Lady Luck Shines on Herndon

Festivities went on without a hitch at Herndon Festival 2016.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

Lady Luck – if not the sun – shone down on the 36th annual Herndon Festival. Despite predictions for disruptive rain showers, high winds, and even possible hail, the weather behaved and the festivities went on without a hitch.

The Festival kicked off on the evening of Thursday, June 2. Billed as Northern Virginia’s “Largest Free Event,” with some sixty business expo vendors and sponsors, more than forty downtown businesses on display, and twenty-five and more musical performances to be enjoyed on three different stages, the organizers weren’t exaggerating with their promotional description.

All of those vendors, food stops and musical interludes were well spaced out all around Historic Downtown Herndon, bordered by Elden Street, Center Street, and Monroe Street and encompassing Herndon Town Hall, the historic Train Depot, Herndon Municipal Center and even taking over a portion of the Washington and Old Dominion Trail. “No, I didn’t know it was happening when I cycled here from Lake Barcroft,” said cyclist David Whitehead, “but it’s great! A real welcome surprise.” Cyclists and others who would normally traverse this section of the Trail were directed to a detour around the activity, or were invited to stop and enjoy. “There’s a ‘bike valet’ point which is brilliant,” said Whitehead, who did stop for a while for some refreshment and to listen to the Liz Nordstrom Band. “Glad I did. This band is really good.”

All four days of the Festival also included a well-stocked carnival section, with a full-sized Ferris wheel, a thrilling “Octopus” ride and tea cup rides and flying swings for the younger fair goers.

A special “Kids’ Alley – Children’s Hands-On Art” area, produced by Arts Herndon, was in operation both Saturday and Sunday with plenty of activities well organized to keep lines to the barest minimum and kids – and parents – happy.

Happy faces on the Tea Cup ride for Stephanie and Nate of Herndon. The youngsters were particularly pleased because unlike typical amusement park rides, “the lines weren’t long!”

Street performers like the “Unicycle Lady,” the “Avatar on Stilts,” the “Monkey Man,” and a “Fairy Princess” roamed the crowds so that even just walking through the booth-lined avenues guaranteed that extra bit of entertainment.

When the children were finally tired (for a few minutes) of whirling and twirling in the Carnival Area and the adults had their (temporary) fill of shopping at the many stalls filled with hand-crafted jewelry, woodworks, stained glass, clothing, toys, clocks, artwork, home goods, natural beauty and health care products (too many to name!), there were plenty of food offerings and seats thoughtfully placed near the music venues to give everyone a delicious break.

“Actually,” said first-time festival-goer Keira Clarke of Herndon, “all the wonderful smells have been kind of driving me crazy since we got here! It was hard to wait for official lunch time.”

And there was every type of snack food, beverage or meal available. You could stroll along munching on roasted nuts from the Original Cinnamon Roasted Almonds, or juggle a giant funnel cake from Premiere Hospitality or Jason’s Mini Donuts Café.

When you were ready for more, you could choose from BBQ, Asian, Mexican, turkey legs and sausage, pizza, corn dogs, Caribbean chicken, or even Greek, and wash it all down with a smoothie, a frozen drink, some root beer, or even a real beer with a souvenir beer stein to boot.

The Herndon Festival had something for everyone!

PEOPLE

Herndon Flutist Wins Band Directors' Competition

It all started with an impromptu performance at Walden Pond. Or, more accurately, it started when Herndon High School senior Aimee Toner was still small enough to require a C flute with a curved head joint.

On Saturday, May 20, Toner capped off six years of participation in the Fairfax County Band Directors' Association's Solo Competition with a first place finish. She played "Sonata Appassionata"—a flute solo she practiced in at the site of Thoreau's cabin on a family trip in August.

"I chose 'Sonata Appassionata' by Sigfrid Karg-Elert because it was my primary college audition piece. It was also unaccompanied, and displays a broad range of dynamics, moods, tempos and technique," Toner said.

She has competed in the competition five times before, in the sixth, seventh, eighth, tenth, and eleventh grades. In 2014, she placed third with another piece, Charles Griffes' "Poem."

"This competition has reminded me of the high level of other musicians and has encouraged me to work harder. I've always prepared and aimed to perform my best for each of my six performances."

Over sixty-five students participated in Saturday's competition in the elementary, middle and high school divisions.

Herndon High School band director Kathleen Jacoby said: "Fairfax County has one of the most incredible music programs nationwide. The opportunities for our students rival many colleges. Because of this, we have an incredible wealth of virtuosity in our music students. Aimee's success speaks volumes to her talent considering the stiff competition she was up against."

WEEK IN HERNDON

North County Governmental Center Grand Opening

Hunter Mill District Supervisor Catherine M. Hudgins invites you to a Grand Opening and Ribbon Cutting ceremony, on Saturday, June 18, 10 a.m. – 2 p.m., at the North County Governmental Center, 1801 Cameron Glen Drive, Reston.

The new facility is shared with the Reston District Police Station. Captain Ronald T. Manzo, on behalf of the Fairfax County Police Department, will be welcoming the community along with Supervisor Hudgins.

In addition to the ribbon cutting and the official unveiling of the newly completed public art sculpture, the community is invited to stop by for a day of family activities. You can tour the building and station, enjoy some summer treats, and attend a storytime courtesy of the Reston Regional Library. Also, meet members of the K-9 unit, watch the landing of the police helicopter, admire the motorcycle squad as they navigate the demonstration course, and explore a fire truck inside and out. At this family-friendly event, there will be interactive displays, and public safety vehicles to explore.

To RSVP or for additional information, contact the Hunter Mill District office at 703-478-0283, or e-mail to RSVPHuntermill@fairfaxcounty.gov.

Herndon MOMS Club to Host Meeting, Splash Fun

The MOMS Club of Herndon will host its monthly meeting on Thursday, June 16, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Reston Town Center Splash Pad (At the corner of Market and Explorer Streets, Reston). All Herndon, Virginia (zip codes 20170 and 20171) at-home mothers and their children are encouraged to join the meeting to learn more about what the MOMS Club has to offer and celebrate the beginning of summer with some fun water play.

For more information or to RSVP, contact: Stephanie Talberg, Membership VP at herndon_moms_info@yahoo.com.

Correction: Meals Tax

The chart on the meals tax published in the May 17 and May 24 editions of the Connection should have said that Herndon imposes a 2.5 percent meals tax and Vienna imposes a 3 percent meals tax rate.

Herndon Garden Tour

Garden Tour approaches: Saturday, June 18, noon to 4 p.m.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

Herndon enjoys cultivating community initiative. This year's 2016 Herndon Garden Tour on Saturday, June 18 from noon to 4 p.m. is one budding example.

The garden tour showcases five distinct gardens the 2016 Garden Tour Committee selected.

"Although all the plots echo the lives and hands of previous owners, the current homeowners seem to have a common bond," according to the committee members Mercia Hobson, Cathy Lanni and Tooran Shadman. "As stewards of their legacy lands, each has removed diseased trees and invasive plants, replacing them with native shrubs, trees, flowering forbs and vines, Winterberry, sweet bay magnolia, wild strawberry and wisteria flourish."

Plein Air Painters Lorrie Herman and Vicki Vidal Blum will have their easels on display at two of the five garden on the tour; live music will be offered at another; and Under The Olive Tree purveyors will offer olive oil and vinegars at an additional garden.

Each of the gardeners will be available to discuss the Mayors for Monarchs project, kicked off at Runnymede Park last Wednesday, May 25. Mayor Lisa Merkel signed a pledge for Herndon to take community, private and public efforts to help rejuvenate the dwindling monarch population.

"So take your time today. Meander down garden paths. See plein air painters. Listen to 'garden music.' Learn about oils and vinegars. Then, later today or tomorrow, put on your gardening gloves. Go out; dig, plant," according to committee members Mercia Hobson, Cathy Lanni and Tooran Shadman.

The Herndon Garden Tour is produced by the town's Cultivating Community Initiative, a group of volunteers dedicated to neighborhood beautification and community spirit.

The Gardens of Robin Ward: A Good Steward of the Land

Robin Ward has been on Mosby Hollow Drive for 18 months. "I am fortunate to be able to have acquired such beautiful gardens and I hope I can be a good steward of the land for its former owners, Phil Goetkin and Diane D'Amico," according to Ward.

She wrote about her garden for the Tour. "We found veggies were not our calling. The next season we turned the plot into a flower garden to be seen from our upstairs bedroom window," according to Ward.

"Phil and I ventured out to nurseries and pored over magazines. We took classes.

Many classes, and we learned. As you wander through the gardens, you will notice we used reclaimed materials or stone for the hardscape. They blend seamlessly among the plantings, allowing the flora to take center stage," according to Ward.

"Our hobby evolved into a labor of love and a passion," said Ward, who is willing to share her successes as well as the failures that "ended up in the compost bin."

"Gardens were never formally placed, but evolved into a living tapestry of colors."

The Beebe Family Gardens: All the Things Children Love

George and Sarah Beebe made their garden a family affair.

"We have fun watching the hummingbirds drink the nectar in the coral-bells and the butterflies and bees flit from the Echinacea plants to the black-eyed susans. Our little garden is something that brings our family together. It gets even better year after year," according to George and Sarah Beebe.

When they moved into their Herndon home on Van Buren Street, "there were some azaleas in the front of the house and a beautiful little deciduous magnolia, but nothing else." They called a third of the backyard "thick thorny brambles."

"Trips to the quarry, the garden center, and additions of hardscape, new crepe myrtles and lots of plants helped them "reclaim that land and turn it into a space for the children to play," they wrote. "The plantings in the back reflect all the things that our children love to see and learn about," including a butterfly garden, rose garden, veggie and herb garden, pumpkin patch and fairy garden.

Tickets for Herndon's 2016 Garden Tour on Saturday, June 18 are available at the Herndon Community Center, 814 Ferndale Ave., and Herndon Florist, 716 Lynn St.

Stephan Briggs and Deborah Gudelsky: 'With Glass of Good Wine'

When Stephan Briggs and Deborah Gudelsky bought their home on Grant Street in 2006, the "garden" consisted of mature trees and a raspberry patch.

"We first began our gardening by cutting out flowerbeds around the house and privet hedge border," they wrote. They filled spaces with perennials and native plants.

After they enlarged the basement in 2009, they used dirt excavated under the house for "the bedding for the organic vegetable garden."

"We are very proud of the self-design of our gardens with an abundance of flora for many to enjoy," they wrote.

"The beauty of the gardening process makes us feel more alive. It provides a wonderful sense of accomplishment. Gives us great exercise, and it relaxing to admire at the end of the day... with a glass of good wine."

Mercia Hobson, of the Garden Tour committee, formatted their words into a poem in this year's Garden Tour brochure, that also serves as a ticket to the tour.

Al and Mercia Hobson: One with the Huge Magnolia

The Mayors for Monarch pledge envisions such gardens that Mercia Hobson said is unified by American boxwoods.

"Butterflies abound in the gardens and attract monarch butterflies. It's a rather unexpected mix, Al's formal traditional shrubs and my cottage farm-style floral. Yet it all seems to work," says Mercia Hobson.

Their land, easily identified says Hobson, was part of the 100-year-old Bready dairy farmlands, two blocks away from Herndon's Historic District. "People say it's the one with the huge magnolia tree," according to Hobson.

She wrote:

"The multi-trunked southern giant is native to Virginia. It towers 40-feet tall. Each spring, it produces a glorious display of eight-inch wide creamy-white flowers, set against shiny dark green leaves

Where and When

Tickets are $15; children 12 and under are free. Tickets may be purchased at the Herndon Community Center, 814 Ferndale Ave. and Herndon Florist, 716 Lynn St. The self-directed tour showcases five distinct gardens in Herndon. Tickets will have the addresses of the five stops on the tour.

with rusty undercoats. The flowers, very fragrant, open singly in abundance like fine white china."

Fred and Jody Krazeise: Reclaiming the Space

Fred and Jody Krazeise didn't know if they were going to be able to grow anything on their land on Vine Street because a chemical called juglone from all parts of the 60 black walnut trees.

"We originally tried to save some of the trees, but they were diseased and we decided to have them removed about seven years ago," they wrote. "So we ground out each of the tree stumps and the soil remained fallow for the next year with the hope that nature would help us cleanse the soil. Thankfully, it did and our vision for reclaiming the space began to emerge."

They grow two varieties of tomato, eggplant and squash plants and three varieties of sweet bell pepper and cucumber plants. "New this year will be asparagus and potato," they wrote.

The Herndon couple landscaped their front yard "to require minimal maintenance," with a dominant white oak in the center, two Galaxy Magnolias near the driveway and a "dragon lady" holly tree next to their front steps.

"Our house, which we built on a vacant lot in 2002, is a replica of a turn-of-the-century farmhouse. Since the lot itself is only 55-feet-wide, we modified plans from a New Orleans-style shotgun house. People are amazed to see how far back onto the lot the house seems to go."

South Lakes Softball Falls in Region Semifinals

Seahawks finish one win shy of state tournament.

BY JOSH BELANGER
THE CONNECTION

The third time the Madison and South Lakes softball teams faced this season it was for a trip to the 6A North region championship game and a berth in the state tournament. The two previous games showed little offense and dominant pitching performances. On May 31, the bats would come alive.

The teams combined for five home runs, including four by Madison, and the Warhawks defeated South Lakes 6-2 in the region semifinals in Vienna. The victory earned Madison a trip to the region final and a state tournament berth.

Two days later, the Warhawks lost to Osbourn Park 2-0 in the region championship game. Madison (23-4) will face 6A South region champion Grassfield in the state semifinals at 3 p.m. on Friday, June 10 at Robinson Secondary School.

On May 31, senior Katie Vannicola started in the circle for the Warhawks and the Seahawks countered with sophomore Aly Rayle. For the first three innings, the pitching was as expected. Both pitchers seemed to be locked in as neither one surrendered a hit until the third inning.

"Any time you face someone three times it's hard," said Madison head coach Jim Katie Vannicola and the Madison softball team earned a state tournament berth.

Adkins. "I thought our hitters did a much better job and had a better approach in this game than the previous two games."

Madison's patience would pay off as the offense broke it open in the third. Senior Blake Brackett started the inning with a base hit and later scored on a throwing error. Vannicola then hit a two-run home run and sophomore Kristin Giery would follow that with a long ball of her own.

"We made some adjustments and you see some balls hit hard and when you get a few fortunate home runs, it's usually helpful for your offense," said Adkins. "I thought the girls had a good approach at the plate."

Two batters later, senior Julia Hoy hit the third home run of the inning for the Warhawks, giving them a five-run lead.

Adkins said that the confidence is high, but credits the success to an adjustment in the practice plan.

"We spent the last week getting back to the basics, focusing on seeing the ball hit the bat, keeping your head behind the swing and making adjustments at the plate," said Adkins.

South Lakes head coach Carlos Soto tried to slow the inning down and get his team to relax after the error, feeling that a rally was coming. Unfortunately for the Seahawks, the mistakes were just too much to overcome.

"When you have a team with really good bats, you can't make mistakes in the strike zone," said Soto. "I called timeout because you have to try and refocus and I hope that didn't hurt [Rayle], but she battled back on things like that all season and again when you [face] a good hitting team you can't make mistakes."

South Lakes would not go quietly. After a leadoff single in the fourth by junior Jazmyn Stokes, junior Danielle Barr connected on a two-run shot to left, cutting the lead to three.

However, that's all Vannicola would allow a young South Lakes group to score. The Seahawks finished the season 17-8, but only graduate four seniors and have a senior infield returning next season.

"I feel really confident about this team and confident we will be back next year and do a lot great things," said Soto.

Giery added insurance in the sixth for Madison with her second long ball of the game and her eighth home run of the season.

"[Madison] hit the ball well today, you can't say anything bad about them, they played really well," said Soto. "Giery has been doing well for them all season and she stepped up for them today."

South Lakes' Golden Kumi-Darfour placed fourth in the 800 at the 6A state meet.

South Lakes' Skander Ballard finished third in the 400 at states.

South Lakes Track Athletes Earn All-State Honors

Golden Kumi-Darfour, Skander Ballard and John LeBerre closed out their high school track and field careers with all-state honors at the 6A state championship meet June 3-4 at Todd Stadium in Newport News.

Kumi-Darfour finished fourth in the 800 meters with a season-best time of 2:12.93. She anchored the SLHS 4x800 team of freshman Sophie Halkett and sophomores Olivia Beckner and Sarah Wolfe that finished seventh (9:28.68). Beckner also placed in an individual event, finishing third in the 1,600 meters with a personal best time of 4:58.24.

Ballard ran a 48.37 for third in the 400 meters and teamed with LeBerre, junior Ashton Reinhold and senior Nikolai Waithe for sixth in the 4x400 meter relay (3:24.49).

LeBerre also teamed with sophomore Alex Loukili and juniors Peter Sepulveda and Jack Watkins for seventh in the 4x800 meter relay (8:08.49) and finished fifth in the 800 meters with a 1:55.11, a personal best.

Senior Anas Fain was seventh in the 300 meter hurdles with a personal best time of 39.70.

Bogged Down To This-Or Not

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Am I supposed to ignore, totally, the fact that I have cancer? I think I've made a seven-plus year survival history of doing so, mostly. But being indifferent, sort of, to a killer disease doesn't seem particularly prudent. Granted, it has been a way I've been able to assimilate the stress and rationalize the anxiety, but as an overall strategy? I can't say I'd recommend it, but...so far, so good.

Occasionally, I do wonder however, if being more engaged and more in tune – with my body, my disease, my life expectancy, would help? I mean, not being depressed by my medical reality can't be the answer to a prayer, can it? It seems too easy, too irresponsible; to be inattentive to the very thing that might actually be killing me. Yet I haven't really stumbled. Cancer isn't for sissies, but neither can it be for a type "A", high intensity, 24/7 fighter.

There's a part of me, not large enough I'll admit, that feels I should live my life – without being intentionally self-destructive – and not let the cancer control me, but rather that I control it/my life and let the chips fall where they may. There's something to be said for freedom/quality of life, but is that simply wishful thinking, and naïve wishful thinking at that? Or is attempting to live as normally as possible a key to my success?

I'm sure I'll never know. It's likely very difficult to measure in a clinical study/trial, the effects of such realities on tumors, and ultimately, patient outcomes. And neither is it possible to inject patients with a magic potion which changes their nature and in turn affects their survival. Talk about variables. Even the variable would have variables. Nevertheless, treatment has to consider mind, body and spirit, doesn't it? Allowing for and/or accommodating one without considering the other two would seem to presume that the whole is not the sum of its parts. Who's to say that keeping my spirits up is not as important as keeping my creatinine levels (as but one example) down? After all, medicine is science, not arithmetic. The calculations are not always correct. Sometimes, medical outcomes are not what's "prognosed"/anticipated. I'm living proof of that. Ergo, is my survival based on my medical treatment/chemotherapy or my DNA, or was it simply my attitude? To not factor in all possibilities and plan accordingly seems irresponsible, almost.

Perhaps my attitude, my occasional indifference, my lack of obsession with my own outcome seems reasonable in light of my having survived for so many years vs the fact that so many others have succumbed to this terrible disease. Or maybe it's just blind, stupid, random luck (like the blind squirrel finding an acorn, as the old saying goes) and my positive attitude, sense of humor and non-preoccupation with my medical circumstances has had nothing to do with any of it?

Either way, there's no point in discussing it, really. If I want to continue living, I have to take the good with the bad – and vice versa, and not worry too much about things I can't control and about personality traits I don't possess.

Lifelong Learning: Endless Possibilities

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

COMMENTARY

In 1956 the then appointed Fairfax County School Board appropriated fifty dollars per month to be paid as a supplement to a school administrator to start an adult education program. Since the schools were still racially segregated, a program for white adults was started at Annandale High School, and a program for black adults was started at Luther Jackson School. The favorite offerings at both locations were classes in sewing including the Bishop Method of Clothing Construction, as well as typing and shorthand. The inexpensive, evening classes proved popular, and the program grew rapidly. Basic education classes for those adults who could not read and write were added as were night school classes to complete high school and to prepare for the G.E.D.

Recently I had the pleasure of attending a 60th anniversary celebration of the program at the Plum Center for Lifelong Learning on Edsall Road in the eastern part of the county. I was honored several years ago when the School Board chose to name its first full-time adult education center for my work in adult and community education that spanned half the years of its existence. Starting as a part-time room coordinator in the evenings when I was a half-time intern teacher from the University of Virginia, I was able, for reasons too complex, to explain here to become an administrator of the program in three years. As many discover in pursuing a career, my good fortune of working in a program that I loved so much was more a case of being at the right place at the right time than any deliberate planning.

As Fairfax County and its school system grew, the adult education program that became known as the adult and community education program grew not only in enrollment but in the variety of its offerings. With the growth in the number of persons speaking English as a second language came classes in English for those speakers of other languages. Increased educational requirements in a soaring economy resulted in more enrollment in evening adult high school and in vocational education programs.

While the adult and community education program afforded tax-paying citizens an opportunity to utilize the facilities their tax dollars had built, the program at the same time provided support for the school system's K-12 program. Students who were unsuccessful in the regular high schools were often allowed to transfer to the adult high school program as an alternative where they were often more successful. Parents could take classes in child development and parenting in order to help their own children. Adult and Community Education (ACE) provided administrative support for after-school enrichment classes in the elementary schools.

A catalogue of ACE classes and programs is mailed three times a year to Fairfax County residents and is available online at <http://www.fcps.edu/is/ace/documents/catalogs/2016/Summer2016.pdf>. As its literature promises, "the possibilities are endless." Endless for career and employment training, learning a new language, personal and academic enrichment. After all, as we have become aware—learning is lifelong.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Receiving Benefits, Ducking Responsibility

To the Editor:

John Knight's letter ("Seniors Unfairly Tapped for School Budget") in the last week's Connection made a case for a school tax "rebate" to senior property owners. His stated argument is that since elderly residents don't have children in the school system, they should get a financial break.

Since having no children in the system is the criterion, can we assume Mr. Knight would support cutting a rebate check for singles without children? Who knows whether they will ever use the system in these uncertain times? How about for families that send their children to private schools, don't they deserve a little break, too? And why, when you get right down to it, should businesses - that obviously don't put little ones into classrooms - not be entitled to a smidgen of property tax forgiveness?

Why pay for something you don't use? Pay for play! This thoughtful argument has potential application to a broad range of other areas of public policy, too. If I have health insurance, shouldn't I get a rebate for that share of my taxes that goes to pay for public health services? Shouldn't I get a modest re-deposit to my account to compensate me for the cost of maintaining the county parks I don't use. I have never had a house burn down - not even once - and yet I'm expected to pay my full part of the taxes that fund Fairfax County Fire? How is that fair?

And just you wait until Mr. Knight starts in on figuring out which parts of the Commonwealth and Federal budgets don't apply him. We'll all be rolling in rebates!

But, of course, the world doesn't work the way Mr. Knight suggests it should. The same seniors whose real estate values have climbed over the years because of the quality of life - and the caliber of the public institutions - in Fairfax County, have a continuing obligation to pay to sustain that quality. The Fairfax County school system existed for their children because previous generations funded it. Having received the benefits, trying to duck the responsibility to keep the lights on for future generations is downright churlish.

Of course, getting that rebate is possible for those that really want to cash out. All it involves is selling and moving. Away.

Protect Homeowners, and School Budget

To the Editor:

Regarding John Knight's letter ("Seniors Unfairly Tapped for School Budget") in the last week's Connection: While the sentiment is nice and I would join anyone in complaining about the burden of taxes being put on all the homeowners; in my opinion businesses and developers get away with tax breaks. Our supervisors and planning commissions are over developing Tysons; creating traffic and other problems, and then they complain about the low occupancy rate. The fix to those problems is raising homeowner taxes. I don't think giving seniors a break due to the fact they no longer have kids in school is fair or wise. Those schools prepared our kids and now have the task of preparing our and another generation of children's kids. Many of the people in our neighborhood who are young don't have kids. Shouldn't they also be given dispensation. I would prefer we pass the meals tax and stop giving other breaks to businesses and developers. That would be a much better means of supplemental funding of our schools and help to keep our homeowners' taxes from escalating. Well-educated children are resources to seniors, couples and singles without children and current parents alike.
