First Step on Re-Naming School

Board seeks additional input on J.E.B. Stuart High School.

By Tim Peterson The Gazette

oming off its recent decision to postpone the implementation of new regulations for transgender students, the Fairfax County School Board has moved action on the possible renaming of J.E.B. Stuart High School in Falls Church to a later date as well.

At its July 28 meeting, the last until school starts again, the board voted in favor of creating a working group that will "further consider community concerns" around re-naming the school.

The current namesake was a Confederate cavalry leader, which has sparked divisive controversy within the student body, alumni and community.

The issue was brought to the school board by a group of concerned students from Stuart who said it was shameful to attend a school named for a figure from the darker side of Virginia and the United States' past.

Others say Stuart the man is not being given fair respect — that the context, the era, norms and beliefs in which he lived are not being taught at the school, much less considered in whether the name should change or remain the same.

THE SCHOOL BOARD has already done some outreach to gauge the community pulse, including a survey, for which Board Chair Sandy Evans said they received more than 500 responses.

Evans said they've looked back to School Board records from 1958, when Stuart was being named. She said not much rationale for the name was found.

"We can't know what was in their hearts and minds," Evans said on Thursday night at the meeting. But she said, the current board needs to be "reflective and responsive to all members of our diverse community."

One motion and then a replacement were offered for the working group. A distinction in the alternative made clear that the working group would not ultimately decide a new name for the school, or even that one should be decided.

While it appeared the first motion presupposed that the working group result in a name change, it prompted Springfield District representative Elizabeth Schultz to Challenged Brain, Healthy Brain?

Social engagement and mentally challenging jobs might keep Alzheimer's disease at bay.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL THE GAZETTE

"With the brain,

like other parts of the body, you

use it or lose it."

- Dean Hartley, Ph.D.,

Alzheimer's Association

ost days of the week, Ana Nelson can be found educatothers about Alzheimer's disease in her role as vice president of Programs and Services for the Alzheimer's Association National Capital Area Chapter. Her free time is spent touring historical sites in Northern Virginia and staying fit through competitive running and other activities. She's currently training for the Marine Corps Marathon.

"I have worked in the (Alzheimer's disease) field for 30 years and have always been a promoter of healthy lifestyles," said Nelson. "When you're sightseeing and asking questions, you're stimulating and challenging your mind. When I enter and train for races, I'm interacting with other people and staying socially engaged."

Nelson is incorporating into her life key elements that are credited with staving off age-related mental decline. In fact, jobs and activities that require complex thinking and social connections can help build resilience and delay age-related cognitive decline and dementia, according to a new study presented at the Alzheimer's Association International Conference (AAIC) 2016 last week.

The study suggested that working with people in challenging jobs such as Nelson's had the most protective effect on the brain.

"With the brain, like other parts of the body, you use it or lose it," said Dr. Dean Hartley, Ph.D., director of Science Initiatives for the Alzheimer's Association. "If you don't use it, it goes away."

> Activities that require planning and processing information challenge the brain. "Sitting in front of the television is detrimental," said Hartley. "Being passive doesn't stimulate the brain."

> In this study, researchers tried to answer questions about whether mentally challenging occupations and activities protected cognitive function against the impact of poor diet. Scientists studied 351 older adults who were living independently and adhering to a Western diet, which researchers said included red meat, potatoes, foods made with white flour and sugar.

Over a three-year period, the researchers found this type of diet to be associated with cognitive decline in older adults. However, individuals in the study diet who consumed a Western diet, but also had a mentally stimulating lifestyle, were protected from cognitive decline.

"Activities that required an engagement of executive functioning, like planning, volunteering or any task that get your mind thinking, those types of experiences are where we're seeing the best protection against cognitive decline," said Amy E. Coren, Ph.D., J.D., assistant professor of Psychology at Northern Virginia Community College in Alexandria. Coren was not involved with the study.

Not all types of social interaction have been shown to be equally beneficial to healthy brain functioning, notes developmental psychologist Dr. Linda Cote-Reilly, associate professor of Psychology at Marymount University in Arlington. "Older adults who have a lot of social interaction because they need assistance with activities of daily living do not experience these interactions as positive," she said. "People are helping them because they have lost the ability to do the tasks themselves and are dependent on other people."

However, Coren, Hartley and other researchers say that more research is needed.

"The study was done by a well-respected group of scientists, but we can't say that if you stay socially and mentally active you won't get this disease," said Pamela Greenwood, Ph.D., associate professor of Psychology at George Mason University. "There have only been a handful of these studies to date and the results have been inconsistent. For some, it doesn't have a big impact and for others it does."

Ana Nelson of the Alzheimer's Association and her husband Jim stay fit and socially engaged through competitive running. A new study shows that social connections can help build resilience and prevent agerelated cognitive decline and dementia.

ore than 100 years since Copperthite Race Track opened in Burke, harnessed race horses once again trotted back and forth on the same grounds, now inhabited by the Burke Nursery and Garden Center.

The race track, including a 2,000-person grandstand, was built by local entrepreneur Henry Copperthite. Elected officials, community members and seven generations of the Copperthite family came together July 31 for a celebration around unveiling of a Fairfax County historical marker for the track.

"In 1897, Henry Copperthite purchased the Silas Burke Farm and constructed nearby one of Virginia's finest harness racing facilities," the marker reads. "The racetrack, whose grandstand sat 2,000, opened on July 4, 1908. Horse, harness, motorcycle and car races were featured at the track. Special trains from the Washington, D.C. area brought visitors to Burke, where they could stay at the new hotel. Families enjoyed agricultural fairs, Fort Myer cavalry drills, balloon ascensions, baseball games, athletic contests and dances at a pavilion. For almost a decade, thousands were entertained at the Copperthite racetrack and fairground."

Copperthite's great great grandson Mike Copperthite lives in McLean and is proprietor of the family business Henry started, the Connecticut Copperthite Pie Baking Company of Georgetown. Mike Copperthite has spent the last four years working on getting the marker erected.

The Copperthite pie business was once the largest of its time, Mike Copperthite said, with 15,000 employees putting out 50,000 pies a day.

Debbie Robinson, chair of the historical marker committee, said in order for their to be a marker, it was important for Mike Copperthite and his supporters do extensive research of primary source documents and prove all the facts. The marker text, as a result, is heavily footnoted, drawing from period newspapers including "The Washington Post," "The Sunday Star" and "The Alexandria Gazette."

"We appreciate what happened in the past, the people who came before us," Robinson said, "and what they did for our communities, like Henry Copperthite."

In addition to the racetrack and grandstand, Copperthite built a hotel, sidewalks and a grocery store.

The morning of the marker unveiling, Mike Copperthite (who was joined by seven generations of the Copperthite family) served 600 of the famous pies out of the back of an original 1914 Ford Model T pie delivery truck.

The vintage vehicle was joined by other period Fords of the Nation's Capital Model T Ford Club, which was celebrating its 50th anniversary. After appearing in Burke, the club members drove to the Fairfax Station Railroad Museum for another viewing.

To give spectators a feel of the harness horse-racing atmosphere, a horse and rider took two eighth of a mile laps on the grass along Burke Road. The running is being submitted for consideration as a record for the longest time between races at the same track.

Del. Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41), who represents the Burke area in the Virginia General Assembly, said she's always interested in learning more about history and was delighted to "share this momentous occasion."

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova said celebrating history in this way helps us "understand what we are," and gives "a better idea of where we want to go, what we want to be."

Making light of the ongoing work of regulating food trucks in Fairfax County, Bulova referenced the 1914 Ford pie delivery truck. "What goes around comes around," she said.

Jon Vrana, president of the Burke Historical Society, commented that in this area, there tends to be more focus on the Civil War-era history rather than turn of the century.

"The world was changing," Vrana said. "This shows this area has rich history across the spectrum. It extends the understanding of the variety and diverse history we have in Fairfax."

comment that would be "the antithesis of what a democracy is."

Per FCPS, the successful motion directs that, "The working group will weigh the pros and cons of a name change; continue to ensure public engagement and determine the extent of support for change; explore public-private partnerships to finance any name change; examine ways to prevent added burdens on the school's booster clubs, PTSA, and Stuart school administration; decide the best method for transitioning from an old name to a new one; ensure proper record retention; and set the best timing for such a change, if approved by the board."

The ad hoc working group will comprise students, parents, Stuart community members, alumni and business leaders chosen by the superintendent and with the board's blessing, FCPS said.

Findings and recommendations from the working group will be due back to the School Board by March 2017.

Some have said the issue is divisive enough, creating the working group will just drive the wedge fur-

"No one will walk away comfortable with what we decide tonight," said At-Large member Ryan

He said a difficult task before the board and community is "How to remember the past while honoring and respecting a diverse community."

Shirley Ginwright is president of the Fairfax County NAACP, which has partnered with the Stuart student group for changing the school's name.

AFTER THE DECISION by the board, she said the two groups have conducted and presented the board with extensive research, including that Stuart served for the Union army before he went to the Confederacy. "JEB Stuart was a traitor," Ginwright said. "Is that who we honor?"

2012 Stuart graduate Nicholas Pisciotta was among alumni and opponents to changing the name who attended the meeting.

Pisciotta said the name change has already and will continue to be a "distraction from the real needs of the school."

Rather than put special effort into finding money that would be required to update school grounds, team uniforms, in the event of a name change, Pisciotta and others say that special effort could be better spent raising money for other uses around Stuart. The board didn't specify the size of the working group, nor when it will be created.

Members of the audience stand to show their support for not changing the name ot JEB Stuart High School.

Our annual Newcomers and Community Guide is a pullout section that will appear in the the Aug. 24, 2016 edition of all 15 Connection Newspapers, published by Local Media Connection. Deadline is Aug. 17.

We are creating a quality special issue, and we need your help. Whether you invest in a small ad in a single paper (super affordable), or a full page in all 15 of our papers (super value), we appreciate your help this month.

To put on my publisher's hat (and not my editor's hat) for a minute, if you have a marketing budget, and you value coverage of local newspapers (not just ours), why wouldn't you spend a portion of that budget (any portion) supporting that platform? There is a cautionary tale in the abrupt closure a year ago of the chain of local papers that served Montgomery and Prince George's counties in Maryland, as an extreme example.

But it's more than a charitable effort.

For the same reasons that organizations, businesses and campaigns know they want local newspaper coverage, newspaper advertising is an effective way to reach voters, residents, clients. The Connection reaches more than 200,000 readers, in print and online, including remarkable demographics. Our readers include local and national decision makers in the public and private sector. According to an independent study during the last presidential campaign, cited by the National Newspaper Association: 86 percent of voters who cast ballots in the last election read newspapers in print or online; 79 percent of voters ages 18 to 34 read newspapers in print or online; 91 percent of voters who contribute to campaigns read newspapers in print or online. Mount Vernon is our most famous locale when it comes to historic places, and I don't need to tell you that it is well worth a visit anytime of year. And some exciting news, opening Oct. 1, we can visit the ground-breaking new major exhibit, "Lives Bound Together:

Slavery at George Washington's Mount Vernon," and learn about the lives of the enslaved during the time of our first President. This exhibit has been in the works for a while now and is sure to be a major draw to Mount Vernon.

Another good local museum where you can learn about our region's first freed black community is the Gum Springs Museum (open 6 - 8 p.m. Monday - Friday, 1-3 p.m. Tuesday and Saturday). And, down the road and once a part of Mount Vernon, is the Federal-style house, Woodlawn, designed by the architect of the U.S. Capitol, Dr. William Thornton, constructed in 1805 for George Washington's nephew, Major Lawrence Lewis and his wife, Eleanor "Nelly" Custis Lewis. The Woodlawn Plantation is open Friday - Monday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Soon, our area will be home to the National Army Museum at Fort Belvoir which will be celebrating its ground breaking Sept. 14. The army is the only branch of the military without a national museum and this one will be awe inspiring, with over 186,000 square feet of displays with countless rare and priceless artifacts never before seen by the public.

Overlooking the wonderful Huntley Meadows Park (also worth a visit) is the Historic Huntley house that was built for the grandson of George Mason, Thomas Francis Mason, open for tours on Saturdays from April to October. This federal period villa, built in 1825, has been used for many purposes over the years including a camp for Union troops during the Civil War.

Museums are first and foremost educational institutions and augment classroom education. They often partner with libraries and schools to provide learning experiences to people of all ages. Virginia's museums spend over $57 million on educational programs and activities annually to service 1.6 million visitors.

Staying Fit and Healthy on Vacation

Advance planning is key to maintaining a healthy diet and fitness on the road.

By Marilyn Campbell The Gazette

istening to Christian Elliot describe part of a recent vacation that he took with his wife, Nina, you might think he was attending a fitness bootcamp.

"We woke up early, got in a jog and I did push-ups on a step, lunges on a dirt road," said Christian Elliot. "As long as you have gravity ... you can exercise."

While August vacations offer a chance to renew and rejuvenate, carving out time to exercise and creating opportunities for nutritious food are keys to maintaining a healthy lifestyle while on holiday.

"The biggest thing about eating healthy and exercising on vacation is planning ahead," said Elliot, a personal trainer and founder of TRUE Health and Wholeness in Arlington. "People plan their vacation in pretty good detail, but they fail to plan where and how they're going to work out."

Part of that planning includes bringing packable equipment and appropriate clothing for exercise. "Pack [resistance] bands for strengthening exercises, and a jump rope is a great way to get cardio. Those are lightweight and easy to pack," said Catie Brocker, NP-C, MSN, director of the Student Health Center at Marymount University in Arlington. "Whatever you do, keep it simple and fun. If we make it too complicated it might not work."

GETTING ACTIVE with family and friends is one way that Brocker made exercise enjoyable during a recent vacation. "I led a bodyweight circuit for my family every morning when I was on a beach vacation recently," she said. "We were staying on the beach and we would wake up each morning and do a workout."

Part of the appeal of bodyweight exercises is that www.ConnectionNewspapers.com they can be done virtually anywhere and require no equipment. Brocker recommends 60-second exercise intervals with 15 seconds of rest between each set.

"I do an upper body exercise, a lower body exercise, sit ups and some type of cardio," she said. "For example, push ups, squats, jumping jacks and a sit up. There are fitness and workout apps out there that you can use if you feel intimidated by creating your own bodyweight circuit. If you write out a few exercises before you leave for vacation, you're far more likely to do it."

From swimming laps in a hotel pool to walking laps around an airport terminal while waiting for a flight, there are many ways to get creative with exercise.

"Hotels usually either have a gym ... and the concierge can tell you about nearby trails for hiking or walking," said Brocker.

In addition to planning to exercise while on vacation, packing a small, portable stash of fruit, vegetables or trail mix can quell hunger while sightseeing or waiting at the airport. "Stop by the grocery store and pick up healthier snacks," said Brocker. "Go-to foods for me are nuts or dried fruit. They're great when going through security."

For those who, like the Elliots, will be traveling with children, child-friendly snacks are a must. "We have to manage their low blood sugar with quick energy hits," said Elliot. "Our kids love the grass-fed beef sticks or beef jerky."

"You can't deprive yourself and say' I'm not going to have ice cream at all'," said Janet Zalman, founder of the Zalman Nutrition Group. "You can say, 'I'm going to have ice cream one or two times, but I'm not going to eat the supersize, I'll have a kiddie size."

It's also a good idea to choose restaurants and peruse menus at your destination before leaving on vacation. "Research your options," said Brocker, "Like anything else you do, you have to plan and research it so that you can be an informed consumer."

Finally, if you decide to splurge on a favorite food, make it count. "When you go off the rails and eat high calories food, make sure it's fabulous," Zalman. "Most people cheat out of convenience, but if you're going to cheat, cheat high."

3 Gold-Medal Spots to Watch the Olympics

Here are three restaurants to whet your appetite while you cheer on the USA.

By Hope Nelson The Gazette fter the usual four-year absence, Summer Olympics mania is ready for liftoff again. Looking for a change of scenery to watch your favorite sports? Here are three restaurants that are sure to be gold-medal bets. (A word of warning, though: If you're interested in a particular matchup at a particular time – U.S. water polo, say – you'd do well to call before you venture out, just to make sure the game is on.)

Mason Social, 728 N. Henry St.

Anyone who's sat in Mason Social's bar during football season knows it's a great spot to catch a game. The same extends to the Olympics. Situated in the Parker-Gray neighborhood of Old Town, Mason Social offers a dining room and bar Appetite for your food and drink needs.

But when it comes to the Games, the bar is your best bet.

Order up some roasted celery root hummus or some wings and avail yourself of the Mason punch to wet your whistle. The bar also offers plenty of craft beers from around the regional neighborhood – the offerings from Richmond's Hardywood are always winners – so you can toast your favorite team.

Ramparts, 1700 Fern St.

A longtime staple of Fairlington, Ramparts Tavern and Grill is an excellent choice for catching an Olympics event or two (or more). Much more casual than its restaurant counterpart, the bar is decidedly a sports pub in both ambience and clientele, so you'll be right at home.

Choose some chili nachos or a signature burger (topped with gouda, mushrooms, and fried onion strings) to watch the proceedings and wash it down with a Port City seasonal selection or perhaps a Dogfish 60-Minute IPA. Vegetarians won't be left out, either – the Portobello sandwich is hearty and meaty, and the veg wrap will keep you fortified from event to event.

Bugsy's Pizza, 111 King St.

No list of recommendations worth its salt would be complete without a mention of Bugsy's, the venerable sports bar and pizzeria located on lower King Street, just a block from the river. From hockey to football, baseball to soccer, there's always room on the television at Bugsy's, and the Olympics are no exception.

When you come to a pizzeria, it's probably best to order a pie. And honestly, in this season of medals and podiums, ordering the Olympic pizza – topped with artichokes, mushrooms, onions, garlic herb sauce, feta, and mozzarella – is a no-brainer. Too exotic? The margherita pizza is always a crowd-pleaser. Wash it down with a frosty beverage – happy hour deals from 4 to 7 p.m. on weekdays can't be beat.

At Leadership Conference

More than 8,000 Family, Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA) members, advisers, alumni, and guests from across the country gathered in San Diego, Calif. in July for the 2016 National Leadership Conference. The meeting provided Carl Sandburg Middle School FCCLA members with the opportunity to attend leadership and program training, hear national speakers, meet the National Executive Council, and explore colleges and careers. Above are (from left) Winifred (Winnie) Mikulski, Michiko Magnant, Meghan Green, and Annabella Mason, rising 8th graders at Carl Sandburg Middle School. Coming from a war-torn country that was shattered by political instability and poverty, we have learned to appreciate the value of peace and democracy. It is exactly the type of representation and leadership found in some one like Gerry that we can count on to fight for social justice and to keep our democracy strong. Gerry is known for his tenacity and candor in speaking up and fight for a cause. He is competent, caring and accessible. Let's work together to re-elect our Congressman Gerry Connolly.

Citizen and employee confidence in the goals, objectives, policies, and practices of the agency.

When there were gaps, such as not having installed cameras in police cars, King was responsible for managing the process to shore up policy and practice, and then proving FCPD's compliance with the standard in a report. Camera's were phased into most cars between 2013 and 2014.

In April earlier this year, several representatives from CALEA visited Fairfax County for four days for an on-site assessment. Baltimore's announcement, at a CALEA conference, was the culmination of that review: All the standards were met or exceeded by FCPD in practice.

"We've had an outside perspective come in and review our policies and processes," King said. "That outside perspective has told us we are in line with the best practices with law enforcement worldwide.

"For us, we had excellent police to begin with," she continued, "it was just shoring up, having that room for improvement. We were really able to see a huge benefit for

King said CALEA's reviewers were particularly impressed with Chief Edwin Roessler's Diversity Council, military reintegration program and the hosting of the World Police and Fire Games in 2015.

Each year, there will be a less formal electronic review of Fairfax County's maintenance to the standards by CALEA. They will send assessors onsite every four years, with the next visit coming in April 2020.
