Lift Off for Potomac Gondola

A look at the initial feedback from citizens and advice from an existing gondola system.

BY VERNON MILES
THE CONNECTION

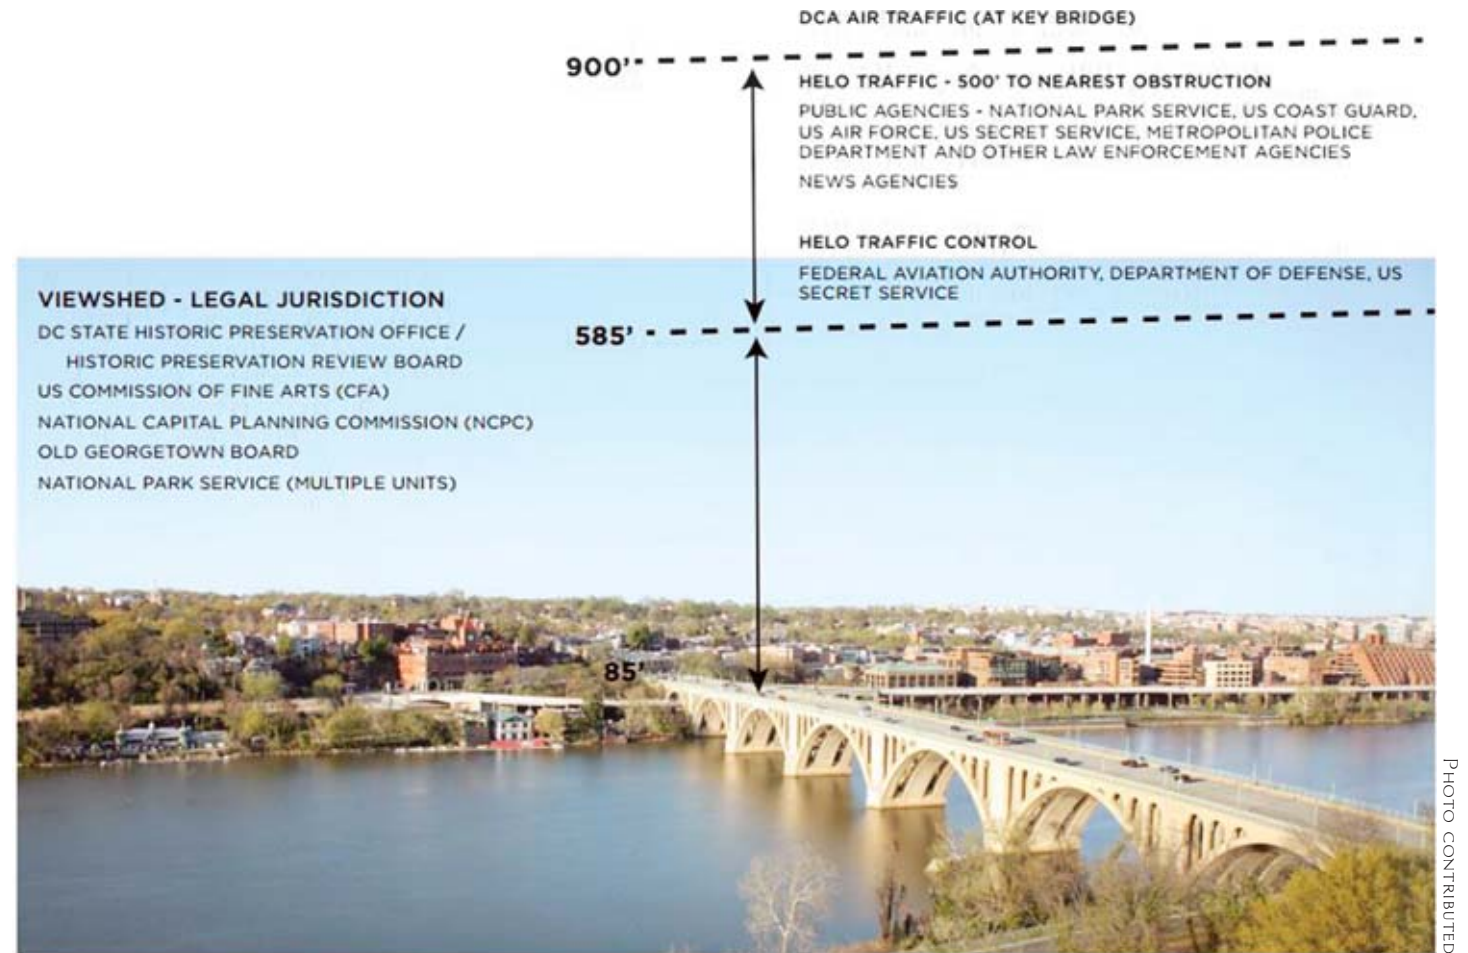

The Georgetown-Rosslyn Gondola baffles people. The proposed tram alongside the Key Bridge has drawn a mixture of interest and confusion. As the feasibility study begins, little new information about the cost of the project was revealed at the first meeting. The size of the gondola, the building and operating costs, and how much it will cost to ride are all still yet to be determined, but this hasn't kept the project from attracting attention at the July 7 public meeting in the Rosslyn Spectrum Theatre.

"I was initially very skeptical," said Mary-Claire Burick, president of the Rosslyn BID, one of the partners in the Rosslyn-Georgetown gondola project. "But transportation is a challenge in the region. This solves congestion on the bridge. [This helps people] going to work in a suit on a hot summer day .... But this has to be easy and seamless. That's what people are looking for. [The feasibility study] is about finding out what it would take to get there. That's why it's important to host this meeting, to engage the community early on our side of the river."

During their presentation, project staff repeatedly referenced the Roosevelt Island Tramway and the Portland Aerial Tram as two other successful gondolas operating in the United States.

Brett Dodson has been tram manager at the Portland Aerial Tram for six of the project's nine years of operation. The Portland Aerial Tram averages 8,500 rides per day. Dodson said the tram moved 2.1 million people in the last year, double what the city had projected. Like the Rosslyn-Georgetown gondola, Portland's Aerial Tram is designed to help commuters cut around traffic.

"People get to look down below and see all the traffic and congestion, looking at the red lights and going past them," said Dodson, though he added that the tram has also become integrated as part of the local culture. "We also hear about the social side of it. [Commuters] ride the same cabin with the same people for the same five-minute ride."

As the feasibility study moves forward, there are a few experiences from the Portland Tram operation Arlington's gondola project could learn from.

"There's a lot of bikes," said Dodson. "300 to 500 bikes per day on the tram. It's a much wider variety of people than was initially thought. We've worked a lot on developing bike parking and a free bike valet. Park them at the bottom of the trail so they don't come on. We've set up a loading and unloading system, with up to six bikes per cabin and they all go in one spot. Everybody else loads the other 70 percent of the cabin, then people get off and the bikes get off afterwards. That's helped minimize the conflict. We had people in a white dress lean up against greasy bikes and that didn't go over well."

The more Dodson talks about the situation in Portland, the more similar the setting seems to the Rosslyn-Georgetown gondola.

"We're space constrained," said Dodson. "We don't have a lot of parking, it forces people to commute. People can be on the bus for 20 minutes, maybe 30 or 40, or take a five minute tram ride. We have a lot of commuters, in the past, that wouldn't have used tram but then they sit in parking and see the tram overhead."

One major conflict the early tram development faced was ballooning costs. Dodson said the companies that build the tram got their price estimates from ski resorts with mountain gondolas, but didn't take into account many of the urban development costs that came in after those initial price estimates.

"I think it's really getting tight budget numbers to start with," said Dodson. "But the price tag is already much closer than Portland had [at the start]."

Arlington is no stranger to growing costs on major projects. The first public meeting on the gondola was held in a theater beneath Freedom Park, site of the failed Loop

Bridge in the 1990s, and one block away from the Artisphere, Rosslyn's failed art center. The accidental symbolism of the meeting was not lost on meeting attendees. Dave Schutz, a resident of Ashton Heights, said he believes the shadow of the widely unpopular Columbia Pike streetcar looms over the board when it comes to major projects, especially transportation initiatives. Two of the County Board members won or maintained their spots on the board largely through their opposition to that project. The two newer members actively worked to distance themselves from the project during their election in 2015.

When Building an Addition, Add Green Features

An addition can be a good opportunity to cure some of an existing house's energy evils. An addition offers an excellent opportunity to incorporate benefits for the whole house. For instance, if an existing building is sited poorly for solar gain and day lighting, look into the possibility of using windows, skylights, and solar massing in the addition that can add heat to the house. Or, plan an addition that can shade other parts of the house.

Before you plan to add out with a new foundation and floor space, also consider adding up, which uses fewer materials, is less disruptive to a site, and could save money and tread more lightly on the environment.

A new space shouldn't be any larger than it has to be. Keeping the new space as small as possible pays dividends in at least two ways: by keeping construction costs low and by reducing operating and maintenance costs. A smaller addition also makes less of an impact on the site and the neighborhood.

What's the Hurry? Where's the Fire?

Questions raised by Task Force on Station 8 still need to be resolved.

BY EDEN BROWN
THE CONNECTION

Betsy Forinash, Richard Lolich, and Alexandra Bocian and other North Arlington residents believe Arlington County Deputy Manager Jim Schwartz must have some other agenda for pushing the relocation of Fire Station 8 from Hall's Hill to Old Dominion and 26th Streets, because if he had read the report of the FS#8 Task Force, he'd know that doesn't make sense.

The tenor of citizens' remarks rose last week when word leaked out that the county was leaning towards the Old Dominion site because it was said to be more cost effective.

"What?" asked Betsy Forinash. "On what would they base that conclusion? The numbers Mr. Schwartz cited for the cost of building a temporary fire station while rebuilding a new station at the current site were cut and pasted from figures given by a developer on a proposed development in a different part of the county — and they don't incorporate any of the cost-saving measures the task force recommended. The county failed to do its own independent analysis of the cost of a temporary station, or factor in the fuel pump move, which raises serious questions about how it can claim any savings from the Dominion Green site," said Forinash.

This is the second time Arlington County has asked a task force to research a fire station move; the task force for Station # 3 did not recommend the current location or design of that station, and many, including firefighters, believe the result was "a disaster," causing longer response times, because the planning was short sighted.

"The beauty of task forces," Noah Simon said, midway through his tenure as Fire Station #8 task force chair, "is that in reviewing an issue independently, often new information comes to light, and the solution reached is better than it would have been if there been no task force."

That's what happened when Task Force FS#8 reached cruising altitude: they realized that the there were many factors involved in response times, and some of those needed to be addressed even more urgently than location. There were missing data points. The county was still guessing on the actual running time from Old Dominion to Chain Bridge Forest. "They literally have never done the physical run from Old Dominion to northernmost Arlington," Alisa Cowen said, "They just 'think' they have reduced the time, by what? Thirty seconds?"

"What is still missing in this effort is due diligence," said Alisa Cowen. There were not enough projections by the county on what the Lee Highway corridor would look like in 50 years, not enough independent cost estimation.

The EPAC (Emergency Preparedness Action Committee) realized this lack of data and effort as they learned more during the task force process. In a June 22 letter to the County Board they spelled out their concerns.

"EPAC learned a lot in the course of the task force," said Cowen. "We actually educated them, and at the end of the process their representative said he came into the meetings thinking they should move the fire station but realized it wasn't that simple."

EPAC's post task force feedback noted that rebuilding at the current site on Lee Highway was determined to serve the highest number of residents with a four-minute response time measured from station departure to arrival on scene. They asked the county board to consider reviewing, immediately, fire/EMS performance metrics, standards, and goals. There is a need for a common set of metrics and standards for Fire/EMS response and for a strategic goal to assist with future planning, they wrote.

In its letter, EPAC also noted the task force paid close attention to density and call volume (present and future) to specific areas of the county impacted by the alternative sites considered for Fire Station 8. EPAC representatives identified two items they believe warrant more detailed analysis by the County Board: given the concern that moving the FS8 further north would move away from the high volume of calls stemming from the Virginia Hospital Center (VHC) call box, EPAC recommended the County Board enhance its understanding of EMS response times in the affected areas and assess the risks of moving FS8 north to the Old Dominion location. Residents have said the need to do this is before a board vote, not after.

EPAC's recent letter focused on Lee Highway Corridor Growth as a third issue that was left unresolved at the end of the task force effort, but is crucial to the decision-making process. They called for a more detailed assessment by the County Board given the concerns of task force members about projections of future growth along Lee Highway and theorized negative impacts resulting from moving FS8 farther away from Lee Highway. Without a more precise analysis of projected growth impacts on response times, including the impact of increased traffic along Lee Highway on site selection, and traffic along Old Dominion as well, it is hard to understand how good the decisionmaking could be.

"The County Board did a presentation for us less than a year ago showing a lot of apartments and heavily populated areas along the area where Fire Station 8 is located now," said Wilma Jones. The propensity for fire is higher in apartments and older frame buildings is higher. It doesn't make sense to take away the fire station given those projections."

Task force members also noted that it remains the case in Arlington that the pizza delivery van can find your house before the fire department can. Why? Alisa Cowen explained: "Because the pizza companies have invested in expensive software (but less expensive than a new fire station) that link your incoming call to the geolocator in your phone. This, and other 911 call center upgrades, and opticon intersection control improvements, could reduce response times before a new fire station is even built. Why isn't the County Board voting on a measure in the budget to address that software?"

Deputy County Manager Jim Schwartz agreed, but says these questions aren't new: the Emergency Control Center (ECC) is working on that. The TriData report came out in 2012, and the FCC approved in 2012 the "Next Generation 911" plan "which will change the

The Hall's Hill Perspective

"Black Lives Matter" is common refrain in recent discussions among Hall's Hill residents. But even before the Task Force started its job, Hall's Hill residents were questioning the deputy county manager's strong interest in relocation.

Last January, John Crone commented, as he leaned back in his seat at a local business: "No matter what you do in this situation, you are never going to make everyone 100 percent happy. But I grew up here. When you think about Hall's Hill, you think about this fire station. So it doesn't make sense why it would move. It seems like there is some other reason why the county would do this, not because it makes sense."

Another customer named Keith, who didn't want to give his last name because he was concerned about repercussions, said he had lived in Hall's Hill a long time. He grew up around the Fire Station 8. "Think about Cherrydale," he said. "That's a historic fire station. They didn't move that station. Hall's Hill Fire Station is a historic place too. So, read between the lines. It's all about taking safety away from this neighborhood."

And last November, Andrew Dandridge said he was puzzled by the idea that Hall's Hill would lose its fire station. "My aunt, Ms. Hicks, gave the land for that station," he said. He had three uncles who were volunteer firefighters at the station. It's not really that active, either, in terms of fires, he said. Most of the calls are for EMS services. "Why move it?"

Wilma Jones, who is a lifelong resident of Hall's Hill said, "You need to look at this in the context of 'Black Lives Matter. That's the whole reason Fire Station 8 got started. When the Arlington government wouldn't fight the fires in our neighborhood, we had to go fight them ourselves."

Several Arlington residents, including Betsy Forinash and Jones, wonder if the county ever intended to honor the task force's recommendation. Jones warned the board last year that they had to take this seriously: people were upset. She said, "Residents trust the County Board will follow through with their intention to honor the task force decision." She noted the board, and the county, still have a long way to go to establish trust with the African-American community in Arlington, and that private Facebook accounts and social media buzz are already actively discussing the issue and watching to see what happens with the vote next

"There's an overlay to this project that is not fair," said Schutz.

For local citizens, reactions to the gondola have been mixed. Paul Kelly and Hal Steinberg are neighbors in Turnberry and look through the gondola proposal with different conclusions.

"I think this is good," said Kelley. "I would use it. It's nice to get up for a bird's eye view or across the water for a weekend walk."

But Steinberg isn't as convinced.

"It'll just take longer," said Steinberg. "I just use the circulator bus."

Steinberg isn't alone. Many residents opposed to the gondola are dubious about the project's utility.

"I've urged the board not to spend the money on the gondola, it's not our problem," said Daryl Deprengur. "This [meeting] hasn't changed my opinion on the project, but it's proper to do a feasibility study instead of just jumping to a conclusion."

"I'm not sure what it would add," said Charles Logan, a Rosslyn resident. "It would look nice, but is it really just saving people a walk across the bridge?"

It is. But according to Schutz, that can be a bigger benefit than some residents realize.

"People saying they'd just walk across the bridge aren't 60," said Schutz.

Schutz's personal support for the project comes from trips with his wife across the river to the Georgetown University Hospital for cancer treatment. Schutz says his wife's options were either struggle with parking in Georgetown at the crowded hospital parking garage or take the bus in and sit in the morning traffic.

"I think it would be a cool addition," said Alexandra Garcia. "I'd be interested in knowing who the primary user they have in mind is. Is this for tourism or local commuters?"

There's still a long way to go before the gondola concept turns into a functional aerial tram. Twenty-seven agencies throughout the area will need to be part of the approval process.

"There are examples of working gondolas elsewhere in the world, but it is unclear whether using them in Arlington would deliver the kind of results some believe," said Frank Shafroth, director of the Center for State and Local Government Leadership at George Mason University. "The harder issue, should they continue opt to move forward, would be the years to navigate working with Park Service and other Federal partners."

Arlington County contributed $70,000 into the feasibility study for the gondola, which is expected to take a year to complete.

Be Part of Our Annual Community Guide

Share tips in upcoming Newcomers and Community Guides.

The Connection's annual Newcomers and Community Guides will publish Aug. 24 with a deadline of Aug. 17. A bevy of interns, plus staff writers and editors, are preparing this year's 15 individual editions, but we need help from our readers.

We're hoping to share special places, activities, events, organizations and volunteer opportunities. What should someone new to your neighborhood know about? Events that should not be missed? Organizations that do a great job? Places to volunteer? Tips for navigating your PTA or your school's front office? A great place to see the sunset? We'd love to have your photos to go along with your suggestions.

What are your favorite parks? Favorite historic sites?

What tips do you have for someone getting to know the community?

Faith organizations, nonprofit organizations, clubs, environmental groups, advocacy groups, youth sports teams and others who offer events open to the public are invited to send a paragraph about the organization and how to get involved.

We will publish a selection of local tips along with a plethora of information useful to newcomers and long-time residents alike, including our award-winning Insiders Guide to the Parks, and information on how to vote and more.

See last year's community guides by going to www.connectionnewspapers.com/PDFs/ and scrolling down to Newcomers.

2016 Northern Virginia Senior

Olympics. Online registration will open July 5. Registration forms will be mailed to previous participants in late June and will be available at community and senior centers, senior residences and event venues. The registration fee of $12, which covers multiple events, remains the same. Three events have an added fee, ten pin bowling, golf and orienteering. Deadline for registering is Aug. 27 (by mail), Sept. 3 (online). Call 703-830-5604 or email nvso1982@gmail.com for more. To volunteer, call 703-403-5360.

SATURDAY/AUG. 20

Application Deadline. The Virginia Master Naturalist program prepares volunteers to provide education, citizen science, and outreach to conserve and manage natural resources and public lands. Volunteers must commit to at least 40 hours of service annually to become certified. Arlington Regional Master Naturalists will be holding evening and weekend training this fall. Visit the Arlington Regional Master Naturalist website at armn.org/basic-training/.

DONATIONS WANTED

The Arlington Food Assistance Center's Plot Against Hunger program is again seeking local vegetable gardeners and farmers willing to grow and donate fresh produce to the AFAC food pantry. AFAC can provide free vegetable seeds to those who pledge to donate produce from community or personal gardens. Seeds available now at AFAC, 2708 S. Nelson Street, during regular business hours: Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and Saturdays 8:30 a.m.-1 p.m. Visit www.afac.org/plot-against-hunger/ or contact Puwen at Puwen.Lee@afac.org or 703-845-8486.

WEDNESDAY/JULY 13

Coffee and Conversation. 10-11 a.m. at The Celtic House, 2500 Columbia Pike. Guest speaker, John Doolittle, docent, will speak about Friends of Roosevelt Island, a new group dedicated to preserving and protecting this presidential memorial. Meet members, volunteers, and learn about aging in place with Arlington Neighborhood Village. Free. Visit www.arlnvil.org or call 703-509-8057.

Blood Donations Needed. 1-6:30 p.m., at Doubletree - Crystal City, 300 Army Navy Drive. Every two seconds, someone in the U.S. requires blood or platelets. Donors of all blood types are needed now. Schedule an appointment to give blood by downloading the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting redcrossblood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

SATURDAY/JULY 16

Community Give-Away Day. 11 a.m.-2 p.m. at Arlington Presbyterian Church, 3507 Columbia Pike. Arlington Presbyterian Church is moving to make way for the development of affordable housing. After 86 years the church has accumulated a lot of stuff and can't take it all along. All items are free and must be removed that day — including filing cabinets, books, desks, chairs, other furniture, kitchen items, and more. No early birds. Visit arlingtonpresbyterian.net/ for more.

Arlington Food Assistance Center Open House. 1-4 p.m. at Walter

Reed Annex Garden, 2060 S. Walter Reed Drive. The garden is part of AFAC's Plot Against Hunger Program, which supports volunteer gardeners who donate their produce to hungry families. The open house will feature such volunteer-built projects as organic compost bins, irrigation systems using rains barrels and ollas (in-ground terra cotta vessels), nomadic gardens built on pallets, and raised beds. Free seeds for fall crops will also be available. Visit www.afac.org/plot-against-hunger, email Puwen.Lee@afac.org or call 703-845-8486.

WEDNESDAY/JULY 20

Coffee and Conversation. 10-11 a.m. at The Celtic House, 2500 Columbia Pike. Guest speaker Mary Lee Byrd, interior designer and certified aging in place specialist, will explain how she helps homeowners make their homes safer and easier to live in. Meet members, volunteers, and learn about aging in place with Arlington Neighborhood Village. Free. Visit www.arlnvil.org or call 703-509-8057.

SATURDAY/JULY 23

Voter Registration for Former Felons. 1-5 p.m. at Macedonia Baptist Church, 3412 South 22nd St. The League of Women Voters of Arlington and the NOVA chapter of the National Association of Blacks in Criminal Justice are teaming up to provide voter registration to individuals who qualify under Governor McAuliffe's executive orders. Visit <http://www.mbcva.ws/> for more.

Traffic Disruption. 6-11:15 p.m. The Arlington County Police Department wants the public to be aware of numerous road closures during the running of the Crystal City Twilighter 5K Race. In addition to the closures, street parking in the area will be restricted. Motorists should be on the lookout for temporary "No Parking" signs. Illegally parked vehicles may be ticketed or towed. If your vehicle is towed from a public street, call the Emergency Communication Center at 703-558-2222.

MONDAY/JULY 25

Nomination Deadline. The Arlington Community Foundation is seeking nominations for the 2016 William T. Newman, Jr. Spirit of Community Award. For more information, call 703-243-4785.

Track Work Affects Airport Metro Station

Due to Metrorail segment closures near Reagan National as a result of WMATA's SafeTrack work, passengers should expect additional congestion on the airport's roadways and in its parking facilities. From July 12-18, work is being performed on the Yellow and Blue Metro lines between the Reagan National Airport and the Pentagon City stations. Metro will provide shuttle bus service between the closed rail line segments while track work is performed. Passengers traveling to Reagan National should find alternative transportation options and consider parking reservations at the airport via the airports website (www.flyreagan.com/dca/reagan-national-airport) to ensure parking before leaving home.

Bright White

White kitchens are a trend with staying power.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

The clean, crisp look of a white kitchen has staying power and versatility, according to the National Kitchen and Bath Association. The organization reports that white cabinetry is the top choice for 67 percent of its members. In fact, the percentage of homeowners requesting white kitchens has increased by 20 percent over the past two years.

The trend is also apparent locally, said designers. When a family of five returned to the Washington, D.C. area after spending 30 years in the U.S. Foreign Service, they settled into their home in Bethesda, a 1960 brick Dutch colonial that they purchased in 1986. They decided to give the home a makeover because, after being a rental for many years, it felt dated and dingy. The family felt that the kitchen was old, dark and closed-off from the living room. They needed a larger space to accommodate their family of five.

The homeowners knew they wanted the new kitchen space to be free flowing and light-filled. They also wanted to incorporate some of their existing furniture, such as an antique table and chairs.

Wentworth Inc., the new kitchen is sunny and spacious. It includes white cabinetry and an island with dark gray granite countertops. A large stainless sink, dishwasher, pull-out trash and bookcase for cookbooks make the island functional. Facing the dining room is a shallow cabinet with mullioned glass doors.

Granite tops the counters in the remainder of the kitchen and white cabinetry houses a sub-zero refrigerator, microwave drawer, small prep sink and a gas range with a stainless steel range hood. "Wall cabinets with clear glass mullioned cabinet doors [give] visual depth and make space feel larger," said Wentworth.

When the owners of an Arlington home decided to update their dark and dated kitchen, they opened the space to the living and dining rooms and added natural lighting and white cabinetry. The result was a room with a crisp and airy aesthetic. The new, open concept allows the homeowners to better interact with family and friends.

"Prior to the remodel, the kitchen was essentially closed off to the rest of the home," said April Case Underwood of Case Design/Remodeling. "I think the grouping of materials the client selected with us are unique, definitely not cookie-cutter, and these make the space really interesting," Underwood said.

Among the fixtures, accessories and materials used are Caesarstone countertops, a marble and granite backsplash and reclaimed shelving, provided by homeowners, which, "made the kitchen look more unique and gave it an eclectic feel," said Underwood.

"I think in general the perfect combination of the various materials, from smooth and glossy to rough and textured, is simple but interesting and shows beautifully," said Underwood.

A Bright Trend

A large picture window overlooking an expansive backyard is the focal point of a white kitchen in Falls Church. When the homeowners decided to renovate and expand the space, they enlisted the help of designer Keira St. Claire of Anthony Wilder Design Build, Inc. The project included adding additional space to the back of the house and removing a wall between the kitchen and the dining room.

“Although we opened up the wall between the kitchen and dining room, one challenge was maintaining a distinction between the two spaces, which was important to the client,” said St. Claire. “In order to create a feeling of separation, while preserving the sense of openness ... [we designed] a custom glass cabinet piece, which is accessible from both rooms,” said St. Claire.

The new unit gives the homeowners extra storage and a place to display their crystal. Sunlight from the new picture window in the kitchen reflects off the crystal stemware and refracts, causing both rooms to glisten with radiant, natural light.

White cabinetry was contrasted against dark wood as part of a kitchen renovation in Centreville. While the basic layout of the kitchen remained the same, the space, which was designed by Allie Mann of Case Design Build, Inc., was brightened with white cabinetry, a built-in pantry and a custom cherry wood island. “The white kitchen is classic and timeless,” said Mann. “It can work with most color accent palettes.”

A cramped and dark Potomac, Maryland, kitchen was lightened, brightened and redesigned to give the home’s owners a connection to their natural surroundings, which included a landscaped yard created for outdoor entertaining.

The kitchen was designed by Jim Rill of Rill Architects who added a working island around which the family can gather and prepare meals. He described the new look as a, “simple clean design with subtle elegance.” “

We added functional space with lots of windows and a place for everything, so kitchen could be cleaned up and used an entertaining area,” Rill said.

The family wanted a white kitchen, he said, because it, “creates a great backdrop for art and accentuates the exterior colors of spring, winter and fall.”

What's the Hurry? Where's the Fire?

way we respond from ‘Copper wire technology’ to the internet,” Schwartz said. “But this will require a major capital investment. And it’s a complex issue right now because of the number of 911 calls made from cell phones which don’t always grab the cell tower closest to where you are located.

“There are response time issues across the county; the fundamental factor comes from placing our stations as close to the demand as possible; after that, it’s how many units. The answer to shorter response times is to add another engine or ambulance,” Schwartz said.

Last week, the two heads of local civic associations who have been active in the issue addressed each member of the County Board to remind them that the task force was set up by the county to oversee the decision-making on the fire station move and provide an independent opinion on which location was best. If the county debates the task force’s recommendation, it negates half a year’s hard work and independent research, but worse, undermines the confidence of the community in the process of decisionmaking. Several residents noted that in school planning and fire station planning, the county has fallen short on farsightedness.

“Our view was that there had to be a total reset of the issue,” said Christian Dorsey, a newly elected board member who supported the oversight provided by the task force. “Everything had to be looked at and looked at again. The County Board did weigh in as far as saying: the Task Force has to be real: it can’t just go through the motions and act as a rubber stamp. You can always justify a course of action, but that is where accountability comes in. There has to be accountability for decisions made which affect the safety of Arlingtonians.”

The Task Force found that since the most calls for emergency services in FS #8’s service area originate from south of Lee Highway near Virginia Hospital Center, moving FS 8 to the corner of Old Dominion and 26th Street would degrade responsiveness to those high volume calls areas in favor of a slightly decreased (30 seconds less) response times to the lowest call volume area in the county. It would also remove the station from the area of proposed development and place it instead within a residentially zoned neighborhood and next to the environmentally sensitive Donaldson Run creek.

Other than performing more due diligence on the issue, residents like Forinash have disputed the budget figure of keeping the fire station where it is. The county estimated this at $3.7 million, but the did nothing to reduce the figure, despite many suggestions on how it could be reduced.

One option, using real estate on Lee Highway as a temporary station, was never acted on, and the final matrix of costs left out a major cost of moving the station to Old Dominion: a $1 million expense of moving fuel tanks. “Why didn’t the county want to do their own costing for this?” asked Alisa Cowen.

Dorsey views it a different way: the budget figure of $14.1 million for a new station was always just a placeholder. “There were questions from the beginning on whether that was a true number and reflected the actual amount the county thought a new fire station would cost. Of course, you can always find ways to cut costs when you are building something, but the cheaper option is not always the most sustainable and that is what the county is looking for: sustainable. If sustainable costs more, then you work around that.”

Schwartz defended his decision-making: “The task force said either site could work. By moving the station to Old Dominion, 3,000 additional households would be within the six-minute response time; if every single address in Arlington needs a 4-6 minute response time, we would need 14-15 additional fire stations. I use the test: how can I do the most good for the most people?”

Schwartz also said that the development along Lee Highway would take decades: “I’m perfectly comfortable with the Old Dominion site handling that volume, he said, and if we find out later that response times are too long for that area, we will add more units.”

Schwartz stressed that he is sensitive to the Fire Station 8 issue; he wants to honor the community in other ways, but does not think the history of the station should be the most heavily weighted factor in deciding where FS#8 will be located. “But in the end,” he said, “I am very clear about who I work for, the people of Arlington and their elected representatives. The board will make a decision on this, and I will support either location based on that vote.”

The final CIP vote on the FS#8 recommendations is on July 19.

The Hall’s Hill Perspective

Another Arlington resident, Ellen Johnson, said it was her view that the County Board set up the task force to see if the decision to move the station was indeed the best move. She had confidence that the task force looked at everything, unemotionally. If the County Board entrusted them to say yes or no, and they did that after careful research, then that is the answer.

There shouldn’t be a debate. And, she noted, “With everything going on in the country, the elephant in the room that people aren’t talking about is, this is a race issue. Black lives matter. The county has an opportunity here to show us that our lives matter just as much as the lives of people further north in Arlington. This is the oldest African-American fire station in the county: exactly what they are doing is taking it away from the black community and giving it to the predominantly white neighborhood. Let’s call it what it is: racism.”

One Arlington County firefighter, who did not want to be named for fear of repercussions, said firefighters in Hall’s Hill and other stations have been questioning Arlington

County Deputy Manager, Jim Schwartz’s decision-making regarding medical staffing and medical equipment for Fire Station 8 and other stations for some time: requests ignored during his tenure as fire chief were approved within months of his departure by the new chief. Renovation for the firehouse, to include asbestos removal, was also not implemented, according to citizens who have toured the facility.

Schwartz said all fire stations in Arlington had state of the art equipment. “If the concern was about not adding a medical unit, then, yes: we asked repeatedly for that and it was only recently approved, but all requests are competing against other needs”.

Hall’s Hill representatives to the task force were sensitive to the concern that they would take an emotional view of the issue. The two representatives went out of their way to avoid emotion as they researched the issues of response times and EMS demand.

“People are always saying we might base our views on the emotional tie we have to the station,” said Alexandra Bocian, “which is why we went out of our way to concentrate only on facts about response times and EMS needs and look at county-wide needs. The single greatest point of weakness if the station moves is Virginia Hospital Center, which will no longer have a fire station.” She noted the only “emotion” in the task force decision-making took place during the final vote, when a task force member who believed his son, a senior in high school, had died because of a failure of EMS to reach him in time to save his life, explained this was his rationale to vote for a move. Task force members said they were deeply moved, and shocked to learn of this member’s personal history only on the last day of their many months together.

“Yes, we care deeply about all residents in need of EMS,” said Alisa Cowen, a task force member, “but the sad thing is, moving the Fire Station #8 to Old Dominion and 26th Street wouldn’t have helped in that situation, and by moving the station instead of addressing the EMS response issue, the problem of getting anywhere faster is not being addressed.” This failure to address “all lives matter” is what concerns Hall’s Hill residents this week in the face of what appears to be a trend to vote against the task force decision to keep the station in place.

WGCC Lightning Swim Team Continues Winning Streak

The Washington Golf and Country Club (WGCC)'s Lightning Swim Team hosted the five teams of CCSDA's Division A for the Divisional Relay competition on July 7. The Lightning have dominated this season so far and their speed and team spirit prevailed yet again, enabling them to score the most points and clinch the Divisional Relay win.

WGCC won over half of the Medley Relays, won four out of 10 of the Free Relays, and broke three CCSDA Relay records.

The 12&U Girls Medley Relay team of Pamela Grace Von Seelen, Sophie Yoder, Sydney-Cate Thornett, and Avery Nassetta won their race with a time of 2:17.90.

The 12&U Girls Free Relay team of Helen Otteni, A. Nassetta, S. Yoder, and P.G. Von Seelen won their race with a time of 2:02.44. Both teams broke League records that had been previously set by WGCC in 2014.

The 8&U Girls Medley Relay team of Madeliene Steves, Caitlin O'Connor, Kate Loper, and Emme Yoder also broke a 7-year league record with a winning time of 1:23.70.

Other winning relay teams for WGCC were: Girls 8&U Free (Madeleine Steves, Emme Yoder, Caitlin O'Connor, Sabine Barbee); Boys 10&U Medley (Will Walter, Conner McCarthy, Arav Bhargava, and Lucas Zidlicky); Boys 10&U Free (Lucas Zidlicky, Will Walter, Conner McCarthy, Arav Bhargava); Girls 14&U Medley (Jillian Johnson, Charlotte Thomson, Caroline Otteni, and Sarah DiMeglio); Girls 14&U Free (J. Johnson, C. Otteni, S. DiMeglio, C.

Thomson); Girls 18&U Medley (Lindsay Lukehart, Cate Barrett, Petie Nassetta, and G.G. Richmond); and Boys 18&U Medley (Richard Gentry, George Cranwell, Zander Zidlicky, and David DiMeglio).

Final team scores for the relay competition were: WGCC-248; Kenwood-242; Army-Navy-176; Congressional -142; and Edgemoor -74.

WGCC heads into their final dual-meets this week on Tuesday at home against Kenwood Country Club and on Thursday at Edgemoor Country Club.

Thunderbolts Stung by Stingrays

In its third meet of the NVSL Division II season, the Donaldson Run Thunderbolts fell on the road against the Little Rocky Run Stingrays. The final score was 260-160.

Double individual race winners for Donaldson Run were: Charlie Greenwood (boys' 9-10 freestyle and butterfly); and Emily Brooks (girls' 15-18 freestyle and back).

The team's single winners were (in order of age and event): Julia Sherinian (girls' 9-10 50 freestyle); TJ Hutchison (boys' 11-12 freestyle); Hadley Leichty (boys' 8&U 25 breaststroke); Charlie Longnecker (boys' 9-10 breaststroke); Andrew Walker (boys' 15-18 50 breaststroke); Grace Motta (girls' 15-18 50 breaststroke); Scarlett Bennett (girls' 8&U 25 butterfly); and Emma Hutchison (girls' 15-18 50 butterfly).

Winning relay teams included: Charlie Greenwood, Charlie Longnecker, Jimmy Egan, and Thomas Rodman (boys' 9-10 IM relay); Emily Brooks, Grace Motta, Julia Fayer and Sarah Conley (girls' 15-18 200 IM relay); and Grace Jansen, Julia Sherinian, Audrey Engel and Emily Brooks (girls' mixed age 200 Free relay).

Penchant for Pills

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

If I have done anything consistently well in my seven-plus years of being a cancer patient, it is to have ingested upwards of 50 pills or so every day. For all I know (and of course, I know very little), the presumptive benefits of these various pills might actually have had a positive effect and extended my life. Or perhaps, it has merely been a placebo-type effect. I think (certainly hope) they should be positively affecting me, so they are.

Swallowing 50 pills a day is not a hardship – for me. In fact, I know of some cancer patients who take hundreds of pills per day (and some protocols that require it). In addition, there are still others who take coffee enemas, spend time in oxygen chambers and saunas, immerse themselves in Epsom salt baths, get infused with massive doses of vitamin C, use essential oils (Frankincense as an example); grow, blend and then drink their own wheat grass; and on and on and on. All in an attempt to stabilize and/or kill the cancer cells.

Am I living proof that what I am doing is working (keeping the cancer cells from growing/moving)? Impossible to say. However, it doesn't seem to be hurting; I will admit to that. But given the fact that the FDA (Food and Drug Administration) doesn't research/analyze/corroborate/dispute the alleged benefits of non-prescription supplements, I may actually be winging and praying my way through life. No matter. I'm happy to live with the consequences of my actions. Quite frankly, it would be naive to think that if I took no action I'd experience similar results. In the cancer-patient world, wishing and hoping likely doesn't make it so. Being proactive, at least for me, has been a path of least resistance. Doing nothing would have been giving in to the disease, which I have no intention of doing. Ergo, to keep my pill inventory fully stocked, I either mail-order them or shop locally. I try to reorder/buy so that I never miss a dose. But if I do, I try not to stress over it. I figure the years-long effort I've made has built up enough pill-equity in my body that it will barely notice a day or two without dandelion root, beta glucons or my newest pill: Chinese wormwood (as but a few examples).

I guess one could characterize my philosophy as mind over matter. I don't mind not knowing – definitively, whether or not any of what I'm doing is helping. Unfortunately, there are very few guarantees in cancer treatment. But so far, according to my quarterly CT scans, semi-annual PET scans and yearly MRI, I see no reason to change horses whether I'm mid-stream or struggling to reach dry land. At this juncture, I seem to have found a balance between what I'm capable of doing and what I'm not capable of, and am not worried about what I'm not doing/have not done. Given my nature and personality, I can only do what I can do. And early on in my cancer experience, I realized my limitations and decided to not beat myself up emotionally over tasks I couldn't complete or strategies I couldn't employ. Moreover, there's a certain amount of control one has to cede to your new reality as well as some you need to maintain – for your own sanity.

Speaking of which, Albert Einstein is alleged to have said: "Doing the same thing over and over again but expecting different results is the definition of insanity." Well, call me crazy if you want but I am happy to continue doing the same thing over and over again and expect similar results.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC SCOPING MEETING FOR ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT OF
THE DOS GEORGE P. SHULTZ NATIONAL FOREIGN AFFAIRS TRAINING CENTER

The U.S. General Services Administration (GSA), in cooperation with the U.S. Department of State (DOS), is preparing an Environmental Assessment (EA) to analyze potential impacts resulting from implementation of the Master Plan Update for the George P. Shultz National Foreign Affairs Training Center (NFATC). The DOS is updating the 1989 Master Plan for the 72-acre NFATC, located at the former Arlington Hall Station in Arlington Virginia. NFATC is the headquarters for the Foreign Service Institute (FSI). As part of the Master Plan Update, the GSA, on behalf of DOS, is preparing an Environmental Assessment (EA) in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969. GSA is the lead federal agency for the EA.

GSA will analyze a range of alternatives including the no action alternative for the proposed Master Plan Update. As part of the EA, GSA will study the impacts of each alternative on the natural, cultural, and social environment. GSA will begin consultation under Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, 16 U.S.C. 470f and intends to partially fulfill the Section 106 public notification and consultation requirements through the NEPA scoping process.

PUBLIC SCOPING MEETING: An open-house style public scoping meeting will be held as follows:

Tuesday, July 19, 2016
6:30 P.M. – 9:00 P.M.

Unitarian Universalist Church of Arlington
4444 Arlington Boulevard
Arlington, VA 22204

The meeting will be an informal open house where visitors may receive information on the project and provide comments.

WRITTEN COMMENTS: Agencies and the public are encouraged to provide written comments on the scoping issues in addition to or in lieu of giving their comments at the public scoping meeting. Written comments regarding the EA for the DOS Master Plan Update must be postmarked or received no later than August 19, 2016 and sent to the following address:
