OPINION Remembering on Memorial Day 2016

Observe a moment of silence.

n Memorial Day, we remember all of those who have died in military service, more than 400,000 in World War II, more than 30,000 in Korea, more than 50,000 in Vietnam.

As many as 620,000 soldiers died in the line of duty in the Civil War, stunningly about 2 percent of the population at that time. To compare, while more than 2.5 million soldiers have served in Iraq and Afghanistan, that number is still less than one percent of the U.S. population.

Since Sept. 11, 2001, more than 6,880 U.S. military service men and women have died in support of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

On Memorial Day, there are many ways to remember the fallen, including a visit to Arlington National Cemetery, or many other local commemorations. But at a minimum, wherever you are, you can observe a moment of silence at 12:01 p.m. along with Iraq and Afghanistan Veterans of America (IAVA), or you can set your own moment at some point during the day.

More than 52,000 U.S. military service members have been wounded in action, although that number is likely to be revised upward. In 2013, the military confirmed traumatic brain injury in more than 220,000 of the more than 2.5 million troops who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan. The long-term consequences of many of these injuries, including mental health consequences, are unknown, but they will require a national commitment to excellence in health care and services for both active duty military personnel and veterans. Virginia's U.S. Senators Mark Warner and Tim Kaine continue to advocate for better service from the Veterans Administration.

Since Memorial Day 2014, the Department of Defense announced the death of one service member from Virginia, Marcus D. Prince, 22, of Norfolk, Virginia, who died April 26 in Juffir, Bahrain.

Between Memorial Day 2014 and 2015, two military service members from Virginia. Sgt. Charles C. Strong, 28, of Suffolk, died Sept. 15, 2014 in Herat Province, Afghanistan while conducting combat operations. Sgt. David H. Stewart, 34, of Stafford, was one of three Marines who died June 20, 2014 while conducting combat operations in Helmand province, Afghanistan.

EVERY YEAR before Memorial Day, this newspaper names the local men and women who have died in military service since Sept. 11, 2001.

Army Sgt. Lyle D. Turnbull, 31, of Norfolk, died Oct. 18, 2013 in Kuwait, from a medical emergency. Capt. Brandon L. Cyr, 28, of Woodbridge, was one of four airmen who died April 27, 2013, near Kandahar Airfield, Afghanistan, in the crash of an MC-12 aircraft.

1st Lt. Robert J. Hess, 26, of the Kings Park West neighborhood of Fairfax, was killed by enemy fire on April 23, 2013, Afghanistan. Hess was known as "RJ" and graduated from Robinson Secondary School in 2005, where he played football, lacrosse and was the captain of the swim team. He was a U.S. Army Blackhawk helicopter pilot who deployed to Afghanistan on April 11, 2013. His family remembers his sense of humor and his natural leadership ability.

A former tennis champ-turnedbudding business leader has received the University of Virginia's Sky Alland Scholarship.

Michelle Fabiola "Faby" Chaillo, a third-year commerce major from Mexico City and Falls Church, will receive full tuition and fees for her fourth year at the University as well as a $10,000 stipend for living expenses.

The scholarship is awarded to the third-year student who best exemplifies leadership, achievement, enterprising spirit, humility and devotion to the University. The award is named for J. Schuyler Alland, a 1979 graduate of the McIntire School of Commerce and entrepreneur who built a successful national marketing research company before he was killed during a carjacking in 1992.

"My first reaction when I read the letter on the Lawn was to reread it to make sure I wasn't dreaming, Chaillo said. "And then I cried with happiness.

"I feel so honored and humbled by it. My heart is full of joy and gratitude, and I feel more energized to give back to the community. More than anything, I am very thankful for this honor."

Chaillo won Virginia High School League Group AAA singles championships in 2009 and 2012, and was No. 1 in her age group in the U.S. Tennis Association's Mid-Atlantic rankings and No. 18 nationally.

However, injuries essentially ended her competitive tennis career before she arrived at UVA. Multiple surgeries eventually led her to miss the 2014-15 academic year.

She used part of her time away from UVA to work with Coulter Companies (now MCI USA), a McLean-based association management firm. Fluent in French and Spanish, Chaillo was given responsibility to plan a Chanel Fashion Leadership Meeting in New York City.

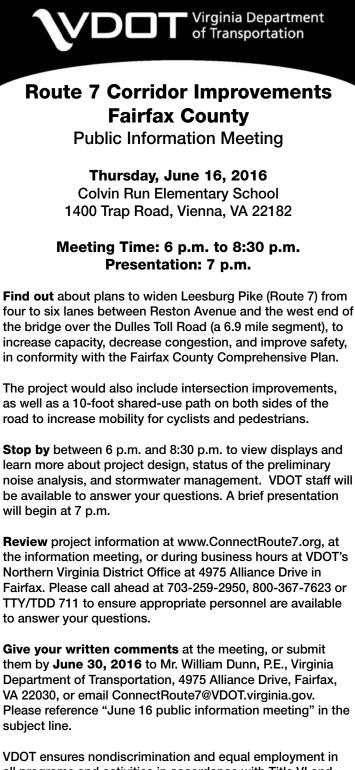

As a business major, Chaillo is focused on marketing and is investigating the effects of different colors in promotions across cultures.

"Having lived in three different countries - Mexico, the United States and France – I have personally experienced the power of cultures and their effect on a person's perspectives in life," Chaillo said. Color is a subconscious processing that is attached to memories and emotions; hence, I believe exposure to colors in different countries, like colors of flags, natural landscape, traditions and more, can affect how people react to proMichelle Fabiola "Faby" Chaillo

LearningRx Donates 20,000 Legos to Autism Society

More than 20,000 Legos were donated to the Autism Society of Northern Virginia by local LearningRx brain training centers in Leesburg, Fairfax, Reston and Vienna, and LearningRx directors committed to trekking a 10-foot "LEGO Walk of Fire" in bare feet upon meeting their 20K Lego goal.

"We're grateful to the community to help us support autism awareness and surpassed our Lego goal," said Maureen Loftus, executive director of LearningRx of Reston and Vienna. "Our Lego Walk of Fire was everything you'd expect...it was painful, but fun...the key is to walk quickly," said Loftus.

In Effect/ To Affect

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I've been trying to write this column/organize my thoughts/stay on this task for years but haven't been able to do so. It's nothing serious, really, other than the side effects – potentially, of many of the prescription drugs now available (perhaps characteristic of many of the prescription drugs ever since they've been prescribed). But given the frequency and variety of their advertising of late, I have been unable to ignore their message, both good and in some instances, shockingly bad/scary.

Granted, I watch way too much television where many of these ads regularly appear, so I may be a bit of a sitting duck. I won't name names, maybe just a few potential side effects though: ALS, cancer, heart attack, stroke, suicidal thoughts, depression, kidney and liver damage, high blood pressure/low blood pressure, blackouts, blood clots, shortness of breath, four-hour erections; and on and on and on. (I don't recall seeing too many commercials where lung cancer is a possible side effect. I suppose that's because lung cancer is not exactly a "side" effect, it's more of a main effect.) Nevertheless, being a stage IV, nonsmall cell lung cancer patient/survivor, I can't help but have noticed the ads on television for "OPDIVO." Obviously the subject matter interests me, but maybe I've just learned - instinctively almost, to pay stricter attention to such enticements. It might actually relate to me. Or maybe I've simply gotten better at listening to voice-overs and reading small print scrolling beneath the visuals while ignoring more the apparent healthy recipients living wonderfully enjoyable and uninhibited lives thanks to these medications Believe me, I understand that these prescription drugs are not "over the counter" so it's unlikely I'll happen on to them sitting on some pharmacy shelf next to the Advil and wonder, on my own, if they could help me. The only way, so far as a law-abiding citizen like myself would have/gain access to any of these prescriptions, would be through a conversation with, and prescription written by, my treating physician where many of the potential side effects and/or risk-rewards would be discussed. Still, trading one set of problems for another, which in turn possibly could lead to their own set of unintended but not totally unanticipated consequences seems a bit problematic - even to me, and all I have is lung cancer.

I don't know that I have a choice, though. There is treatment. There are consequences. There are alternatives. There is life and there is death, and always there is hope. But treatmentto-date, I've never felt as if I was trading one for the other. Oddly enough, I've always thought, I was making decisions to stay alive, not to make my life worse; attempting to sustain it, not diminish it. With some of the prescription advertising I see and hear on television now, I'm confused. Many of it sounds both encouraging and discouraging, and somewhere between cautiously optimistic and a cautionary tale, even as the advisory to "speak to your doctor before you start a..." voices over. Not that it sounds so great in the first place, but in the last place, I am often reminded of the old adage: "If it sounds too good ... " Well, when you consider the potential side effects, it doesn't sound too good at all.

Certainly I realize that there are governing/regulating bodies like the F.D.A. that approve/regulate/mandate what is said/advertised/printed/labeled, etc., prescribed even, for our mutual protection. Still, it's difficult for me to ignore everything I see, hear and read, especially when left to my own devices. Devices which, had they been similarly regulated, would likely have come with their own set of warning labels.

'Meal Tax' and Fiscal Responsibility

To the Editor:

The never ending push for new revenue streams for Fairfax County with their tax and spend policies really knows no end. The overall real estate tax bill for the typical Fairfax county household increased by 154 percent between the years 2000 and 2016, and now the county will try for a new source of revenue called the "meal tax." In the same period of time, household income increased by 35 percent with overall inflation at roughly 49 percent. Somehow the word needs to be conveyed to the county supervisors that they need to practice some fiscal responsibility. The taxpayers can't afford their Cadillac health plans, pensions with retirement at 55 along with overall 3.5 percent raises for 33,000 county school employees. Fairfax should not try to compete with nearby Maryland county's spending policies. I would like to know how many recommendations the FCSB implemented from the task force set up to find cuts in school spending? Wait, I know the answer; None. If the Fairfax county voters are naïve enough to approve a meal tax in the name of "diversifying the revenue" stream the future increase in the meal tax and property taxes will be well deserved by the voters.
