Bank Robbery Suspect Arrested

The Metro Transit Police Department arrested a suspected bank robber during the evening of Jan. 8. The suspect, a 45-year-old man, was taken as he exited the Eastern Market Metro station. He was charged with bank robbery and attempted bank robbery and is currently being held pending extradition.

Police heard of an attempted robbery at Wells Fargo on Dec. 30, 2015, at 4:48 pm. According to police reports, the suspect robbed the Wells Fargo in the 1300 block of N. Wilson Boulevard, by passing a note to the teller. However, police reported, he then became frustrated and fled on foot.

Another robbery took place on Jan. 7, at 10:10 a.m., at the Wells Fargo in the 1400 block of S. Fern Street. A police report said the man once again handed the bank's teller a note, but that this time he received money before he left. Police arrested the man a little over 24 hours after the second robbery.

New 'Open Door Mondays'

The Arlington County Board kicked off its 2016 Open Door Mondays on Monday, Jan. 4, with a session at Langston-Brown Community & Senior Center and Park.

A member of the County Board will be on hand to meet with the public the first Monday of every month throughout the year at locations across the county, except on holidays and during August and December.

Open Door Mondays offer an opportunity to meet one-on-one with a County Board member on any subject. No reservation is necessary.

Information gathered by Board Members during Open Door Mondays is shared with the full Board and with the County Manager for any necessary staff follow-up.

County, Hospital Negotiating

The Arlington County Board approved last month an agreement to grant Virginia Hospital Center (VHC) an option to purchase county-owned land. This agreement, reached at the board's December meeting, will allow VHC to expand onto 5.5 acres.

As part of the new agreement, VHS will pay the board a non-refundable $100,000 fee as consideration for the option to purchase.

VHC has 48 months to purchase the property from the county at market value, a minimum of $12.56 million. By the agreement, payment may be by both cash and land.

As part of the purchase agreement, the county has the option to acquire property on South Carlin Springs Road. The county manager will report back to the board in February to propose a public process that would result in a May 2017 meeting to recommend if the county should acquire the new property and how the property should be utilized.

Preserving Arlington's Past

The county's History Task Force has made its final recommendations to the county manager for how to preserve Arlington's history online.

Using an online survey, they garnered 450 responses, to determine how to make archival information available to residents online in the most effective way. The recommendations include creating a digital archive with a standardized cataloguing scheme, allocating staff, facilities, and funding to conduct this archival work and appointing a dedicated records coordinator for each cCounty department, and collaborating with Arlington Public Schools to integrate local history topics into the school curriculum. These recommendations will be implemented over the next 5 years.

Arlington Public Library's Center for Local History is the community's official repository of documents, oral histories and other records, and includes materials donated by individuals, civic groups and businesses. The Department of Technology Services is charged with preserving millions of digital county records.

Booklet To Document Little Saigon

A collaboration of three Arlington organizations will create a full-color booklet to document Little Saigon, a community of Southeast Asian immigrants that sprang up in Arlington after South Vietnam fell in 1975. The booklet is titled "Echoes of Little Saigon: Southeast Asian Immigration and the Changing Faces of Arlington."

Funded by a $9,000 grant from the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities (VFH), the booklet will document and interpret the impact of Vietnamese and other Southeast Asian immigrants who concentrated around the faded pre-Metro commercial center of Clarendon in the mid-1970s.

The grant is the largest made by the foundation last year; it will fund a collaboration led by the County's Cultural Affairs Division, working with the Historic Preservation Program and Arlington Public Library's Center for Local History.

Publication is expected this fall in conjunction with a community forum featuring those who worked and frequented the businesses comprising Little Saigon during its cultural heyday.

The three county organizations also teamed up last year for a series of events celebrating Arlington's Vietnamese heritage.

The booklet's makers envision it as the first in a series that will focus on the cultural heritage of different ethnic groups within the county.

The Center for Local History at Central Library is Arlington's official community archives.

A Walk in the Park

Local residents and county officials tour area around Jennie Dean Park.

BY VERNON MILES
THE CONNECTION

From dog walkers to day laborers, artists to auto shops, there's much packed into the area around Jennie Dean Park. The area's small enough in size that the Arlington County Board and representatives of the local civic federation were able to walk the entire perimeter on Jan. 10, but big enough in interest that each board member was accompanied by nearly a dozen local citizens.

One of the guests on the tour was Mike Katrivanos, the owner of Jennie Dean Park's newest business; New District Brewing Company opened its doors in Shirlington on Jan. 9.

"It was incredible," said Katrivanos. "We had over 1,200 people come out, and the street came alive. People were very supportive, they drank us out of two of our beers."

Kristen Gaffney leads one of the local tours.

"We need to continue on our strong points, like the Arlington Food Assistance Center, the dog park and the playground."

— Kimberly Miller, Shirlington resident

Katrivanos' family is from the neighborhood, so he said opening a business in the area felt like a homecoming. Katrivanos also said he received a lot of assistance and advice from county staff.

"The county has bent over backwards to help," said Katrivanos. "They really went to bat for us."

But for businesses in the Jennie Dean Park area, the popular new brewery is still the exception. The majority of the buildings facing the street along that along Four Mile Run Drive to the north of the park are car repair businesses, many with an assortment of wrecked vehicles adorning the front of their store.

According to Robert Duffy, Arlington's planning director, those businesses are centered around Four Mile Run Drive because the area is one of the few zoned for light manufacturing.

"This is one of the last areas in Arlington that can serve these kinds of use," said Duffy.

Duffy referred to the loose zoning in Shirlington as a double edged sword, one that allows businesses like New District Brewing to come in, but one that also makes it very difficult to push out the unsightly storage units and car repair businesses.

"There are a lot of mechanic shops on Four Mile Run, and we're happy they're here, we just wish it was a little more aesthetically pleasing," said Kristen Gaffney, a local resident leading one of the tours. "We don't want the car service to go away, but we want it to be a little more diverse."

Kimberly Miller, a resident of the Shirlington, said she hoped the county would continue working on beautification of the area and expanding some of the more popular services.

"We need to continue on our strong points, like the Arlington Food Assistance Center, the dog park and the playground," said Miller.

Miller was among the residents who said they hope to see less auto shops.

The small area around the park means many Arlingtonians have conflicting ideas on priorities. Gaffney pointed out a parking lot outside the Shirlington Dog Park as an example. According to Gaffney, some residents want to see the parking lot expanded, possibly into a parking garage, while others want it converted into stores and a cultural space.

But if there's one area where all of the local residents agree, it's that the ART Bus lot currently located on the park needs to leave. The county moved the ART buses to a temporary lot at the park until a new facility was finished in Crystal City.

"We are in the process of moving them," said Duffy, but given that the county is still in the process of negotiations, he was unable to say when exactly that would take place.

Residents and County Board members touring Jennie Dean Park are joined by U.S. Rep. Don Beyer.

Among those calling for the removal of the buses was local resident and new County Board Chair Libby Garvey.

"We need to organize the density here and we need to get those buses out of here," said Garvey. "This is going to happen. Those buses are going to go, though maybe not until this fall."

"Someone put a sign up on the bus lots that said Jennie Dean Park," said County Board Member John Vihstadt. "There's something wrong with that picture, and we're going to fix it."

Among the residents who put the meeting together, there was a sense of cautious optimism.

"We need a project manager on this," said Portia Clark, president of the Nauck Civic Association. "It's time to get the ball rolling."

Robin Stompler, a local resident and business owner who has vocally advocated for revitalizing the park, said she was happy to see such a large attendance.

"Overall, we want to preserve the neighborhood diversity and encourage innovation," said Stompler. "The biggest challenge for us was getting this process moving, and I think this neighborhood walk was successful in that."

"This plan is about action," said Duffy. "It's time to move forward. A formal plan is going to take shape in early February."

According to Duffy, the scope of the plan will partially be derived from the feedback gathered from the community at walks like the one on Sunday and other community meetings.

Pet Photos for the Pet Connection

The Pet Connection, a twice-yearly special edition, will publish on Feb. 24, and photos and stories of your pets with you and your family should be submitted by Feb. 17.

We invite you to send us stories about your pets, photos of you and/or your family with your cats, dogs, llamas, alpacas, hamsters, snakes, lizards, frogs, rabbits, or whatever other creatures share your home or yard with you.

Tell us the story of a special bond between a child and a dog, the story of how you came to adopt your pet, or examples of amazing feats of your creatures. Do you volunteer at an animal shelter or therapeutic riding center or take your pet to visit people in a nursing home? Does your business have a pet? Is your business about pets? Have you helped to train an assistance dog? Do you or someone in your family depend on an assistance dog?

Or take this opportunity to memorialize a beloved pet you have lost.

Just a cute photo is fine too. Our favorite pictures include both pets and humans.

Please tell us a little bit about your creature, identify everyone in the photo, give a brief description what is happening in the photo, and include address and phone number (we will not publish your address or phone number, just your town name).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More Science, Less Fear

To the Editor:

A recent study published in the journal JAMA Pediatrics entitled “Antidepressant Use During Pregnancy and the Risk of Autism Spectrum Disorder in Children” (Boukhris 2015) may have caused unnecessary harmful repercussions among pregnant women and new mothers.

The study’s main conclusion is that use of certain antidepressants during pregnancy may increase the risk of autism in children. While Postpartum Support Virginia applauds research into the efficacy of antidepressant medication, this study and the resulting media fervor may unnecessarily frighten women who may previously, currently, or in the future need antidepressants during pregnancy for their mental health and wellbeing.

As with all studies, there are limitations. Here are some things that psychiatrists who specialize in caring for pregnant women have pointed out about this article:

1. The additional absolute risk of autism remains very small (less than 1 percent).
2. The study did not control for several important factors: depression severity, dose of anti-depressants, or whether women actually took the medications.
3. The researchers were not able to separate the effects of antidepressants from those of the underlying depression.
4. The study did not take into account lifestyle issues.

What does all this mean?

1. Take caution in concluding that this study has identified a unique risk of antidepressant use in pregnant women related to autism.

2. Pregnant women taking antidepressant medications should not abruptly stop taking any medications. These women should consult their doctors; each situation is unique and deserves a risk-benefit analysis.

3. Women who took antidepressant medications while pregnant and subsequently had a child diagnosed with autism should not blame themselves for their children’s autism. This is just one of many studies reportedly finding a cause for autism. Women — and doctors — made decisions based on the best available information at the time.

Help County’s Most Vulnerable

To the Editor:

I would like to commend new County Board members Christian Dorsey and Katie Cristol for their new year’s day addresses focusing our vision on rebuilding faith in Arlington government and helping the county’s most vulnerable .

As a newly disabled Arlingtonian with limited mobility I know that many of the board’s recent actions have been disheartening to the disabled community including many disabled vets and wounded warrior. The cancelation of the street car line would have provided “at grade access” for the disabled who live or planned to live and work along the proposed corridors. Many disabled were anxiously awaiting the amenity to simplify their lives and open up a new realm of possibilities. The delay of the aquatic center was also a blow to the disabled as many disabled Arlingtonians and wounded warriors were anticipating the aquatic center to aid in their recovery and foster their reengagement with society. Currently our county swimming pools are often at capacity making them difficult to access.

Fostering pro-business strategies is great way to help fund programs for the most vulnerable. The disabled, APS, the elderly, the homeless, and those below the poverty line all benefit when we concentrate on bringing new jobs and corporate stewards to our emerging business centers in Ballston, Columbia Pike , Rosslyn, and Crystal city. It is hoped that all County Board members will strive to bring more jobs to Arlington especially with dynamic transportation initiatives that corporate entities can bank on.

I also appreciate board members refocusing on streamlining the permit process, and educating permit staff to assist local builders. It is important to remember that local and regional builders have long found Arlington to be among the most amenable locations in the region to build and prosper and have long fostered programs to give back to the Arlington community.

BUSINESS NOTES

Email announcements to arlington@connectionnewspapers.com. Deadline is Thursday at noon. Photos welcomed.

Family Law Attorney Claudia Zucker marks 25 years of practicing law. Zucker focuses primarily on the family-related issues of divorce, custody, visitation, child support, spousal support, military divorce, division of assets including pensions, modification of existing orders, and immigration-related divorce issues.

She is the recipient of the Martindale-Hubbell Client Appreciation Award based on her rapid response to client issues and ability to guide her clients through difficult times.

Zucker started her career doing immigration law almost exclusively for the first 17 years. She found an interest in family law around the same time it became clear that the U.S. government was not going to open the door to assist illegal immigrants in gaining legal status.

Her office is located at 1840 Wilson Boulevard, Suite 205, Arlington. Visit zuckerlawfirm.com.

Arlington-based Wynyard Group, which deals in crime fighting software, has named Susan Aarons to the newly created position of director, Federal Operations.

The Leapfrog Group has named Virginia Hospital Center to its annual list of top hospitals.

David Lloyd Jr. of Weichert, Realtors' Arlington office has been recognized for his sales performance in November.

January 2016

What's Hot in Remodeling for 2016?

Looking for inspiration for your next remodel? Here are some of the top trends we're anticipating this year.

Bold Accent Walls
Move over paint and wallpaper. The new way to pop an accent wall in any room is with tile or stone. Partial horizontal backsplashes will continue to be replaced by full walls of tile in the kitchen and bath.

Colors of the Year
Pantone announced its two-color winner for 2016: Rose Quartz and Serenity, a pale pink and periwinkle blue combo that are stirring much debate.

Open Layouts
Homeowners will continue to embrace open floor plans in 2016, and the kitchen will remain the primary anchor of these spaces. This can mean building an addition or reconfiguring existing square footage.

Space for Aging Parents
More and more homeowners want to care for elderly parents at home rather than send them to costly care-giving facilities. The projects range from wheelchair accessibility and safety upgrades, to building private mother-in-law suites.

 Russ Glickman, founder of Glickman Design Build, is a Master Certified Remodeler and Certified Aging in Place Specialist. The award-winning Glickman Design Build team has completed thousands of general remodeling and accessible design projects in the Metro DC area and is passionate about the work they do. # Yorktown Freshman Hays Wins All-Around

Patriots have won all four meets this season.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

The vault runway at Oakton High School wasn't as long as Julia Hays would have preferred, but the Yorktown freshman didn't let the inconvenience affect her performance.

Hays decided to stay with her tucked Yurchenko vault, rather than throwing one with a lesser degree of difficulty. She started her approach near the gym wall, executed the vault and received a first-place score of 9.3.

"You have to just get used to it," Hays said about the runway situation.

Hays went on to win the all-around competition during the four-team meet on Jan. 9 in Vienna. She finished with a score of 37.3, one-tenth of a point ahead of Hayfield senior Molly Overstreet.

Hays finished first on beam (9.5) and floor (9.5) and took fourth on bars (9).

"She's a cool customer," Yorktown head coach Joanne Price said. "She is a very solid competitor and she is very, very consistent in her routines — and she hits. She hits her routines often. She has hard days, too, but usually when the pressure's on, she rises."

Hays has been one of the top gymnasts on a Yorktown team that is arguably one of the best in the 6A North region. The Patriots won Saturday's team competition, giving them four victories in four meets this season. Yorktown produced a score of 144.2, finishing more than eight points ahead of second-place Oakton (135.6). Hayfield finished third (134.4) and South County was fourth (112.4).

"I think that they're building in momentum and they're getting excited," Price said. "They're learning more about what to put in their routines and when something goes wrong, they're learning how to fix it in the middle of their routine, which is what veteran gymnasts do."

Yorktown's Olivia Zavrel placed third in the all-around with a score of 36.5. She finished second on bars (9.4) and vault (9.1), fourth on floor (9.1) and seventh on beam (8.9). Juliette Mitrovich took fourth in the all-around for the Patriots with a total of 36.1. She placed second on floor (9.45), third on bars (9.05) and fourth on beam (9.2). She finished 11th on vault (8.4).

Design Trends for 2016

Local style gurus predict the elements that will be popular this year.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

The start of the year offers an opportunity to ring in new trends, particularly when it comes to a home's interior. From sustainably sourced textiles to sparsely accessorized rooms, local tastemakers look into their crystal balls and offer predictions on design elements that will be popular this year.

Interior design is going high tech, allowing designers and clients an opportunity to work collaboratively during the design process. "Technology seems to be driving design firms," said Jean P. Freeman, professor of Interior Design at Marymount University in Arlington. "Since there are so many computer programs that assist designers in creating visual, 3-D drawings, clients are able to better understand the designs. Designers and clients both are able to visualize how spaces appear with colors, textures, volume, proportion and other aspects of design."

Freeman believes that consumer demand for energy efficient appliances and designs, as well as sustainably sourced materials, is a trend that will continue and even be elevated. "Now they are interested to find out the origins of various textiles, furniture [and] cabinets," said Freeman. "Clients are seeking healthy environments that are safe. The off gassing of toxic gases from some of the synthetic materials used in carpet, paint, upholstery, furniture is now considered harmful."

Eschewing fussy and indulgent decor in favor of a clean and simple aesthetic is a trend that Kristine Winner, associate professor of Interior Design at Northern Virginia Community College expects to see this year. "... This indicates a trend toward more comfortably contemporary environments with minimal accessories," she said. "It also indicates that we should be designing interiors for people that will allow them to be surrounded by the things they love rather than a load of things selected for no real reason."

The trend toward de-cluttering and simplification will extend to home choices. "Go small or go home" is one theme that Sharon Kleinman of Transitions in Potomac, Md. believes will resonate with consumers this year.

Designers will be tasked with creating elegant spaces on a small scale in 2016, predicts interior designer Sharon Kleinman.

"One trend I'm seeing among my clients is that they are either downsizing from large homes on more acreage or moving towards city living with little to no property and more compact living space," said Kleinman. "I'm also seeing clients gravitate towards transitional furnishings. There doesn't seem to be as great a divide between the more traditional versus the more modern."

Outdoor upholstery fabric will no longer be confined to alfresco furniture, forecasts Amanda Mertins, president of Patina Polished Living in Alexandria. "One of the most popular design trends for this year is the use of outdoor fabric for indoor upholstery," she said. "It has been used for high traffic rooms especially where kids are involved but now, given a broader selection and interesting patterns, customers are using it in traditional living areas and dining rooms."

Elegant and bold mirrors will make an appearance in bathrooms marrying style and function. "Bye-bye to medicine cabinets and hello to mirrors that make a statement," said Mertins. "Modern metallics, large wood-framed and vintage mirrors add interest and boost style to a utilitarian space which is used every day."

Furniture and accessories made of Lucite, a transparent plastic material, is one trend that Marika Meyer of Marika Meyer Interiors predicts for 2016. The designer also expects to see a transition from cool grays to warmer grays, whites and cool beiges being used as neutral shades. "We are seeing a return to organic patterns as a change from the strong geometrics, which have populated the fabric field for the last few years," she said. "Colors and patterns are still quite popular and will be."

"You're Old News"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

So said my wife, Dina, after hearing me describe my most recent visit to the Infusion Center. Visits which I've now made approximately 100 times since I received my cancer diagnosis in late February, 2009. For nearly seven years, save for 15 months or so when I was taking two pills a day at home instead of infusing once every three weeks, I have been an oncology patient getting treated for stage IV, non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) – a treatable but not-curable form of cancer, as my oncologist explained to Team Lourie on February 27th, 2009. In short, I was "terminal," with my chance of surviving beyond two years calculated in the low single digits. The fact that I sit here, almost seven years later, alive and reasonably well, is a miracle of biblical proportions, and a reality for which I am extraordinarily grateful and fortunate, although "fortunate" doesn't really characterize how lucky I am, all things considered.

And seven years into my treatment, it's safe to say I know the drill at the Infusion Center. As such, I require very little attention, special or otherwise, when I am admitted into the treatment area. This past visit was a bit different, however. Due to a computer coding/data-entry error, one of my lab results was not posted. As a result, there was a delay of nearly an hour before the results were retrieved, which in turn prevented my chemotherapy drugs from even being ordered/mixed, a process which ordinarily takes 15 to 20 minutes. Because of this snafu, I was left to sit in my Barcalounger/pace in my cubicle for quadruple the normal wait. Eventually, the results were loaded, but in the interim, I was left to fend for myself.

It was during this delay that I noticed a fellow oncology patient across the room who seemed to be getting an inordinate amount of attention, although it didn't seem urgent; from the LPNs, the oncology nurses and even from my oncologist – who is generally not present/involved (nor does he need to be, according to my experience) at the Infusion Center. Yours truly, on the other hand, stood idly by/sat minding my own business/making numerous non-medically-related cell-phone calls and was basically but not totally ignored. (I'm not a shrinking violet; if I needed something, I would have asked.)

When I shared this story with my wife, she scoffed at my semi inconvenience and said: "You're old news." To which I laughed and agreed. I suppose, after seven years of treatment/miscellaneous interactions, and having far exceeded my original "13-month to two-year" prognosis, I am very old news. The kind of news which apparently is very rare; but having survived so long requiring so little, I guess I'm sort of ignorable. Not that there's anything wrong with that; I'd much rather not require any attention, especially the life-saving kind, and go about my regular infusions with amazingly minimal complications – which seems to be my norm.

Of course, I don't take any of this for granted, as you regular readers know. But there was a peculiar sort of indifference/lack of concern/being taken for granted that was oddly reassuring. If the staff is not paying attention to me, then I must not need any attention paid. And if I don't require any attention, I must not present any kind of problem. And if I don't present any kind of problem, then what am I worried about? So what if there's a delay? Apparently, there are patients with bigger problems and I don't seem to have any of them. Perhaps I should just recline in my Barcalounger and relax; I've earned it.
