Sex Trafficking Young Victims in Northern Virginia

Federal funds for gang task force expire April 1.

Detective William Woolf remembers the day he first realized there might be sex trafficking of young girls going on right in front of him.

He was a gang detective in Northern Virginia where he was responsible for investigating gang crime, compiling intelligence on gang activity and spreading information throughout the D.C. area. Despite all of his past training he didn't know about sex trafficking. "I thought it was something that happened in third world countries," he said.

It was back in 2009 and he was working a gang case for M-13 and they had inserted an informant into the gang. The informant came back and reported he thought the gang was making money from prostitution. "It didn't register. I thought they would be consensually engaging in sex and sharing the money," Woolf said. Then one night the informant reported he was uncomfortable with the girl they had that night — she looked young. "That's how we recovered a 16-year-old girl."

Woolf said there was no one working this area of human trafficking in Northern Virginia, so he started to do research by combing through police reports, conducting interviews. He thought the girls were consenting prostitutes and that the vice unit could deal with it. But he kept looking. He went to some informants and asked if sex trafficking was widespread and got a resounding yes. It was in 2010 and he had an a-ha moment and realized human trafficking was going on right here. "I needed to better understand it. And I needed to do something about it."

Since then Woolf says he has become passionate about the issue. He has conducted more than 300 interviews with recovered victims: "These are real people. People have no idea sex trafficking takes a physical and psychological toll, and the victims are never the same afterwards. We should be standing up to fight for them."

As he started working the cases he began collaborating with state representatives Tim Hugo and (now U.S. Rep.) Barbara Comstock to increase penalties for sex trafficking in Virginia.

"Detective Bill Woolf has been a guardian angel for our children and young adults for many years here in Fairfax County," Comstock said. "His tireless work of exposing the dark, inhumane crime of human trafficking in our community has made our children safer. Detective Woolf has also been relentless in hunting down those who prey on the young and vulnerable in our community."

In addition, Woolf helped create educational materials for schools and the community to increase awareness and provided training for law enforcement. Woolf says after every one of these sessions an officer says to him he thinks he has seen sex trafficking and just didn't recognize it at the time.

The National Human Trafficking Resource Center 2015 statistics report for Virginia show human trafficking reports up from 126 in 2013 (70 of those sex trafficking) to 145 in 2015 (103 of those sex trafficking).

In Northern Virginia there is one detective assigned to human trafficking. "It takes so much time to work one of these cases and it hasn't been a priority," he said. They can be hard to prove "and law enforcement can't arrest and interdict everyone. We're doing a good job with what we have but so much goes undetected."

Sex traffickers pick up teenagers as young as 12 years old at malls, by infiltrating local high schools or recruiting online, Woolf said. The process of scouting and manipulation is gradual and often the victims don't know what is happening until they are trapped.

For his efforts Woolf was named 2012

Gang Investigator of the Year by the Virginia Gang Investigations Association and received the Virginia Attorney General's Award for Excellence.

Former U.S. Rep. Frank Wolf worked with Woolf on gang issues when Wolf was chairman of the House of Representatives Appropriations Subcommittee on Commerce-State Justice. "Detective Woolf took on very tough issues head on and really made a difference," Wolf said. "His passion, drive and courage have been on display every day."

Woolf's human trafficking work had been funded by a two-year Department of Justice Federal grant to establish a task force on human trafficking. The grant had been extended from Sept. 30 but expires April 1 and the Federal funds run out. The police department has agreed to absorb and fund the position.

Woolf will be transferred to child exploitation and the county will approve a full-time position to replace the task force that will be filled with a different detective.

Taking over Human Trafficking investigative duties will be Detective John Spata, said Ed O'Carroll, director of FCPD Public Affairs Bureau. "Detectives Woolf and Spata are working together on the upcoming transition to ensure that the change is seamless," O'Carroll said.

If community members have something to report suspected concerning human trafficking, they should call 703-691-2131. The responding police officers can forward a case to Spata, who can be reached at 703-246-7800.

Fashions, Music and Silent Auction

Fundraiser set for Fairfax Salvation Army.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

The hot looks for spring, live entertainment, a luncheon and a silent auction are all in store for attendees of the 36th annual fashion show benefiting the Fairfax Salvation Army. It will be held Friday, April 15, from 10:30 a.m.-1 p.m., at the Waterford in Fair Oaks (off the ring road across from Fair Oaks Mall).

Sponsoring the event is the Fairfax Salvation Army Women's Auxiliary, and the fashion show — with both male and female models — will feature clothing from Lord & Taylor. Tickets are $50/person and lunch is included. For reservations, call Angela Ganey at 703-250-5809.

"The socializing, entertainment, luncheon, silent auction, fashion show and jewelry counter all make for a wonderful time in support of a great cause," said the Auxiliary's Meg McLane, co-president of the Women's Auxiliary with Sylvia Laiti. "It's fun to sit with friends and see the new fashions, as well as catch up and network with other charitable organizations."

McLane is also in charge of the models, scheduling their fittings and coordinating with Lord & Taylor. Co-chairing the fashion show are Barbara Stoetzer and Ganey. The social hour and silent auction will begin the day's activities; also planned are makeup demonstrations by Chanel.

Chris Poletto, Lord & Taylor's general manager, will narrate the fashion show. His daughter Ella will sing the National Anthem and "O Del Mio Dolce Ardor." And the Salvation Army's Major Kim Finehauer will play the baroque recorder, clarinet, French horn, flugel horn and alto horn. He and his wife Roxanne direct the Salvation Army's compassionate work in Fairfax County.

Modeling will be Carolina Hurtado, Liz

Foltin, Randy Jennings, Jeanette Crutchfield, Lynn Falk, Jeena Ingraham, Barry Bateman, Bridget Sampson, Christina O'Connell, Paul Meade and Mary Lou Glover. Except for Sampson, who now lives in upstate New York, all the models live in either Fairfax, Vienna, Oakton or Fairfax Station.

The luncheon menu will feature chicken teriyaki, Waterford salad, jasmine rice and red velvet cake. And the table centerpieces will be sold at the event's end.

A variety of silent-auction items will be up for bid. They include an overnight stay for two at the Red Fox Inn in Middleburg, gift cards for Ruth's Chris Steakhouse and other restaurants, a bread basket from Great Harvest Bread, a Murano glass necklace and a Tiffany bowl.

All funds raised go toward the Salvation Army's many charitable causes. Some 1.2 million people call Fairfax County home. Yet although the median income is more than $100,000, deep pockets of poverty exist, along with great need. Last year, the Salvation Army Fairfax Corps served about 12,000 people in the National Capital region.

Thousands came for food, clothing and help paying heating bills during the harsh winter, plus back-to-school supplies and Angel tree gifts as the holidays rolled around. Living in poverty is a constant battle, so the Salvation Army tries to do what it can to help.

Throughout the school year, 50 children are picked up from school twice a week and brought to the Corps for free youth programs. Children work on their homework, read in the library or simply have fun in an all-purpose area. In addition, aspiring young musicians receive free instruction from professionals who volunteer their time through the Gospel Arts Music Program. The Salvation Army also supports a mission in Mexico and sends underprivileged children to summer camp.

That's why, said McLane, attending the annual fashion show/luncheon is so important. "It's a wonderful contribution to such a noble organization to help the causes it supports," she said. "It's also an enjoyable, uplifting day; and the sense of satisfaction we have, knowing we've made a difference, is worth all the hard work."

ROUNDUPS

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, March 31, from 5-8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust it, as needed.

Because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected.

That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the correct use of the child seat. Call 703-814-7000 to confirm dates and times.

Taize Service on Human Trafficking

Wellspring United Church of Christ in Centreville will have a Taize service on Sunday, April 3.

The emphasis will be prayer for the many faces or forms of human trafficking unfolding not only outside the U.S. but also here in Northern Virginia, and considering the role of the church in addressing the problem.

Trafficking in persons involves activities where one person obtains or holds another person in compelled service. Forms of human trafficking that will be covered include forced, cheap, and child labor, sex trafficking, selling of human organs, illegal child adoption, child soldiers, and others.

The Rev. Dr. Al Fuertes, professor at George Mason University, will lead and facilitate the service and reflection.

Help Library Plan for Future

The public is invited to share their opinions about what library services are needed in the community at a forum on April 12, 7-8:30 p.m. at Chantilly Regional Library.

Moving Equipment Is Sought

The Centreville Labor Resource Center is in need of moving equipment to add to its tool supplies.

Requested items are back braces, lift belts, sliders and straps that are used for moving jobs.

This equipment can be checked out by workers and brought back when they complete jobs. It will ensure that they're able to complete moving jobs more safely. In addition, the CLRC is seeking Spanish-speaking people to fill a number of volunteer positions. Contact Molly Maddra-Santiago at director@centrevillelrc.org.

Food Donations for WFCM

Western Fairfax Christian Ministries' food pantry needs donations of 1-2 pound bags of rice, canned fruit (all types), canned pastas, canned meats (tuna, ham, chicken), cold and hot cereals, spaghetti and sauces, peanut butter, canned vegetables (including spinach, collard greens, beets) and cooking oil.

Toiletries needed, which WFCM clients cannot purchase with food stamps, include facial tissues, toothpaste, shampoo and solid deodorant.

Bring all items to WFCM's food pantry, weekdays, 9 a.m.-1:30 p.m., at 13888 Metrotech Drive, near Papa John's Pizza and Kumon Learning Center, in Chantilly's Sully Place Shopping Center.

A volunteer stocker/bagger is needed Wednesdays, 4-6 p.m. Contact Annette Bosley at 703-988-9656, ext. 110, or abosley@wfcma.org.

Lidl Grocery for Chantilly?

Potential traffic problems have to be ironed out.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

If all goes well, a little bit of Europe may someday come to Chantilly. It would do so in the form of a Lidl grocery store in the Chantilly Crossing Shopping Center.

Attorney Matt Allman, representing the applicant, presented details during the March 15 meeting of the West Fairfax County Citizens Assn. (WFCCA) Land-Use Committee.

The 5-acre site, near the intersection of Chantilly Crossing Lane and Lee Road, is zoned commercial and is currently undeveloped. Lee Road runs north and south of it, and Route 50 runs east and west of it. And retail uses are in keeping with Fairfax County's Comprehensive Plan for that location.

"So we filed an application in November [2015] to bring some new uses to the site," said Allman. "And we met with the Sully District Council [of Citizens Associations] last month, so we're getting their feedback, too."

What's planned are two, new buildings, next to each other. One, housing the grocery store, would be 30,000 square feet. The other, envisioned as a rectangular, 19,000-square-foot structure, would contain two or three retail tenants.

"The entrances are off Chantilly Crossing Lane, adjacent to the main entrance of the grocery store; further east on the site; and via a left turn in from Lee Road [off Route 50]," said Allman. "But

He said there are pedestrian crossings across Chantilly Lane, plus a trail along the back of the property, near the existing pond. "And we'd add benches and landscaping," said Allman. "We're also showing two, small plazas with seating outside each building."

WFCCA Land-Use Chairman Jim Katcham asked what building materials would be used. Allman said it's still too early to know all the specifics. But, he added, "The grocery store would be brick and glass with metal accent paneling, and the other building should match it well."

In a previous plan proposed by another developer, a furniture store was going to be built on that property. It didn't come to pass but, in return for county approval to set up shop there, the developer had promised to make a $250,000 contribution to the county Park Authority. So At-Large Planning Com-

Eating Smart

Profile: Jean Janssen, force behind area's Smart Markets.

BY ALEXANDRA GREELEY
THE CONNECTION

Food shoppers should take their collective hats off to Jean Janssen. She is the motivating spirit behind the area's Smart Markets, a collection of farmers' markets that showcase locally grown and raised produce and meats, plus a few temptations, such as hand-made sausages, popcorn, and baked goods (as in divine French pastries).

But once you know that Janssen has been in the food world since childhood, you can understand why these privately run markets are such a smashing success. A native Virginian, Janssen grew up in a family that purchased most of its goods from local farmers or from her grandfather's large garden plot. Also her parents were great cooks, a basic food influence for a youngster.

As an adult, Janssen worked as a caterer in the metro area for 20 years, during which time she often purchased goods from the now-defunct farmers' market in Vienna's Nottoway Park. "When I decided to retire from catering," said Janssen, "the Nottoway market was needing a new market manager. It was a volunteer position, but it sounded like it would keep me involved in the food world." Not only did she take that position, she was later asked to open a new market for Fairfax County on Braddock Road at Wakefield Park, and she ended up managing both markets.

In 2008, however, Janssen decided that the local producers needed better showcasing to improve sales, and that hosting local farmers' markets could be a great community resource. So with the support and encouragement of vendors, she decided to open Smart Markets. "The first market was down street from our present Oakton market," she said, "and I was led there by Nottoway Park shopper who encouraged me to talk to someone at her church. After that, others have come to me and asked me to do a market."

As in any enterprise, there are ups and downs, and as Janssen has found not every location is a good fit, and in one instance, an office property was sold out from under them. "I must deal with that," she said, "because we are on the bottom of the totem pole," since a market sets up usually only once a week. But when an agency or community residents see that a Smart Market helps them, a business may step in and offer space.

Because she does not pay to advertise, word-of-mouth attracts vendors, who then approach Janssen about setting up their stall at one of her locations. Once they start and sell successfully, she urges them to attend more than one market to enhance visibility and sales. "Our vendors do well compared with others," she said, "and we work with them to help them succeed." Janssen notes that her rules are strict, too, and insists that vendors must arrive early to set up, and must be the owners of the farm or other business to interact with customers.

And, not surprisingly, Janssen has found that fresh, seasonal fruits and vegetables are the biggest sellers. She has also concluded that farmers reap bigger profits from farmers' markets sales than from selling their goods to wholesale merchants. "Small farmers, to exist," she said, "must sell directly to consumers."

Recipe

Jean Janssen's Fettuccine with Mixed Vegetables

Serves 4 to 6 as a main course

This is my very favorite pasta sauce and it can easily be converted to a vegetarian dish with a few substitutions and/or omissions. You can vary the quantity of the individual vegetables as I have done here while adapting from a recipe in the September 1974 Gourmet. You can also adapt it to a winter recipe with good results using canned tomatoes. It's still a great vegetable medley to serve over pasta.

In a large sauté pan, cook two slices of bacon till nearly done but not crisp. Remove bacon, drain, and add 1/4 cup good olive oil to the pan. Add one small onion, two small carrots, two garlic cloves, two radishes, all finely minced, and 1 to 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh basil. Simmer, covered, for 12 to 15 minutes. Add three cups thinly shredded cabbage, 1/2 pound each of diced zucchini and tomatoes, 2 small green peppers, seeded and diced, and 1/2 cup chicken or vegetable stock. Season with one teaspoon each of salt and pepper. Simmer for another 10 to 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, cook one pound of fresh spinach noodles or packaged fettuccine in a large pot of boiling water with 2 tablespoons salt till done. Drain the noodles and toss them with up to 6 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup each of Parmesan cheese and the chopped bacon. You may also add some finely chopped prosciutto at this point. Add the vegetable mixture and serve with additional grated Parmesan.

Lidl Grocery for Chantilly?

Commissioner Jim Hart asked if Lidl would “carry forward” with that donation, and Allman said it would.

Paul DeVerger, real-estate manager with Lidl U.S., LLC, said Lidl is a family-owned, European, grocery-store chain. It was founded in Germany in the 1930s as a grocery wholesaler, with its first retail stores opening in 1973. It’s now one of the largest grocery retailers in Europe, with more than 10,000 stores in 27 European countries. If approved, the Chantilly store would be the first one in the U.S.

Besides Lidl offering fresh meats and produce and an on-site bakery, said DeVerger, “We sell our own brands, as well as national brands. What’s made us successful is that we offer high-quality products at great prices.”

Regarding the proposed site plan, WFCCA’s Mark McConn worried about traffic backing up on Lee Road at Route 50. “The choke point is at the first entrance coming off Lee Road,” said Hart. “There are a lot of things happening there and a lot of [drivers] crossing.”

Allman then said county staff suggested removing the raised pedestrian crosswalk so it would be out of the way.

“Has staff told you that, given the volume of traffic, that first entrance would work,” asked Hart.

“VDOT is also looking at these issues,” replied Allman. “They’re examining the geometry of the intersection, the traffic volumes going in and out, and how many [vehicle] trips the grocery store is going to generate.”

Kevin Fellin, with transportation planners Wells & Associates, said, “We’ll meet with VDOT, the end of March. We’re trying to mitigate the impact on Lee Road.”

“I think traffic is your greatest challenge,” said Hart. “And the left-turn lane going onto Lee Road from Route 50 [west] is very slow now.”

All these matters have not yet been resolved, but they’re getting attention. At the moment, said Allman, “We’re waiting on the results of the VDOT review.”

CRIME REPORT

The following incidents were reported by the Fair Oaks District Police Station.

STOLEN VEHICLE RECOVERY, 12000 block of Lee Jackson Memorial Hwy, March 11, 7:47 p.m. A police officer on patrol located stolen license plates on a vehicle while in traffic. The officer conducted a traffic stop and determined that the vehicle was also stolen. The driver of the vehicle, a 46-year-old man from Springfield, was arrested and charged with felony possession of stolen property, misdemeanor possession of stolen property, possession of forged/altered license plates, and driving on a suspended license.

NARCOTICS / ASSAULT ON LEO / RESISTING ARREST, 4200 block of Fairfax Corner Ave, March 11, 10:53 p.m. While on patrol, two officers made contact with a man who was sitting in his vehicle. The subject chose to discontinue a voluntary conversation, but when he walked away, the officers smelled an odor of marijuana coming from the vehicle. Officers attempted to reestablish communication with the vehicle’s owner but he refused to cooperate. The vehicle owner and occupant, a 19-year-old man from Fairfax, was charged with possession with the intent to distribute marijuana, assault on law enforcement, and resisting arrest.

POSSESSION OF MARIJUANA W/INTENT TO DISTRIBUTE: Fairfax County Pwy. /Franklin Farm Road, March 6, 11:18 a.m. An officer initiated a traffic stop and when approaching the vehicle, detected a strong odor of burning marijuana coming from inside. A subsequent search of the vehicle yielded an undisclosed quantity of suspected marijuana, along with items consistent with the sale/distribution of the drug. The driver was arrested and charged with possession with intent to distribute.

SUSPICIOUS PACKAGE: 12200 block of Price Club Plaza, March 8, 11:21 a.m. Officers responded to the Home Depot parking lot for the report of a suspicious package in a shopping cart.

The item was located, an area was quickly cordoned off and customers of the Home Depot were asked to remain inside the store for their safety. EOD, The Explosives Ordnance Disposal Unit was called in. The robot inspected the package and then EOD personnel inspected it by hand. The item was determined to be harmless. Patrons of the Home Depot were notified that they were free to leave the store and residents were kept aware through social media, @fairfaxpolice.

OPINION

Money to Treat Addiction, Mental Health Issues

Affordable Care Act could pay for help, better health for 100,000 uninsured people in Virginia with mental illness or addiction issues.

Poor people without health insurance in Virginia are being unnecessarily tortured, in some cases to death, by a General Assembly that refuses to expand Medicaid. They deny healthcare to as many as 400,000 Virginians despite the fact that for the first three years, there would be no additional cost to the Commonwealth, and after that Feds would pay at least 90 percent of the cost.

A new report released on Monday by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services points to an area beyond preventative medicine and primary care. According to the report, in Virginia, 102,000 uninsured people with a mental illness or substance use disorder could qualify for coverage if Medicaid were expanded under the Affordable Care Act. The report estimates that more than a third of low income people in Virginia without health insurance have "behavioral health" needs. As Virginia and the rest of the nation wrestles with huge growth in heroin and opioid addiction, expanding Medicaid would allow for expanding treatment programs. One of the big obstacles to helping people who are fighting addiction is the availability of treatment when it is most needed. People die as a result. In Northern Virginia, heroin-related deaths increased 164 percent between 2011 and 2013. In Fairfax County, in just one year – from 2013 to 2014 – the number of deaths from heroin overdose doubled. Virginia is one of 14 states identified in a recent Centers for Disease Control reports with significant increases in overdose deaths in the last few years. Nationally, heroin overdose death rates increased by 26 percent from 2013 to 2014 and have more than tripled since 2010, according to the CDC. A mind boggling statistic: In 2014, there were approximately one-and-a-half times more drug overdose deaths in the United States than deaths from motor vehicle crashes.

Turning away resources to treat this eviscerating epidemic ensures that some people who need treatment but cannot access it will die. Turning away this money makes no more sense than sending back federal funding for building rail to Dulles.

Depression and other mental health disorders result in significant economic cost as well. This week's HHS report estimates that if Virginia expanded Medicaid, 16,000 fewer individuals would experience symptoms of depression, which would make them far more likely to be able to work.

Under the Affordable Care Act, states have the opportunity to expand Medicaid coverage to individuals with family incomes at or below 138 percent of the federal poverty level.

Get Involved, Budget

Next week, Fairfax County residents will have three opportunities to weigh in on what has so far been a fairly contentious budget season.

Sign up to attend a public hearing at the Fairfax County Government Center on the proposed FY 2017 Budget:

- ❖ April 5, beginning at 4 p.m.
- ❖ April 6, beginning at 1 p.m.
- ❖ April 7, beginning at 1 p.m.

Email your feedback and comments to dmbinfo@fairfaxcounty.gov through mid-April, be sure to copy the Connection to have your comments be considered as a letter to the editor, editors@connectionnewspapers.com,

EDITORIAL

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Gift to Acknowledge Veterans

To the Editor:

I remember him walking through the front door with his dark blue uniform, adorned with medals and his perfectly formed hat, an imposing figure to a 6 year old. My father was part of the greatest generation of WWII vets that served their country with honor and with unyielding patriotism inherent in them from a very early age. I have that patriotism, too, because of him.

As a B-17 Bomber pilot during WWII who went on to Korea and rounded out his Air Force career working for the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon, my dad was a role model of what a patriot looked like. He raised us to believe in the United States of America, to cherish its virtues and to honor our military. Most definitely, to honor our military. And so we did, all of us.

I recently came across an article about Combat Wounded parking signs, created and provided by the Wounded Warrior Family Support, an organization headquartered in Omaha, Neb. With an estimated 1.8 million Purple Heart recipients, these combat wounded service members are making the challenging transition back into civilian life. In 2003, after two tours in Iraq, Colonel John Folsom USMCR recognized the challenges the families of our vets faced as they tried to navigate often traumatic injuries that can plague whole families, and wanted to create a family-oriented program to support them as they are thrust into the role of caregivers.

The mission of WWFS is to provide support to the families of those who have been wounded, injured or killed during combat operations. It serves the families of U.S. soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines, as they understand that "when America goes to war ... our families go to war."

The signs that the WWFS created for our Purple Heart recipients are free and being placed from coast to coast in businesses, churches, schools, colleges, government and medical facilities. The gesture of placing these signs is about recognizing our vets and acknowledging the sacrifices they have made for us everyday.

I latched onto this organization and their parking signs as a way to give back and honor what our military does for us every day. I asked Bob Hager, COO/partner of Ourisman Automotive of Virginia, if he would consider placing the signs in each of their six Virginia dealerships, and he agreed immediately. Said Hager: "Being raised an Army brat, I know what Army life means to a family. My father served in Korea and did two tours in Vietnam. We [Ourisman] support our military for all they do for us and this is a small token of our appreciation for our military and their families. We're honored to place these signs in our dealerships."

I also contacted Sears in the Centre Ridge Marketplace, and talked with manager Scott Brege. I hadn't even finished my sales pitch, when he said: "We're in. I have a son in law on active duty," he said, "and we would be happy to help our wounded warriors anytime we can."

I will continue to place Combat Wounded parking signs — in part, as recognition to the first and true patriot in my life, my father. But also for all the many veterans that I do know, and for those that I don't know, as I continue to consider the sacrifices they have made for me without even knowing it.

Against Terrorism

To the Editor:

On Feb. 22, two coordinated attacks in Belgium's capital took the lives of nearly 30 individuals. ISIS took responsibility for the explosions and threatened other countries in the anti-ISIS coalition. After last year's deadly attack on Paris and the recent tragedy in Ankara, the situation in Brussels appears dreadfully familiar. While many politicians are pointing towards the Islamic faith as the root cause for these attacks, it's important to note that Islam does not encourage or condone any form of terrorism. The Holy Quran, Islam's holy book believed by Muslims to be the word of God, states that whosoever kills a person shall be as if he has killed all mankind. In fact, the prophet Muhammad of Islam forbade against any and all forms of terrorism. He instead taught the

Thus, the belief that terrorism is rooted in the tenets of Islam is both incorrect and perpetuates highly negative stereotypes of Muslims who are ironically the majority of victims of ISIS's attacks.

Work in Harmony

To the Editor:

The Centreville Immigration Forum Board of Directors mourns the loss of life through violent acts in cities and towns around the world, and we particularly condemn violence aimed at religious and ethnic groups. The CIF mission calls us to "build strong community" and to "build community recognition of the strength in our diversity."

Through our projects, including the Centreville Labor Resource Center, we serve persons of many different backgrounds and religions. We know that diverse people can work together in harmony. The board passed the following resolution:

RESOLUTION II: Support for the rights and dignity of all

We, the CIF Board of Directors, in support of our mission to build a welcoming community, affirm the following resolution:

1. We mourn the loss of life in Paris, Beirut, San Bernardino, Brussels, and elsewhere, as a result of terrorist acts that brought the deaths of many innocent victims.

2. We urge all residents to respect the rights and dignity of all, including the rights of Muslim residents, and we stand together for human dignity and peace. We urge that people everywhere speak up for peace and justice, and we condemn racial, cultural or religion-based laws and policies that threaten the freedom of us all.

3. We oppose any immigration policies that target one religious group.

4. We pledge to continue working for a strong, safe and welcoming community where the well-being and dignity of each resident is affirmed.

Living Stations of the Cross

It has been a long-held tradition during Lent at Saint Timothy Catholic School, in Chantilly, that the 8th graders in the National Junior Honor Society (above) create and perform the Living Stations of the Cross: Jesus' final steps before he was crucified on Good Friday. This performance for the entire school reminds each person how much Christ loved them to the point of dying a public and painful death on the cross for them. Jesus was played by Zach Janus. Approximately 1,500 people came to watch this performance.

Chantilly Boys' Lax to Host Robinson in State Final Rematch

The Chantilly boys' lacrosse team will host Robinson at 7:15 p.m. on Friday, April 1 in a rematch of last year's state championship game. Robinson won its second straight state title last year with a 10-9 double-overtime victory.

Chantilly finished state runner-up last season for the fourth time in the last eight years. The Chargers went 20-3 last year, including victories over Robinson in the Conference 5 and 6A North region championship games, but came up short in the state final.

SPORTS BRIEFS

This year, Chantilly went 2-2 in its first four games. The Chargers opened with a 10-9 loss to Yorktown on March 15. After victories against Woodson (15-14 in overtime) on March 19 and Langley (10-4) on March 21, Chantilly lost to Hamburg (N.Y.) 11-7 on March 23.

Robinson won three of its first four games this season.

The Chargers faced Westfield on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline.

first four games of the season — all on the road.

The Chargers opened with a 21-20 overtime win over Yorktown on March 15. Chantilly traveled to Cape Henry Collegiate on March 18 and defeated Norfolk Collegiate 17-3. The following day, the Chargers defeated Frank Cox Club 10-4 and Tabb Club 9-5.

Chantilly faced Westfield on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline. The Chargers will travel to face defending state champion Robinson at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 1.

Westfield Baseball Wins 5 of 6

The Westfield baseball team started the 2016 season with five straight wins before falling to South Lakes 6-5 in the Division 2 championship game of the Mingo Bay Classic on March 25 in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

The Bulldogs have outscored their opponents 63-13.

Westfield will host St. Mary's Ryken at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday and Briar Woods at 6 p.m. on Monday, April 4.

Centreville Girls' Lax To Face Oakton

The Centreville girls' lacrosse team will open Conference 5 play on the road against Oakton at 6 p.m. on Friday, April 1.

The Wildcats are off to a 2-2 start, including a 23-9 win over Annandale on March 19. Centreville opened the season with a 23-3 win over Briar Woods on March 15, before falling to Langley (10-9) and Paul VI (13-11) on March 19.

SCHOOL NOTES

Email announcements to chantilly@connectionnewspapers.com. Deadline is Thursday at noon. Photos are welcome.

Sixty-five Fairfax County Public Schools high school students have been named to the Virginia All-State Honors Choir for 2016 and will perform as a group on Saturday, April 30 at the Sandler Center for Performing Arts in Virginia Beach. Additionally, 39 FCPS students were named alternates to the All-State Honors Choir.

❖ Westfield High School: Kevin Kumar, Jonathan Cottrell, Isaac Mantelli, Kaliann Lassiter, and alternates Emily Rakes, Evan Kohnstam, and Matthew Schelhorn (Katie Pierce, director).

❖ Chantilly High School: Rebecca Gustafson, Mohammad Kahn, and alternates Pallavi Swarup, Emma Shahin, and Joel Lee (Evan Ayars, director).

Willow Springs Elementary School has a new weather station, the first of its kind in Virginia, thanks to the interest of a former student who is working toward a Girl Scout Silver Award. Rocky Run Middle School student Tori Scheidt, who has a particular interest in meteorology, chose the weather station project because it combined her interest in weather while benefitting her former elementary school, its students and teachers, and the surrounding community. The WeatherSTEM station provides live data about the weather while enhancing a STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) curriculum with a focus on atmospheric science. Scheidt researched the station and secured funding from Northrop Grumman to pay for the unit and installation.

Rocky Run Middle School students

Elin Choe, Stephen Everard, Zachary Granick, Aadi Karthekayen, Tanya Kurnootala, Madeleine LeBeau, Kavya Shankar, and Megan Staton (Lynn Christman, director) are among the 77 middle school students from Fairfax County Public Schools named to the 2016 All-Virginia Middle School Honor Choir. The group will perform on Saturday, April 30, at the Sandler Center for the Performing Arts in Virginia Beach.

Chantilly High School is one of 11 high schools from across the United States to be named a winner of the 2016 First Amendment Press Freedom Award by the Journalism Education Association (JEA). This is the second consecutive year that Chantilly High has won the award.

The award recognizes public and private high schools that actively support, teach, and protect First Amendment rights and responsibilities of both students and teachers, with an emphasis on student-run media where students are responsible for all final decisions of content. Recipients will be recognized April 14 at the JEA-NSPA national high school journalism convention in Los Angeles.

The schools in the Chantilly Pyramid with the support of the Chantilly Pyramid Literacy Team will work together to present the "Chantilly READS Challenge!" The reading challenge is open to all K-12 students and staff members. Students and staff will log their individual reading minutes using a Google form.

The goal is to read 5,000,000 minutes from March 2016 through February 2017. The Chantilly READS Challenge link, goo.gl/forms/bSofpiuaQp, can be used to enter and track reading minutes.

No Real "APptitude"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Or interest, either. However, unless I get in the game somehow, I fear I'll likely be tossed and/or discarded into the dustbin; along with the pay phone, pay toilet, land line, and of particular relevance to me: the flip phone, a.k.a "the stupid phone," as my wife, Dina, is fond of calling it (not a reflection or characterization of the user, though). But of course, that's the problem. I don't have a "smart" phone any more than I am a smart user. So apps are not exactly in my current vocabulary, although they used to be in my pre-Connection vocabulary when I sold insurance. The paper on which answers to questions were written for an insurance company/home office to consider was called an application, commonly referred to as an "app." Perhaps you can appreciate my confusion at not being able to integrate such new technology. After all, I am an old dog; presumably you know it's very difficult to teach an old dog new tricks – regardless of whether you change their food.

Nevertheless, I suppose that if I want to be part of the future (not a cancer reference or cancer-column-to-be, by the way), I can't hold onto the present so tightly and I definitely need to let go of the past. When I watch "smart"-phone users – including my wife, scroll their "smart"-phone screens and then stop on an "app," it all seems easy and sensible. I don't imagine however, that in my hands, with my brain, with my lack of intuition and instincts for such technological two-steps (or one step) the scrolling would get me anywhere. But it does appear as if it would get me there quickly.

I have to admit, I am a bit envious of the scrolling and access to the internet/information "smart" phones seem to offer. Who, what, where, when and why intrigue me. It's the how that intimidates, though. Sure, I'd love to be one touch or a few scrolls away from the answers to any and all questions, but it's the learning curve for the device which scares me. In taking on this task, I feel as if I'll become a modern day Sisyphus – of Greek mythology. But instead of pushing a boulder up a mountain only to have it roll back down before ever reaching the top, I'll be pushing keys and constantly scrolling only to end up back at my cell phone's home screen setting. And since this is not a game – and not "Monopoly," landing on my home screen rather than passing it won't double my pleasure, and neither will I find myself on my intended target/"app." After repeated failures, no doubt I'll begin boiling over my level of incompetence. A "smart" phone needs to be in competent hands; mine are anything but.

If only I could receive round-the-clock training (actually, 8 am to about 9 pm); I'd like to think that with that kind of coaching, I would begin to assimilate the device into my head (sort of a reverse Borg effect). I mean, I'm not a complete moron. (Why, are there incomplete morons?) Presumably, after repeated and vigorous instruction, correction, re-instruction and re-correction, I'd likely become the master of this domain. It's not a contest, after all, and I'm probably not going to be graded on a curve, so if there was someone with sufficient patience (maybe patients, too) and perseverance, perhaps there would be a future for me living in the hand-help information age. I just have to repeat five simple words: "The phone is my friend. The phone is my friend. The phone is my friend." APPsolutely!
