'Booster Shot'

Supervisors approve county budget and tax hike.

BY KEN MOORE
CENTRE VIEW

When the Board of Supervisors approved the budget on Tuesday, April 26, they increased taxes by about $300 for the average homeowner and increased funding for schools by 5 percent.

The property tax rate will increase four cents from $1.09 to $1.13, per $100 of the assessed value of a home.

Board members had a chance to explain their reactions to the budget and in some cases, their vision for the future at the budget markup on April 19.

For most the budget was a successful and important step, but others found much to worry about, now and in the future.

"This budget provides a needed booster shot to support our excellent school system and to ensure the quality services our residents expect and rely upon. Our board heard from thousands of residents advocating for an increase in taxes to address our community's needs," said Chairman Sharon Bulova.

She appointed Lee District Supervisor Jeff McKay to spearhead the board's budget process.

"This was not an easy budget," said McKay, chairman of the budget committee. "It funds schools and puts an investment in the county-side, and parks and libraries and human services and public safety that was vitally needed."

"I will repeat what I always remind folks," he said. "The Commonwealth of Virginia is in the top 10 states in income and the bottom 10 in education funding. ...

"The one disappointing thing for me in the discussion of the school budget that we didn't hear about was our special needs, ESOL, and Title I schools and our challenged academic schools and students who are living in poverty," said McKay.

"It is my hope that we will continue to see academic improvements for kids who are struggling in our system and schools that are at risk of losing accreditation and that we are making proper investments in our Title I schools and that we are making a proper investment in all kids' education."

NOT ALL SUPERVISORS supported the budget. Supervisors Pat Herrity and John Cook, the board's two Republican members, voted against the budget, which passed 7-2.

"I was dismayed at the pre-budget markup meeting," said Herrity, "to hear some of my colleagues congratulating themselves on tackling a difficult budget with a six percent tax increase on our residents."

"I'm certain most Fairfax County residents won't be jumping up for joy or congratulating you when they receive their tax bill next year. As most of you know, their salaries aren't going up by six percent," he said.

"My biggest disappointment is this year's budget does absolutely nothing to address long-term budget issues," said Herrity, Springfield District Supervisor.

Stone Middle School: 25 Years On

Current Stone Middle School Principal Amielia Mitchell with her predecessors Susan DeCorpo and Scott Phillips.

Current and former staff share their stories.

BY ASHLEY CLAIRE SIMPSON
CENTRE VIEW

Just over 25 years ago, then-Fairfax County Public Schools Principal Susan DeCorpo was interviewing potential teachers for what would be the first staff of Ormond Stone Middle School. In a speech she delivered at the school's 25th anniversary event on Thursday, April 28, she recalled when Stone was just "heaps and piles of earth," and she was conducting interviews in trailers in the midst of a construction zone.

Now, two and a half decades after the first students roamed the halls of Stone, current and former faculty, other staff members and students put on a special event to commemorate the milestone.

"Wonderful, wonderful staffs have ensured that over the years, students have succeeded and gone on to do some great things — and they've had some fun while doing it," DeCorpo said.

County Budget Approved

Herrity has advocated for the board and the school board to meet on the budget throughout the year, something a few supervisors voiced agreement with on April 19. "A year ago, we were sitting in the same place we were today. I moved budget guidance that we begin to address the budget shortfall in the summer. Well, those meetings never happened," Herrity said.

Braddock Supervisor John Cook said he couldn't reconcile the burden the budget places on homeowners with the obligations the county has to pay for needed and important services.

"It's not just education, it's human services. We are in the bottom 10 in state funding for education, but we are in the bottom five in state funding for human services," he said.

"I can't close that gap between an unsustainable burden on residential taxpayers and a lot of legitimate government functions that we are trying to fund," he said.

"So I reached the conclusion, reluctantly, but properly so, that we need another source of revenue in this county to fund our services," said Cook.

He said his preference is for increases in an alcohol and cigarette tax.

"Remember we have to either convince the General Assembly or the taxpayer," he said. "We have to convince someone that we cannot continue to increase the property tax any longer."

DRANESVILLE SUPERVISOR John Foust supported the budget.

"I believe it advances many of this board's priorities and more importantly, I believe it advances the priorities we heard from our constituents," said Foust. "I think it represents the board's commitment to our county employees who have made tremendous sacrifices over the past eight years. It reflects our commitment to preserving essential services and the things that make Fairfax county great, from parks and libraries to mental health and transit and housing."

He said the budget shows the board's commitment to good fiscal responsibility that will preserve its Triple-A Bond rating.

But Foust also called the residential tax increase unsustainable in the long-term.

"We must find ways to fund the programs and services that residents both need and expect without being so dependent on residential property taxes. It's especially important to find ways to mitigate the impact of property taxes on seniors, many of whom were on fixed incomes," he said.

"We're also too dependent on property taxes to fund county and school operations. I'm pleased the board will be looking at ways to allow county residents to vote on whether they want to diversify our revenue stream and provide some relief to homeowners," said Foust.

The Braun Home, Fairfax

When Richard and Jane Elizabeth Braun purchased this property in 2003, it came with a two-story log cabin which has stood here since the days of the founding fathers, and in fact was used by Lawrence Washington, George's half-brother. Now used as a guesthouse, it recalls that bygone era with antique furnishings, a stone fireplace, a simple Amish log bed tucked under the eaves, and a charming cottage garden outside.

The main house is a stately Georgian brick style. They redesigned their expansive country kitchen choosing finishes that glow with a worn and rustic patina. Hewn posts and beams reclaimed from old barns, Civil War-era brick, hammered copper sinks and terra cotta floors all recall the property's historic past.

Adding character and visual interest are four types of cabinetry: distressed cherry, reclaimed barnwood, golden painted beadboard, and knotty butternut with leaded glass doors. Countertops are variously distressed concrete, honed granite and polished granite.

The floors throughout the house are reclaimed random plank heart pine. In the soaring family room there is a massive stone fireplace (one of seven in the house). The Brauns collect art and antiques. There is a large carved antique Spanish chest, and a 17th century carved icon from a church in Spain hanging above the fireplace.

The dining room is lit by a 200-year-old French chandelier and features a French country sideboard and cupboard, and a silver service which belonged to Richard Braun's grandfather. Here too is the oldest and most unusual antique in the home, a late 15th to early 16th century French vestment table. It would have been found in a private home, where its sliding cover concealed liturgical vestments and communion vessels from disapproving authorities.

Over the last few years the Brauns have completed a multi-story addition. The "vestibule" is an intimate dining space under a dome, overlooking naturalistic waterfalls tumbling over rocks, under bridges and into koi ponds.

In the new first floor master suite, all of the furniture is constructed of rare West Virginia wild black cherry, a sentimental nod to Jane Elizabeth Braun's childhood home. Her bath is a study in femininity, while Richard Braun, an alumnus of the University of Southern California, has a mosaic of the "Trojan" inset into his shower. Richard's study features a painting of African lions by Dino benefit local charities and scholarships through the club's 501(c)(3) Charitable Trust. Enjoy guided tours of four homes in Clifton and Fairfax, including the historic Mathy House, home of George Mason University's president.

Tour tickets are $25 in advance, $30 the day of the tour, $10 for one home. Free admission to Silent Auction and Book Signing. For more information, visit www.cliftoncwc.org or call 703-609-3479.

Paravano. The Brauns love his "chalk paintings" of African wildlife, so meticulously rendered they appear to be photographs. In the lower level is a bar, pool table, double L shaped sofas, a game room, a fitness area, and a theater room where a crowd of friends can enjoy a movie or the big game.

The second level bedrooms feature adjoining studies for each of their sons and a screened porch connecting the boys' bedrooms, and looking over the pool, tennis and basketball courts.

Jane Elizabeth Braun has designed a "Get Fit" class for her friends in her exercise studio on the top floor. There is a sitting area at one end, where she also meets with her Bible study friends.

The pool house invokes the Braun's sense of fun and friendship. They have an annual "Pirates and Mermaids" party, where their guests come decked out in full regalia. There is a pirate painting and lots of mermaid renditions in the poolhouse, and a mermaid fountain by the pool.

The Cabrera home (the historic Mathy House), Fairfax

This brick home of the president of George Mason University with pillars set atop a hundred rolling wooded acres was built by the Mathy family in 1964.

The "Mathy House" won the architectural award for individual home construction the following year. It was designed to be occupied by Mrs. Mathy, her son John, her sister, and her niece. Mrs. Mathy was fond of European chandeliers and used them throughout. All four members of the household enjoyed cooking, so the kitchen was designed to allow them to work together with two sinks and ample prep space.

The property and many of its furnishings were sold to George Mason University in 1983, as a home for the university president. In subsequent years, the Mathys donated more land and buildings, enlarging the estate. The first president to live here was Dr. George Johnson and his wife Joanne. Since 2012, the current residents have been GMU President Dr. Angel Cabrera and his wife Dr. Elizabeth (Beth) Cabrera. They met while pursuing Ph.D.s at Georgia Tech, married, and spent years in academia, including a 10-year stint in Spain, Angel Cabrera's native country.

Now, while he serves as president, she is a "Senior Scholar" at GMU's Center for the Advancement of Well-Being. She has just published her first book, "Beyond Happy: Women, Work and Well-Being," which has garnered the maximum five stars on Amazon.

Entering the foyer, one can note the staircase and the Mathy monogram over the door. There is a small bronze statue of George Mason which was created as a prototype to be carried from place to place to show to prospective donors during the fundraising drive to erect the life-sized statue in the center of the GMU campus. The only difference is that the sculptor corrected the girth — made George fatter — in the finished work. Traveling from room to room one can see the grand spaces for entertaining large parties. Thanks to the original owners' love of cooking, the kitchen is ample for catering such events.

The Queen Anne banquet table in the dining room can seat 20, or be broken down so the Cabreras can enjoy family dinners. The living room has Waterford chandeliers, lighted cabinet displaying a collection of Lalique crystal donated by the Mathys, Chinese Chippendale tall case clock, and Steinway grand piano. GMU is proud of the fact that they are an "All Steinway school," and this piano was purchased by the Mertens, predecessors to the Cabreras, and donated to the Mathy House. Made from a rare west African timber, it is a classic Steinway Kewazinga Bubinga.

Parking: Drive up past the house and park in the lot behind.

The Giorgiani Home, Clifton

Beth Giorgiani is a lifetime quilter and collector of antiques and Americana. Every room in the brick Colonial that Bob and Beth Giorgiani built in 2000 will delight anyone who has enjoyed the "hunt" for treasures from the past. There are charming pie safes, washstand, baker's tables, dough boxes and bowls, iron kettles, antique chests, old animal troughs and tool boxes.

Apparently the lure of the hunt goes back a few generations. Bob Giorgiani's mother passed on needlepoint covered stools stuffed with horsehair, and an old dental cabinet which she purchased from the University of Pennsylvania dental school. There are a cross-stitches done by his great-great grandmother when she was a girl. Look for her picture in the family room by her work.

Beth Giorgiani's grandmother's kitchen table and chairs are in the lower level, reminders of time spent with her. Beth Giorgiani has a knack for repurposing. The antique tool boxes make perfect jewelry boxes, and the dental cabinet provides storage in the dining room.

Almost all of the quilts have been stitched by Beth Giorgiani. There are a couple of exceptions: one in the Sun Room which was done by their daughter when she was 10, and one in Beth Giorgiani's downstairs sewing room which is made up entirely of her many equestrian ribbons.

Beth Giorgiani took up horseback riding in her 30s and she has become an accomplished competitive rider. She keeps a horse in Clifton. There are many different saddles in the downstairs rec room, English and Western, for different types of riding and different size horses.

As a horse lover, Beth Giorgiani was sympathetic to a young woman who was trying to use her artistic talents to earn enough money to keep a horse. So Beth Giorgiani paid her to paint scenes on some of her furniture.

Six years ago the Giorgianis renovated their kitchen and built an addition to it. The result is a kitchen with hand-scraped floors, English cabinetry, a granite island with a hammered nickel sink in it and a farmhouse sink under the window looking out over their parklike backyard. On the walls are a hand-painted cardinal, turtle, and the almost hidden bluebird. Adjoining the kitchen is the new addition — a cozy sitting area where two wing chairs face a stone fireplace.

The Waldrop Home, Clifton

Taste and talent. A person of good taste will create a beautiful home, while a person of talent will create an interesting one. Amy and Jon Waldrop combine both in their home.

Taste. Amy and Jon Waldrop customized their Balmoral home with fine architectural details which are evident in the foyer with its columns, wainscoting and staircase. Here the floors are Brazilian cherry with a chevron design banded by black walnut. Sunshine pours in through windows in the morning room and bright white kitchen with natural stone travertine floors, and into the soaring family room.

Adjacent to the family room is Amy Waldrop's office, with a soft cream color on the walls, complemented by silk drapes and crewel silk upholstery, and a needlepoint rug. By contrast, Jon Waldrop's adjoining study is quintessentially masculine. Wine red walls serve as a backdrop to mementos of an Air Force flying career, and a second career with Lockheed Martin.

The furniture throughout is scaled to the home, with a handmade Chippendale-inspired walnut breakfast in the family room and the hand-planed walnut dining room table.

Talent. What enriches this home is Amy Waldrop's talent as a self-taught artist — painter, sculptor, photographer, interior designer, and landscape architect. Visitors will walk down a brick path to enter the house from the rear by design, so that visitors will enjoy the full impact of the yard and patio with flowering trees, pots, garden beds, roses and window boxes. Amy Waldrop designed this space.

Imagine the comfort of a summer's evening in front of the outdoor fireplace as the rich wood smoke mixes with the floral scented air. Inside the house, every room is made more enchanting by Amy Waldrop's artwork, often inspired by her travels, and by her photographs of foreign scenes and intimate family moments.

The entire lower level offers a look into a working artist's studio. Brick walls and slate floors add to the artistic ambience of this open space filled with easels, paints and brushes set upon large tables where Amy Waldrop and her students can create the fine art that adds heart to any home.

Parking: On the street.

Centreville High Student Competes in Pageant

Next stop: College and another contest.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

Selecting as a finalist in the Miss Teen 2016 pageant, Centreville High senior Shaylan Ferguson participated in early April in Southern Virginia. And while she didn't win, she enjoyed the experience, learned a few things along the way and plans to keep on competing.

In school, she maintains A/B grades and has been accepted to VSU, beginning this fall. "I plan on majoring in accounting and minoring in marketing," she said. "My hope for the future is to use my marketing skills in the entertainment world."

The past two years, Ferguson has become interested in fashion, so fashion marketing is now one of her favorite subjects. She's also played basketball since the first grade and, for the last three years, has played small forward for the Centreville Wildcats.

"I genuinely enjoy being involved in my community and school," she said. "This is my last year and I have decided to focus more on my modeling. I began it two years ago and developed a love for expressing my inner beauty by modeling. Going to college,

I needed a way to pay for it, so I wanted something that could help me, but also teach me."

So Ferguson figured that entering the Miss Teen 2016 pageant would lead to success and also link to her modeling. And despite the various activities she does, both in and out of school, she hoped to win the contest and take on additional responsibilities.

Before heading into the competition, Ferguson said, "I feel very confident and excited for this adventure. I had to go through a mini interview and training to get to this point; my next step is the actual pageant. Winning would mean everything to me, a step closer to my dreams. I hope to walk away with many friendships and learning experiences. I plan to give back to my community and help others to achieve their dreams, as well."

Afterward, she said the pageant went really well.

"I was nervous at first because, like everyone else, I didn't know what to expect,"

Shaylan Ferguson

said Ferguson. "I met with the judges and they were all really sweet. They asked me a few questions and I told them about myself and my hobbies, like modeling. The interview only lasted about one minute, but it was something that I would do again."

"Sadly, I wasn't selected to move on to the next step of the competition, but I loved everything about it," she continued. "I was able to meet with a lot of the other girls and got to network with them and make new friends. Even though I wasn't chosen, it was a life-changing experience. I gained more public-speaking skills and more confidence along the way. I would recommend any girl who wants to make new friends and gain a little more confidence and self-esteem to sign up for the Miss Teen pageant, the next go-round."

She called the pageant staff "amazing and helpful." About 600 people came to watch the show's production and, for Ferguson, that was the most exciting part. "You basically got to show off your personality to the judges through your walk and outfits," she said. "I plan on doing this again next year; I even plan on running for Miss Virginia State in the fall when I leave for college."

Sixth-annual Centreville International Showcase draws several hundred.

Several hundred people attended the Sixth-Annual Centreville International Showcase on Saturday, April 30 at the Korean Central Presbyterian Church in Centreville. Highlighting the diversity of Northern Virginia, the celebration included international foods from local restaurants, music and dancing. The event was sponsored by the Centreville Immigration Forum.

When it began in 2010, the Guatemalan workers wanted to showcase their art, music, and dancing, but it has expanded since then.

"We're really excited to be at the Korean Central Presbyterian Church enjoying their wonderful space and hospitality," said Alice Foltz, president of the board of directors of the Centreville Immigration Forum. "We have more international food and performers than ever. We know this will be a wonderful expression of Centreville's international community."

The food selections came from Citimart International Grocery & Convenience Store, Two Amigos Restaurant, Ciao Osteria, Chicken Latino, Tandoori Village, El Quetzal Grill and Restaurant, Guapos, Cuna del Sol, Alpha Delta Kappa and Nick's Taverna.

The entertainment included Irish Dancing from the O'Neill-James School of Irish Dance, Tinkuy Music from the Andes, music from the Washington Area Senior Harmonica Group, music from Jayati Dasgupta, members of Current and past faculty of Stone Middle School.

Stone Celebrates 25 Years

"May the school always be as beautiful as it is tonight."

In addition to speeches by both former principals, the anniversary event included musical performances by the Stone Middle School orchestra and chorus as well as The VaDeatles, a rock band composed of Stone teachers.

Current Stone Middle School Principal Amielia Mitchell and Director of Student Services Zena Chapman also honored four teachers who have taught at the school since its opening in 1991: Social Studies teachers Liz Deal and Natalie Kauffman, Resource teacher Sandy Lombard and English teacher Sarah Curtin.

Deal, also one of the lead singers of the VaDeatles, taught U.S. History to 7th graders for her first 21 years at Stone. As the 2015-2016 school year approaches the end, Deal is currently wrapping up her fourth year teaching 8th grade Civics. While times have changed certain things about Stone over the last two and a half decades, she said that the school has remained the same in the most important way.

"The community around the school has changed, so we have gotten much more diverse," Deal said. "Technology has also changed all the subjects and has evolved how we teach the kids. What's stayed the same, though, is the family feel. All of the staff is so connected. We really are a family."

Lombard also said that what has kept her at Stone has been the tight-knit community that the teachers have forged over the years. While she said it's hard to believe 25 years have already passed, the fellowship has undoubtedly played a major role in keeping her at Stone.

"Through the years, with big classes and small classes, we have remained a family," Lombard said. "We look after each other."

Even those newer to Stone find that the support both in and around the school makes it a special place to work.

"The best thing about Stone is the community," said Principal Amielia Mitchell, who has been at the school for three years. "We have a wonderful teaching staff, amazing students and supportive parents."

While middle school isn't always the easiest time in a student's life, Mitchell said that Stone is unique in that it offers a full spectrum of services and programs to ensure that every student has the opportunity to maximize their academic potential.

"We are fortunate to have so many great schools in Fairfax County and I absolutely love Stone," she said. "At Stone, our goal is to 'keep the dream' alive for every student by providing learning opportunities that promote academic excellence. We are dedicated to developing the whole child by providing a productive learning environment, one in which all students' physical, emotional, social and cognitive growth is fostered."

After the VaDeatles sang their last song on Thursday night and Mitchell invited everyone in the audience to the cafeteria for cake, all of the teachers and administrators present gathered for a group picture on the same bleachers that the chorus had stood on just an hour earlier.

Scott Phillips, the principal of Stone from 2008 through 2013, summed up the aura of Stone in his address earlier in the evening: "Middle school is the time that kids never want to return to. We just hope they get one little seed here that helps make them the people they turn into, or that they find something while here that they really love. I myself am truly grateful for my time here. There were lots of babies, marriages and even retirees. Everyone here supported me as my own family grew. I'm very proud to have been a part of Stone's history."

Director of Student Services Zena Chapman (with Stone Middle School Principal Amielia Mitchell behind her) honored four teachers who have taught at the school since its opening in 1991: Social Studies teachers Liz Deal and Natalie Kauffman, Resource teacher Sandy Lombard, and English teacher Sarah Curtin (not pictured).

Centreville Girls' Lax Hoping to Learn from Robinson Loss

Wildcats earn No. 3 seed in Conference 5 tournament.

BY JON ROETMAN
CENTRE VIEW

The Centerville girls' lacrosse team received a wake-up call before entering the postseason. The Wildcats had won eight of their last nine games prior to their Conference 5 finale against Robinson on April 28. The defending state champion Rams entered the game undefeated and proceeded to hand Centreville its most lopsided loss of the season, 20-11.

The loss dropped the Wildcats' record to 9-4 overall and 3-2 in the conference. A win would have given Centreville a top-two seed in the conference tournament, which comes with a first-round bye and an automatic regional tournament berth. Instead, the Wildcats are the No. 3 seed and will host No. 6 Herndon at 6 p.m. on Friday, May 6. Prior to the Robinson loss, Centreville had not lost a game by more than two goals. The Wildcats' three previous defeats came by a combined four goals.

"We came out with [a lot] of energy in the beginning but did not sustain it throughout the entire game," Centreville head coach Ashley Kimener wrote in an email. "Robinson has always been a big rival for Centreville, so the girls are used to getting up for this game. We made a lot of unforced errors and did not capitalize on their mistakes as much as they did to us. ... The girls were disappointed after the game but took out the lessons from that game that will help us to improve as a team for the rest of the season."

What did the Wildcats take away from the game?

"We can take away from this loss that we need to put together a full team effort in order to beat great teams," Kimener wrote. "We also need to learn to not get too down on ourselves after a few mistakes."

Paige Richbourg led Centreville with five goals against Robinson. Jamie Chang, Jaimi Pollack and Elizabeth Murphy each scored two goals for the Wildcats.

Centreville was scheduled to face Lee on Monday, but the game was cancelled due to inclement weather. The game will not be made up. Robinson, which hasn't lost to a public school opponent since 2014, will be the No. 1 seed in the Conference 5 tournament. Westfield, which defeated Centreville 15-14 on April 19 and lost to Robinson 14-13 on April 12, will be the No. 2 seed.

Chantilly is the No. 4 seed and will host No. 5 Oakton at 5:30 p.m. on Friday, May 6.

Centreville finished conference runner-up last season, losing to Robinson in the tournament final.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Chantilly Baseball Extends Win Streak to Eight

The Chantilly baseball team blanked Robinson 6-0 on April 29, extending its win streak to eight games.

The Chargers improved to 14-2 overall and 7-0 in Conference 5.

Chantilly, which finished state runner-up each of the last two seasons, faced Oakton on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline.

The Chargers will conclude the regular season with a road game against Herndon at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, May 6.

Westfield Baseball Wins 3 of 4

The Westfield baseball team beat Herndon 3-1 on April 29, giving the Bulldogs three wins in their last four games.

Westfield improved to 10-6 overall and 4-3 in the conference. The Bulldogs won four of five conference games after an 0-2 start.

Westfield faced Robinson on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline.

The Bulldogs will travel to face Centreville at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, May 6 and will host Oakton on Tuesday, May 10.

Teams work to raise money for the Alzheimer's Association during the annual Longest Day event.

Working to End the Longest Day

Event to raise awareness and funds for research programs of Alzheimer's Association.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
CENTRE VIEW

Emily Rusch says her mother died a slow and heartbreaking death from Alzheimer's Disease. The experience felt continuous and excruciating.

"Caring for someone with Alzheimer's is really like one never-ending day," said Rusch, office manager for Strength & Performance Training, Inc. (SAPT) in Fairfax.

This June, she and her team of SAPT colleagues will join with teams of people around the world to participate in The Longest Day, a sunrise-to-sunset challenge to raise awareness and funds for research programs of the Alzheimer's Association. The name of the event honors the strength, passion and endurance of those facing Alzheimer's.

Held annually on the summer solstice, The Longest Day symbolizes the challenging journey of those living with the disease and their caregivers. Teams are encouraged to create their own experience as they fundraise and participate in an activity they love to honor someone facing the disease.

SAPT will hold a fundraising event on June 18 by offering free workouts and classes for 16 continuous hours. "We're open for all of the daylight hours on the 18th, and in return, we're asking for donations that will go to support the Alzheimer's Association's mission," said Rusch.

The SAPT team is also taking donations in advance and has raised nearly $1,000 of their $5,000 goal.

"Caring for someone with Alzheimer's is really like one never-ending day."

— Emily Rusch

Rusch hopes to do her part to halt the disease's cycle which she has experienced first-hand.

"My daughters were 8 and 11 when my mother died. They never really knew because she was in the advanced stages of Alzheimer's," she said. "When I was a child, my grandmother had Alzheimer's so I never knew her either. I'm doing the Longest Day because research is important to finding a cure or viable treatment."

Yen DeAnda of Alexandria, whose father has Alzheimer's, is participating in The Longest Day and is the captain of Springfield's Team Bridge Heroes United. The team, which is based out of a retirement community in Springfield, is intergenerational. There are high school students who play alongside seniors.

This June will be their fourth year participating in the event. In the last three years, the team has raised more than $58,000 for the Alzheimer's Association. In 2013, the team's first year, they finished in the top 20 teams in the nation. In 2014 and 2015, they finished in the Top 10.

"The [seniors] need exposure to different people to stay engaged and alert. The kids light up the room when they are there," said DeAnda. "Some kids have brought their grandparents to play."

The bridge club helps seniors in two ways. Club members raise money for Alzheimer's research by playing the game, and the game itself is an activity that keeps seniors engaged.

"You're forced to interact with other people and that helps you keep your sanity," said DeAnda. "Social connection is huge."

While June 20 is the official date for The Longest Day event, the Alzheimer's Association encourages activities and fundraising around this date.

Cindy Schelhorn of the Alzheimer's Association says that teams across the nation develop creative ways to raise money. "We've seen ... Rocking Chair Marathon ... writing letters to loved ones, yard sales [and] yoga."

Straight-on Effects

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As a seven-plus year chemotherapy "infusee," I believe I'm fairly well qualified to address some of the side effects of the treatment. Side effects my a--! The effects are hardly indirect or on the side. They are direct and to the point. Whether it's hair loss, memory loss, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, risk of infection due to low white blood cell count, low energy/high fatigue due to low red blood cell count, loss of appetite/lack of taste; and on and on and on – and I'm not even addressing the psychological, emotional and spiritual issues which themselves are nearly overwhelming – the results: "Danger, Will Robinson." Because it seems as if you're lost in your own space. Wishing and hoping and praying may mitigate some of the suffering. Unfortunately, there's still plenty to go 'round.

Is there relief in sight for those cancer patients so regularly affected? Yes. There is medication. Although, generally speaking, my oncologist has been hesitant to prescribe additional medication to treat the effects of treatment/previously prescribed medication, regardless of its effectiveness. It's not exactly akin to a cat chasing its tail, but prescribing medication to treat the "side" effects of an already prescribed medication – which in turn may have been prescribed to treat the effects of yet another previously prescribed medication, seemed somewhere between redundant (sort of), ridiculous and irresponsible somehow. If solving one problem/symptom simply caused a new and different symptom/problem that required medication, then all we were accomplishing was whacking a mole, so to speak. And as a cancer patient, compounding the underlying problem didn't seem to make sense; so rarely, if ever – and my oncologist and I talked about this – did we decide to throw good money after bad, if you know what I mean. Mostly we decided to leave well enough alone – within reason, even though I might not have been all that well.

Please don't infer from this rationalization that I've suffered unnecessarily. I don't think I have. Although I certainly don't know for sure. But in reviewing today decisions made in the past, I still think, to quote my deceased father, that "The idea had merit." No second-guessing here. The decision seemed logical and prudent then and it still does today, even in arrears. Perhaps managing my "straight-on effects" as I've discussed has contributed to my overall good health/unexpected survival. Who's to say? Obviously, prescription and/or over-the-counter medication is a reasonable course of action/treatment, all things considered. But sometimes, too much of a good thing may simply be too much. The human body does have its limits. Specifically, I refer to the Immune System, our internal fighter. Though it works in many strange and mysterious ways, many more of those ways are understood now after years of research. Unleashing it rather than medicating/obfuscating it might very well be the missing link in treating not only cancer but other dreaded diseases. In fact, Immunotherapy is an entirely new field/class of drugs created/ designed to harness the power of one's own Immune System. Now that's a "straight-on" effect I would embrace.

Fortunately, or not, my non-Immunotherapy chemotherapy is keeping my tumors "stable" (my heretofore favorite word), so rather than stop what's working – despite the eating/taste issue I experience during my post-chemo week – we're going to stay the course, but remain open to course corrections. It may not be ideal, because the "straight-on" effects can be difficult. Nevertheless, even though it's not exactly my idea, I do think much of it.
