Filler-Corn Promotes Child Care Safety in the General Assembly

In the 2016 General Assembly Session, Del. Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41) has offered two bipartisan bills continuing her work in making child care safer in Virginia. Ensuring that child care facilities are licensed, regulated and safe has been a priority for Filler-Corn since 2014, when she first introduced legislation that would close that threshold gap for caring for children in an unlicensed day care, as well as requiring child care providers to go through an extensive background check which includes a fingerprint check to ensure that these providers are fully vetted and are who they say they are. "As a mother of two, I know first hand how stressful it can be to not only find child care, but know that your child is safe," said Filler-Corn. Last year the General Assembly children receiving care in such programs, consider such other matters as may be necessary regarding health and safety requirements for licensed child day centers, and consult with all relevant stakeholders. Del. Filler-Corn's second bill, HB 500, conforms Virginia's child care background checks with federal requirements.

Both pieces of legislation were heard in the Health, Welfare and Institutions, Subcommittee #3.

The subcommittee voted to continue HB 500 into the 2017 session.

passed legislation requiring a fingerprint check for licensed providers and those who are unlicensed who care for children receiving a childcare subsidy. This bill becomes effective in 2017. However, loopholes still remain. "If the law is not fixed, Virginia stands to lose $5 million annually through a reduction in federal child care funds," according to Sharon Veatch, executive director of Child Care Aware Virginia.

Del. Filler-Corn's first bill, HB 474, requires the Department of Social Services (DSS) to study child day centers that are licensed and exempt from licensure. Additionally DSS would be required to review all categories of child day programs exempt from licensure, formulate recommendations regarding whether such programs should remain exempt from licensure or whether any modifications that may be necessary to protect the health and well-being of the

The full Health, Welfare and Institutions Committee then heard HB 474 on Tuesday, Feb. 9 and referred it to the House Committee on Rules. While the bill was tabled, they did however, direct the Department of Social Services to review both license and license-exempt care.

County Executive: Revenue growth is insufficient to fund all priorities. Schools still $68 million short.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

County Executive Ed Long recommended a four-cent increase to the real estate tax rate. But to meet the full request of Fairfax County Public Schools, he said, would require a three-cent increase on top of the budget he built.

Long presented the FY 2017 Advertised Budget Plan to the Board of Supervisors Tuesday morning, Feb. 16.

"The budget is a discussion with the community," said Chairman Sharon Bulova.

"This is the first step," said Lee Supervisor Jeff McKay, head of the board's budget committee.

"We have to see what the reactions are," said Long.

Bulova is scheduled to advertise the FY 2017 tax rate on March 1. At that point, the board can lower but not increase from the tax rate advertised.

The projected value of each penny is $23.3 million to the county, Long said.

"At the current real estate tax rate, revenue growth is insufficient to fund all of our priorities," Long told the Board of Supervisors.

But even with the increase, he warned, there are "many unmet needs and investment requirements that remain unfunded."

Each member of the Board of Supervisors will hold local community dialogues in their respective districts; then the board will hold public hearings on the budget from April 5-7.

The board will adopt the final budget on April 26.

FAIRFAX COUNTY

More than 50 percent of Fairfax County's $3.988 billion budget will be transferred to Fairfax County Public Schools, $68 million less than FCPS requested.

THE FEUD resumed between the School Board and the Board of Supervisors before Long's speech even concluded, with his proposed budget falling $68 million short of what FCPS Superintendent Karen Garza says is needed.

"We are dismayed that Fairfax County Executive Ed Long has ignored the pleas of Emotional independent outbursts and communal chants of "Fund our schools" and "Invest in kids" echoed through the grand amphitheater just beyond the entrance to the Fairfax County Government Center.

The same day Fairfax County Executive Ed Long announced his proposal for a nearly $4 billion county budget at the Board of Supervisors morning meeting, school advocacy groups including IamFCPS, the Fairfax County Council of PTAs, Fairfax Education Association, Fairfax FLAGS and Fairfax Arts Coalition for Education, organized a rally in the evening calling for the supervisors to fully fund the FY 2017 budget adopted by the School Board.

That budget, a $121.4 million increase over the previous year, represents not only a 6.7 percent increase in transfer from the county, but also enables Superintendent Dr. Karen Garza to steer the school system forward with no additional cuts to programs or services.

Though Garza won't formally present her budget to the supervisors until early April, Long's $3.988 billion proposed budget falls short of the current requested transfer to the school system by nearly $68 million.

"This is not good enough," said Fairfax

Education Association president Kimberly Adams. "Our children are worth more, our community is worth more, and Fairfax is willing to invest a few cents more to make sure our next generation has a bright future."

Adams was one of several speakers scheduled to speak who also included Debbie Kilpatrick, president of the Fairfax parents, students, employees and community members to fully fund Fairfax County Public Schools' budget in FY 2017," said School Board president Pat Hynes in an emailed statement. "Despite calling for a tax increase, Mr. Long's budget signals no increase to the schools above last year's budget guidance of three percent while increasing the county's budget by a greater percentage. ... This news means that, unless the Board of Supervisors provides for a funding increase above Mr. Long's recommendation, Fairfax County Public Schools will once again have to make damaging budget cuts that will reduce educational opportunities for our children."

County Executive Ed Long balanced this year's proposed budget with a three-cent increase on real estate, but recommends a four-cent increase.

McKay, head of the budget committee, immediately countered after the Board of Supervisors hearing. He had already read words from various school officials.

"Expressing to people somehow that the Board of Supervisors is cutting the school budget which was again expressed in writing today," said McKay, "is just technically not true."

"Let's talk about how we can better meet the school's needs but let's be truthful in presenting the facts to people about what is actually happening. While the county has dramatically increased education funding every year that I've been on board, the state has fallen further and further and further behind."

"There is a point in time in which we have to lobby the state to fix that problem," he said.

The board has increased the funding of schools by $230 million since FY 2008, he said during the presentation. "Clearly this budget doesn't meet the transfer request of the schools and we need to do something to address that."

VIRGINIA RANKS in the top ten in both per capita and median household income but in the bottom 10 for state funding of public education, according to county documents.

"As the county has been saying for many years, the state is not meeting its share of funding for K-12 education in Fairfax County," Long said.

"That puts a tremendous strain on other parts of our budget when the state doesn't come through," Long said.

"That's an awful lot for our citizens to bear," said Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) of the proposed tax increase. "I'm hoping we can do something with our community to take the burden off the backs of our taxpayers."

Supervisor John Cook (R-Braddock) called it a "dark and dreary and ugly day."

"We are getting squeezed by national economic forces that are the worst in our lifetimes," he said. "This is where it comes to roost. Right here."

"We're going to have to get out a pencil and figure out where we can find some savings," said Cook. "Four pennies is nothing I can swallow."

"I'm not gloomy," said Supervisor Cathy Hudgins (D-Hunter Mill). "Four cents sounds like an awful lot, but I can tell you I feel stronger in the way that we can support the schools, and the ways we can support the community."

The countywide average assessment for all homes is $527,648, and the owner of a home valued that much would see $304 increase in property taxes. The county average assessment for a single family house is $632,507. Assessments vary by location. In Great Falls, the average is $1,055,249. In Centreville, the average is $385,089.

CRITICAL ITEMS included in the budget, according to Long: FCPS operating increase of three percent; FCPS infrastructure investment; improvements in county employee compensation; investments in public safety including increased staffing, beginning implementation of Ad Hoc Police Commission recommendations and Diversion First, staffing for new police station in South County; spending on Human Services, including full funding for this year's intellectual disability graduates.

Several issues contribute to the revenue challenges, Long said.

❖ The local economy underperformed the national economy from 2011 - 2014.

❖ High office vacancy rate in the county - over 20 million square feet vacant out of 116.5 million square feet. As of mid-year 2015, direct office vacancy rate was 16.5 percent, highest since 1991, when it was 16.8 percent.

❖ Local real estate market is underperforming the nation, so county's FY 2017 real estate tax growth lower than anticipated.

But "looking forward," Long said, "there's reasons for optimism. I'm optimistic about our local economy."

The board adopted the Economic Strategic Plan, he said.

"The Silver Line is going ahead full steam and we are going to see that opening up in 2019-2020. That gives reason for optimism," he said.

"And all the rezoning in Tysons and Reston, I'm extremely optimistic we are going to grow our commercial base."

Free Community Education Helps Take Stress out of Tax Season

BY DENENE CRABBS

If you cringe when you think of tax season, you're not alone. Each year Northern Virginia business owners rally to get their W2s and 1099s mailed by the Jan. 31 deadline while employees and independent contractors begin gathering their documents to take to their tax preparer. The process of organizing receipts, searching for lost statements, and determining which expenses may be worth the time to calculate can often add stress to the already many demands upon Northern Virginia families. Tax preparation questions often go unanswered as taxpayers don't want to incur additional accountant fees.

To ease this anxiety, one local business owner, Melissa Khoo of Liberty Tax Service Fairfax Station, is taking an innovative approach to addressing taxpayer concerns. With over two decades of experience as a Certified Tax Auditor, Khoo and her team of experienced Tax Preparers are providing free seminars with question and answer sessions to inform taxpayers how to prepare for this year's tax season and plan future tax-saving strategies. Seminars will cover a variety of topics and frequently asked questions such as "Do I have enough medical expenses for a deduction?," "I sold and bought another home this year. What expenses can I deduct?" and "Is a SEP or SIMPLE IRA better for my small business?" All events are free and open to the public. While seminars are tailored to various occupations, taxpayers may attend the event that works best for their schedule, regardless of occupation or retirement status. Each seminar concludes with a question and answer session open to all.

Fairfax Presses Ahead with Diversion First

When police encounter someone in mental health crisis, they can transport them to Merrifield Crisis Response Center instead of jail.

Natasha McKenna died a little more than a year ago on Feb. 7, 2015. McKenna, with a long history of severe and often untreated mental illness, had been deteriorating in the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center since Jan. 26, 2015, arriving directly from release from the hospital on an outstanding warrant from the City of Alexandria charging felonious assault on an Alexandria police officer.

We can't know whether new efforts to provide people in mental health crisis might have saved her life if they were available and put in place early in this particular crisis, which appears to have begun a month before her death. McKenna's death is a terrible tragedy, and no new program will remove that horror.

But it's clear that treatment rather than jail can make all the difference for many people who come into contact with law enforcement in a mental health crisis. Diversion First is a collaborative effort in Fairfax County to reduce the number of people with mental illness in the county jail by diverting low risk offenders experiencing a mental health crisis to treatment rather than bringing them to jail.

Sheriff Stacey Kincaid estimates that 40 percent of detainees at the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center have mental illness. Notably, it is far more expensive to house someone in county jail than to provide treatment.

The collaborative effort was in no small part launched by Supervisor John Cook when he asked that the Board of Supervisors to add crisis intervention training to the scope of work of the Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission. The Mental Health subcommittee along with the Community Services Board, the Sheriff's Department, police and mental health advocates set and met an aggressive agenda and timetable for implementation, with the program actually beginning in less than a year, on Jan. 1, 2016. In the first month, the Merrifield Crisis Response Center handled more than 100 cases involving police and people in mental health crisis.

Merrifield Crisis Response Center operates as an assessment site where police are able to transfer custody of nonviolent offenders who may need mental health services to a CIT-trained officer or deputy assigned there, instead of taking them to jail.

How far-reaching, life-saving and resource-preserving Diversion First will turn out to be will depend on how it is implemented and the discretion and policies of the police and prosecutors, among others.

Freedom of Information on Life Support in General Assembly?

Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34) cites FOIA on life support in his blog oxroadsouth.com:

"Last week, the Assembly passed SB 202, which undid a major push eight years ago to ensure that all of our public spending was 'online' and searchable by ordinary citizens. This, of course, meant disclosing the salaries of public employees over a certain income level. However, SB 202 has undone all of that, which means that you will no longer know how much a public employee (even a city manager) is paid unless you make a formal FOIA request. (Because we all have time to do that).

"This bad idea passed on a 27-12 vote.

"Today the Senate passed SB 552 which is even more sweeping. It actually prohibits from disclosure not just the salary information but even the names of public safety personnel, including the Sheriff, the Chief of Police and the Fire Chief.

"On the floor today, I pointed out that a Chief of Police could put his own family on the payroll and be protected from disclosure. This could also be an issue if a law enforcement agency hires an officer with a poor record from another jurisdiction — and nobody knows. Again, who are we protecting?"

"Again, the bill passed 25-15."

"If I'm making a veto list, these two are definitely on it."

We agree.

Regional Gas Tax, Digital Divide and Identity Protection

BY SCOTT SUROVELL
STATE SENATOR (D-36)

The fifth week of the General Assembly Session brought some long days and nights as we rushed to complete work on bills before our mid-session deadline called "Cross-over."

First the Senate passed legislation to plug a hole in the Northern Virginia 2.1 percent regional gas tax that is used to fund transit. This legislation was the top priority for Fairfax, Prince William and Stafford counties.

It now goes on to an uncertain future in the House of Delegates, but without the legislation, localities will be under even more pressure to raise real estate taxes if we expect to maintain the same level of transit service.

Eleven of my bills have passed the full Senate with two more still waiting for final passage. One bill involved improving the fairness of protective order proceedings and another ensured that Virginians can enforce subpoenae in civil and criminal cases in Virginia due to a recent Supreme Court of Virginia opinion. My legislation to help close the Digital Divide moved through committee this week. Today's children learn digitally and digital literacy is a key job skill in a modern workforce. However, low income families often cannot afford devices or broadband connections.

After I learned Fairfax County was using electronic textbooks and failing to provide computers for low income families to use them at home, I introduced legislation to require any school using electronic textbooks to provide a digital device to every student. The legislation was vetted and approved by the Joint Commission on Technology and Science but was tabled in the House. Last week, the Senate Education, Health and Welfare Committee passed the bill on a 14-1 vote.

The proliferation of companies providing background checks for people has led to an increase in dissemination of inaccurate information. This severely limits Virginians' opportunities, especially in employment and housing. My legislation to create a Virginia-based cause of action to remedy these situations and hold companies accountable for putting out inaccurate information passed the Senate.

Several of my law firm clients and lawyers in Northern Virginia have told me that some orthopedic practices are refusing to see individuals who have suffered injuries in vehicle collisions — even if they have insurance. My bill to require insurance companies to contractually prohibit doctors from refusing patients based on how they were injured was continued to 2017 so we can convene meetings between insurance companies, doctors, and other stakeholders to mediate a resolution.

If you have any feedback, please send me a note at scott@scottsuovell.org. It is an honor to serve as your state senator.

PHOTOS BY TIM PETERSON/THE CONNECTION

Dr. Jim Kelly (left), Emergency Services manager at the CSB Merrifield Center explains to reporters how individuals in custody enter the facility via a sally port. If they're struggling or in a more extreme state, they're taken to a separate emergency interview room.

Taking the Crime out of Mental Illness

Fairfax County officials announce Diversion First program designed to help individuals get treatment not jail time.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

Kevin Earley said he's living proof that Diversion First works. Earley has been living with bipolar disorder and had his last episode in 2007. "I was tasered, I broke the law and endangered myself," he said.

Earley was picked up by a Fairfax County Police officer who had received Crisis Intervention Team training and driven to the hospital, not the adult detention center.

Earley said the officer spoke with a calm tone and "treated me with dignity and respect. The smallest gesture can mean the world."

He was linked with a case manager "who loved and cared for me," and he also benefitted from other psychological and family support.

"I was sick and needed help, support, not jail time," Earley said. "It shouldn't be a crime to live with mental illness."

Now Earley works as a recovery specialist with the Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board. He spoke to a room full of reporters and supporters on Feb. 11 at the CSB Merrifield Crisis Response Center, a massive Fairfax County-owned facility for mental illness treatment services located off Gallows Road in Fairfax.

THAT DAY a panel of government leaders explained the new program Diversion First, the main goal of which is to prevent people with mental illness from unnecessarily filling up the jail. To create more success stories like Earley's.

Fairfax County Sheriff Stacey Kincaid said about 40 percent of the jail's inmate population has mental illness. "It used to be something taboo for people to talk about or report," she said.

After an intensive study of the mental health program in place through the Sheriff's office in Bexar County, Texas, Kincaid said her office has been making changes such as the relocation of women with mental illness to a separate housing area and change in release time to 8 a.m.

Kincaid also commented that the Diversion First program was "quite a bit" in reaction to the in-custody death of Natasha McKenna just over one year ago. Video was released of McKenna, an African American woman with mental illness, being tased numerous times by Fairfax County deputies while she struggled during an effort to transport her to Alexandria City jail.

"It certainly pushed this forward," Kincaid said.

Prior to Diversion First, deputies might bring an individual with mental illness to the CSB for evaluation or treatment, but then be responsible for waiting with them, sometimes for many hours, until they could be seen.

Now, a deputy and police officer will be stationed at the Merrifield Center for 21.5 hours every day for other officers and deputies to hand off custody and then return to duty.

"The officers love this, the morale is good," said Fairfax County Chief of Police Edwin Roessler. "We do have gaps" in policing, he said, "especially where we serve those with mental health episodes. The majority of our use of force incidents are with those suffering mental health crisis."

For their part in Diversion First, Roessler has also been working towards getting 100

CSB Chairman Gary Ambrose said the Diversion First program has taken on "a dynamism of its own" after taking several years to initiate.

percent of officers trained in Crisis Intervention Team. This year, 176 officers have already received the training, he said. CIT is a Commonwealth of Virginia-certified program that teaches officers about what it's like to live with mental illness as well as procedures for de-escalating critical episodes both in the field and jail.

"This is a great first start," he said. The police are also implementing a new Critical Decision-Making Model based on policing in Scotland, the Chief said, and are the first department in the country to do so.

The model is "the backbone of CIT," said Roessler. "The goal is to preserve the sanctity of human life."

In the first month of implementing Diversion First (Jan. 1-31), Roessler said field officers have conducted 265 mental health investigations. Of those, 40 percent involved the Merrifield Center and 39 percent had participation from a CIT-certified officer or officers.

Once an individual with mental illness arrives at the CSB Merrifield Center, either under their own power or in custody, they check in, undergo a preliminary interview and psychological and medical evaluation. From there, CSB staffers determine whether treatment or further transport to the hospital is necessary.

Roessler said Diversion First isn't meant as a pass from jail for serious offenders or violent crimes. But empowered by Diversion First, officers may use their discretion in determining lawlessness.

Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board Recovery Specialist Kevin Earley lives with bipolar disorder and is thankful to diversion for the way he was treated during his last mental illness episode.

IF JAIL AND HOSPITAL are ruled out for the individual, a problem currently being tackled by the General Assembly is housing. The local psychiatric hospital in Fairfax County is the Northern Virginia Mental Health Institute in Falls Church on the INOVA campus, with 123 beds.

Those include emergency psychiatric beds, involuntary beds and forensic beds, said Tisha Deeghan, executive director of the CSB. Deeghan said it's a statewide problem that facilities such as the Institute in Falls Church don't have the capacity to handle all the referrals.

"We're working in Richmond to resolve it," she said. If there is no room in Falls Church, officers or deputies then try taking the individual to another facility outside of northern Virginia.

Kincaid encouraged people to contact their elected officials about building a new mental health facility to add capacity in northern Virginia.

"It's the right thing to do," said Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova, who explained there's a three-to-five-year funding mechanism in place to increase the capacity and services of the CSB. "There's savings in having someone not live in jail, but receive services and continue to live in the community."

Now is the time to plan for summer camp, say experts.

Time To Plan for Kids' Summer Camp Adventures

Local camp fair offers sampling of summer programs.

Under a blanket of February frost, summer might seem light years away, but it's closer than one might think. As coveted slots fill at some of the area's most sought-after camps, now is the time to begin planning, say camp directors. With options ranging from sailing to fencing, narrowing down the decision can be daunting. That's why local camp fairs can be a valuable one-stop-shopping service for choosing summer activities. Hundreds of camp representatives will be on hand for the Northern Virginia Camp and Summer Fun Expo on Feb. 20-21 at 2100 Dulles Town Circle, Dulles.

"We will have a lot of exhibitors in one location so that parents can see a variety of camps to make sure that their children have a fun summer," said Samantha Carter of Washington Parent, the event's sponsor. "There are programs to fit every budget."

Camp fairs, says Carter, offer parents an opportunity to meet representatives from a variety of camps, gather information and ask questions. "We have camps from all up and down the eastern seaboard, even as far away as Maine."

With so many choices, narrowing the list of options can leave many parents feeling flummoxed. Camp experts shared a few key factors parents should consider before settling on summer camps to help avert unpleasant surprises.

"First, I think that parents should take their children into consideration, and the kinds of activities they like to do and whether they are being offered at the camps

It's a good idea to inquire about the camper to staff ratios and the types of staff the camp will hire, such as adult teachers or activity specialists. "Who are the individuals who will watch over the campers and what kinds of licenses do they have?" asks Francesca Reed, a mother of two and associate vice president for Enrollment Management at Marymount University in Arlington.

Safety and medical considerations are also key factors to consider, especially for children who have allergies or other medical issues. "Is there a nurse on site?" asks Stacie Gottlieb, director of Summer Programs at Bullis School in Potomac, Md. "What safety and medical procedures [does the camp] have in place?"

Reed suggests parents also inquire about a camp's drop off and pick up times, availability of after-care services and whether fees are charged for late arrivals. "Some of the basic questions are the cost and any additional fees that might not be apparent," said Reed. "Find out the camp's reimbursement policy in case you have to cancel before camp starts or while it's in session."

For parents who have more than one child who will attend camp, Rechen suggests looking for camps that offer an assortment of activities that appeal to children of different ages. "For the sake of convenience, it's key for a lot of parents to have all of their children in one camp, so they don't have to make multiple trips each and every day," he said. "Having a variety of programs for a wide age range also allows younger children to see the activities that they have to look forward to as they get older."

Star Wars Fans Flock to Local Classes

Movie's popularity leaves fans wanting to feel "The Force."

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

Beams of neon light flash around a dark room. Young Star Wars fans from a galaxy not so far away wield light sabers and move with carefully choreographed steps. These Jedi-in-training are undergoing a fantasy combat training that melds martial arts with light saber fighting, Star Wars-style.

"Star Wars fans are the ultimate martial arts enthusiasts. Star Wars is 100 percent developed on the concepts and philosophies of martial arts ... the use of the sword, the belief structure," said Michael Dietrich of Dietrich's Karate Fitness and Life Skills in Burke. "Now we have an opportunity to invite students because of their interest in the movie. It's an easy way to bring them into our schools and show them what martial arts are all about."

Building on the hype surrounding the recent release of "Star Wars: Episode VII - The Force Awakens," Dietrich began offering classes at his newly created "Laser Saber Academy." Students sign up for a six-week class, where they learn how to use a light saber, tap into "The Force," and improve their focus, discipline and determination.

"Any time a new movie or TV show comes out that features a robot, there is a spike in interest in robotics," said Dan Gallagher of RobotWorks in Burke. "Every kid I've talked to since the Star Wars movie came out wants to know how BB-8 works. Before that, they talked about other robots like Wall-E, R2D2, and Baymax."

At RobotWorks, Gallagher's students learn basic robot design, construction and programming. "In general, though, kids are always interested in robots and how they work. Robots are fun," said Gallagher. "Building robots is even more fun, so we see a steady interest that might jump a little when a new movie robot makes an appearance because it acts as a reminder of that interest — bringing it back to the front burner."

The concepts of the Star Wars universe are seeping into the extracurricular class choices at local schools, with students opting to take offerings like robotics and 3-D modeling. "I think that there is some interest in our STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, the Arts and Mathematics) activities that grows from sci-fi movies like Star Wars," said Richard Rho, director of Technology Education and Innovation at St. Stephen's & St. Agnes School. "I have had students 3D model and print the Tie Fighters and X Wing from the movies as well as talking about how we could create our own BB-8 droid in the robotics lab as the off season project."

Educators say that such activities are fun and engaging while also educational. "It's great students are getting inspired by the movie to create ideas and designs and spreading that interest with the rest of our community," said Rho.

"Any time a new movie or TV show comes out that features a robot, there is a spike in interest in robotics."

Theater as Family Good Shepherd Players mark 35 years with “Oklahoma!”

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

Carol St. Germain of Burke has theater in her blood. She and her husband met working on productions at Lynchburg College, she followed him as he pursued a career in theater design and together, they’ve worked to bring shows to life with the Good Shepherd Players for the last three decades.

“We’ve always loved theater,” said St. Germain. “Once you get it in your blood, it’s part of you.” St. Germain teaches English as a Second Language at The Church of the Good Shepherd, the company’s home base.

The Players are celebrating their 35th year with a production of Rodgers and Hammerstein’s old frontier-themed musical “Oklahoma!” opening this weekend. St. Germain has been in the chorus or specialized in prop decoration for 33 of those 35 years.

St. Germain remembers trying out for “Fiddler on the Roof” in the Players’ second year. The next year, for “Music Man,” she won a lead role. “It’s been downhill ever since,” she joked. But in all seriousness, St. Germain is excited about the professional-level rotating set piece in this “Oklahoma!” that doubles as a farmhouse porch on one side and a rustic smokehouse on the other.

UNLIKE PURELY PROFESSIONAL productions, many members of the Good Shepherd Players have performed alongside one another for years. The group is inclusive of multiple generations and, as of two years ago, amended its bylaws to invite performers from outside the church to participate.

“It’s just people who enjoy theater and enjoy being with a group,” St. Germain said of the Players, which now includes a variety of faiths in addition to Episcopalians from Good Shepherd, such as Catholic performers from Church of the Nativity in Burke.

Brian Walsh of Burke performed with the Players as a teenager, over a decade ago. He was in “Into the Woods” at Lake Braddock Secondary School and appreciates the opportunity shows with the Players give many students who compete for fiercely contested roles in school productions.

“It’s a chance to give those kids who might not have had a chance otherwise to be onstage, to have a part,” he said. As the church’s youth minister, Walsh gets to see the impact of students’ participation firsthand. “It’s really special for them, for the families.”

Walsh now has a head role in “Oklahoma!” as Curley McLain,

Burke residents Tricia Tyrell as “Ado Annie” and Jim Mroz as “Will Parker” rehearse for the Good Shepherd Players production of “Oklahoma!”

the love-struck cowboy trying to win the heart of farmer’s daughter Laurey Williams, set against the historic backdrop of 1906 Oklahoma Territory. The classic work of American theater canon first opened on Broadway in March 1943.

As an adult, Walsh has come full circle and enjoys performing across from people he’s known most of his life.

“You almost get to start a new relationship with a lot of people who you knew,” he said. “It’s being treated like an equal by people who knew me when I was eight years old. It’s like performing with my family.”

Fourth-year director Nancy Lavalley of Springfield said the familial dynamic is what makes Good Shepherd Players stand out from other theater companies.

“We form our own community and support each other through thick and thin,” she said, “through adversity, trouble. It’s family in a way I don’t think professional theater really is.”

With a cast of 40 performers whose experiences span professional musicians to people who’ve never set foot onstage before, Lavalley said having a helpful, communal culture is key to being successful.

“We all support and learn from each other, which makes for a really special production,” she said. “I think you’ll see that onstage. A lot of us been working together for a decade or more — you’ll see the joy we have of being together, doing this for the audience.”

“OKLAHOMA!” opens Friday, Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at The Church of the Good Shepherd, located at 9350 Braddock Road in Burke.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students. Additional shows are Saturdays, Feb. 27 and March 5 at 7:30 p.m., and Sundays, Feb. 28 and March 6 at 2 p.m. For more information, visit www.goodshepherdplayers.com.

West Springfield Gymnastics Earns State Berth

Spartans finish runner-up at regional meet.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

West Springfield head coach Diana Edgell came to a pair of conclusions while observing during the 6A North region gymnastics meet.

1: The Spartans probably weren't going to win.

2: The Spartans performed well enough to compete with the best of the rest.

If Edgell was correct on both accounts, it would leave just one scenario in which West Springfield's season would continue beyond Saturday's regional meet: a second-place finish, which comes with a state berth.

A talented and deep Yorktown team would be announced as region champion. The Patriots produced a score of 146.05, nearly 2.5 points better than their closest competitor.

Moments before the winner was announced, however, Edgell's observations proved to be right on the money.

Members of the West Springfield gymnastics team celebrated on the gym floor at Patriot High School after it was announced the Spartans had finished second at regionals on Feb. 13. Nine days after winning the Conference 7 title — the program's first conference/district championship since 2007 — West Springfield produced a score of 143.575 at regionals and earned a spot at the state meet on Friday, Feb. 19 at Kellam High School in Virginia Beach.

"We didn't know. We had no idea where we would be," said Edgell, a 2003 West Springfield graduate and former cheerleader. "I was pretty sure we weren't going to win. After that, it was anyone's game. We really had no idea, so it was pretty exciting that we pulled it out. ... I thought we were doing well, and so I knew that if we did well, that we could have a chance. If we scored a little better, if we cleaned up some things on some different events that we did have a shot. I was pleased to see the improvements that we made."

Defending state champion McLean finished third with a score of 142.625, followed by Battlefield (141.25), Lake Braddock (139.625), Osbourn Park (139.625), Chantilly (133.525) and Oakton (130.225).

West Springfield sophomore Abbie Levine produced an all-around score of 37 and qualified for states with a third-place finish.

"She actually didn't have that great of a meet for her, so I was thrilled that she was able to qualify and will hopefully have a better meet at states, redeem some of the mishaps she had today," Edgell said. "She's just great. She's fearless and determined and always positive. She never gets down on herself. She always believes in herself and that's what I expect from her and she delivers."

Levine finished second on floor (9.525), placed fourth on vault (9.45), tied for sixth on bars (8.875) and finished ninth on beam (9.15).

"I feel very proud of myself," Levine wrote in an email, "and it makes me excited to know that there was room for improvement because I fell on two events."

Spartan freshman Hannah Dotson tied for sixth in all-around with a score of 36.55. She qualified for states as an individual on bars, placing second with a score of 9.5.

"Hannah Dotson was awesome," Edgell said. "She's a freshman and has no high school competitive experience. The fact that she can come in and can qualify individually on [bars] is just awesome. I'm super proud of her."

West Springfield freshman Alex Marsden qualified for states on beam, tying for sixth with a score of 9.35.

Abby Stout also competed for West Springfield. "I'm so proud of them," Edgell said. "They lived up to every potential that they had and I couldn't be more thrilled for the girls because they've really worked so hard to get it."

After Friday's team competition, the individual state meet will be held Saturday, Feb. 20 at Kellam High School.

"I was on the team last year as well as this year and I can definitely see huge improvements," Levine wrote. "Not only because we added more people but because our team is more bonded and we're working together better. Personally, I've noticed that I am more motivated to do well this year. I'm having more fun with this sport that I previously did not have."

What are Edgell's expectations for states? "I want to go and have fun," she said. "Other than that, I don't know. I know there's going to be a lot of really amazing gymnastics, a lot of really talented gymnasts there, so I just want to go and have fun because it's incredible that we've made it this far."

Hayfield's Overstreet Wins Region Bars Title

Molly Overstreet's decorated high school gymnastics career will conclude with a fourth trip to the state meet.

The Hayfield senior and two-time state champion qualified for states in two events during the 6A North region gymnastics meet on Feb. 13 at Patriot High School. Overstreet repeated as region bars champion and tied for third on floor.

The top eight finishers in each event qualify for states.

Overstreet received a score of 9.8 bars and 9.5 on floor.

"I feel like my routine on bars was good and I'm very happy to have finished first," Overstreet wrote in an email. "... I was very happy with my floor. It was the first time I competed my one-and-a-half twist this season, so I was a little nervous about it."

Overstreet tied for sixth in the all-around (36.55). She tied for 20th on beam (8.7) and tied for 29th on vault (8.55).

Overstreet's performance at regionals came eight days after she won the Conference 6 all-around championship with a score of 37.875 — her first conference all-around title.

As a sophomore, Overstreet won the state bars championship with a VHSL record score of 9.925. As a freshman, she won a share of the state vault title with a 9.8.

The individual state championship meet is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 20 at Kellam High School in Virginia Beach.

"For states I'm just trying to clean up my bar routine, mostly just my form throughout," Overstreet wrote. "... My goals for states are to just hit my routines and make them clean."

SPORTS ROUNDUPS

Loudoun Freedom Tryouts

The Loudoun Freedom is a competitive basketball organization for girls only. It provides players the opportunity to develop advanced basketball skills and knowledge, and to play in a very competitive environment. The Freedom emphasizes player development starting in third grade and continuing through high school. Open tryouts will be held for grades 3-8 on Sunday, Feb. 21 at Harmony Middle School.

Teams are formed at all playing levels to include an ELITE team at the eighth-grade level. Please visit www.LoudounFreedom.com for specific tryout times/locations. Pre-registration is highly encouraged.

Potomac Field Hockey Registration

Registration is now open for Potomac Field Hockey's spring FUNdamental program for Pre-K through second grade and Youth Rec league program for grades 3-8. No experience necessary. Once-weekly team practices with games on Saturdays. Technical skills sessions included. Season begins March 28 and runs through June 4. For more information or to register, visit www.potomacfieldhockey.org or email info@potomacfieldhockey.org.

Community: 'Invest in Kids'

County Council of PTAs; Shirley Ginwright, president of the Fairfax County NAACP; and Garza.

Several members of the Fairfax County School Board were in attendance, as well as Supervisor Cathy Hudgins (D-Hunter Mill) and Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova.

Bulova, whose introduction was met with lively cheering, attempted to reassure the audience that the budget process is just beginning, and requires public input and communication.

"We're hearing that communication here tonight," Bulova said. "Education is our number one priority, but we have to look at the budget holistically."

Bulova echoed the earlier remarks from Ginwright that "education from the top makes us sure to have an educated community" and added that this is just "the beginning of the budget process, we have to strike the right balance and make sure our children have what they need to succeed."

McLean High School senior Emily

Robinson, who took credit for creating the viral hashtag #SaveFCPS, agreed that "fully funding public schools shouldn't just be a requirement of governing bodies, it should be the foremost priority."

"I fear for the students who will be in Fairfax County after me," she said.

Sarah Mattingly was School Board member Sandy Evans' (Mason District) appointee to the superintendent's budget task force that met to run the numbers for possible cuts prior to the formation of the school system's next budget.

She explained to the audience that despite the fact she and her husband don't even have children in Fairfax County Public Schools, "nothing is more important for us to do as taxpayers, property owners, or residents, than help children."

"I'm not here for my property values," Mattingly continued, "they'll be just fine on their own. Today was disappointing, but it's not over."
