underprivileged Children

The City of Fairfax Firefighters, IAFF Local 2702, the City of Fairfax Fire Department and the City of Fairfax School Superintendent Dr. Peter Noonan, teamed up to provide brand-new winter coats to over 50 children at Daniels Run and Providence elementary schools in partnership with Operation Warm, a national non-profit dedicated to warming the hearts, minds and bodies of children in need. The collaborative, community-based program has impact far beyond the City of Fairfax. Firefighters across the USA and Canada are bringing this program to the communities they protect. Firefighters for Operation Warm is a movement led by professional firefighters to combat the effects of childhood poverty.

“With our poverty levels increasing, our children and schools benefit from this program in more ways than one,” said David Busch, Vice President, Local 2702. “By nature of our services to the community, we’re able to see the harsh effects poverty has on these children first hand.”

City of Fairfax Firefighters will go to each school to help personally fit each child with a new coat, and helping them to write their name in the interior tag which reads, “Made Just for You.” With monetary support from the community, the firefighters are able to give the gift of warmth to these children right before the harsh winter weather.

Specifically for the Firefighters program, Operation Warm has manufactured 90,000 American-made coats, supporting over 200 jobs. “This is so much more than a coat,” said Walter English, President, Local 2702. “Beyond warmth and dignity for children, American coat production targets a root cause of poverty for so many families.”

“Fit 2 Finish” author, coach, consultant and speaker Wendy LeBolt gives some instruction to a girls youth soccer team.

Herndon resident Wendy LeBolt, Ph.D., takes her years of experience, her advanced degrees, and her passion seeing kids playing healthily and happily condensing them into the book “Fit 2 Finish – Keeping Your Soccer Players in the Game.”

Fit 2 Finish

Herndon woman ups her game with book on proper training for young athletes.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

According to Wendy LeBolt, Ph.D., in her new book “Fit 2 Finish – Keeping Your Soccer Players in the Game” the cycle of success boils down to “Develop – Balance – Observe – and repeat” to keep our young athletes fit and on the field, and taking their sport as far as their interest and skill can take them. Herndon resident LeBolt has some real skin in the game of soccer – literally. She’s played it at several levels. She’s coached it - holding the E and F coaching licenses through U.S. Youth Soccer. She’s studied it. Her daughters play it. But even with all that life experience, LeBolt (like many others, who perhaps still do), used to believe that young soccer players could become fit by simply playing the game. After all, she reasoned, “the game puts all the right demands on them. It’s the most specific training they can get, right?”

THEN SHE STARTED noticing all of the injuries. All of the knee braces, kids on the sidelines with crutches and kids limping about on the pitch. More research and she discovered that the rate of injuries, especially for girls and in particular anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) injuries was being called epidemic. Parents from some of those teams that she observed started asking her to help. Why ask LeBolt? Well, aside from all that personal experience and vested interest in the health and safety of her own young daughter-players, she also brings more credentials to the field than any coach has strategies in his or her playbook.

Starting with a bachelor’s in Biology from The College of William and Mary, adding an MEd in Exercise Science from The George Washington University (GWU), then impressively topping off with a Ph.D. in Physiology from the Medical College of Virginia, LeBolt has also been on the GWU faculty, teaching Human Anatomy and Physiology, Kinesiology and Exercise Physiology there from 1991 to 1999. She also practices privately as an Exercise Physiologist. So it should come as no surprise that she accepted this next challenge. She started what she calls her “rescue mission” by asking a few basic, but far-reaching questions: Why are so many kids getting injured? Why are so many dropping out of sports? How do you get and keep all kids playing? What can you do to help those who want to play hard and compete further? How can you prepare kids, whole body and mind, for what the game – or any sport – asks of them? Those questions, and the answers that LeBolt continues to develop, led to the formation of her company, Fit2Finish, LLC, incorporated in 2005.

The company specializes in designing sport-specific, age-appropriate and engaging training to improve the young athletes’ performance, and more importantly, help prepare their bodies for the demands of their sport and reduce the risk of potentially debilitating injuries. For years, LeBolt has been working with coaches, parents and youngsters in group and individual settings and presenting seminars and workshops from injury prevention to proper nutrition for the athlete, conditioning, and even tips for parenting the champion athlete and how to incorporate fitness into the lives of today’s busy families. There is even a “Gap Care” program designed to help the sidelined athlete return from serious injury.

The training programs, seminars, workshops and individual assistance evolved to include a weekly blog, an informative website, a Facebook page, and links to videos demonstrating some of the training techniques and exercises that LeBolt recommends or has developed to meet specific needs and circumstances. Considering that she has hundreds of articles and columns with her by-line, and writes weekly for Soccerwire.com, it seemed the natural next step to condense a wealth of information into the handbook “Fit 2 Finish – Keeping Your Soccer Players in the Game.” Published in late 2014, LeBolt’s “trainer’s manual” just had its official launch. But don’t expect any fanfare to accompany its arrival. As LeBolt said, “It’s not about the book, but what’s in it. That’s what’s really important.”

Aimed at the professional as well as the volunteer coach, there is plenty for both to take away, not to mention the parents of the young players and even the players themselves. And it really does serve as a manual, including sections with recipes for optimum nutrition, what to keep in your field first aid kit, and caring for and managing common sport-related injuries. The writing style, laced with a bit of humor, makes the facts accessible. As she says both in her writings and during a recent interview with The Connection, “Sports, playing and practice, still have to be fun. I refuse to lose the fun!” Her mission is to “help kids develop bodies they will use well their whole lives...because they want to.”

THE SCIENCE AND THE METHODOLOGY outlined in the book and practiced as part of the Fit2Finish mantra, have earned numerous ringing endorsements, including that of the author of the book’s foreword, Diane Drake, head women’s soccer coach, George Mason University. Drake notes in her remarks that a disturbing number of young freshmen women entering her program arrive already injured, particularly with overuse injury. Drake, and LeBolt both cite lack of preparation and improper training as the major culprits leading to this unhealthy state of affairs. LeBolt has set out to tackle both and more in her book and through her company.

Fit2Finish, LLC, serves the greater D.C. Metro area, specializing in soccer, basketball, volleyball and lacrosse training. On the website Fit2Finish.com there is access to LeBolt’s book, blog, training videos and links to additional resources. Dr. LeBolt can be contacted for speaking engagements, consultations and more, etc. at Fit2Finish05@gmail.com.

‘An Evening in Prague’ at GMU

New musical work for a special evening with the Fairfax Symphony Orchestra.

BY DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

“Orchestral music is such a fantastic art form,” said Chris Zimmerman, music director, Fairfax Symphony Orchestra (FSO) in a recent interview. “And, I am committed to performing music by living composers” and full-scale masterpieces of the great classic composers.

Zimmerman was describing the upcoming “An Evening in Prague,” a concert of familiar symphonic music by Antonin Dvorak and the U.S. premiere of Czech composer Sylvie Bodorova’s “Symphony No. 1.”

Bodorova’s works have been performed throughout the world, so it is “exciting to be the first American orchestra to perform her ‘Symphony No. 1,’” said Zimmerman. He described the work as “evocative, giving off a spiritual sense full of tension, drama, struggle with a finale that uplifts” the listener.

“There is an arc to Bodorova’s music that is tangible; it portrays a life lived as hope triumphs,” added Zimmerman.

The “Symphony No. 1” has movements to bring a sense of tranquility and unrest. A listener may think of heartbeats, rushing rivers, and sounds that collide and spar with each other. The finale to the piece is meant to provide “a feeling of serenity” according to Zimmerman.

Composer Bodorova described her symphony as presenting “dreams and illusions, as well as trials and tribulations—simply everything that life entrails. I would like to create hope and faith that through all of the anguish that we encounter, there exists something that is greater than ourselves and gives meaning to all of our efforts.”

Her symphony includes use of many percussive instruments which she calls “the oldest musical instruments of humankind.”

Where and When

Fairfax Symphony Orchestra presents “An Evening in Prague” at the George Mason University, Center for the Performing Arts, 4400 University Drive, Fairfax. Performance: Saturday, Feb. 7, at 8 p.m. Tickets $25-$50. Tickets at 888-945-2468 or visit www.fairfaxsymphony.org.

These include not just the familiar drum, but chimes, bells, bongos and blocks all melded with the usual orchestral instruments.”

“I have been fascinated with percussion instruments for quite some time, and they play an extraordinarily important, and in some places a more or less crucial role in my symphony,” said Bodorova.

Bodorova was born in the then Czechoslovakia in 1954. Her works have been presented throughout Europe, Israel and the United States. Her musical interests include not only Johann Sebastian Bach, but Gypsy, Jewish and East European rhythms. She is currently involved with the restoration of Gustav Mahler’s birthplace in the Czech Republic.

The Fairfax Symphony Orchestra “Evening in Prague” will include the popular and charming “Symphony No. 8” by Dvorak. First premiered in February 1890, it is noted for its dance rhythms, sense of nature and a big finish.

Exhibit of Colorful Nutcrackers. 11 a.m. - 4 p.m. Closed on Tuesdays. Sully Historic Site, 3650 Historic Sully Way, Chantilly. See an amazing array of nutcrackers, both old and new, in a colorful case exhibit. Did you ever wonder where the craze for collecting nutcracker dolls came from? Nutcrackers have a fascinating history. The first nutcrackers were produced to crack nuts more effectively and the oldest known metal example, on exhibit in Tarent, Italy, is from the third or fourth century B.C. The Leavenworth Nutcracker Museum in Leavenworth, Washington, shows a bronze Roman nutcracker dated between 200 B.C and 200 A.D. German nutcrackers, made as decorative pieces, were developed around 1500. Early nutcrackers were in the shapes of animals, birds and people. Later, they were made in the likeness of kings, soldiers, church leaders and ruling class figures. Fine wood carved nutcrackers were created across Europe, especially in France and England by the 15th and 16th centuries. Admission: $7/adult, $6/student, $5/senior or child.

Lake Braddock Gymnastics Wins Home Meet

The Lake Braddock gymnastics team took on five Conference 7 opponents and came out on top during a home meet on Jan. 16.

The Bruins posted a first-place team score of 137.8. South County finished runner-up with a score of 125.225, followed by Woodson (122.45), West Potomac (80.525), T.C. Williams (54.3) and Annandale (11.575).

T.C. Williams had only two girls competing, while Annandale had only one gymnast.

Lake Braddock freshman Jordan Clark won the all-around competition with a score of 35.8. Bruins junior Jordan Tautges finished runner-up with a score of 35.575, followed by South County's Faith Baxter (34.2), Woodson's Ellie Dreyer (33.225) and Lake Braddock sophomore Caralyn Wiedeman (33.2).

Lake Braddock will host the Conference 7 championship meet at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 4, and the 6A North region meet on Feb. 11.

T.C. Williams won the Conference 7 championship last season, and Washington-Lee took home the region title.

Board of Supervisors Recognizes Global Arts Initiative

On Tuesday, Jan. 13, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors recognized the Arts Council of Fairfax County for its new Global Arts Initiative for which the organization received an Arts Works grant from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA).

The purpose of the Global Arts Initiative is to promote and support Fairfax County's diverse arts traditions through direct funding of ethnic and immigrant artists and arts programs.

Through this pilot program, the Arts Council will play a leadership role in supporting and showcasing the County's diversity, introducing hundreds of thousands of residents to new art forms and outstanding arts programming taking place right in their own community.

"We are so pleased to have been recognized by Chairman Bulova and the Board of Supervisors for our new Global Arts Initiative. This initiative will serve as a catalyst for future community building strengthening our ethnic and immigrant artists and arts programs," said Linda S. Sullivan, president & CEO, Arts Council of Fairfax County.

As an expansion of the Arts Council's existing Project Support Grants program, this new initiative is designed to reach out to diverse audiences and support arts programming that reflect cultural traditions from around the world through the creation and presentation of visual arts, dance, music, poetry, theater and multidisciplinary festivals.

The Global Arts Initiative has been made possible in part through a NEA grant for which the Arts Council is currently seeking matching funds from corporate sponsors.

Fairfax County artists and non-profit arts organizations may apply to this new initiative by Feb. 18.

For more information or application guidelines visit <http://artsfairfax.org/grants/applicants> or call Rachelle Etienne-Robinson, Grants Coordinator, at 703-642-0862 x6.

Fairfax Firefighters Provide Coats for Underprivileged Children

The City of Fairfax Firefighters, IAFF Local 2702, the City of Fairfax Fire Department and the City of Fairfax School Superintendent Dr. Peter Noonan, teamed up to provide brand-new winter coats to over 50 children at Daniels Run and Providence elementary schools in partnership with Operation Warm, a national non-profit dedicated to warming the hearts, minds and bodies of children in need. The collaborative, community-based program has impact far beyond the City of Fairfax. Firefighters across the USA and Canada are bringing this program to the communities they protect. Firefighters for Operation Warm is a movement led by professional firefighters to combat the effects of childhood poverty.

“With our poverty levels increasing, our children and schools benefit from this program in more ways than one,” said David Busch, Vice President, Local 2702. “By nature of our service to the community, we’re able to see the harsh effects poverty has on these children first hand.” City of Fairfax Firefighters will go to each school to help personally fit each child with a new coat, and helping them to write their name in the interior tag which reads, “Made Just for You.” With monetary support from the community, the firefighters are able to give the gift of warmth to these children right before the harsh winter weather.

Specifically for the Firefighters program, Operation Warm has manufactured 90,000 American-made coats, supporting over 200 jobs. “This is so much more than a coat,” said Walter English, President, Local 2702. “Beyond warmth and dignity for children, American coat production targets a root cause of poverty for so many families.”
