At Burke Centre Station, Santa trains educate young riders about rail safety.

It was a typical scene at Burke Centre Station, a line of people waiting for the train. But these riders are not professionals dressed in business suits, reading the paper or engrossed on their phones writing important emails while waiting for their ride to work.

On Saturday, Dec. 12, these passengers were dressed in festive, holiday outfits or casual weekend wear, carrying unwrapped toys, ready to board VRE's Santa trains.

Jessica and Maddie, 4, Carroll, of Fairfax, came "to see Santa and give toys to kids that don't have any toys." Volunteers collected new, unwrapped toys for Toy for Tots as passengers boarded the train.

There are four scheduled boardings in Burke, with lines whimsically named Cupid Express, Elf Express, Frosty Express and Polar Express.

On the train, volunteers handed out candy canes and local choral groups, such as West Potomac High School's Soundsations, entertained riders.

Two sets of Santa Clauses walked the length of the train to greet the passengers. The Santas were sequestered in the middle car, with the windows covered in wrapping paper. They went out on each end when the train left the station.

Children also received a coloring book that educates them about rail safety, part of Operation Lifesaver. "Look, listen and live" is the message the organization tried to relay.

Last September, Maryland teen John DeReggi was struck by a train during a photo session by the train tracks. Federal Railroad Administration statistics noted an increase of 21.8 percent of fatalities caused by persons trespassing on railroad tracks and property in 2014, according to Operation Lifesaver.

The passengers on the Santa trains may be a little too young to traverse rail lines but it is never too early to teach them how to be safe. Lily Swoger, of Springfield, learned that one should never throw things out from the train.

Operation Lifesaver provides public education program to prevent collisions, injuries and fatalities on and around railroad tracks and crossings.

Partnership Launches 'Build a Village' Campaign

Goal to end homelessness in Fairfax County by 2018 looms; more than 400 children are among the homeless here.

Dozens of business leaders, elected officials and advocates for ending homelessness gathered Monday, Dec. 14 in the offices of Piedmont Fund Services in Herndon to launch the "Build a Village" campaign.

The effort is designed to provide funds to help end homelessness in Fairfax County. Businesses pledged more than $20,000 at the event just to begin. Jim Corcoran, president and CEO of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, Don Owens of Griffin-Owens Insurance in Herndon, John Sekas of Sekas Homes in Vienna and Kathy Albarado, CEO of Helios HR in Reston, each pledged $5,000.

Albarado shared her personal story, which included periods of homelessness when she was growing up as her mother fled domestic violence.

The Build a Village concept, which graphically builds houses with donations starting at one brick for $25, a window or chimney for $250, $500 to build the front door and $5,000 completing a house, is the brainchild of the Dulles Regional Chamber of Commerce and its president Eileen Curtis, who was on hand for the kickoff. Apple Federal Credit Union will manage donations.

In 2015, about 1,200 people were literally homeless, including 431 children. More than 60 percent of the homeless adults in families were employed, but their jobs didn't pay them enough to afford housing. Domestic violence was the cause of homelessness for more than 40 percent of the adults in families who are homeless. Of the 488 single individuals who were homeless, 52 were 18-24 years old; 123 were 55 years old or older. Two hundred sixty eight homeless individuals were dealing with serious mental illness and/or substance abuse.

Lack of affordable housing is the main cause of homelessness in Fairfax County, according to the Fairfax County Office to Prevent and End Homelessness. Low incomes and expensive housing make it impossible to pay for an apartment when earning minimum wage — even working 24 hours per day, seven days a week. Monthly rent for a two-bedroom apartment is at least $1,500, meaning a family would need an annual income of $58,760 to afford a two-bedroom apartment.

Pets and Children Visit Santa at Lake Accotink Park

Santa cut a lonely figure waiting for visits from pets at the pavilion in Lake Accotink Park in Springfield on Saturday, Dec. 12. But, it has only been half an hour.

Soon, Amanda Temenak and Jack Russell terrier mix Romeo, of Alexandria, came, along with Romeo's girlfriend Cockapoo Layla with her owner Katelynn Bradley, of Springfield.

What did Romeo whisper to Santa that he would like for Christmas? Temenak said it is probably a big, rawhide bone, "bigger than his body."

The littlest visitor also stopped by the pavilion. Hannah Poole, six months, got her photo taken with Santa. Her parents Alison and Jonathan Poole, of Alexandria, were visiting the park for a walk and a bike ride.

But Iby Bond, of Springfield, was not quite ready to sit on Santa's lap. He and mother Tammy went on the horse-drawn hayride, instead, one of the activities at Lake Accotink Park, as well as a tractor-pulled hayride and a lakeside campfire.

The lighted trees, wrapped presents, icicles hung from the rafters and Santa sitting on a sleigh painted a classic Christmas scene despite the balmy temperatures of the day.

The South County and West Springfield High School swim and dive teams come together on Dec. 12 to donate new, unwrapped toys for the South Run RECenter Toys For Tots program.

Swim Teams Bring in Toys for Tots

Before their head-to-head meet on Dec. 12, members of the South County and West Springfield High School swim and dive teams dropped off dozens of new toys for the South Run RECenter's Toys for Tots donation drive.

The drive ran from Nov. 16 until Dec. 12, collecting about four large bins of presents, according to South Run Fitness director Laurie Strickland. The toys are then taken to a Marine Corps depot in Dumfries for distribution. The South County girls team defeated West Springfield by a score of 167 to 148, while the boys lost to West Springfield 111 to 203.

A Character Audience Loves to Hate

Hayfield Secondary's production of 'Beauty and the Beast.'

BY JORDAN HILL
ALBERT EINSTEIN HIGH SCHOOL

The magic of love that stems from generosity, kindness, and friendship engulfs the story of "Beauty and the Beast" and Hayfield Secondary School's transformative production of the popular Disney musical.

"Beauty and the Beast" was originally based off of a French fairytale where a prince is transformed into a terribly ugly beast due to his selfish and rude ways by a sorceress. Then a young woman, named Belle, becomes his prisoner in his castle and in order to break the spell and become human again, the beast must fall in love with Belle. The staged production was based on the hit Disney movie and it opened on Broadway in 1994 with music by Alan Menken, lyrics by Howard Ashman and Tim Rice, and a book by Linda Woolverton.

Hayfield's production was led by the youthful and energetic Taegan Chirinos who played the title role of Belle. Chirinos had great stage presence and was very consistent throughout the entire show. Chirinos was also very consistent with having a lot of energy whether she was in a dramatic and emotional scene or a fun dance number like "Be Our Guest." Opposite Chirinos was the magnificent Chad Vann in the role of the Beast. Vann showed complete dedication to character and through his luscious voice he strongly conveyed his emotions even through the intense and transforming Beast makeup. Stealing the show, in an amazing way, was Hank Von Kolnitz as Gaston. Von Kolnitz was absolute perfection as Gaston with a gorgeous voice that complemented every acting choice he made. Von Kolnitz truly embodied his evil and annoying character but with such beautiful execution that it made the audience absolutely love to hate him. Assisting Von Kolnitz in the hysterical antics was Jackson Miller in the role of Lefou. Miller had great comedic timing and amazing chemistry with Von Kolnitz which made the audience automatically get excited when they were both onstage together.

Without the help of the ensemble of performers that wonderfully portrayed the exciting and fun featured characters, the leads of the show would have had nothing to build upon, but thankfully that was not the case. Nathan Tepe, who portrayed Lumiere, and Shannon Flack, who played Cogsworth, had wonderful dedication to character and they beautifully worked together to have great comedic timing during all of their scenes together. "Beauty and the Beast" is very dependent on a strong and energetic ensemble and the Silly Girls ensemble brought just what was needed to the show. Tripping and bawling while running after Gaston, the Silly Girls ensemble helped bring the energy back up and provide some hysterical, over the top moments onstage.

Based on the fact that "Beauty and the Beast" is truly a beast of musical with so many intricacies with the different aspects of the show that have to seamlessly come together, Hayfield Secondary School did an extraordinary job putting on the show.

Season of Giving Never Has To End

Why ending childhood hunger should be your New Year's resolution.

BY AMY JOHNSON, JENNIFER KONISH
AND NICK ARENT

The holiday season is one of our favorite times of year because it's all about the best things in life. It's a time for celebrating, bringing age-old cultural traditions to life, and spending time with family and friends. It's about being thankful for all of the things we are fortunate enough to have in our lives and reminding people how much we love and appreciate them. Oh and we suppose the delicious food that accompanies all of these things makes them that much more enjoyable!

During the holidays there are still a number of people who are struggling to make ends meet and many who don't have enough to eat, but luckily, it is also the season of giving. Around the country, the holidays inspire hundreds of thousands of people to give to the poor. Caring individuals get involved by donating to hunger-relief organizations such as the Capital Area Food Bank — the largest non-profit serving the Washington metro area — serving at soup kitchens, and finding other ways to contribute to the improvement of our communities. Especially when it comes to sharing food, we make sure that everyone has something to eat. The holiday spirit unites us, brings out the best in us, and motivates us to make a real difference in the lives of others.

This year, let's make it our New Year's resolution to keep this level of engagement continuing into 2016 by tackling one of most tragic problems facing our country — childhood hunger.

About 400,000 children here in Virginia alone are at risk of going hungry and it's a problem we can't afford to put off for another year. Despite all the pies, casseroles, hams and turkeys that will be enjoyed over the next several weeks, over 15.5 million kids across the country are food insecure. According to No Kid Hungry "three out of four public school teachers say students regularly come to school hungry" — another alarming statistic. In a country as prosperous as our own, it is absolutely unacceptable that there are any children who don't know where they are going to get their next meal.

The bottom line is that when kids are hungry, they struggle to learn, and kids who struggle to learn, struggle in life. With stomachs growling, hungry children sit through class unable to focus and get the most out of school. Fatigue and weakness as the result of poor nutrition make it difficult for them to stay awake or participate in physical activities like recess and PE. They are more likely to suffer from hyperactivity, miss school, and experience other behavioral problems which creates a negative learning environment for all students — even their peers who are not food insecure. Perhaps the scariest thing about childhood food insecurity is the inability for a child to reach their full potential because of the dramatic damage hunger does to their brain. Over time, hungry students fall behind their peers academically and many of them never catch up making it far more difficult for them to find good jobs and take care of their children once they grow up. The medical sector is beginning to reprioritize its resources to see healthy food as the important intervention it is. For example, the American Academy of Pediatrics recently recommended for the first time that pediatri-cians screen all children for food insecurity.

If we want to make sure every child gets a fair shot in life, we need to make sure our elected officials and decision-makers properly fund and improve existing food assistance programs such as free/reduced price school meals, SNAP (formerly known as food stamps) and WIC. Research shows that these programs help students to perform better in school and in life — but they don't go far enough. First Lady Dorothy McAuliffe is an excellent example of how politicians from both sides of the aisle should be making this issue a priority and continuing to develop new solutions.

Congress is currently considering legislation to reauthorize the Child Nutrition Act and to make changes to a number of food assistance programs. This legislation will influence funding for programs like the Child and Adult Care Food Program and Summer Food Service Program which allows the Capital Area Food Bank and other organizations to provide nutritious meals to food insecure children when school is out of session. If you are as concerned about childhood hunger as we are, you can contact your elected officials and urge them to take action by calling the congressional switchboard at 202-225-3121.

We will start 2016 with one in six kids across Virginia waking up at risk of going hungry throughout the year. With your help — by making ending childhood hunger your New Year's resolution and taking action on this issue throughout the year — we can work toward a future where we wake up on New Year's Day to a country where every child's basic needs are met so that they all have a fair opportunity to be successful in life.

Amy Johnson and Jennifer Konish are the NOVA Kids Cafe Coordinators with the Capital Area Food Bank. Nick Arent is a Campaign Organizer with Virginia Fair Share.

Justice for Juveniles

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

I often quote from papers written by the staff of the Commonwealth Institute for Fiscal Analysis; they provide the most fact-based, nonpartisan, clear analysis of key issues facing Virginians (<http://www.thecommonwealthinstitute.org/>). Recently, I attended the 2015 Policy Summit held by the Institute in Richmond. Topics at the Summit included the declining state support for public schools in Virginia, accessing health care, and returning more money to the working poor through the Earned Income Tax Credit. One topic around which there seems to be a high level of political consensus developing was "Criminal Justice Reform: Opportunities to Save Money and Help Communities."

In a paper published by The Commonwealth Institute, it was reported that Virginia keeps more youth incarcerated than most states. As of 2013 for which the most recent federal data is available, Virginia incarcerated 79 youth in state facilities for every 100,000 youth age 10 or older living in the state. That's 75 percent higher than the national rate of 45 state incarcerated youth per 100,000 youth in the country. But that does not mean that Virginians are safer or that more youth are diverted from criminal behavior. In fact, the opposite is true. According to data from the Department of Juvenile Justice, almost three-quarters of youth who have been held in the state's juvenile prisons are convicted of another crime within three years of release. Of great concern is the fact that youth who are held in the state's youth prisons for longer periods of time actually have higher rates of re-arrest within a year of release than youth who are held for shorter periods of time!

Virginia's current youth prison system consists of two youth prisons, Bon Air and Beaumont, in the Richmond suburbs. More affluent areas like Fairfax County have established local alternative programs. The highest rates of commitment to the state youth prisons come from the localities that have the highest poverty levels. As the Institute reported, "not only is Virginia's current system not working to rehabilitate youth and keep communities safe, it is also very expensive. The per capita cost of incarcerating youth in Virginia's juvenile correctional centers was $148,214 in FY 2015. Local programs are lower in cost as well as more effective at reducing recidivism.

Efforts have been underway to reform the current system for a number of years, but that movement needs to be accelerated. Wealthy communities are way ahead in establishing treatment programs, but these programs that are effective in keeping children out of trouble in the future must be extended to all localities regardless of wealth. The state must resist any effort to dump the problem on localities without providing necessary funds to make alternative programs available. The pipeline from school to prison must be shut off. Alternative solutions that include intensive treatment for offenders and families can keep the community safe, rehabilitate young people before they become criminals, and save money. There is widespread bipartisan agreement that progress needs to be accelerated in this area. It will bring justice to juveniles.

With temperatures approaching 70 degrees, it was the perfect day to run through the trails lined with Christmas and Hanukkah decorations. The 13.1 mile race started at Burke Lake Park and wound around the Accotink Valley Trail then around Lake Mercer and back.

"I think this is so fantastic that people are coming out on a Sunday dressed in their festive gear to enjoy the beautiful parks that we have," said race organizer Helen Russell, owner of Metro Run and Walk of Springfield, which presented the race. Children clamber excitedly onto the most popular event during Lake Accotink Park's holiday hayride, lakeside campfire and visit to Santa—the horse-drawn hayride pulled by the elegant equines from Harmon's Hayrides and Carriages.

“We promised a campfire,” said Lake Accotink Park's Julie Tahan.

Holiday music blared through the park as Santa held court at the pavilion despite temperatures in the 70s on Saturday, Dec. 12.

Howard Hall, of Harmon's Hayrides and Carriages, pointed to a picture of himself driving the horse-drawn hayride a few years ago at a snow-covered Lake Accotink Park. He was wearing a heavy coat then. “The wind across the lake just whistled,” he said. Today, he is wearing a short-sleeved shirt.

From left, Shepherd, 2, and Colin Miller, of Springfield, Jackson McElhatton, 11, of Alexandria, Winnie Miller, 5, Ann McElhatton, of Springfield, ride the tractor-pulled hayride on Saturday, Dec. 12 at Lake Accotink Park in Springfield.

Although the most popular activity of the day was the horse-drawn hayride pulled by two elegant Belgian draft horses, revelers also posed for pictures in front of inflatables and rode a tractor-pulled hayride that went over the footbridge into the trail.

While waiting for the horse-drawn hayride, people also visited Santa and posed for pictures. Or, played in the sandy area, as Hugh Keaney, 2, of Lorton, did.

Alas, the roaring lakeside campfire remained mostly deserted. Colin and Winnie, 5, Miller and Ann McElhatton, of Springfield, have been coming to the park's holiday event for five years. This is where they see Santa. It is better than being at the mall, said Ann.

“It's a nice event. People enjoy it every year,” said Tahan.

Lessons in Charitable Giving

Conversations, modeling behavior and hands-on actions can help teach children about benevolence and compassion.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Matthew Mamalian's holiday shopping list included some items that might seem atypical for a 12-year-old middle-school student: shampoo, socks, soap and a few snacks. He, along with several friends from his Sunday school class, packed the items in shoeboxes wrapped with holiday paper and tucked a handwritten note of encouragement inside each box.

"We were all laughing and having fun packing them," he said. "We also learned that there are people who really need these things because they don't have a lot else."

The project was part of Interfaith Works'

Teaching About Benevolence and Compassion

“Children need to have empathy modeled for them and they need a script to follow or ideas for carrying out charitable acts,” said Christine Pegoraro Schull, Ph.D., professor of Early Childhood Education at Northern Virginia Community College in Alexandria. “Children aspire to be kind and to be good citizens, but they don’t necessarily know how to do these things.”

Involving Matthew and his siblings in philanthropic efforts through Potomac Presbyterian Church is one of the ways that their mother, Cyndy Mamalian, makes a connection between gratitude, charity and a higher power. “I think it’s important for them to think beyond themselves and live out their faith,” she said. “You need to put your faith into action, and that is about caring for other people.”

Janet Dunlop, Matthew’s Sunday school teacher and a member of the Mission Committee at Potomac Presbyterian Church, melds volunteer projects with class discussions to teach her students about gratitude and charity. This holiday season, as the middle-school aged children clipped wrapping paper and tied ribbons around shoeboxes filled with deodorant, toothpaste, snacks and other essentials for the homeless, she gave them a description of those who are on the receiving end of their project.

“Many young people growing up in Potomac don’t have much experience with homelessness,” said Dunlop. “When my husband and I arrive at the shelter with these boxes, the people there are so happy to receive them. So, this is also about helping the children see another aspect of life and trying to instill in them a life-long ideal of service.”

Charitable giving for adults often means donating old clothes at the end of the tax year or writing a check to a nonprofit organization. However, children might find it difficult to understand how these abstract actions make a difference. That’s why psychologists and educators recommend giving children first-hand experience in caring for others.

Jenny Trope, Ph.D. and her children raised money to purchase grocery store gift cards that they are distributing to homeless men and women they encounter this winter. “It gives the kids a glimpse of what it’s like to be alone, hungry and stuck outside when it’s cold,” said Trope, who is also a marriage and family therapist based in Arlington.

Such hands-on projects, coupled with a conversation about why it’s important to take action to aid people in need of a helping hand, could drive home the message. “Children aspire to be kind and to be good citizens, but they don’t necessarily know how to do these things,” said Schull.

A study by the United Nations Foundation and the Women’s Philanthropy Institute at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis found that talking to children about giving is highly effective for encouraging philanthropy, and increases a child’s inclination to give by 20 percent.

“Conversations are critical. Talking about giving in combination with modeling is what actually increases children’s giving,” said Debra J. Mesch, Ph.D., director of the Women’s Philanthropy Institute. “We ... know that these conversations need to be focused on why and how giving ... makes an impact on individuals in need, rather than simply talk that is more general, such as giving is the right thing to do.”

The dialogue can include concrete examples of how a charitable action will benefit others, say mental health experts.

“Around the holidays when you’re struggling to survive, when you’ve lost everything and every decision you make is about meeting your absolute, basic needs, like how you’re going to take a shower, it’s a nice surprise to get a wrapped box of socks, snacks and a personal note,” said Nikki Stanaitis, LCSW-C of Interfaith Works. “It makes a person feel human and gives them the sense of normalcy that we all want.”

Acts of charity displayed year-round can lead to life-long habits of philanthropy. “Don’t reserve donating and volunteering for the holidays. By making it a way of life, you’re sharing your value system about giving and helping others with your children,” said Trope.

“Children need to have empathy modeled for them and they need a script to follow or ideas for carrying out charitable acts.”

Freshman James Provides Spark for Undefeated Bruins

Guard scores 12 points, Bruins beat Robinson.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

Lake Braddock freshman guard Quentin James felt nervous prior to Friday's matchup with Robinson — his first taste of the Burke rivalry.

Near the end of the first quarter, James unloaded those nerves on the Rams in the form of a personal 6-0 run.

James' trio of buckets helped Lake Braddock close the opening quarter on 14-1 run. The Bruins led by at least nine points for the remainder of the contest and improved to 4-0 with a 66-54 victory on Dec. 11 at Lake Braddock Secondary School.

James, a starter for the Bruins, finished as the team's second-leading scorer with 12 points.

"He's a player, now," Lake Braddock head coach Brian Metress said. "He gets after you defensively and he's in the passing lanes. I thought we rattled them early with the pressure. We just rattled them. And they really, early, didn't look like they wanted to dribble. It was sort of like chum in the water — we were going after every pass."

Lake Braddock forced nine turnovers in the first quarter and 26 for the game. After back-to-back buckets by James late in the first quarter, the freshman guard came up with a steal and finished with a layup, extending the Bruins' lead to 14 points. Lake Braddock led 26-10 at the end of the opening quarter.

"It felt amazing," James said about scoring six straight points. "It was my first time playing in the big cross-town rivalry as a freshman so, I was a little nervous ..."

Has James had to prove to Lake Braddock coaches that he belongs on the varsity level?

"We've known him since his seventh, eighth grade year," Metress said. "He's a good player. He's confident, he expects to play well, we expect him to play well. We don't treat him like a freshman and we think he's got a bright future here at Lake Braddock. ... And the older guys, the captains, like [senior forward] Peyton Bishop and [senior center] James Butler, the guys who have been through the wars before, they embrace him as an important part of our team."

James' final field goal came with less than a minute remaining in the fourth quarter, giving Lake Braddock a 65-52 advantage.

"He's really stepped up," Butler said. "You can see he's feeling more confidence as he plays. He had a great game tonight — sort of a breakout game for him."

While James gave the Bruins a spark, Butler took care of business as usual in the paint. The 6-foot-8 Navy signee scored a game-high 22 points, including 12 in the first quarter, and grabbed five rebounds.

"... I thought he was a beast in there," Metress said.

Metress said he's asking Butler to take on a leadership role this year.

"As a freshman, he was a young kid that was up on the varsity and he played limited minutes," Metress said. "As a sophomore, he was an integral part — a Junior guard Corey Pelham scored 11 points for Lake Braddock, including a pair of 3-pointers.

Avi Silberman led Robinson with 14.

Lake Braddock opened Conference 7 play with an 83-77 win over T.C. Williamson Tuesday, improving its record to 5-0. The Bruins will host Woodson at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 18.

THE CONNECTION

The undefeated Lake Braddock boys' basketball team trailed T.C. Williams entering the fourth quarter of Tuesday's Conference 7 opener. The Titans' lead didn't last for long, however, as the Bruins employed a strategy for which undersized TC simply had no answer.

"They fed the beast," Lake Braddock head coach Brian Metress said.

James Butler scored 18 of his career-high 46 points in the fourth quarter and the Bruins improved to 5-0 overall and 1-0 in the conference with an 83-77 victory at Lake Braddock Secondary School.

Butler, a 6-foot-8 senior and Navy signee, was unstoppable in the paint. His three-point play with 7:32 remaining in the fourth quarter gave Lake Braddock a 61-60 lead it would not relinquish.

"My teammates," Butler said, "did a great job of feeding me the ball."

T.C. Williams' tallest player, 6-foot-5 center Andrew Tovskey, fouled out with 6:30 remaining and Lake Braddock leading 64-62. Butler, who surpassed his previous career-high of 35 points, continued to capitalize on the Titans' lack of size, scoring in the post and on putbacks.

"TC, once the big boy got in foul trouble and they just tried to surround [Butler] a little bit, and it was tough," Metress said. "I thought we ran offense well, we threw passes to him and we got him in all sorts of different matchups."

After a jumper by T.C. Williams guard Jordan Jones cut Lake Braddock's lead to 68-66 with 5:08 remaining, Butler scored Lake Braddock's next 11 points.

Butler's final field goal gave the Bruins a 79-72 advantage with 1:15 remaining.

"If I can go in and get a couple easy buckets or quick buckets for the team, I'm going to do it," Butler said. "We're 1-0 in the conference now and that's huge."

Butler scored four points in the first quarter. He had 20 points at halftime and 28 at the end of the third quarter.

"Rough start," Butler said. "I was almost ... lethargic in the first quarter, I'd say, but I got it going in the second and third."

In the second half, Butler was aggressive in the paint.

"It's his senior year and he wants to win," Metress said. "I think what he started thinking was, 'Hey, if they're going to throw me the ball, I'm going to finish at the rim.' Early in the game, he was kind of stepping back and shooting some and going with the fade-away. Basically, what happened was he wasn't going to bail the defense out. He was just going to put his elbow in the guy's nose and go right to the rim."

Corey Pelham scored 15 points for Lake Braddock, including a trio of 3-pointers. Peyton Bishop added 11.

Lake Braddock will host Woodson at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 18.
