Though “Kerri’s Cure” Belgian Pale Ale will only be released in taprooms out of kegs, the Forge team had a commemorative image created to raise awareness of the effort.

Brewer’s Wife Dies from Cancer

One week after a special ale was brewed to support her medical and other related costs, Kerri Rose of Alexandria died from cancer.

Rose was first diagnosed with stomach cancer in August 2015. She was well into her pregnancy, and the adenocarcinoma had already advanced to Stage IV.

Kerri and her husband Matt’s son Lawrence “Lance” Rose was born two months premature so she could begin chemotherapy.

Casey Jones of Falls Church and Charlie Buettner of Burke, CEO and head brewer of Fair Winds Brewing Company in Lorton respectively, came up with the idea of a beer fundraiser — Matt is owner of Forge Brew Works in Lorton — that would add to the Go Fund Me page Kerri had already created.

Jones said donations on the page are close to $50,000. He expects the beer sales to bring in another $25,000. The funds will now go paying off Kerri’s remaining medical costs and then contribute to an educational trust for her son Lance.

The beer, a Belgian Pale Ale called “Kerri’s Cure,” is scheduled to be released at each of 20 different breweries that contributed to the project on Jan. 29.

As part of her therapy, Kim Daily made illustrations to reflect her thoughts on the state of her brain after it sustained a traumatic injury.

Road to Recovery

Brain Injury Services gets survivors back into the community.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

In one moment, Kim Daily's life changed forever. It was September 2011 and the Centreville resident was in a car accident where she hit her head. Afterwards she experienced some numbness and pain in her neck.

"I knew something was very wrong," Daily said.

Daily consulted a neurologist since she was also hearing things and having difficulty standing up. The doctor said her brain had been injured in the accident, and that it "would either heal or not."

Depression set in as Daily tried to deal with headaches, completely losing her short-term memory, problems balancing and other cognitive difficulties.

"Nothing works the way you used to," said Daily.

She got on the Internet looking for support, information, recovery groups, anything to help her get turned around. Daily found Brain Injury Services, a nonprofit organization based in Springfield that works with children and adults who have suffered brain injuries to rebuild skills and confidence that will help them get back into the community.

Daily was put on a waiting list for a case manager, at that point six months after her accident, and in the meantime started attending monthly group meetings with other people recovering from brain injuries.

"Just to be in the same room with people who understood," was huge for Daily, she said. "Just to have someone to listen, who will say 'It's not always going to be this bad.'"

Daily eventually got paired with a case manager, who recommended a therapist and different neurologists, and helped her get organized. With detailed notes and a calendar she takes with her everywhere, as well as a regimen of medicines, Daily is working again in a Springfield florist shop and making her recovery.

WITH A STAFF OF 32, Brain Injury Services serves people throughout Fairfax County and has satellite locations in Woodbridge and Loudoun. Eighty percent of its $3 million budget comes from the Commonwealth of Virginia and about five percent is funded by Fairfax County. The remainder comes from private and corporate partnerships.

rector Karen Brown said, the 26-year-old community-based organization is able to devote about 96 percent of that budget to services for clients.

Brown has been active in the field of disabilities for 44 years, after her uncle, a New York State trooper, was hit head-on and there weren't sufficient services for his recovery available. "That always resonated with me," she said.

Case manager Claire Callison of Burke meets with between eight and ten adults on a monthly basis, helping them make and then pursue a goal plan. Some are in crisis, in danger of losing their income or house.

Callison connects them with resources, other counselors, and eventually redeveloping skills like gardening and home maintenance. As the individual progresses, they also work on peer-to-peer relationships, volunteering and apartment coaching, depending on the living situation.

"It's open-ended," she said, "closure is based on completion of those goals, when there isn't a need for services anymore."

With the December 2015 release of the movie "Concussion" starring Will Smith as Dr. Bennet Omalu, who discovers brain deterioration in a dead NFL player, Brown is hopeful more people will educate themselves on all brain injuries.

"I really wish we were out of business," Brown said. "This is preventable."

Particularly for athletics Brown points to the understanding of Second Impact Syndrome, a potentially fatal case of sustaining a second concussion before the first one heals, as necessary education.

One impact was all it took to remove Barbara Armistead of Fairfax from a game of co-ed softball. The centerfielder was sprinting to second base when she was hit in the head by a ball thrown to get her out.

Armistead didn't immediately go to the hospital, opting to call a nurse's line and rest at home. But when symptoms of headaches, nausea, distorted, foggy senses and sensitivity to light kept her home from work at Northrop Grumman for a week, she met with a family doctor and neurologist, and looked to Brain Injury Services.

LIKE DAILY, Armistead started with group sessions among other brain injury survivors, and then linked with a caseworker in August 2015. She also takes an active role as her own advocate. "I jump on my symptoms and figure out what I have to do."

Armistead uses physical therapy, acupuncture, notetaking and other coping mechanisms to manage her symptoms.

"Sleep was critical to be able to recover," she said, of getting between nine and 12 hours of sleep a night.

While both Armistead and Daily are still recovering, they acknowledge irreversible change. "You just need to accept your life is never going to look the way it did before," Daily said.

The Brain Injury Services main office is located at 8136 Old Keene Mill Road Suite B-102. For more information, visit www.braininjurysvcs.org.

Money, Lax Laws Draw Sex Traffickers

400 sex trafficking victims found in two years.

BY ISABEL KNIGHT
THE CONNECTION

Ever since the Human Trafficking Task Force began collecting data in October 2013, there have been 400 victims of sex trafficking found in 244 cases with over 130 suspected perpetrators in Northern Virginia.

Last year, before the state of Virginia passed its first sex trafficking laws, SB 1188 and HB 1964, it was the last state in the United States without any sex trafficking legislation.

According to Taryn Offenbacher, the communications director for Shared Hope International, a nonprofit nongovernmental organization dedicated to ending sex trafficking, this lack of legislation may have attracted more sex traffickers to Virginia.

"Traffickers are going to go the path of least resistance. They know the laws are in their favor, and there is minimal risk in Virginia to commit these crimes."

Money is also a strong draw.

"Sex trafficking is an economic crime ... there has to be demand. Traffickers go where the money is," said Detective Bill Woolf, former head of the Human Trafficking Unit of Fairfax County Police Department.

Kay Duffield, the executive director of the Northern Virginia Human Trafficking Task Force, reports that from October 2013 to October 2015, the task force has identified 400 victims of sex trafficking. Fifteen percent of these cases have been gang related and 55 percent of the victims are white females.

These numbers are underestimates of true rates, because there is currently no real mechanism for collecting data. Woolf estimates that true rates are likely closer to the 10,000 victims reported in San Diego, which has similar demographics to Fairfax County. The Task Force covers Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax, Stafford, Loudoun County and Prince William County.

This problem exists across the United States. In 2015, the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement's (ICE) Homeland Security Investigations arrested 1,437 individuals for human trafficking across the country.

According to Woolf, the biggest hurdle law enforcement faces in catching sex traffickers is lack of resources.

The Human Trafficking Unit was established in 2013, when the Fairfax County Police Department received a two-year grant from the U.S. Department of Justice which expired. Woolf investigated 244 trafficking cases.

Often, sex trafficking can only be addressed if they overlap with a related unit that gets more funding, such as the Gang

Unit. Even the FBI addresses sex trafficking in the Crimes Against Children Unit, which addresses a broad spectrum of crimes, Woolf said.

His work requires balancing the desire for a quick case to protect as many victims as possible, while still collecting enough evidence to support a viable prosecution.

Woolf pointed out the disadvantage of not having officers trained in human trafficking specifically means officers will often prosecute the victims themselves for prostitution instead of the pimps. He also often has to use nontraditional methods to divert potential victims from harm without letting the traffickers know they are being investigated.

The cases that end in arrests and prosecutions may not be representative of the majority of sex trafficking cases, but instead reflect cases that require fewer resources to investigate.

For example, he said, gang-related trafficking is often prosecuted much more routinely than sex traffickers operating out of commercial establishments like massage parlours because those cases are difficult to investigate and require extensive resources.

Before 2012, this problem had gone largely unnoticed for a number of reasons. A number of victims see this as their only source of livelihood. Many victims are undocumented immigrants. The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children finds that 68 percent of sex trafficking victims have been a part of the foster care system at one time, though Woolf said that percentage is probably lower for Northern Virginia.

Many victims of sex trafficking don't see themselves as victims, but rather the main perpetrators of the crime, which is why only a very small percentage of them ever report trafficking to the police. That is why Fairfax County schools have been starting education initiatives to spread awareness of this crime from a young age.

"Despite the fact that Fairfax County is statistically the safest jurisdiction of our size, predators still exist here. It's the job of everyone to be aware. Speaking as a mother and a grandmother, we need to make sure our young people are educated about predators and have their eyes open," said Sharon Bulova, chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

Fairfax County Public Schools began implementing a formal curriculum on sex trafficking in its family life programming in spring of 2014 in response to several sex trafficking cases in spring of 2012.

This program currently begins in 6th grade and runs through 10th grade, with another year of programming for 12th graders, and the school is currently working on curriculum for 11th graders to begin next year because the school considers the issue grave enough to warrant continuous education on the matter.

After two years, these programs appear successful. Liz Payne, the coordinator for Health, Family Life Education, and Physi-

U.S. Rep. Barbara Comstock (R-10), Dr. Ludy Green, Deepa Patel, Beth Saunders, and Det. Bill Woolf spoke to Comstock's Young Women Leadership Program at Great Falls Library on July 20, 2015 about human trafficking.

Meeting Focuses on Sex Trafficking

A free public event is offering information about human trafficking taking place around Northern Virginia. A rapidly growing crime on the national level, Fairfax County is no exception.

The Alexandria Commission for Women, The Arlington County Commission on the Status of Women, The City of Fairfax Commission for Women and the Fairfax County Commission for Women are co-sponsoring the event on Jan. 31. Organizers are looking to both increase awareness of trafficking and offer information and support for victims.

Elizabeth Scaife, director of training at Shared Hope International, is the keynote speaker for the awareness event. She's the group's main trainer on domestic minor sex trafficking.

In addition to the speaker, the event will also include workshops on the role of law enforcement, engaging with students on the issue, activating the business community and international trafficking.

Workshop leaders include Detective Bill Woolf, a special trafficking investigator with the Fairfax County Police Department, and Dr. Liz Payne, coordinator for Health, Family Life Education and Physical Education with Fairfax County Public Schools.

"Human Trafficking: Get the Facts and Take Action!" is scheduled to take place Jan. 31 from 1-4 p.m. at the Stacy C. Sherwood Community Center, 3740 Old Lee Highway in Fairfax.

Those attending the free event can bring used cell phones to recycle through the Verizon HopeLine program. The Artemis House domestic violence shelter will receive all proceeds.

OPINION

Pay Attention

General Assembly action matters more in Virginia.

The Virginia General Assembly began its 60-day 2016 session on Wednesday, Jan. 13. Here in Northern Virginia, residents are often far more cognizant of national politics and government than state and local government. But there are several reasons why, especially in Virginia, especially if you live in Northern Virginia, you should pay attention.

In Virginia, localities have only the power expressly given by the General Assembly. So living in Fairfax or Arlington or Alexandria, your local governments and regulations are often not able to reflect the values and preferences of residents.

For example, for Fairfax County to have any say about whether a gun store can operate adjacent to a school, where students can see customers coming and going with weapons, the General Assembly would have to vote to give the county that authority. While this has been a hot topic here, and several legislators have introduced “authorizing legislation,” it would be remarkable if the currently constituted assembly would allow this to go forward.

Living in the wealthiest areas of the Commonwealth also raises concerns. Localities have very limited options for raising revenue. The revenue that is actually based on someone’s ability to pay, income taxes, is only collected by the state; localities cannot claim any portion of income tax. Of course Northern Virginia is the economic engine of the state, and so it makes sense that a significant portion of the state budget would be funded with Northern Virginia dollars. But it is unfair that the General Assembly limits localities ability to access other revenue choices to fund local necessities like schools.

There are dozens of other examples, and most are complicated. But local officials are elected, and if local government takes action not supported by local voters, they will be voted out.

Because of gerrymandering of districts in both the House of Delegates and the Virginia Senate, the makeup of the General Assembly is far more conservative than the Commonwealth overall, as evidenced by Democrats elected to all statewide offices. This makes the control from Richmond all the more egregious.

Every resident is represented by one delegate and one senator in the Virginia General Assembly. You can visit the General Assembly website to find out who represents you, for contact information, for session livestreaming and more.

<http://viriniageneralassembly.gov>

Vote Now for Presidential Primary

Who will be the next President of the United States also matters.

In order to vote in either of Virginia’s presidential primaries on March 1, voters must be registered by Feb. 8. Voting “absentee in person” (early voting available for myriad reasons, including anyone who will commute to work on Election Day) is already underway.

In Virginia, voters do not register by party. In the primaries for President, you can vote either the Democrat or Republican ballot, but not both. If you choose to vote the Republican ballot, you will be required to sign the following statement first:

Section 24.2-545 of the Code of Virginia allows the political party holding a primary to determine requirements for voting in the primary. The Republican Party of Virginia has determined that the following statement shall be a requirement of your participation. STATEMENT: My signature below indicates that I am a Republican.

Transportation Improvements Will Bolster Economy

Northern Virginia Business Transportation Coalition 2016 policy statement.

We, the undersigned Northern Virginia organizations representing the vast majority of businesses and employees of Northern Virginia’s private sector and non-profit workforce, believe that a strong, efficient regional transportation network is essential to our region’s future economic competitiveness, security, and quality of life. We believe that unlocking Northern Virginia’s transportation grid requires a strategic regional approach.

We believe that achieving the best solutions to our transportation challenges requires a big picture perspective — regionally as well as statewide. Efforts to constrain, either by law or regulation, the Commonwealth Transportation Board’s ability to determine the best investments for the state, are counter to the goals set forth in House Bill 2, 2014 legislation designed to address the commonwealth’s congestion reduction and economic development needs.

The focus of the Commonwealth Transportation Board and the Northern Virginia Transportation Authority, our region’s designated transportation planning body, should be on the investment of regional, state, federal, and private sector transportation dollars for highway, transit improvements, and intelligent transportation systems that will:

- ❖ Move the greatest number of people throughout the region;
- ❖ Reduce congestion and travel time between major regional employment centers and communities;
- ❖ Increase reliability of the network region-wide while producing the best long-term return on investment;
- ❖ Promote regional economic development and growth; and

- ❖ Enhance regional security.

We are concerned that the law requiring the long-term benefits of Northern Virginia’s regional funds be distributed proportionally among jurisdictions impedes the ability of the regional body to address the region’s most critical transportation needs.

We believe that regional transportation funds should be primarily focused and leveraged, where appropriate, with federal, state, and private funds on projects of large-scale regional significance. These include:

- ❖ I-66 — construct new lanes and enhance transit from US Route 15/Haymarket to Theodore Roosevelt Bridge.
- ❖ New Potomac River Crossing — constructed west of American Legion Bridge.
- ❖ American Legion Bridge — add new express/managed lanes in each direction.
- ❖ Metro — improve maintenance, operations, safety and rail fleet.
- ❖ Bi-County Parkway — construct between I-66/Route 234 Bypass in Prince William County and Route 50 in Loudoun County.

- ❖ Route 28 — upgrade to eight lanes.
- ❖ Fairfax County Parkway — convert to limited access facility.
- ❖ I-395 — convert HOV lanes to express/managed lanes between the Capital Beltway and the 14th Street Bridge.
- ❖ Regional Express Bus network — implement in the I-66, I-95, I-395, I-495, Dulles and other major regional corridors.

We support performance-based statewide and regional transportation plans that focus on new and existing corridors of regional and statewide significance, the evaluation of highway and public transit projects utilizing the same criteria, and the prioritization of investments first and foremost on the ability to reduce congestion and improve travel time.

Surovell's Agenda: Part II

BY SCOTT SUROVELL
STATE SENATOR (D-36)

The Rules Committee assigned me to three committees. (1) The Local Government Committee considers legislation addressing land use, zoning and local government. (2) The Rehabilitation and Social Services Committee has jurisdiction over the safety net programs, prisons, alcoholic beverage regulation and childcare. (3) The General Laws and Technology Committee examines bills affecting homeowners associations, gambling, professional occupation regulation, procurement and the Freedom of Information Act. Each of these has jurisdiction over issues critical to the quality of life in our area.

Blue Line Extension and Multimodal Transportation

Interstate 95 is one of the most congested commuter corridors in the United States. In light of the congestion and the need for more high-quality development and employment, the Prince William County Board of Supervisors endorsed the concept of studying the extension of Metro's Blue Line from Springfield through Lorton, Woodbridge and Potomac Mills to Quantico.

I have introduced legislation to direct the Department of Rail and Public Transit to conduct a multimodal study for this and U.S. 1 south of the Occoquan so we can plan for the next 25 years.

As our highways become more clogged and as bike lanes and pedestrian facilities are incorporated into our infrastructure, it is important to encourage drivers to respect other users. Many states have enacted "vulnerable rider" laws to create heightened penalties for drivers who seriously injure pedestrians, cyclists, wheelchair users and others while distracted. I have introduced a bill to create a Class 1 misdemeanor for injuring a vulnerable user while distracted.

Homeowners' Rights

Over the last two years, I have helped to push back on the growing power of homeowners' and condominium owners' associations (HOA's). Some Northern Virginia localities improperly require property owners to show HOA approval before they issue a building permits. I have introduced legislation to make clear this is prohibited.

Helping Our Hispanic Community

In August, 2014, I hosted a Hispanic Town Hall in Hybla Valley.

The number one issue raised was difficulty in obtaining a driver's license or government identification.

Therefore, I have introduced legislation to allow people to obtain a temporary license if they can establish that they have been living in Virginia for one year and have either filed a Virginia tax return or been claimed as a dependent on another Virginian's tax return. Fifteen other states have passed similar legislation.

At the request of Prince William County Public Schools, I have introduced a bill to require Virginia schools to use a recognized English language proficiency assessment exam for children with limited English proficiency, as an alternative to the 11th grade Standards of Learning English reading exam. This is a fairer way to measure student achievement and will ensure that test scores in high schools with large ESOL populations are not affected by recently-arrived students.

Firearm Violence

During my discussions with the State Police about concealed weapon permit (CWP) proposals, we became aware that CWP's are automatically revoked for felony convictions, protective orders and other criminal offenses. However, for people who have received inpatient mental health and/or inpatient drug treatment after their CWP was issued, permits are not automatically revoked. I have introduced a bill to require automatic revocation.

Second, I have put in a bill to prohibit mentally ill people who are prohibited from possessing a firearm from also possessing ammunition. Today, mentally ill people can have as many bullets as they want — just no guns.

Third, I have re-introduced my 2014 legislation prohibiting individuals on the Terrorist Watch List from obtaining a CWP or purchasing a firearm. In 2014, the House of Delegates leadership would not give the bill a hearing.

Members of the Encore Chorales receive training from professional musicians, a chance to make social connections and perform challenging choral music.

Seniors Who Sing

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

When musician Jeanne Kelly was asked to be a part of a study on creativity in the aging, she readily accepted. She was a natural to be tapped for the job, since she was running a program for older adults at the Levine School of Music's Arlington campus. She was tasked with helping to measure the impact of professionally conducted cultural programs on older adults. "The study found that artistic excellence has huge benefits, physically, mentally and socially. Out of that study, I decided to start Encore," said Kelly, referring to a group of singers, all seniors, who are part of one of the 18 Encore Chorales that make up Encore Creativity for Older Adults. Encore is a nonprofit organization that offers arts education and performance opportunities for seniors. The chorales are currently accepting new members through the end of January. There are no auditions and all levels of musical experience and ability are accepted. CHORALE MEMBERS pay a fee which covers sheet music and the cost of the performances. In exchange, members receive music education and training from professional musicians, a chance to make social connections and an opportunity to perform challenging choral music. Participants learn proper breathing techniques and ways in which they can improve their voice, all under the guidance of a conductor. "We don't dumb things down for our older adults," said Kelly. "Our members really appreciate the respect they get." Adjustments are made, says Kelly, to accommodate the needs of some seniors. For example, rehearsals are held during the day out of consideration for those who don't drive at night, and members with mobility issues are not required to stand during rehearsals or performances. Encore focuses on offering a classical music repertoire. Choral works such as Giuseppe Verdi's "Messa da Requiem" are chosen to pair well with seniors' voices. "Our voices do change as we age," said Kelly. "Soprano voices aren't as high as we age, for example, so we choose wonderful music that really shows them off and will challenge them to the max." "What they're doing is beautiful because they're not only making healthy social connections, they're also challenging their brains which helps maintain their cognitive flexibility," said Carolyn Lorente, Ph.D, assistant professor of psychology at Northern Virginia Community College in Alexandria. "To be able to memorize a piece of music is impressive."

Encore Chorales travel and perform at venues around the globe. Janet Hansen, the chorale master for the Langston Brown Encore Chorale in Arlington, traveled to Cuba last year. "It was a marvelous experience that I wouldn't have had if I hadn't been in Encore," said Hansen, who is a retired education policy researcher. "I wanted to try new things that were different than I did when I was working. This one has been very rewarding." Chorale masters are singers who assist the conductor with administrative duties, serve as contact for singers with questions, etc. The chorales are open to everyone over the age of 55, regardless of musical experience or ability. Members range from beginners to accomplished musicians. Joan and Ted Thayer are members of the George Mason University Potomac Arts Academy Encore Chorale in Fairfax. Ted Thayer has been a musician for most of his adult life, majoring in music at the University of Illinois and spending more than 30 years in the National Symphony Orchestra. Joan Thayer, however, had no musical experience. Both participate fully in their chorale. Joan Thayer says she has enjoyed learning and sharing one of her husband's passions. "Singing is challenging for me, but I always come away happy and relaxed after an hour and a half rehearsal," she said. "It's a great group of people, and it's nice to be able to talk with someone about something that happened in the 1940s or about things that seniors are going through now, and actually be understood." Being challenged through musical performance is one of the things that Lee Lipsey, a member of and chorale master for the Encore Chorale of Reston, appreciates. "It's energizing and stimulating on a lot of different levels," she said. "It requires focus, hard work and practice to do it well, but there is a satisfaction in doing it well. You're part of a team, so your pursuit of excellence isn't an individual effort, it's for the team."

ENCORE has more than 1,200 members in 17 Chorale locations in the Washington, D.C. area and six Chorales in other cities. Opportunities for performance and travel for 2016 include a French Riviera cruise and intensive summer training at college campuses around the country. The season concludes with combined performances with other Chorales as well as local concerts at most Chorale locations.

Parent testimonies:

"Experiencing a Silent Journey changed our family forever. With one child in a traditional school and one at Aquinas Montessori, we did not know which direction to head. There we were, receiving a 1st grade lesson on Big Numbers, and it was exciting and grand. We were up and down, moving material around and across the room. All the while, we were thinking about how our oldest son was learning math in his traditional 1st grade classroom. It was incomparable. Right then and there it all became clear to us that Montessori education was the right decision for our family. We now have two children at Aquinas Montessori and our third will join the community as soon as she is old enough."

"What a fabulous morning – I was a Montessori kid! Just as my son enjoys his mornings at Aquinas, I was able to have lessons and see through his eyes."

A receiving room in the new fourth Marian Homes house in Fairfax will eventually feature French doors out to a deck done entirely by the Knights of Columbus Council 8600.

Go Fourth and Prosper

THE CONNECTION

2016: Another year, another demolition and another home being renovated to meet the needs of five individuals with disabilities. On an overcast Friday, Jan. 15, Knights of Columbus volunteers assisting the Fairfax Station-based nonprofit organization Marian Homes stripped carpet and hammered and knocked down walls in a single-family home on Wilson Street in Fairfax City.

Many of the volunteers were at another house in Springfield, less than a year ago in March 2015, gutting that one too. In June, residents with intellectual or developmental disabilities moved into the re-finished house, christened “Queen of Peace” and modified with wider doorways, expansive bathrooms and a much more open floor plan to meet their housing needs.

As the Northern Virginia Training Center — a decades-old, state-run institution alongside Braddock Road in Fairfax that has housed and facilitated treatment for people with disabilities — is scheduled to close entirely in the next two months, there’s been a push for those residents to find comparable services elsewhere in the community.

With just around 70 small group facilities in Fairfax County, hundreds are waiting for space to open up.

RESIDENTS of Marian Homes houses don’t pay rent. But they have waivers for services from the Commonwealth of Virginia that go to CHIMES, the international nonprofit that runs the day-to-day treatment for residents that in turn pays rent to Marian Homes.

The first Marian Homes residence “Marian House” was dedicated in 1998 and houses five adult women. The second took in all men, as did the third. “Mother of Mercy,” the name of this fourth home, will accept five adult women again, four of which are coming from the Northern Virginia Training Center.

To acquire third house outright, Marian Homes received a grant from Fairfax County. The grant came from federal funding designated for purchasing and rehabilitating affordable housing, so it was a good fit. In October 2015, Marian Homes applied in the latest request for proposal from the County for additional federal grant money. Again, they were awarded over $500,000 to acquire fourth house.

No sooner had residents moved into the Springfield home, a team from Marian Homes began looking for the next project house. Walter Purdy from the Marian Homes board said they looked at more than 100, trying to find “the one that fits the needs of those residents in the future, fits the open style we look for.”

Purdy said they liked the big bay window and floor plan of this single-story, four-bedroom house on Wilson Street in Fairfax City. Like in their previous projects, doorways and halls will become wider, bathrooms more robust for assisted bathing. The dropped floor of the garage will be raised to meet the rest of the house and the whole space is planned to be converted into a utility closet, second full bathroom and fifth bedroom.

After a three-day demolition by volunteers (three teams of 18 men), contracted construction is expected to take 75 days.

William Baker on the Marian Homes Board of Directors said the goal is to open the home to residents on May 1.

Total cost for the property, closing and renovation is about $735,000, Baker said. Though by using volunteers for demolition, they saved around $20,000. That net amount will be covered by the federal grant money from Fairfax County, a loan from the Virginia Knights of Columbus charity KOVAR and additional fundraising.

“What’s really incredible is all the volunteers,” Baker said. “The County still doesn’t know how we operate.”

Marian Homes formed out of the Knights of Columbus Council 8600 at St. Mary of Sorrows, who continue to supply volunteer labor to these projects. “Our mission is providing for those in need and Marian Homes is an instrument for Knights to do just that,” said Baker.

FOR THIS FOURTH HOUSE, they added the strength of a dozen Knights from Council 7566, St. John Neumann Parish in Reston.

“They’re the dirtiest gang here,” said Tom McFarlane of Reston (and Marian Homes president emeritus).

Tom Zorn of Herndon joined McFarlane in representing Council 7566. Swinging a hammer at a doorframe, Zorn commented that in addition to the various charitable acts his Council is part of, “I’m happy we can do something a little different.”

Council 8600 Grand Knight Jim McHugh and Marian Homes president William Crowder stood in the middle of a dusty bare floor that will soon be the base of an open galley kitchen with a five-foot pass-through and roll-up countertop space. They agreed that taking on not just one, but four of these home makeover projects is “daunting.”

“But we can’t be complacent, there’s a great bunch of guys working this,” said Crowder. “You empower people and let them do what they can do.”

“It’s amazing to watch a group of men gather and put faith into action — as the Bible tells us, we can do more,” McHugh said. “We go out, take on something audacious and challenging, and worry about how to get it done later.”

Marian Homes and St. Mary of Sorrows Knights of Columbus Council 8600 will host a “Casino Knight” fundraiser benefitting individuals with disabilities on Jan. 30 from 7-11 p.m. in the Farrell Hall of St. Mary of Sorrows, located at 5222 Sideburn Road in Fairfax. The entry cost of $25 includes poker chips, food, drinks and entertainment. For more information, visit www.marianhomes.org.

Woodson Falls to TC in OT Despite 14 3-Pointers

Titans overcome double-digit second-half deficit.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

DeJuan Robinson would later admit he's not the greatest free-throw shooter. Pressure situations, however, are where the T.C. Williams senior said he thrives.

The Titans trailed Woodson by a point when Robinson drove to the basket and was fouled with 2.6 seconds remaining in overtime. Robinson knocked down both of his ensuing free-throw attempts, lifting the T.C. Williams boys' basketball team to a 79-76 victory on Tuesday at Woodson High School.

Following a Cavaliers turnover, Titans guard Tavaris James made a pair of free throws with six-tenths of a second remaining to extend the TC lead to three. Woodson missed its final shot attempt at the buzzer.

T.C. Williams trailed 76-75 when junior forward Tyrese Randall forced a turnover, giving the Titans possession with 20.1 seconds remaining in overtime. Robinson attacked the basket in the closing seconds and earned a trip to the foul line, where he would hit the game-winning free throws.

"DeJuan Robinson did a fantastic job stepping up and knocking down those free throws," TC head coach Bryan Hill said. "He had a bunch of big plays around the basket that I thought were key, so that demonstrates his senior leadership and I'm really glad to see DeJuan Robinson really stepping up and being more of a leader on our team both on and off the court. I'm really excited about seeing him win a game for us like that today.

"... He's hitting big shots for us around the bucket, he's slashing, getting rebounds, knocking down free throws to win games. That's the kind of stuff as a 17-year-old kid you want to be able to talk about that to [your] kids when [you're] 30 — 'I won this game, I knocked these shots down.' It's the kind of stuff you remember forever, so I'm really glad that he was able to have that experience tonight."

Robinson said he doesn't consider himself a solid free-throw shooter, but did say, "I was confident I was going to make those two shots."

"I'm actually not [a solid free-throw shooter]," Robinson said. "That's the funny thing. It's just clutch situations. As a senior on the team, I just had to step up and lead. ... When the pressure is up, I like to step up."

Robinson finished with five points, including a three-point play in the second quarter.

"He's a good kid and I think he would like to score more," Hill said, "but we need him to be scrappy and rebound and defend and he's accepted that role and done a great job with it and I'm really proud of him."

Robinson's free throws put the finishing touch on the Titans' come-from-behind victory. Woodson led by as many as 11 points in the second half, when a 3-pointer by senior guard Seamus Maloney gave the Cavaliers a 46-35 advantage with 2 minutes remaining in the third quarter.

A THREE-POINT PLAY by Matt Ayoub gave Woodson a 63-53 lead with 3:32 remaining in the fourth quarter. The Cavaliers managed just three free throws for the remainder of regulation, however, and did not score a point during the final 2 minutes, 3 seconds.

Fahmmi Mamo took over in the fourth quarter for the Titans. The junior guard scored 14 of TC's 23 points in the quarter, and his second 3-pointer of the period cut the Woodson lead to 64-62 with 2:31 remaining.

"Once the first one went in, I knew the second one was going to go in," Mamo said. "I'm more of a consistent shooter, rather than taking random shots. It felt great."

Mamo led the Titans with 23 points, including 19 in the second half.

"He does have the green light to shoot the ball within reason," Hill said. "He's not a selfish player — he lets it come to him. He hit some big ones tonight; he hit some big ones a couple of games back, so I'm not surprised by that."

Mamo's free throw with 1:44 remaining cut the Woodson lead to 66-63. Senior guard Jordan Jones knocked down two free throws with 1:27 on the clock and James made 1 of 2 from the line to tie the score at 66 with 1:07 remaining. Woodson had a chance to win at the end of regulation, but Maloney's shot from near halfcourt rattled out at the buzzer.

In overtime, James scored seven of TC's 13 points.

"We took the right shots and we kept our poise," James said about the Titans' comeback.

"Instead of rushing to get back in the game, we ran through our sets and got the right shots within the offense."

James finished with 18 points despite sitting out for more than 5 minutes after crashing into the wall and hitting his head with 5:06 left in the first quarter. James said he was initially worried he might have a concussion, but after going through some tests, including up-downs and push-ups, he returned to the game with 7:27 left in the second quarter.

"When I got back on the floor," James said, "I just felt like it was back to normal."

Jones finished with 14 points for TC, and freshman JaQuan Johnson-Terry scored 10, including a pair of 3-pointers in the fourth quarter.

TC finished the first half of the Conference 7 schedule with a 4-3 record.

Woodson fell to 7-8 overall and 3-4 in the conference.

"All the little plays at the end, every time we made a mental error, they burned us," Woodson head coach Doug Craig said. "The margin for error in this district is very small. We can't continue to make as many mental errors as we make and win games. We're not good enough to overcome that. We have to find a way to tighten up some of our execution stuff. We took a lot of bad shots down the stretch, missed some free throws, had a couple turnovers [and some] tough foul calls that really hurt our team."

WOODSON lost despite making 14 3-pointers.

Junior guard Jason Aigner finished with 26 points and six 3-pointers, including a trio from behind the arc in the second quarter as the Cavaliers built a 33-25 halftime lead.

Senior guard Matt Ayoub scored 23 points for Woodson, including five 3-pointers, and reached 1,000 career points with a transition bucket in the third quarter.

Maloney added 14 points and a trio of 3s.

Ayoub also attributed the loss to "mental errors."

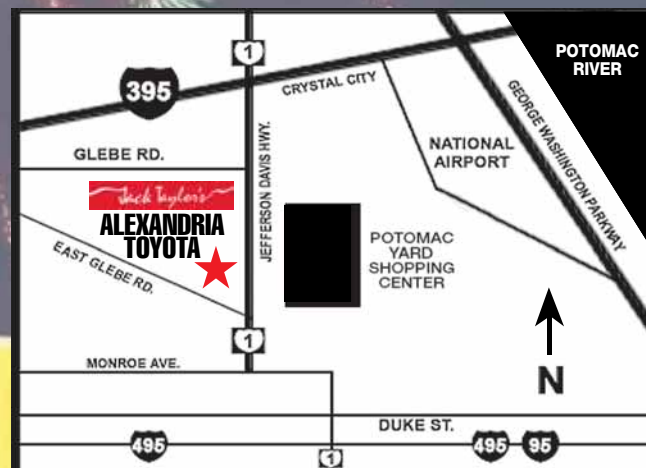

"They had to come foul us," Ayoub said, "and we just decided to shoot the ball instead of hold it."

T.C. Williams will host Lake Braddock at 7:15 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 21. Woodson is scheduled to travel to face Mount Vernon at 7:15 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 22.
