Stalled Labor Market Slows County Budget

Proposed budget calls for no real estate tax rate increase, but average homeowner would pay $184 more.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

Supervisor Jeff McKay pointed out the irony in County Executive Ed Long's proposed $3.8 billion budget. Three planning positions would be eliminated from the budget even though Long suggested the county needs more efforts to raise revenue from commercial and industrial venues.

"A timely planning process in revitalization is important in economic development," said McKay after Long's 30-minute presentation to the Board of Supervisors on Tuesday, Feb. 17. "The planner piece is not going in the same direction as the economic development question."

McKay pointed to redevelopment along the Route 1 corridor as a source of economic growth that would require extra input from planning. Long agreed that the county urgently needs to expand the nonresidential tax base in the county.

Commercial assessments dropped 0.6 percent, while residential assessments increased 3.4 percent. Commercial vacancy rates are higher than they have been since 1991. Although the U.S. economy grew at an estimated rate of 2.6 percent during the fourth quarter of 2014, "we are clearly underperforming the national economy," Long told the Supervisors, mostly due to the sequester and reductions in federal spending and contracting.

"Our economy is very dependent on people buying cars, buying houses and shopping," Long said.

Long forecasts no significant improvements in the short term future. "We cannot fund all our priorities and investments." Most departments, aside from public safety, will see some expenditure reduction.

Just 5,100 jobs were created in Northern Virginia in 2014, less than half of the 11,900 jobs created in 2013, which is half the number of jobs (25,250) created on average in 2011 and 2012.

"It is a bit sobering," said Hunter Mill Supervisor Catherine Hudgins.

5 Things to Know about the Budget

- ❖ One penny change in the real estate tax rate, currently $1.09, is worth $22.6 million.
- ❖ The average 2014 home selling price, $517,000, has still not reached its previous peak value of $543,271 achieved in 2005.
- ❖ Direct office vacancy rate was 15.2 percent as of mid-year 2014, the highest office vacancy rate since 1991.
- ❖ Fairfax County Public Schools request $14 million more than is in the current proposed budget. Schools ask for a 3.99 percent increase; the current county budget proposal includes 3.43 percent increase over last year.
- ❖ School Age Child Care (SACC) fees restructured to generate revenue and to better reflect income levels and affordability for participating families. Full paying families will see an increase of 8 percent.

General Assembly Reaches Crossover

Bills live, die or fold into other legislation before review by the opposite chamber.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

As the current meeting of the Virginia General Assembly neared the one-month mark, legislators in the House of Delegates and Senate had to finalize work on bills they would send to their counterparts for consideration. Last week's "cross-over" on Feb. 11 marked their final chance to either move forward with promising legislation or kill it, with the exception of budget or revenue bills.

"We're always told not to fall in love with your bills," said Del. Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41), "but it's hard not to do that. When you work with stakeholders and get to know the issue, especially with a lot of personal stories and testimonies, you get attached to them."

Even though some bills don't make it to the opposite chamber, many come back in subsequent sessions.

Sen. George Barker (D-39) likes to say, "My bill isn't dead, it just hasn't passed yet." Several of his bills that passed the Senate this year have gotten killed in previous years. "It takes a good while to build up enough support," he said, "and work with people who have concerns."

The cross-over milestone is standard procedure for a session that lawmakers said is moving along as expected, without much fanfare or controversy.

"This is really the way it should be," said

Del. Dave Albo (R-42). "We're running a state: Our job is to pave roads, put bad guys in prison, keep kids in college and schools."

But that doesn't mean it's all downhill from the cross-over.

"As with any session, there's ups and downs, some very tough votes you have to take," said Del. David Bulova (D-37). "There are things you really like, or wish you weren't in the package, but does this move the ball forward or not? The easy bills are typically the ones taken care of in first week or two."

Bulova cited the request for Dominion Power to forego the biennial rate review it would normally be subject to as an example of a "tougher" and "more nuanced" issue now being dealt with.

"On one side, it's nice to have that review," he said. "On other side, with the cost of new regulations that are going to dramatically reduce carbon emissions, there's something to be said for freezing rates. To understand all that goes into rate-making, with responsibility to consumers and the environment, I wish I had 30 minutes to explain it to every constituent."

Ethics legislation and tweaks to the budget passed last year are two other major areas receiving attention.

Sen. Toddy Puller (D-36) thinks the budget is "looking pretty good," but remains curious to see how the ethics bill comes out. "What we did last year I voted for, but just thought it was pathetic," she said. "It's pretty hard not to vote for ethics reform. This year I'm hoping it will do something."

With the the cross-over moving the legislative process along healthily, there's some speculation the session may even end "a day or two early," according to Sen. Dave Marsden (D-37). "That saves us about about $35,000 a day."

But nobody's holding their breath.

Dead or Alive

Lawmakers pick their highlights from bills that were killed, folded into other bills or passed to the other side.

Del. David Bulova (D-37)

DEAD

HB1872: Would have required the Board of Education to arrange a special training program for principals working with struggling schools. The bill passed the House education committee but died in appropriations.

ALIVE

HB1725: Creates a Virginia Solar Energy Development Authority. Technically Bulova's bill was rolled into a similar bill from Del. Timothy Hugo (R-40), HB2267.

HB1667: An ethics bill that would cap all gifts to legislators at $100, whether tangible or intangible. Bulova's bill was rolled into a similar bill from Del. C. Todd Gilbert (R-15), which retained the $100 cap core concept.

HB1515: Requires hospitals to provide new parents with information on safe sleep environments for their baby at their discharge.

Del. Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41)

DEAD

HB1327: Would have permitted voters 75 and older, or disabled voters, to go to the head of the line on election day.

HB2041: Would have established an advisory council for identifying open education resources, helping prevent students from spending as much money on hard copy textbooks.

HB1668: Dealt with allowing students of different grade levels the opportunity for an "expedited retake" of their Virginia Standards of Learning (SOL) exam. The concept stayed alive as it was rolled into Del. Gregory Habeeb's (R-8) HB1490.

ALIVE

HB2306: Establishes Achieving a Better Life Experience (ABLE) trust accounts for individuals and families with children to help them save for living and other expenses. This follows a ABLE Act Congress passed at the end of 2014.

HB1343: Requires that sexual assaults on college campuses be reported either by campus police or local law enforcement to the Commonwealth's attorney within 48 hours of beginning an investigation. Filler-Corn's bill was rolled into Del. Jimmie Massie III's (R-72) HB1785.

HB1552 and 2046: Provide for fingerprinting, background checks and other regulations for child care providers. These bills were folded into a larger omnibus bill from Del. Robert Orrock (R-54), HB1570, of which Filler-Corn is a chief co-patron.

Del. Dave Albo (R-42)

DEAD

HB1539: Would have set up a Virginia Translational Medical Investment Fund for the state to make loans to private businesses doing research in translational medicine.

ALIVE

HB1445: Allows patients receiving treatment for epilepsy to legally possess and use a derivative of marijuana, provided they have certification from their doctor.

HB1503: Corrects a loophole allowing people to get out of a Driving Under the Influence charge, according to Albo.

HB1635: Deals with defamation over the Internet. If someone files an action within a year, they're given a "reasonable" amount of time to find out who the people are that made anonymous defamatory statements.

Del. Mark Sickles (R-43)

DEAD

HB2054: Any time a citizen receives a payment from the state, this bill would've required the state to offer a hard copy check option as well as electronic payment transfer. A similar bill did pass, one that only affects tax refunds.

HB2388: Would have forced a closer look at the 5-600 state prisoners sentenced prior to 1995, before there was no parole, releasing them if eligible based on their time served exceeding "the midpoint of the most recent discretionary sentencing guidelines."

HB2158: Dealing with special elections, this would've regularized some of the arbitrary selection of dates to help reduce the cost of holding the elections themselves.

'Stuff the Bus' Brings in 1,200 Pounds of Food for Koinonia

For the past five years, Fairfax County has put together "Stuff the Bus: Helping Fairfax Families" food donation events in collaboration with local grocery stores, nonprofit organizations and Fastran buses with drivers from MV Transportation.

Buses appeared in 13 different locations around the county between Jan. 17 and Feb. 16 this year.

One of the final Stuff the Bus drives took place Feb. 14 at the Giant grocery store in Kingstowne Center and benefitted the Koinonia Foundation. Koinonia is an ecumenical nonprofit that's helped families and individuals in the Franconia and Kingstowne areas with food, clothing and emergency financial services for the last 50 years.

According to Koinonia's executive director Robert Petitti, Saturday's event raised $735 in donations and 1,200 pounds of donated food.

For more information on Stuff the Bus, visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/living/food/stuffthebus. More information on how to get involved with Koinonia is available on their website www.koinoniacares.org.

OPINION

Staying Ahead of the Feds

The federal government is not always wrong. At the same time, the state government is not always right.

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

The Virginia House and the Senate have penned similar but competing mid-point versions to the 2014-2016 biennial budget. These budgets will now go to a conference committee to work out differences in time for a Feb. 28 adjournment of the annual legislative session. With both houses being under the same political party control, the differences are not great and will likely be easily reconciled.

Governor McAuliffe had proposed revisions to the Commonwealth's budget, but his recommendations were ignored in one significant way: his budget proposal included the expansion of Medicaid for the working poor, but the majority party in both houses adamantly oppose it. Had Medicaid expansion been approved, the state would have saved $107,000,000 in state spending in FY 2016 alone and would have picked up $482,300,000 in new federal money. The issue of this column is not Medicaid expansion, however, for which I have made my position known in several columns. Instead, I want to focus on the paranoia in Richmond over the actions of the Federal government that the opposition to Medicaid expansion reflects. That paranoia was reflected among other places in a budget amendment in the House that provided that "no general or non-general funds shall be appropriated or expended for such costs as may be intended to implement any federal program or Presidential executive action calling for 'free' tuition at institutions of higher education." The amendment passed with my speaking against it, suggesting that we should at least see the new program before we decided to oppose it.

Virginia has a long history of opposing federal action. Going back to 1798, James Madison introduced the concept of interposition – that the state could interpose itself between the federal government and the people when it deemed federal laws to be unconstitutional. Interposition or nullification has been used by many states to oppose federal actions on many issues. The Civil War was the most dramatic statement at attempted interposition.

In the 1950s, Virginia attempted to interpose itself against federal action to desegregate the schools. Its efforts through more than 40 lawsuits became known as "massive resistance", which of course ultimately failed.

The call has gone out once again for the need to protect ourselves against the federal government, particularly the Obama administration. Several bills, for example, were introduced this session to nullify actions of the Environmental Protection Agency in air and water quality regulations. Our Federal system with its checks and balances have worked well for many years to protect citizens from a run-away government. At the same time, it creates challenges for smooth operation. This continuing power struggle diverts attention from the real issues of our economy and society and leads to the frustrations that many feel with the operation or gridlock of government. The federal government is not always wrong. At the same time, the state government is not always right. The public expects that leaders work through these differences and that issues be resolved.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Outstanding Article, Outstanding Services

To the Editor:

Mr. (Kenneth) Moore's feature article ("Combining Health and Mental Health," Connection, February 11-17, 2015), which provided information concerning the Community Services Board (CBS) services to the Fairfax community was outstanding.

Prior to reading his article, I did not know such an organization existed. The CBS services, described in the article, provided by the leadership and staff are to be commended for helping so many people in need these last few years.

Having been involved on the staff of a state's Mental Health and Disabilities department in the midwest prior to moving to Fairfax County, mental health needs were ever growing in numbers. As pointed out in the article, "One in every five people live with a mental health problem...and two-thirds go without treatment." This is alarming and most disturbing in today's society. From where I came from, the state's budget for Mental Health and Drug Abuse could not keep up with the demand and needs of its citizen, and this was back in the 70s.

Fairfax County is well known for outstanding services provided in our schools.

It is also encouraging to learn the county, under the directorship of Tisha Deeghan and her staff commits themselves in providing mental health services by letting us know "we are here (to serve) everybody." Thank you.

Ronald L. Baker
Springfield

The writer is retired and was a former Budget officer for the State of Illinois, Dept of Mental Health & Disabilities including the Illinois Drug Abuse Program during the years, 1972-1976.

Beneficial Choices

To the Editor:

The cab drivers who seek protection from the government against Uber and other ride-sharing companies have this all wrong.

Cab drivers who are dissatisfied with their work hours or earnings are free to either remain cab drivers or to seek another way to earn money. If they don't like the regulations they have to deal with or the fact that there are "too many cab drivers at National Airport" to make enough money, then they are free to use their gifts and talents to seek other ways to live productive lives. They are free, for example, to drive for Uber or any other ride sharing company and they should be free to offer such services on their own.

Society benefits most when there is free and open market and when the choices of who to engage in commerce with and on what terms are broad. If a consumer wants to call even a wholly unregulated Uber car, then so be it, it is not the proper role of government to say "you can't do that." Someone needing to get from point A to point B should be free to use their own minds to decide which is the better option for them.

It is up to the taxicab industry to convince consumers that a taxi is a better option rather than to seek the heavy hand of government to quash innovation, competition, and entrepreneurship.

New Aldi to Open on Backlick Road

German grocery fills vacancy left by Fischers True Value.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

For years, the family-owned Fischers True Value hardware store on Backlick Road was a Springfield mainstay.

"If you asked people, 'What's in Springfield?' they'd say Mike's American Grill and Fischers," said Springfield Civic Association president Bruce Waggoner.

The Fischer family left over six years ago and the subsequent owners closed the hardware store about five years ago, according to Nancy-jo Manney, executive director of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce.

"We're pleased that there is a new use for that location," said Manney. "Nobody was happy to see Fischers leave, and we didn't want to see it vacant."

That new use is a fresh-faced Aldi, an international grocery store chain headquartered in Germany, that joins Trader Joe's and La Mart for offering grocery shopping options in the mixing bowl vicinity of Springfield.

"I'm pleased to see Aldi opening its doors in its new Lee District location," said supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee). "It's good to have a variety of shopping options, something that's good for our communities and underlines our vibrant Springfield economy, and I'm happy to welcome them to the area."

The Aldi, located at 6129 Backlick Road, will have its grand opening on Friday, Feb. 20 beginning at 9 a.m.

"We choose our store locations based on population density, proximity to competition, cost of the property and traffic patterns," Jeff Baehr, Frederick Division Vice President for Aldi, said in a statement. "We want to be conveniently based where Aldi shoppers are located."

Bruce Waggoner, president of the Springfield Civic Association, stands in front of the new Aldi opening in Springfield.

Aldi is known for offering a wide variety of produce (around 70 types of fruits and vegetables) as well as off-brand grocery items sold for less than comparable name-brand products.

The Springfield Aldi received a significant reconstruction: The new digs feature high ceilings, more natural lighting, recycled building materials and energy-saving refrigeration and light bulbs.

Manney is most excited about Aldi's shopping cart deposit policy: To use one, shoppers must deposit 25 cents that they then recoup when they return the cart.

"It keeps the carts off of our streets and sidewalks," she said. "You're encouraged not to take the cart to your house with groceries, which is a problem in our community. This could potentially have a positive impact."

The new store is walking distance for Waggoner, who otherwise frequents Trader Joe's for its cleanliness, friendliness and efficiency. "If Aldi can do that, give the Trader Joe's experience," Waggoner said, "I'll be head-over-heels in love." At the grand opening, Aldi is offering the first 100 shoppers in line golden tickets containing coupons of various values. For more information, visit www.aldi.us. The grocery store will be open Monday-Friday 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Saturday until 8 p.m. and Sunday until 7 p.m.

Asian Grill Celebrates Chinese New Year

Springfield restaurant offers a traditional Chinese feast that's sure to wow the crowd.

The Asian Grill restaurant on Rolling Road in Springfield is celebrating the Chinese New Year now through March 8 with fresh, traditional Chinese dishes in an updated menu that are sure to wow the crowd.

Owned by Darrin Ho and his wife Jenny, the restaurant with a staff of seven in the West Springfield Shopping Center is offering a Chinese New Year feast for $65.95 per person. He says not many local restaurants celebrate the traditional Chinese New Year in Springfield, but like Mardi Gras in New Orleans or green beer on St. Patrick's Day, Asian Grill is a dining destination that people look forward to attending.

"Chinese food has a good variety but not many people are able to cook that," said Darrin Ho. "We try to create it all together during the festival ... People don't even need to see the menu because they trust our quality," added Ho, originally from Hong Kong, and in the business for 38 years; he is the former owner of Ho's Dynasty in Burke.

People have been making reservations for the event since last November, and Ho extended the traditional two-week celebration to four weeks to accommodate his customers' requests. "I like to make all of my customers feel satisfied," he adds.

Ho's Chinese New Year meal is an elaborate process that takes more than one hour to enjoy. It includes appetizers of live lobster with fresh mango salad and special crispy fresh salmon roll; an Alaska king crab meat and fresh asparagus soup; main entrees of fresh lobster tail with ginger and onion in chef's special sauce; dry-nasty beef tenderloin, chili's sea bass with special homemade sauce; and fresh pineapple fried rice with shrimp and roast pork in pineapple shell. For dessert, there's tropical fresh fruits and a glass of special plum wine. The special runs Feb. 15-19; Feb. 22-25; and March 1-8.

"We love Darrin. He makes our family so happy, and of course, the service and food is phenomenal. Everyone treats us like family," said Jennifer Edwards of Springfield.

"I would say it's great food and great service delivered in a very friendly approach with a great, attentive staff. All the waitresses and cooks are very attentive to their customers," said Ernie Porter of West Springfield.

The Asian Grill is located at 6228-A Rolling Road, Springfield, VA 22152. Beer, wine and alcoholic mixed drinks as well as desserts like honey-banana ice cream are also served. Visit www.asiangrill88.com. Email: darrinho@asiangrill88.com. Or call 703-569-4800.

VRE is considering a 4 percent fare increase.

Public Hearings Scheduled to Discuss Potential VRE Fare Increase

Increased operation costs are forcing the Virginia Railway Express to consider a 4 percent fare increase. The price of Amtrak Step-Up tickets would rise from $3 to $5, but the discounted 10-ride, five-day and monthly passes would remain unchanged. Before VRE goes ahead with any changes, the organization is holding a number of public hearings around Virginia and Washington, D.C. to solicit customer feedback. A hearing will be held in Burke on Feb. 24 at The Commons Community Center at 7 p.m.

The Commons is located at 9837 Burke Pond Lane. More information on the hearings can be found at www.vre.org. Written comments can be submitted until Friday, March 6 electronically to publiccomment@vre.org, over the phone to Bryan Jungwirth at 703-684-1001 or by mail to Bryan Jungwirth, 1500 King Street, Suite 202, Alexandria, Virginia 22314.

Lawmakers Pick Their Legislative Highlights

ALIVE

HB2372: Creates an electronic asset verification program for applications for medical assistance such as Medicaid. "This bill is needed so that we can help reduce some of the potential fraud in people seeking benefits," said Sickles.

HB2056 and HB2062: Technical election administration bills, including a requirement on presidential election years for scantron voting machines to be available for every 4,000 voters in a precinct.

Del. Scott Surovell (D-44)
DEAD

HB2339: Would have helped students access electronic textbooks by requiring schools to provide them with computers to use.

HB2011: Would have helped prevent motor vehicle title lender "subsidiaries" from operating in unregulated storefronts. "The practice is completely unregulated," said Surovell, "they're completely evading the law."

HB2337: Sought to require the Board of Education to include the dangers and legal implications of "sexting" in Family Life Education curriculum.

ALIVE

HB1684: Would allow students who achieved a certain score or above on Advanced Placement exams to waive taking the Virginia Standards of Learning test in the same subject area. The bill was rolled into other, similar legislation.

HB2015: Adds items such as child support, spousal support and low income families' tax refunds to creditors' collection exemption list.

HB1764: (Chief co-patron with Del. G. Manoli Loupassi [R-68]) If a data provider sells, publishes or otherwise shares data about a person's criminal background that has already been expunged, this bill strengthens the remedies available to consumers on the opposite end of the data provider.

Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34)
ALIVE

SB957: Restricts license plate readers and use of other "spying technology" by the police when there's no warrant or investigation pending. "It's going to be a landmark law in Virginia establishing personal privacy," said Petersen.

SB1008: Homeowners Association bill of rights, such as the right to notice of meetings and due process when a complaint is filed.

SB982: In cases of life-threatening drug overdoses, this bill would protect anyone who reports the situation from being prosecuted for possessing illegal substances themselves.

Sen. George Barker (D-39)
DEAD

SB1274: Would have allocated more funds for re-paving secondary roads.

SB1295: Would prevent government officials from censoring sermons given by National Guard chaplains. This bill was folded into SB690.

SB1112: Would have provided for five and a half-hour school days for kindergarten students.

ALIVE

SB701: Requires the state to offer citizens the option to receive income tax return refunds as a check.

SB757 and SB900: Two bills that deal with the Virginia Standards of Learning tests: One allows middle school and elementary school students that were close to passing the test the opportunity for an expedited retake; the other gives schools flexibility on when they administer the tests. "This would allow curriculums and teaching to be more individualized," said Barker.

SB1122: Helps set up a support network for suicide prevention among college students, universities and parents of students.

Sen. Dave Marsden (D-37)
DEAD

SB681: Three-year plan to raise the minimum wage to $10.10. "We'll get that soon," said Marsden. The bill died in the Commerce and Labor committee. "Last year, the Republicans couldn't look me in the eye."

SB687: This bill would have imposed more regulations on legislator retirements, specifically if they were promoted to a new position in their last four years of service and received a pay increase more than 400 times their previous salary.

SB1391: Sought to create a procedural guarantee for Department of Corrections officers facing allegations that could threaten their job.

ALIVE

SB1235: Medical marijuana bill, specifically regarding the use of Cannabidiol oil and THC-A oil, very similar to Albo's HB1445.

SB730: Deals with individuals serving a life sentence without parole for non-homicide crimes. The bill would give them a "meaningful and reasonable opportunity at release" through a four-judge circuit court review panel.

SB1390: Would help homeowners associations to hold elections despite failing to obtain a quorum at meetings.

Sen. Toddy Puller (D-36)
DEAD

SB728: Would have given art instructors the opportunity to obtain a license for serving alcohol at private instructional events.

ALIVE

SB675 and SB 676: Regarding funding of a Northern Virginia Veterans Care Center, including allocating two sums of over $60 million from the federal government.

SB1032: Would reorganize Virginia alcoholic beverage control, getting rid of the ABC board in favor of a Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Authority.

SB903: Would set up a problem-solving court docket specifically to meet the needs of veterans, the mentally ill or people re-entering society. "There are so many that really do need some special attention because of their circumstances," said Puller. "I hope it goes well."

Black History Month Celebrations

Local students learn about the history and accomplishments of African-Americans.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Fourth grade student Eli West crafted a poem this month that was modeled after Martin Luther King, Jr.'s famous, "I Have a Dream" speech. As part of February's month-long celebration of the history and culture of African-Americans, fourth grade students at Norwood School in Bethesda, Md., wrote and delivered poems reminiscent of the speech that the famous civil rights leader delivered in 1963. The students also delivered their verses before Norwood's lower school community.

"I learned more about Martin Luther King, Jr. I learned that he was a very spiritual man," said West.

The exercise was part of a broader lesson in honor of Black History Month, a time when students learn about the history of African-Americans as that history is incorporated in to the overall curriculum of many schools. From concerts to school projects, there are opportunities to join the month-long celebration.

"Black History Month is a time to honor the accomplishments of the African-American men and women who have made contributions to the world in spite of the injustice they faced," said Sandi Hannibal, Director of Multicultural and Ethical Education at Norwood School in Bethesda, Maryland. "One might ask why it is necessary to highlight these accomplishments in 2015. After all, we have lived through the Civil Rights Era and the Civil Rights Act was passed in 1964. We have a black president. We have made so much progress. All of this is true, but in some schools the contributions and accomplishments of African-Americans are not woven into the overall curriculum, so it is important that Black History Month provides an opportunity to learn about prominent African-Americans in a very intentional manner."

Some educators are encouraging students to take time to ponder the history of African-Americans. "It's more than just the Jim Crow Laws. There're a whole host of things that African-Americans have done," said Lisa Styles, school counselor at Arlington Public School's Career Center in Arlington.

St. Stephen's & St. Agnes School, in Alexandria, will host a Middle School Student Diversity Conference on Friday, Feb. 20.

"Students at the middle school age are trying to learn who they are. We want to expose kids to the ideas of identity, inclusive behavior, and respect, and to let them know that what they feel matters," said KiKi Davis, St. Stephen's & St. Agnes School director of multicultural education, diversity, and equity initiatives. "We want to give them tools to become leaders in their own schools, and it starts with being able to talk about diversity and social justice issues at their developmental level. What it looks like to them, in their lives, at this age."

St. Andrew's Episcopal School in Potomac, Md., hosted a regional diversity conference earlier this month called "Diversity in the DMV" Conference. More than 200 representatives from independent schools in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia explored some of the tools needed for cross-cultural understanding.

Among the observances in Fairfax County Virginia, George Mason University Potomac Arts Academy and George Mason University School of Music will present a Black History Month celebration concert on Saturday, Feb. 21, called, "The Dream Lives On."

The Mason Wind Symphony and Vocal Studies Students, Mason Spiritual Ensemble will join local church choirs and elementary school choirs in a performance of gospel, spirituals, jazz and original compositions. The concert is designed to honor the legacy of Martin Luther King, Jr. and other African-American leaders.

Hayfield's Overstreet Shows Toughness in Return to States

Junior wins 6A North region bars title, qualifies for states in all-around.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

Hayfield's Molly Overstreet is no stranger to success in high school gymnastics, having captured state championships on vault and bars.

On Feb. 11, the junior earned a return trip to states by placing third in the all-around at the 6A North region meet, including a first-place finish on bars. She'll have the opportunity to add to her state championship collection on Feb. 21 at Patriot High School.

While Overstreet has a successful history at states, simply securing a berth in the 2015 competition required multiple displays of toughness.

Constant back pain caused by years of competitive gymnastics limited Overstreet throughout the regular season. Despite discomfort that, on a scale of 1-10, Overstreet described as a 6 when competing, she won the Conference 6 bars championship and qualified for regionals in the all-around.

OVERSTREET'S PHYSICAL TOUGHNESS had carried her one step closer to a shot at defending her state bars title. During the 6A North region championship meet on Feb. 11, Overstreet showed she's mentally tough, as well.

Conference 6 gymnasts check in before their bar routines during the 6A North region championship meet on Feb. 11 at Lake Braddock Secondary School.

After an equipment malfunction in the main gym during the third rotation at Lake Braddock Secondary School, the uneven bars were moved into a snug gymnastics room. Overstreet and the rest of the competing Conference 6 gymnasts were on vault at the time and would compete on bars during the evening's final rotation.

"When I first found out the bars had broke, I was a little freaked out and concerned since I had already warmed up on them," Overstreet wrote in an email. "I knew I couldn't let it affect my bar routine, though."

When the final rotation arrived, Overstreet was fifth in the competition order. Seconds into her routine, after Overstreet shot from the upper bar to the lower, there was another equipment malfunction and the judges ordered Overstreet to stop her routine. "Right after I did my shoot over, one of the bar tensions came loose, causing the bars to jolt," Overstreet wrote. "I heard one of the judges say 'stop,' so I got down."

How did she react to the stoppage?

"It was a little nerve-wracking to have to stop and start over, knowing the bars had just come loose," Overstreet wrote, "but, again, I knew I just had to do it."

With roughly 60 parents, coaches, gymnasts and others watching from a crowded viewing area, Overstreet bounced off the springboard, grabbed the upper bar and went through her routine.

The result: a score of 9.775, the top score in any event that night, and a region championship. "It always makes me feel extremely happy," Overstreet wrote, "knowing all the hard work and pain has paid off."

Along with her first-place finish on bars, Overstreet placed fifth on beam (9.05), seventh on floor (9.475) and finished 31st on vault (8.675).

She finished third in the all-around with a total of 36.975. The top four qualify for states.

Washington-Lee's Sophie Hatcher won the all-around with a score of 37.65, followed by Yorktown's Bella Kane (37), Hayfield's Molly Overstreet (36.975) and McLean's Lizzy Brown-Kaiser (36.95).

SOUTH COUNTY sophomore Collea Burgess, last year's all-around champion, attended this year's region meet but did not compete. Burgess said her club coaches (Apollo Gymnastics) did not want her to compete. McLean won the team title with a score of 144.425. Battlefield earned the other state berth with a score of 141.025.

Three-time defending region champion Washington-Lee placed third with a score of 139.525.

Overstreet won a share of the state vault title as a freshman, but suffered a concussion while attempting a Yurchenko as a sophomore (she bounced back from the concussion to earn the 2014 state bars title, setting a VHSL record with a score of 9.925). Since the injury, Overstreet vaults with a lower degree of difficulty during competition. She said she will not increase the difficulty of her vault at states.

Overstreet's toughness helped her get back to states. Now she wants to have some fun. "My goals for states," she wrote, "are to do the best I can, have fun, and hit four for four on every event!"

THE CONNECTION

Trailing 2-1 with seconds remaining in the 182-pound region final, Robinson wrestler Cole DePasquale masterfully timed his escape from defeat.

Starting from bottom position, DePasquale timed his lunge perfectly with the referee's starting whistle and worked free from Hayfield's Antonio Agee with 6 seconds remaining in overtime, earning one point for an escape while forcing an ultimate tiebreaker.

DePasquale would secure the win with another escape, capturing his second region championship with a 3-2 victory on Feb. 14 at Centreville High School.

"You go when [the referee] inhales — right before he exhales in the whistle," DePasquale said. "You've got to time it just right. I'm glad I got a head start on him and I was really fortunate."

DePasquale received a cut above his right eye during the first day of the regional tournament. The cut re-opened during his match against Agee, leading to multiple blood-time stoppages.

DePasquale at first had gauze placed over his right eye and eventually had a wrap around his head, limiting his peripheral vision. DePasquale, who missed nine months due to injury, also battled fatigue, having been back with the Rams for less than a month.

"I knew Agee was going to be tough; I knew he was a really good wrestler," DePasquale said. "I'm just glad with my limited training

Lake Braddock's Ryan Haskett (126) captured the third region title of his high school wrestling career on Feb. 14 at Centreville High School.

I was able to come away with the win." Robinson's Austin Riggs won the 145-pound title, beating Osbourn Park's David Sniffen, 10-3. DePasquale and Riggs helped the Rams finish third in the team standings with a score of 141. Battlefield won the team title with a score of 188.5, and Osbourn Park placed second (142.5).

Hayfield finished ninth (83), South County 10th (77), and Lake Braddock 11th (69).

Lake Braddock's Ryan Haskett captured his third region championship, finishing atop the 126-pound bracket.

Haskett defeated Annandale's Alex Joya, 2-1.

"It was a low-scoring match," Haskett said, "but I felt I was in control the whole time."

Haskett, who finished state runner-up at 120 in 2014, said he is motivated by the way last season ended.

"Every day I think about last year [and how] I was runner-up," Haskett said. "[I will likely have] the same kid [Colonial Forge's Joshua Nail) this year [in] the state finals. [It] motivates me every day. This time I'm gonna win it."

Other individual winners include: Patriot's Killian Cardinale (106), Centreville's Victor Echeverria (113), Battlefield's River Curtis (120), Westfield's Justin Yorkdale (132), Ryan Yorkdale (138) and Austin Knies (285), McLean's Conor Grammes (152) and Mack McCune (170), West Potomac's Joshua Love (160), Centreville's Tyler Love (195) and Annandale's Tony Gibbs (220).

Love, the defending 195-pound state champion, received the tournament's Most Outstanding Wrestler award, and was recognized for pinning three opponents in a combined 2 minutes, 6 seconds.

The state meet is scheduled for Feb. 20-21 at Robinson Secondary School.
