‘Another Step in a Long Ladder’

Fairfax County pays $2.95 million to settle John Geer wrongful death case.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

More than seven months after the Geer family lawyer Michael Lieberman filed a $12 million wrongful death civil suit in Circuit Court against Fairfax County Police, the two sides reached a $2.95 million settlement, announced Tuesday, April 21.

The suit sought damages from Fairfax County Chief of Police Edwin Roessler, Jr. and other officers and supervisors related to the killing of John Geer on Aug. 29, 2013. Police had come to Geer’s Springfield home after receiving a domestic dispute call. After a 40-minute conversation with officers, Geer, who was standing in his doorway with arms raised and resting on the frame, was shot and killed by PFC Adam Torres, according to police.

Fairfax County, citing ongoing investigations of the incident, released little information to the public or the family until an order from Fairfax Circuit Court judge Randy Bellows finally prompted action, including divulging the name of the officer who fired the shot, on Jan. 21, 2015.

FILES RELEASED from the Police Department’s own investigation into the incident include an account from Torres that he saw Geer’s hands lower suddenly towards his waist when he shot him.

Investigators learned on the same day Geer died, Aug. 29, 2013, that at least five witnesses including the police officer talking to Geer at the instant he was shot, disputed Torres’s version of events. None of the other witnesses saw Geer’s hands move below his head.

“Now that the family knows who killed John and knows the facts and the unjustifiable decisions that led to this tragedy, the family wants to put this legal battle behind them so they can attempt to move on,” said Geer family attorney Michael Lieberman following the settlement.

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors chairman Sharon Bulova said in Tuesday’s release: “I am pleased that a fair settlement has been reached and I hope this may bring some measure of closure to the family of John Geer.”

Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) echoed the sentiment in an interview, saying “Although nothing can replace the loss of John Geer, the big thing is this brings closure to the family that’s been through a very difficult ordeal. Based on what we had in front of us, this is the right decision.”

John’s father Don Geer responded that John Geer’s father Don spoke at a meeting of the Virginia Citizens Coalition for Police Accountability held in the Martha Washington Library in Alexandria.

Sal Culosi, father of Dr. Salvatore Culosi who was shot by a Fairfax County Police officer, addressed Don Geer at the April 21 meeting of the Virginia Citizens Coalition for Police Accountability.

Jeff Stewart, a friend of John Geer who witnessed him being shot, plans to push the ad hoc commission reviewing Fairfax County Police Department policies to discuss creation of an independent citizen’s oversight board to look at police incidents.

Nick Beltrante, executive director of the Virginia Citizens Coalition for Police Accountability and member of the Fairfax County ad hoc commission to review police policies for disclosure of information and use of force, speaks at a Coalition meeting held April 21 at the Martha Washington Library in Alexandria.

while the settlement will provide some financial stability to Geer’s two daughters, it doesn’t go far enough.

“This is another step in a long ladder of steps to get things accomplished,” Don Geer said in an interview. “It’s just one of many. As far as I’m concerned, until charges are pressed with Torres, it won’t be a closure. ... Fairfax has still done nothing as far as he’s concerned.

He’s still on the doggone payroll. I’m paying his salary. That’s really quite disgusting.”

“I understand Mr. Geer’s frustration,” said Bulova in an email. “A criminal charge would have to come from either the Commonwealth Attorney who is an elected official, independent of the Board of Supervisors, or the Justice Department. I am not happy with how long it is taking for a decision, one way or another.”

One step Bulova and the supervisors have taken is the creation of an ad hoc commission to review police policies for release of information and use of force, comprising lawyers, academics, members of the media, citizens and police representatives.

Its first, largely introductory meeting was held at the Fairfax County Government Center March 23.

Its second meeting is scheduled for the same location on April 27.

“While the family is hopeful that the recently created public commission will result in meaningful changes,” Lieberman said, “it remains important that the residents of Fairfax County continue to demand actual change from county officials as to the police department’s use of force, its lack of transparency and accountability, as well as many other issues that have come to light through this tragedy.”

Jeff Stewart, a close friend of John and Don Geer, who witnessed Geer being shot and now sits on the ad hoc commission, believes the case “is half over” with the settlement.

“We still have an officer that hasn’t been held accountable for his actions,” Stewart said. “I hope that people don’t forget about it.

“Money doesn’t solve the problem,” he continued. “It helps the girls out long term, but money doesn’t hold anyone accountable.

For me it doesn’t bring a lot of closure. John would still be dead, no officer would still be accountable, we’re right back where we were when Culosi was shot and [David] Masters was shot.” Both died in Fairfax County police-related shootings.

THE COMMISSION is scheduled to make recommendations for Fairfax County Police policy changes to the Board of Supervisors in October.

Best and Brightest?

Some say unbalanced admissions demographics at Northern Virginia's top high school speaks to system-wide equity problems.

Consider: 70.2 percent Asian, 20.7 percent White, 5.1 percent Multiracial/Other, 2.4 percent Hispanic, 1.6 percent Black: This is the ethnic breakdown of the 493 students admitted to the 2019 class of the Fairfax County Public Schools magnet institution Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology.

The Fairfax County released the school's admissions information on March 31. Of the 2,841 students who applied, 51 percent were Asian, 29.7 percent White, 7.3 percent Hispanic, 7.1 percent Black and 5.1 percent Multiracial/Other.

Approximately 78 percent of admitted students are from Fairfax County and 22.3 percent are from Arlington, Loudoun and Prince William counties and the City of Falls Church.

"To me, it's the canary in the coal mine about how Fairfax County educates its children. If you're low income, you don't get the same education."

— Del. Scott Surovell (D-44)

The disparity drew criticism from Mount Vernon School Board representative Dan Storck.

"Admissions to Thomas Jefferson are not representative of the Fairfax County Public Schools population," Storck said, "and certainly not of the Mount Vernon District population. We have some serious issues about equity and how do we address that?"

Data on which feeder middle schools supplied which percentage of students to the new freshman class speaks more to the inequity. Mount Vernon-area Alexandria middle schools Whitman, Carl Sandburg and Hayfield were among 17 of a list of 26 feeder schools released by Fairfax County with the total number of admitted students to Jefferson redacted.

Spokesperson for Fairfax County Public Schools John Torre explained the redactions are because the numbers are low enough (fewer than 10 admitted) that individual students could potentially be identified.

"MAYBE WE OUGHT to rename the school 'Herndon-Falls Church Alternative School for the Gifted and Wealthy,'" said Del. Scott Surovell (D-44), referring to the feeder middle schools supplying the top quantities of students.

"To me, it's the canary in the coal mine about how Fairfax County educates its children," Surovell added. "If you're low income, you don't get the same education."

The release from Fairfax County Public Schools said 8 percent of applicants and 1.2 percent of those admitted qualify for free and reduced meals. Of all students in Fairfax County, by comparison, more than 28 percent receive free and reduced meals.

"Why is this such a significantly skewed distribution?" asked Fairfax Station resident Lolita Mancheno-Smoak, a candidate for School Board in 2011 and co-founder of the school children advocacy group Coalition of the Silence.

"If I go under the assumption we're a top-rated school system, everyone is receiving the same caliber and rigor of education at the advanced academic program centers and there's a fair and equitable process of identification of young people to be admitted into these centers."

Fairfax County's advanced academic program, or "AAP," includes numerous elementary schools and 12 middle schools where selected students take part in a more challenging curriculum with emphasis on higher intellectual performance. All nine of the schools with 10 or more students admitted to Thomas Jefferson are advanced placement program sites.

CARRIE HEILBRUN, Jefferson Class of 2015, first attended Silverbrook Elementary School in Fairfax Station then tested into the advanced academic program at Lorton Station Elementary School in third grade. She continued into the advanced academic program at Lake Braddock Secondary School, where teachers first told her and her parents Mark and Amy that they should look into applying to Jefferson.

Carrie said "fantastic" teachers at Lorton Station sparked her passion for science, technology, engineering and mathematics education.

Her mother Amy agreed that her "amazing" experience in elementary and middle school was crucial to preparing her to both enter and succeed at Jefferson. In the fall, Carrie will attend Yale University and participate on the women's swim team.

Amy Heilburn and Carrie acknowledge observing there is less ethnic diversity at Jefferson. After looking at the demographics release from Fairfax County Public Schools, "I was really shocked. absolutely floored," said Heilburn. "It just doesn't seem like it's possible, there's no way, this doesn't add up, is it our county?"

"I go back to it's what's leading up to it," Heilburn added. "What are those kids getting in elementary school?"

For Carrie, less balance in demographic numbers isn't as significant as the quality of appreciation for for the cultures and ethnicities present at her school, particularly through a plethora of "culture clubs" like Persian, Black student union and Chinese honor society.

"I'm proud of how each culture is represented so strongly," Carrie said, "even if the numbers aren't as large for some. You definitely won't feel alone if you apply to TJ from one of those underrepresented cultures."

The question then is whether as public school students across the county, all who are objectively intelligent enough have the same chance as Carrie to propel themselves towards the school that consistently ranks at or near the top of high schools nationwide.

"There's no guarantee of getting into Thomas Jefferson," said Storck, "but we have have to ensure students have equitable opportunity to get in, and I don't believe we're doing that satisfactorily."

It's not that there have been no efforts by the county to help underrepresented populations, Storck conceded. The "Young Scholars" program in 82 schools is aimed at identifying "potential

Who Pays for a Mistake?

To the Editor:

So the agreement was reached to pay John Geer's family just under $2.95M for the mistake of a police officer. My heart goes out to the family.

But I am concerned about the payment.

Why are taxpayers responsible to pay for this? Where is the statute that justifies this?

I pay over five digits in real estate tax, personal property tax, car registration fees, licensing fees, and who-knows-how much in sales tax.

But the Board of Supervisors pays millions to a victim of a mistake; yet the roads I have to drive on are still full of lumps, bumps, cracks, and potholes. Where is the money for that? What gives?

TJ Reflects Economic Divide

high achievers” from these groups, according to Torre.

JEFFERSON ADMISSIONS Director Jeremy Shughart said in a statement that last fall the school’s admissions office created an advisory committee tasked with “looking at a variety of admissions components and making recommendations for possible adjustments to future admissions cycles.”

This is a continuation of ongoing debating of modifying the school’s admissions policy, the most recent updates to which Torre said were in 2013.

“The policy now states that students (semi-finalists) will undergo a comprehensive, holistic process that assesses their ability to meet the rigors of the TJ curriculum and the potential to be effective contributors to the school’s learning experience,” he said in an email.

Before that, he said, all the admission components were scored independently of each other and then added together for a final numerical score by which the top students were chosen to be offered admission.

The class of 2013 was comprised of:

Ethnicity—Applied—Accepted

White—1296 (44.2%)—175 (36.5%)

Black—173 (5.9%)—8 (1.7%)

Hispanic—188 (6.4%)—6 (1.3%)

Alaskan/American Indian—9 (0.3%)—1 (0.2%)

Asian/Pacific Islander—1097 (37.5%)—260 (54.3%)

Multiracial—163 (5.6%)—28 (5.8%)

Other—3 (0.1%)—1 (0.2%)

Total—2929 (100.0%)—479 (100.0%)

A DECADE EARLIER, near the end of 2003, the School Board appointed a “Blue Ribbon Commission” group of experts to review Jefferson’s admissions practices. The commission’s recommendations led to a revised admissions process that affected the 2004-2005 class of applicants.

The class of 2003 was comprised of:

Ethnicity—Applied—Accepted

White—1590 (61.9%)—297 (69.1%)

Black—146 (5.7%)—7 (1.6%)

Hispanic —105 (4.1%)—10 (2.3%)

Alaskan/American Indian—3 (0.1%)—1 (0.2%)

Asian/Pacific Islander—583 (22.7%)—93 (21.7%)

Multiracial—94 (3.6%)—16 (3.7%)

Other—49 (1.9%)—6 (1.4%)

Total—2570 (100.0%)—430 (100.0%)

Elizabeth Schultz, who represents the Springfield District on the School Board, thinks the revisions haven’t measured up to their intended effects.

“I think we have fiddled and tweaked consistently the admissions practice to the detriment of the quality of students headed to TJ,” she said. “In the end, we have contorted the process so far as to water down what it means to achieve at an academic rigor level necessary to be a successful stu-

Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology added a Monticello-esque dome in the first phase of its renovation project.

dent for all four years at TJ.”

Furthermore, she doesn’t know if leveling the playing field for potential applicants is necessarily the right answer.

“Should we be increasing the rigor of the K-12 math curriculum?” Schultz said. “Absolutely. Rigor and tracking of sustained rigor in math curriculum beginning in elementary schools needs to be improved.”

School Board members other than Storck and Schultz didn’t respond to requests for interviews.

“Could we broaden student participation in higher level math courses earlier?” Schultz added. “I think we could. Does there need to be a systemic delivery of the curriculum across the division? Without a shadow of a doubt.” Schultz referenced a recent School Board work session where a math component audit was discussed.

For Jefferson admissions, Schultz favors a simpler, merit-based evaluation separated from name, school (and advanced academic program) gender and demographics. The viewpoint of bringing in the most objectively qualified applicants is one shared by Liz Bradsher of of Clifton, who represented the Springfield District on the School Board from 2008 to 2012.

“It’s about the best and brightest in Fairfax County, students who are innately bright,” Bradsher said of the image of Jefferson.

Admissions director Shughart was not available to comment for this story; however, his statement continued: “FCPS will continue to work on increasing diversity at TJHSST and will continue to pursue outreach efforts to ensure talented underrepresented populations of students with a passion for math and science consider, apply to and attend TJHSST as their high school option.”

According to Torre, some efforts already being implemented include information sessions about the Jefferson for rising eighth grade students and their families, explaining some of the programs, admissions process and extracurricular activities. These sessions should engage the other participating school districts as well as all Fairfax County middle, secondary and elementary schools, Torre said.

Protecting Student Privacy

Protecting student privacy under Virginia Code § 2.2-3705.4.(1) as well as the federal Family Education Rights and Privacy Act, Fairfax County Public Schools spokesman John Torre said, is the goal with withholding the data. “Without permission of the student, families, it’s not a place we’re going to go,” he said.

“When FCPS publishes reports on student achievement or shares student data,” Torre added in an email, “FCPS must apply disclosure avoidance strategies to prevent unauthorized release of information about individual students.”

Dr. Priscilla M Regan, acting senior associate dean of the George Mason University School of Policy, Government and International Affairs, said this cautious practice is “definitely typical” of what many institutions are doing.

“Health care, education, anything where you’re dealing with anything that could be considered sort of sensitive and personally identifiable — it’s really likely there will be more of this as it’s becoming easier to identify people,” she said.

Regan’s take is Fairfax County has likely made a calculation as to the line at which they feel individual students become “re-identifiable” and privacy becomes a concern under Virginia Code and federal law.

She added in her interpretation of the threat to students: “An indication of their scholastic achievement, their sense of how they might see themselves, the risk they’ve taken in taking the Thomas Jefferson exam, whether you’re admitted or not admitted, that’s the parents of children in schools’ decision. It’s up to them to reveal that information.”

‘She Was Love’

Community celebrates the life of Karen Brown.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

Springfield resident Sam Martin remembers Karen Brown as the exemplary neighbor. “She was a wonderful friend who wouldn’t drive by the house without stopping,” he said. “She was always welcoming you in, and a fantastic cook.”

More than just a neighbor, Brown was a force in the community, as founder of the nearly 30-year-old support and outreach organization for disadvantaged students in Fairfax County Kristi’s Christmas, an advocate for organ and tissue donation, and an Arlington Lady at Arlington National Cemetery.

BROWN, a 74-year-old realtor, died March 25, 2015 at Fairfax Hospital of complications from cancer, according to a release from the West Springfield Rotary Club.

Hundreds celebrated her life Saturday, April 18 in the auditorium of West Springfield High School.

“When people walked out of the room there was a sense of wow, she touched so many lives,” said Kyle McDaniel, a member of the Rotary Club and policy director for supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield). “In one word, she was genuine: salt of the earth, always the person that would give you her honest opinion on something.”

For Martin, the word that resonated most came from her son Allen’s speech on Saturday.

“What personifies and defines her,” he said, “she was love. Everything she did involved love for her family, community, for Rotary, the children, the underprivileged.”

Brown created Kristi’s Christmas to honor her daughter who died in a car accident that same year. The organization has helped provide students with clothing, food and school supplies, as well as set up mentorships for students receiving aid with West Springfield High School students.

“She really took a tragedy and turned it into something I don’t think she ever thought it would become, that’s impactful and positive in West Springfield, the whole South County community,” said McDaniel.

Springfield resident Ed Linz used to live across the street from the Browns; now he’s only two blocks away. Their friendship intensified as Linz went through a heart transplant operation in 1994. The Browns had been through a similar organ-sharing circumstance with Kristi (several of hers were donated after she died) and they were able to provide Linz “a lot of moral support,” he said.

Together, Linz and Brown did over 30 talks about organ and tissue donation. “I would talk as a recipient how wonderful it was,” Linz said. “And Karen would talk from the perspective of the donor’s mother. It really helped her and her family with this very difficult loss of their own daughter.”

“It’s just such a tremendous loss,” Linz continued, “not only on a personal basis, but from the community, the incredible amount of good Karen did.”

I don’t know of anyone else that’s done as much for the community as Karen Brown, which includes most of our public servants, I might add.”

Brown is survived by her husband Col. Lloyd W. Brown, Jr. (U.S. Air Force Ret.), daughter M. Kimberly Brown, son Allen L. (Audra) Brown and three grandchildren, all in the Washington, D.C. area; her sister, Sandra Ebling in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and sister Sonja Kropff in Hobe Sound, Fla.

THE ROTARY CLUB of West Springfield is encouraging contributions to the foundation for Kristi’s Christmas sent to P.O. Box 2097 Springfield, VA 22152, or the Washington Regional Transplant Community (www.beadonor.org).

OPINION

Connection Papers Win Awards

Variety of coverage honored at annual Virginia Press Association conference.

On Saturday, April 18, a group of journalists from the Connection Newspapers traveled to Roanoke for the annual Virginia Press Association event to collect awards for business reporting, government writing, writing about health, science and the environment, feature writing, sports writing, column writing, obituaries, cartoons, entertainment pages and writing, public safety writing, editorial pages and writing, page design, informational graphics and more.

A look at the themes of some winning entries gives some insight into the mission at the Connection: to tell stories of significance, using reporting, data and analysis while getting to the heart of why the issues matter in local lives. In a time that we, like all newspapers, are functioning with reduced resources, it helps affirm that the effort can make a difference.

Bonnie Hobbs won for ongoing coverage of a family's efforts to provide the best life for a son they call "not special needs, but a special person," and a second award for coverage of issues related to affordable housing and homelessness.

Judges call Michael Pope's business reporting "first-rate, data-driven reporting and analysis on important issues." Stories on driving habits, cesarean deliveries and the Affordable Care Act are called "well-researched, clearly written and engaging. The use of real-live people high up in stories to illustrate makes for very compelling material."

Vernon Miles won for breaking news coverage of Arlington's first same sex marriage, being "on the scene of a local event that has local, statewide and national significance. ... The story is multi-sourced; has a strong lead that gives readers a sense of the scene; places the event in historic context; and captures the celebratory feel of the event."

On Pope government reporting: "Rather than regurgitating official statements, the reporter tells people's stories to illuminate the consequences of government decisions. This represents a model for all government reporting."

On Marilyn Campbell's reporting for Wellbeing: "These articles amount to personal guidance in the best sense of the term."

Even in recreation and entertainment, our mission is to provide our readers with the information they need to have fun, and our annual update to the "Insiders Guide to the Parks," brainchild of Jean Card, is designed to do that.

What are we missing? We rely on our readers to let us know. We invite your story ideas, your tips, your letters to the editor, calendar listings, photos of mothers for Mother's Day and fathers for Fathers Day, and more. Jon Roetman, The Vienna/Oakton Connection — Sports Writing Portfolio, First Place. Madison's Koshuta Scores 39 Against 'Idol' Floyd; Oakton Girls' XC Repeats as State Champs; Madison Volleyball Drops Heartbreaker in State Final. Judge's comments: Strong and clear writing and excellent storytelling helps game stories feel more like features. Excellent work.

Victoria Ross, Oak Hill/Herndon Connection — Government Writing, First Place. Let Sun Shine on Virginia's Financial Disclosure Laws, Mr. Horejsi Goes to Richmond; Bulova: 'This Will Be a Challenging Budget.' Judge's comments: An engaging look at a lobbyist who fights for the little guy; an entertaining story on a political candidate, helping readers put the upcoming election into context; one of the better budgeting stories I've seen lately that helps readers understand how the county's budgeting process is going to cost them more money. The supporting sidebars help bring the message home.

Joan Brady, Great Falls Connection — Column Writing, Second Place. No, I'm Not a Parent; I Just Act Like One; Small Acts of Kindness; Nurturing Happy Memories. Judge's comments: Brady draws on her wealth of experience with the foster parent system to write empathetically but authoritatively on family ties. And she does so with humanity and insight. Her writing combines depth and subtlety with eloquence of expression. In some senses, her subject matter is narrow. But viewed through a different filter, it is universal. She writes engagingly on a consistent basis.

Marilyn Campbell, Chantilly Connection — Health, Science and Environmental Writing, Third Place. Spiritual Wellness in the New Year; Consistent Bedtimes Aid Children; How To Age in Place Safely; Judge's comments: These articles amount to personal guidance in the best sense of the term. They should serve as very helpful resources for readers of a variety of ages. In concise manner, they effectively made the concepts clear and applicable to the reader. The aging in place article was particularly relevant and insightful, the childhood sleep story was unlike anything I'd ever read (and I have two kids) and really summed up how a specific approach to children's health makes sense. The spiritual health article was unusual, refreshing to see, and I love the variety of sources and comments.

Bonnie Hobbs, The Fairfax Connection — Personal Service Writing, Third Place. Affordable Housing Lack Can Lead to Hunger; 'Help Us, Will You Please?' City of Fairfax to Tackle Affordable Housing; Council 'Honored to Support this Project;' 'Dream Come True' for Lamb Center. Judge's comments: Solid writing and good follow-through on the housing issues. The writer did a good job of including income and free lunch data without breaking the flow of the story.

Mary Kimm, The McLean Connection — Editorial Writing, Third Place. Trending in the Right Direction; Virginia Proves Elections Matter; More Affordable Housing Needed; Tragic Consequences; Deadly Medicaid Debacle. Judge's comments: This submission consists of five well-articulated and well-grounded pieces tackling access to affordable housing and health care, a pair of closely related state and national issues with important local ramifications. The work combines passion with a persuasive factual underpinning.

Sharing Health Tips in Springfield

Springfield Community Day brings together health and fun.

Northern Virginia Community College students got a chance to showcase their knowledge about health and fitness during Springfield Community Day held at the NVCC Medical Campus on Saturday, April 18.

Sarah Young and her classmates Trista Johnson and Andrea Diaz, dispensed information about the importance of dental hygiene and urged everyone to visit the dentist every six months. "Toothbrushing can't reach everywhere. A lot of dental issues you don't feel or you don't have pain until it's too late and you lose that tooth," said Young.

Also set up during the event is an exercise field with equipment such as Bozu balls. Strength and conditioning coach James Livingston, of One Step Beyond Fitness, said that one should always find time to exercise. He said long work hours should not be an excuse to not exercise. "There are some workouts that only take 15 minutes...It's about finding time for yourself," he said.

Registered dietitian Janet Sass, who teaches nutrition and food science, prepared healthy and delicious foods to show how to choose foods and prepare them. "Hummus, coupled with a chip or pita, it's a complete protein," she said.

She also said that healthy eating and food preparation does not have to be expensive. "$0.77 for a can of corn and $0.77 for a can of black beans, a few radishes and some helping of peppers. You can eat inexpensive but you have to have knowledge to put all those together," she said.

NVCC Medical Camps offers classes in dental hygiene, radiography, medical lab technology and phlebotomy, nursing, physical therapy and more. With the increase in the use of technology and the influx of patients from different backgrounds, NVCC's Michelle Chaudoir said that students are trained both in the technology and the diversity of patients. "They get a lot of preparation on how to handle [these] at NOVA medical campus."

Budget Gets Marked Up

Supervisors scheduled to adopt budget next Tuesday, April 28.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

The Board of Supervisors marked up the proposed budget Tuesday, April 21, by increasing school funding, adding key economic growth positions and restoring money to suggested cuts to "critical" human service programs Tuesday morning, April 21, according to its Chairman Sharon Bulova.

The board is scheduled to formally adopt the FY 2016 Budget next Tuesday, April 28.

See the Mark-up Package at <http://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/dmb/>

"This is a responsible budget that responds to the needs of our community and takes into account the feedback we received during public hearings, town hall meetings, letters, emails and phone calls from our constituents," Bulova said. More than 200 people testified and the board listened to more than 14 hours of testimony from the public between April 7-9.

"Speakers during our three days of public hearings adopted as their theme a call to invest in Fairfax and that is what this mark-up package seeks to do," said Bulova. The marked-up budget maintains the current tax rate at $1.09, implements a new compensation plan for county employees with an average increase of approximately 3.6 percent (including a "market rate adjustment of 1.1 percent), comes close to fully funding the School Board's transfer request, and restores a number of Human Services reductions proposed in the original advertised budget, Bulova said.

Because of an increase in property assessments, the average homeowner will pay $185 more in property taxes, even though the tax rate will not increase.

Kimberly Adams, president of the Fairfax Education Association, responded immediately.

"FEA has rallied both in Fairfax and in Richmond to tell elected officials that the community wants greater investment in our community and our schools," said Adams. "Here in Fairfax, the Board of Supervisors has tied their own hands, apologized for this being an election year, and then said they 'wish they could do more.' Our schools are not funded by wishes; they are funded by a dedication to actually invest in Fairfax before more damage is done to our community."

Three supervisors voted against the marked-up package, including Pat Herrity (R), Michael Frey (R), and Linda Smyth (D).

"I am disappointed that not only did the board raise our citizens' taxes yet again, but the board majority failed to even make the easy decisions to even discuss reducing spending to address the $100 million shortfall we are facing in FY 2017," said Herrity. "Under this board's watch our homeowners have seen their tax bills go up by 16 percent in three years, our commercial vacancy rate has spiked to over 16 percent, ... but the board thought they deserved a pay raise for themselves," said Herrity.

"This is a responsible budget that responds to the needs of our community."

— Sharon Bulova, Chairman, Board of Supervisors

The revised budget restores the most critical Human Services reductions in the Advertised Budget, including Healthy Families, Parenting Education "Good Touch, Bad Touch" programs, mental health services in jail, and detox diversion positions. It also restores the Enforcement of the Grass Ordinance, Bulova said.

"The Advertised Budget as amended by these actions results in some changes that will make some folks happy, some relieved, and some disappointed," said Bulova.

"It is, however, a responsible package that: maintains our current tax rate at $1.09." The marked up budget comes close to fully funding the School Board's request with an increase of over $66 million (including funding for School Debt Service) over last year, Bulova said.

‘Seussical, Jr.’ on Springfield Stage

Northern Virginia Players is presenting “Seussical, the Musical Jr.” All of the favorite Dr. Seuss characters spring to life onstage in a musical extravaganza from Tony winners Lynn Ahrens and Stephen Flaherty.

Audiences will be transported from the Jungle of Nool, to Whoville, to the Circus McGurkus, as the Cat in the Hat tells the story of Horton, an elephant, who discovers a speck of dust containing tiny people called the Whos. JoJo, a Who child who gets... in trouble for thinking too many “thinks” and Horton develop a bond as Horton not only must protect the Whos from a world of naysayers and dangers, but must also guard an abandoned egg that’s been left in his care by Mayzie La Bird. Although Horton faces ridicule, danger, kidnapping, and a trial, the intrepid Gertrude McFuzz never loses faith in him. With the help of Gertrude and JoJo, Horton emerges triumphant. Northern Virginia Players’ tradition of outstanding musicals will once again bring professional level theatre to the community. Seussical Jr marks the end of their fifth season and in their short tenure, Northern Virginia Players has become one of the most dynamic children’s theatre troupes in the D.C. Metro area. In keeping with Northern Virginia Players commitment to community service, part of the ticket proceeds will be donated to Jill’s House. Jill’s House assists children with special needs and their families in the D.C. Metro Area by providing safe, fun, and loving respite care. Seussical, Jr. will be held at Family Worship Center located at 7719 Fullerton Road, Springfield. Growing Expectations

THE CONNECTION

An Earth Day celebration wouldn’t be complete without ponies and food trucks. At least the combined Earth Day and Arbor Day event in Fairfax County, known as SpringFest Fairfax, wouldn’t.

Jen Cole, executive director of Clean Fairfax, expects those two attractions to be among the most popular of 40 to 45 vendors and exhibitors for children and adults at the day-long educational festival held April 25 on the grounds of the Workhouse Arts Center in Lorton.

“It’s all about clean water, clean air and sustainability,” Cole said. “It’s not just some event; it’s officially the county’s Earth Day.”

Clean Fairfax is a nonprofit organization that works in partnership with the Fairfax County Department of Public Works and Environmental Services to educate schools, businesses and other groups about sustainability and environmental issues. They host the event with several partners, but largely produce it from their own operating budget. Last year the cost to Clean Fairfax to put on the free public event was $35,000.

Pony rides are one of the popular staples returning to the 2015 SpringFest Fairfax held at the Workhouse Arts Center in Lorton.

OTHER VENDORS and presenters include representatives from the Fairfax County Park Authority, Fairfax Water, plant sales, seed exchange and other public works agencies.

“Stormwater, wastewater, forestry, recycling, all the Park Authority and nature centers — County agencies alone make this a great event,” said Cole. “They really go all out.” Educational programming such as an environmental passport project will be mixed with entertainment like the ponies and a moon bounce.

Cole is particularly hyped for the return of Fairfax Water’s “water bar,” a hydration setup with wooden taps for pouring County water into commemorative, reusable cups. Otherwise there are no-bottle and limited paper policies in place on the campus.

“We encourage vendors to not give away anything that can become instant trash,” she said.

Of the roughly 15 food vendors, around half will be food trucks from around the region, including Washington, D.C.-based The Big Cheese, Good Grubbin’ fajitas from Ashburn and Teachers Making Dough-Nuts from the Fairfax Community Farmers’ Market.

Cole said the goal is to grow that element of the festival: “Food trucks, local food, farm-to-table — it all is really sustainable and resonates with people.”

Held for decades at the Northern Virginia Community College Annandale campus, the location switched to the Fairfax County Government Center when the campus was undergoing some development and construction. After two years, Board of Supervisors chairman Sharon Bulova suggested the event might be better situated at the Workhouse.

2015 SpringFest Fairfax at the Workhouse Arts Center on April 25.

“It’s a beautiful location and a really interesting place,” said Bulova, adding that the adaptive reuse of the former Lorton prison buildings “is a demonstration of recycling and sort of embodies our environmental agenda and goals.”

One of Bulova’s favorite aspects is also that the Workhouse artist studios are open for people to explore and even purchase artwork.

Since coming to the Workhouse in 2013, Cole said SpringFest Fairfax attendance doubled each year, with 5,000 people at last year’s event.

THE FESTIVAL will also include a food drive for the Lorton Community Action Center, which is asking specifically for dry breakfast cereal and individual packages of children’s snacks such as Goldfish or peanut butter crackers.

SpringFest Fairfax is scheduled to take place rain or shine on April 25, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Workhouse Arts Center in Lorton, located at 9518 Workhouse Way in Lorton. The event is free, though some activities require a $5 all-access wristband.

Send notes to the Connection at south@connectionnewspapers.com or call 703-778-9416. The deadline is the Friday prior to the next paper’s publication. Dated announcements should be submitted at least two weeks prior to the event.

Fairfax Pitcher Leckert Throws 3-Hit Shutout Against McLean

Rebels improve to 8-4 with 1-0 win over Highlanders.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

Fairfax pitcher Christian Leckert stepped off the mound, took a deep breath and regrouped.

The senior right-hander had a 1-0 lead against McLean in the bottom of the fourth inning, but outfielder Matt Collins had nearly put the Highlanders in front with a two-run homer. Collins' blast down the left-field line landed in the parking lot at McLean High School, but had curved foul. "... [I] thought about location [and] how I can get him out," Leckert said. "So I just kept pitching [with a] short memory."

Leckert responded by striking out Collins and getting Billy Gerhardt to fly out, ending the threat.

As it turned out, Collins' long foul ball was the closest McLean would get to scoring against the Fairfax hurler.

Leckert, who will play for James Madison University, tossed a three-hit shutout and led the Fairfax baseball team to a 1-0 victory over McLean on April 17.

Leckert walked two and struck out six. The Highlanders did not have runner reach third base.

"[Leckert] is a heck of a pitcher, obviously," Fairfax head coach Rick Freeman said. "Everybody knows that. When he throws his curveball for strikes consistently, that's the kind of game he gets. He's able to pitch backward to a lot of hitters and get them off balance early in the count and then his fastball looks a lot better than it is. He's a heck of a pitcher."

"When he throws his curveball for a strike, he's really lights out."

Freeman praised Leckert's ability to bounce back after Collins' long foul ball.

"That's who he's become," the head coach said. "He's a senior now and he pitches with a lot of confidence and a lot of leadership. I don't think he was rattled by it. I think he looked at it and said I can still get this guy, I've just got to make a good pitch."

A two-out single by McLean's CJ Downey and a wild pitch by Leckert gave the Highlanders a runner in scoring position in the bottom of the seventh inning, but Leckert got Frank Minamino to ground out to end the game.

"He's an absolute workhorse," Fairfax shortstop Jason Waldman said about Leckert. "He's been doing this since sophomore year for us. He pretty much goes the distance every single time. It's fun to play behind him. He just gets groundballs, weak fly balls all the time. It's fun to watch."

McLean head coach John Dowling praised Leckert's effort, but said the Highlanders' inability to adjust contributed to their lack of production.

"All the credit in the world to Leckert," Dowling said. "He threw strikes and we did not come into the game with a strong approach and we did not adjust to what he was doing. If I'm him, I'm going to do the same thing: a lot of breaking balls that were effective."

What would Dowling have liked McLean batters to do differently?

"Adjust to a lot of breaking balls," Dowling said. "We were taking fastball swings in fastball counts and he was not throwing fastballs. And for seven innings, we continued to do the same thing. That is not acceptable."

While Leckert shut down the McLean lineup, the Highlanders found success by using four different pitchers against the Rebels.

Jon Clines, Charles Groppe, Downey and Gerhardt limited Fairfax to four hits, including none in the final three innings, but the Rebels managed to score the one run they needed.

Waldman, who will play for William & Mary, led off the top of the fourth with a double and advanced to third on a wild pitch. Senior third baseman Victor Danieletto then singled, driving in the winning run.

Waldman finished 2-for-3 with a pair of doubles. Sophomore Tommy Bradley had a single for the Rebels.

The win improved Fairfax's record to 8-4. The Rebels started the season with six consecutive victories, but lost four of their next five.

The Rebels will travel to face Yorktown at 6 p.m. on Thursday, April 23.

"This group is probably one of the more talented groups that have come through Fairfax in a while," Waldman said. "I think if we can play like we did tonight every single night, [there is] no reason why we shouldn't be taking a regional championship home."

Staged to Sell

Real estate agents give the lowdown on getting your home ready for the market.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

When a Burke family hired E. Diane Neustrand to sell their home, she did her standard walk-through of the house to assess it, but when she reached the dining room, she stopped cold.

"It was painted with three different shades of orange and accessorized with black, white and gold furniture," said Neustrand, a real estate agent with Long and Foster Real Estate, Inc. in Burke, Fairfax Station and Clifton.

First on Neustrand's chopping block: a pair of zebra print chairs. The boisterous wall colors were next.

"It wasn't harmonious at all," said Neustrand, who also works as a professional home stager. "We had to calm that down because orange is not a color that sells well. You want neutrals in paint and furniture, so potential buyers can visualize their own items in your home."

Residential real estate staging, the practice of preparing a home to go on the market for sale by making it aesthetically appealing, is credited with giving homes an advantage over the competition.

Staging can range from rearranging furniture, decluttering and painting the walls to furnishing a home in which the seller no longer resides.

The National Association of Realtors' 2015 Investment & Home Buyers Survey showed that staging can have a positive impact on the number of days a home sits on the market and the amount of money potential buyers a willing offer for the home.

"STAGED HOMES traditionally present themselves better than the competition by being clean, clutter-free and ready to show to prospective buyers," said Mona Bekheet, a real estate agent with McEneaney Associates, Inc. in McLean. "Home staging is decluttering, depersonalizing and preparing a seller's home to look like a model home so the potential buyers can see themselves living in the home."

The survey showed that 49 percent of agents say most buyers are affected by home staging, while a 2013 study by the Real Estate Staging Association showed staged homes sold 83 percent sooner than houses that weren't staged.

Realtors also believe buyers usually offer a 1-5 percent increase on the value of a staged home.

"Staged homes take less time on the market and they sell at the best price," said Bekheet. "Buyers view them as well cared for properties and appraisers are more likely to appraise staged homes at a full or higher value."

That increase can offset the expense of having a home professionally staged. Services, including consultations and furniture rental, can cost $250 to $2,000. Neustrand uses as many of the homeowners' possessions as she can to minimize out-of-pocket expenses.

"Since staging gives a home a clean, fresh, current look, it makes a home more attractive to buyers," said Betsy Schuman Dodek of Washington Fine Properties in Potomac, Md.

However, real estate agents say initiating conversations with homeowners about their homes and suggesting changes must be

Optimism for 2015 Real Estate Market

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

After what seemed to be an endless winter, spring has finally come calling, signaling the start of the year's first real estate high season. Homes trade hands all year long, but spring is often for buyers, seller, agents, brokers and lenders like those weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas; buyers at full speed searching out the best bargains and sellers looking to move their wares without having to resort to price-slashing sales tactics.

So far, area real-estate experts and the data from sources like the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors (NVAR), Movoto

Real Estate, and SmartCharts (powered by RealEstate Business Intelligence with data supplied from the MLS listing service) are all aligned in their assessment of the outlook for the 2015 market in Northern Virginia. Compared to a lackluster 2014 after a strong 2013, there's reason for optimism.

Veronica Seva-Gonzalez, NVAR board member and Realtor with Compass Real Estate, noted that the spring weather and positive housing market news had arrived simultaneously. "It's great to see how all of the numbers are up from last year and also from the beginning of this year," she said.

Across the board, the numbers do look positive. Combined data collected for the counties of Fairfax and Arlington, the cities of Alexandria, Falls Church and Fairfax and the towns of Vienna, Herndon and Clifton, show a first quarter increase of total units sold of just over 9 percent, with 3,657 units sold in 2015 compared to 3,352 the prior year. For the same period and for the same localities, days on the market (DOM) per unit actually rose in 2015 and the average ratio of sales price to list price showed marginal slippage, but Realtors and market analysts see the significant improvements in March 2015 numbers vs. March 2014 figures as an indicator of a healthy selling season ahead.

The March 2015 increases were seen in all sectors of the residential market, with “attached” homes like townhouses leading the way with a 3.6 percent uptick in average sales price. Condominiums came in at second place, with a 1.8 percent increase in the month compared to 2014. Single-family homes came in last for the March 2015 totals, but still better than the prior year by 0.7 percent.

Greatly increased inventory versus last year could be one factor in the more modest single-family home price increases. In 2015, 3,165 new properties came onto the market during the month, while only 2,656 were put on the books during that month last year. A total of 3,381 units were available to buyers in March this year compared to 3,011 last year.

“In some areas and some price ranges, there is definitely more choice,” said Reston Long and Foster Realtor Anita Lasansky. “Sellers are starting to get more confident.”

Realtor Jennifer Boyce, Long and Foster Gold Team, also noted that some buyers were starting to “come out from under,” having held on during the worst of the economic downturn. “Equities are looking stronger, so they can get back in, selling or buying.”

The data does vary around the region. Not all areas experienced an increase in sales prices in the month-to-month comparison. Falls Church City, for example, posted an increase in the numbers of units sold, but a 19.12 percent decrease in median sales price.

Arlington County, on the other hand, saw the largest increase in the March 2015 vs. March 2014 side-by-side; with 24.43 percent more closed sales and a 10.68 percent increase in the median sales price.

Janet Gresh of the Gresh Group in McLean says that her experience so far this year is in line with those numbers. “Arlington is definitely hot right now, close in and enough quality properties that you see serious competition.”

Lasansky gave the numbers she is seeing for Reston a “thumbs up,” as well. “We’re up about 15 percent in the first quarter over last year and about 5 percent up in median sales price.”

In the City of Alexandria, the median sales price rose by more than 10 percent in March on an increase of 14.37 percent in closed sales.

Fairfax County and Fairfax City both saw more moderate improvements in median sales prices at 2.79 percent and 2.00 percent respectively. For Fairfax City, the positive takeaway from the March figures is that the median sales price rose despite a drop in total closed sales of more than 50 percent compared to last year.

While all of the data provided is considered preliminary and still subject to revision, the numbers available to date suggest a good start to the year – and barring the unforeseen negative impact – a positive 2015 real estate market.

Plus-column numbers on the books, the collective optimism of many of the area’s top real estate professionals, and respected organizations like the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors adding that “2015 may be different because of its more sustainable, positive market direction,” all offer signs that the real estate market in the region is looking at a healthy year. Any number of factors, including the ever-present threat of the Federal Reserve raising interest rates sometime this year, could stall or even reverse the positive trends.

Whatever comes along, realtors like Kathleen Quintarelli, Weichert Realtors, Burke, think we will deal with it. “People have kind of stopped believing that the rates will go up again and when they do it will be a shock and have its impact, but we will adjust to that new norm, as well.”

With the latest figures in hand, we asked some of our area’s top real estate professionals for their perspectives, and to offer some expert advice to buyers and sellers alike.

❖ Virgil Frizzell, Ph.D., MBA, realtor Long and Foster Reston: “I think the March housing statistics indicate a healthier spring housing market in the footprint of the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors than for the rest of the country. The continuing improvements ... are good for both homebuyers and home sellers and likely indicate a more balanced market. Buyers should benefit from increasing inventory, still low mortgage [rates] and easing credit standards. The year-over-year increase in housing units sold and modestly rising median prices may embolden sellers.” (Frizzell is the 2015 NVAR Chairman-Elect.)

❖ Mary Bayat, owner of Bayat Realty in Alexandria and 2015 NVAR Chair: “Finally, many buyers who had distressed house sales years ago could have enough repaired credit to qualify for a new loan. They will get more house for their money now than if they wait. We expect the Federal Reserve to raise interest rates later this year. Another local indicator is that active listings have risen more than 25 percent.”

❖ Jennifer Boyce, Long and Foster Gold Team Burke/Fairfax Station/Clifton: “Don’t price too aggressively in late spring or early summer is my advice. Homes that are well priced and in good condition will sell. The $500,000-$800,000 homes are in high demand. Homes that are priced over $1 million face a smaller and sometimes more exacting buyer base, not willing to compromise much and expecting top quality for their money.”

❖ Will Farnam, Long and Foster Falls Church: “I think the data so far for this year would be considered bright - not a boom - but strong. It’s a market that’s good for good properties, not good for just anything. There’s enough choice. One good sign is the traffic at Open Houses. The last two weekends I have had house-fulls, quite different from last year. Smaller down payments on many FHA and VA loans is helping, but despite some lending requirement easing, I find that buyers with credit problems are still struggling to get a loan.”

❖ Janet Gresh, The Gresh Group@Keller Williams: “The market is looking good, but it is still a bit more of an art than a science at times. If an under-$1 million home is priced right, I am starting to see multiple offers, especially in Arlington. ... In some of these areas, if the house doesn’t sell or have offers in the first two weekends, it could be a sign of trouble and time to re-evaluate. ... Don’t overprice and you may end up getting more than you ask for. I have experienced that recently.”

❖ Anita Lasansky, Long and Foster Reston: “It’s looking good, strong numbers over last year for Reston especially, what some call the ‘Silicon Valley of the East.’ Some homes are selling now in days, not weeks, if they are well-priced with updated kitchens and bathrooms. Those homes take top dollar and for the first time in years I am seeing multiple offers on those properties. The properties over $1.2 million are still sitting. Sellers should also be cautioned not to overprice based on the addition of the Metro Silver Line. I see that a lot of people are riding it, but it hasn’t had that much of an impact on house prices in the area, at least not yet, but some sellers are factoring in 5-10 percent in their list price based on the Metro.

❖ Kathleen Quintarelli, Weichert Realtors, Burke: “I’m excited. 2015 looks slightly better already. Open Houses are really packed. With interest rates staying so low, more choice, the easing up on credit requirements, and fewer short sales and foreclosures - all those factors are really giving the market energy. There’s just not enough inventory in some categories, especially anything around $350k - $450k. Anything in good condition in that price range can go in the first week. My advice to sellers: Price well, prepare your home and stage it. And have your photographs taken by a professional. If the potential buyer comes in and says “Wow! This place looks a lot better than the pictures on the internet!” then your agent - or you - have done something wrong. Sellers should be ready to buy, even the same day you see the house you want. That means pre-approval and preferably by a local lender that we can work with quickly, especially if you’re faced with multiple offers or counters.

handled delicately.

"You don't want to hurt someone's feelings by telling them that they need to move items or get rid of items like the wrong artwork or too much furniture," said Maria Smith of Arlington Realty in Arlington. "But the homeowner's objective should be to sell the home."

Staging helps when a home is too cluttered, or even if a house is already empty. It's also a good idea "for those with dated, mismatched furniture or too many pieces in a room," said Realtor Marsha Schuman of Washington Fine Properties. "For homes that don't have a traditional floor plan, staging helps a buyer see how the rooms can be laid out."

"Even if you have a large home, if your closets are over-stuffed or if you have too much furniture, a prospective buyer can't get a sense of the space and dimension of a room or visualize themselves in the home," said E.J. Stone, a real estate agent with Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage in Alexandria.

REMOVING ULTRA-PERSONAL ITEMS like family pictures or bills is another part of the staging process.

"You want to get a potential buyer to envision their things in the home," said Stone. "Neutrals can help with that. Those are things that a home stager can suggest."

"Staged homes traditionally present themselves better than the competition by being clean, clutter-free and ready to show to prospective buyers."

— Mona Bekheet, McEneaney Associates, Inc., in McLean

Less is often more in the home staging game, say Realtors. "I tell my clients to take stuff off the walls, rent a storage space and take all the stuff you don't need and put it into a storage unit, so it opens up more space," said Michael Richter, real estate agent for residential preferred properties at the Richter Group in Burke.

Realtors rank the living room as the number one room to stage, followed by the kitchen. Also in the top five rooms are the master bedroom, dining room and the bathroom.

"Your home should be a model home, like no one lives there," said Neustrand. "The bathroom counters should not have products or clutter. There should not be trash in the garbage can."

Trendy Bathroom Transformations

Designers share the hottest ideas in lavatory design.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Imagine stepping into a resort inside the comfort of your own home. Contemporary, spa-like bathrooms with clean lines and features such as floating vanities, open shelving, innovative storage and low-maintenance materials are on trend this year in bathroom remodeling projects.

When the main level master bathroom in a 1970s-era Reston home got a major facelift earlier this year, Dean Turner, of Evolution Design & Build in Reston was tasked with addressing structural issues as well updating the entire space.

"This bathroom had a sunken tub and shower combination that was leaking into the basement below," said Turner. "They wanted me to solve their water problems ... update their bathroom, and they were very interested in a floating vanity."

The floating, walnut piece was made by a local cabinetmaker and hovers 12 inches above the floor, and Turner was able to give the homeowners an abundance of storage by incorporating cabinetry into the vanity. A simple touch of the fingertip opens and closes its drawers and doors, eliminating the need for visible hardware. Motion detecting, LED lighting under the vanity is another convenience.

Turner's team removed the existing wall and floor tile, replacing it with scratch- and stain-resistant porcelain tile that has the appearance of natural stone, while the wall tiles were made in the image of natural wood.

"When you look at it," said Turner. "It looks just like hardwood flooring on the wall."

AFTER MOVING into a retirement community, an empty-nester couple decided to overhaul the builder-grade bathroom that came with their home. They enlisted the help of Stephanie Brick, of Nicely Done Kitchens and Baths in Springfield, who designed a contemporary space.

"The homeowners were looking for something that was calming and had a spa-like energy," said Brick. "They also wanted more storage, especially open storage for linens and displaying items."

Brick and the Nicely team installed cabinetry with open shelving over the toilet. The vanity has a quartz countertop with veins of blue and turquoise that bears a close resemblance to marble. "Those colors were carried through in an accent piece in the shower," said Brick.

The porcelain tile floor has a marble-like appearance.

"You get the beautiful look of marble, but you don't have the maintenance or the cost," said Brick. "The new bathroom has a much more spa-like aesthetic. It was very bland and vanilla and it needed a face lift."

When the owners of a contemporary home in Burke decided to remodel their master bathroom so that it matched the style of the rest of the house, they called on designer Cathy Gross, also of Nicely. She used porcelain tile on the walls accented with river rock stone, a material that she also used on the bathroom floor.

"They wanted to continue the calm, zen, contemporary feel in the remodel of their master bath," said Gross, who also designed the home's kitchen five years prior.

Connecting Outside to In

BY JOHN BYRD

"When we started this company twenty seven years ago, our core specialty was opening up views," said Craig Durosco, chairman and founder of Sun Design Remodeling. "Northern Virginians like their green backyards, so finding ways to connect the house with what's just outside your door is a strong local incentive—especially as spring unfolds into summer."

Homeowner expectation for better integrated outdoor spaces evolves with each season, he said. To accommodate, Sun Design professionals constantly assess emerging building technologies, code issues, design literature. "You are always learning," Durosco says. "Improving on the quality of what you stand for as a company is a constant motivator for everyone here."

By way of example, Durosco cites three recent trend-setting projects.

Poolside Pavilion, Outdoor Kitchen

Entertaining outdoors has become a primary recreational activity for Monte Zaben and family. Though he commutes regularly from his Fredericksburg home to an office in McLean, Zaben's weekends by the pool have become treasured quality time.

"The house was built to my requirements, but I hadn't thought much about the grounds," he says, "We added a saltwater pool a few years ago, only to realize that the back of the house was so sun-exposed...it was uncomfortable sitting outside."

Zaben set up a meeting with Sun Design.

From the start, the homeowner was impressed with plans for a shaded pavilion outside the home's lower level.

Under roof, a lounge area; a smaller closer-in footprint with a cozy poolside vista; an outdoor kitchen equipped with a traditional grill, a smoker and a power burner. When the summer guest list rises to fifty or more the vaulted canopy is a perfect spot for buffet tables.

"We use our outdoor space on just about every seasonable day of the year," Zaben says. "It's very much part of our lives now."

Screen Porch, Rear Decking

As Fairfax homeowner Joanne Alger tells it, Sun Design's solution to a previous problem was key to a new project.

Impressed with the outcome, the Algers now sought Durosco's ideas for a grander rear elevation indoor/outdoor component, one that would better connect the sprawling house with its six acre wooded setting.

The Algers embraced a Sun Design scheme with three main components: a 17-by-16-foot screen porch, a grilling deck, and a ground-level patio. The patio, in turn, segues to a hard-scape platform featuring an eight-foot stone hearth and comfortable seating. Overhead fans and portable heaters keep the outdoor room habitable in all but the coldest days of winter.

"It's our preferred gathering place now,

The outdoor kitchen is equipped with a grill and a power burner.

"Alger says. "And so comfortable we can use it from early spring to late fall."

Bringing the Outside Indoors

Nick Bonadies, Sun Design's Director of New Business Development, points to the 25-by-16-foot custom window wall in a newly remodeled Fairfax home as a kind of triumph of glazing technologies over the strong wind.

"Homeowners come to us for ideas that will open up space and invite visual continuum," he said.

Sun Design had converted Gini Mulligan's 2,200-square-foot 1960s split foyer home into a 4,238-square-foot French colonial complete with wrap-around porches, a new master bedroom suite addition, and a spacious gourmet kitchen with a jaw-dropping view of towering backyard trees.

"We bought the house over 20 years ago, mainly because of the lovely wooded setting," Mulligan said. "I then spent so many years gazing out of a small back window, trying to imagine how the house would feel if we had a better view." The scale of Mulligan's vision, a two-story window wall, presented feasibility questions.

A steel "moment" frame, unusual in a residential application, allows for as much as a 40 percent increase in unobstructed glass surface. "It all looks very delicate—but this window can withstand winds of up to 90 miles per hour," Bonadies said.
