Building trust between police and residents.

ost residents aren't even aware that Fairfax County has a Communities of Trust (COT) Committee. But it held a Town Hall Meeting last Saturday, Sept. 10, at Centreville Baptist Church with the theme, "Communities Working Together: Justice, Unity and Peace."

Comprised of residents, community leaders and public-safety personnel, COT was established by Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova in the wake of events in Ferguson, Mo. Its members focus on strengthening and building positive relations between public-safety agencies and the people they serve.

"There'll be other meetings such as this, plus fun events throughout the community, where residents can meet and interact with law-enforcement and fire personnel," she said. "It's critical for us to be a healthy community and to know and trust the people who keep us safe."

"About five years ago, I began to hear concerns - especially from Sheila Coates with Black Women United - about black people not always being happy in Fairfax County," continued Bulova. "And we were also looking at how police respond to situations and to people with mental illnesses. So I reached out to her and Communities of Trust was created."

Noting this county's great diversity, she said it's "important to be aware of our racial and cultural differences." She also said that, next week, the supervisors will create an independent review board to examine how the police respond to incidents.

Supervisor John Cook (R-Braddock) is chairman of the board's Public Safety Committee. "The authority of law enforcement doesn't come from their weapons, but from the support and respect of the community," he said. "We're at a difficult time in the country where people are often asked to

History: Protests Required to Advance Justice

Local story: Protest, arrests, brutal treatment, torture of advocates for vote for women.

emocracy without our Bill of Rights could amount to mob rule.

The Bill of Rights, a visionary document made up of the first 10 amendments to the U.S. Constitution, is reprinted on our website; it's under 500 words; it takes just a few minutes to read.

In the United States, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights offer many protections of freedom and equality. But actually extending that protection and freedom to all has often required individual action and sacrifice, protest, demonstration and nonviolent civil disobedience.

That doesn't make every demonstration and every protest virtuous, but even when protest is not to our tastes, we should appreciate that we live in a country where the right to do so is protected.

Even something as basic as the right of women to vote only came about because of persistent, unpopular protests organized by a militant group, individual action, sacrifice and courage in the face of brutality and repression from existing authority.

The story of how women got the vote, that is to say how half the population of the United States escaped being disenfranchised, is a local story, and so appropriate to tell in the Connection.

EDITORIAL

Alice Paul, "one of the most notorious women in America, was the chairman of the National Woman's Party, a small and militant suffrage offshoot of the mainstream National American Woman Suffrage Association," wrote Catherine J. Lanctot, professor of law at Villanova, in "The Suffrage Pickets and Freedom of Speech During World War I."

In January 1917, Paul, Lucy Burns and other activists organized a relentless public protest outside the White House over President Woodrow Wilson's refusal to support the vote for women

"By the fall of 1917, more than a hundred women had been arrested and imprisoned on charges of obstructing traffic and unlawful assembly, ostensibly because they attracted large and often hostile crowds to witness their demonstrations. ... Suffrage pickets found themselves at the center of increasingly violent confrontations with angry crowds and hostile law enforcement authorities. ...

"The judge assigned to their cases seemed perplexed by their stubbornness, patiently lecturing the women on world conditions, and explaining: "We are at war, and you should not bother the President," before sending them to serve their sentence at the Occoquan Workhouse in Lorton, Virginia. This strategy backfired badly in mid-July, 1917, with a firestorm of controversy over the incarceration of several socially prominent women and the intervention of liberal lawyers who previously had been allied with Wilson. ...

"Wealthy women serving time in a workhouse brought extensive media attention."

In fact, protest by women of privilege made a critical difference.

Conditions in the workhouse were brutal and filthy; women were beaten and tortured by force feeding during hunger strikes.

The 19th Amendment was ratified on Aug. 26, 1920: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Edith Mayo, curator emeritus of political and women's history at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, put the history in context at a recent event: "I think one of the things we're trying to get across is one has to be vigilant about voting rights. The voter suppression of recent years has concerned a lot of Americans. It took such guts and determination for all these groups except for white men to get the right to vote that any slipping backward and trying to suppress the right to vote is a grave concern."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Suicide Prevention: Everyone's Business

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Suicide Prevention Alliance of Northern Virginia (SPAN), I thank you for the Connection's compassionate and informative editorial printed in observance of Suicide Prevention Week, titled Take One Action to Prevent Suicide.

Suicidal thoughts can affect anyone regardless of age, gender or background; it is the third leading cause of death among young people in the Commonwealth of Virginia, as well as across the United States. According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), there is one suicide in the U.S. every 13 minutes; nearly 40,000 people per year die by suicide in the U.S. In Fairfax County, an annual youth survey found that local youth in 10th and 12th grades are at significantly higher risk for depression and suicide ideation than their peers in other parts of the state.

Launched with grant funding from the Virginia Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services and in kind contributions from local governments, mental and behavioral health partners from across the region launched SPAN, serving as a new regional resource for information, events and activities relating to suicide awareness and prevention.

The goal of SPAN is to provide an array of resources and support to increase help-seeking, reduce stigma, and prevent suicide.

Through sharing information and efforts with stakeholders across the region, creating opportunities to reach out and provide training, awareness campaigns, promoting health and wellness programs to prevent suicide, SPAN members hope to come together to make a meaningful difference.

Stigma around suicide is a major impediment and while we are making progress in building a firm foundation for suicide prevention, there's still so much more we need to do. Coming together around the concept of suicide prevention is easy but implementing regional efforts and collaboration is challenging. We need to remind our community that suicide prevention is everyone's business every day.

Be involved. Be engaged. All of us can have a key role in saving lives. Please learn more about SPAN at http://www.suicidepreventionnva.org/.

Shared Stories Of Sacrifice

To the Editor:

On Sept. 12, Muslims around the world celebrated Eid-ul-Adha, the Islamic holiday which commemorates the spirit of sacrifice of Prophet Abraham and his son Ishmael. One of these incidents of sacrifice was when Prophet Abraham was told by God to leave his wife, Hagar and their son Ishmael alone in the desert. After they were left alone, Ishmael started crying and his mother ran frantically between two hills called Safa and Marwah to find help or water. While baby Ishmael was crying, he was hitting his feet into the ground. At one point, his heels hit a spring of water. This spring provides water even today and created the city we now know as Mecca one of Islam's holiest cities and the birthplace of the Prophet Muhammad, peace be upon him.

This biblical story of sacrifice is not only a major concept in the three Abrahamic faiths, but shows the beautiful connection that many faiths have. It is these connections that can be a source of unity in these tumultuous times. Whether you are Muslim or not, a happy Eid from my family to yours.

Comfort Zone Local furniture maker combines style and comfort.

By Marilyn Campbell

ohn W. Smith treks through a maze of sleek chairs and stately sofas in a large, sunlit showroom tucked in an industrial warehouse center in Fairfax. He pauses at a dining chair, upholstered in beige linen and framed with espresso hardwood.

"Feel how smooth that is," he said, running his fingers along the wooden edge of the seat. "If you're at a sitting at the table for three, there's no sharp edge against the back of your calves."

Dubbed the "three-hour dinner party" chair, the Etesian is part of the Willem Smith Furnitureworks collection. Pieces ranging from the brown, leather San Luis, a streamlined version of a traditional wing chair, to the Francisco Metro Swivel, a petite recliner, to the Canapé sofa, fill the showroom.

"The comfort of the pieces sells them, but it doesn't look like big, over-stuffed furniture," said interior designer Lowell Wade of Interior Motives in Alexandria.

Like many furniture makers, Smith strives to marry style and comfort. He's taken that commitment to a new level, however, creating and patenting his own seating mechanism to ensure comfort. Named piErgonom, it's a device that attaches the seat back to the seat cushion, preventing slippage and offering back support. Beauty and style matter to Smith, but in his liberal view of aesthetics, beauty springs from not only the physical appeal, but also the way a piece feels and functions.

"Comfort is the final element that determines whether the chair or sofa is a success," said Smith, a Great Falls father of four teenage daughters. "We sweat all of the details and are completely consumed by making all of our seating more comfortable."

Smith says that he is committed to minimizing his company's impact on the environment. His practices include using nonendangered hardwoods. All of the springs incorporated into the cushions of his seats are made from recycled steel. Most of the furniture and fabrics used are made in the United States. Buyers can choose from a range of textiles and finishes, including leathers and fabrics, which are displayed in the showroom.

Born and raised on a farm in Ontario, Canada, Smith left a career in banking to spend more time with his then-young family. He also itched to find creativity in his life. His pieces, which not only include seating, but also tables, cabinets and other wood works, are a blend of contemporary lines and classic styles.

Smith credits a talented team of what he calls "style leaders" with the aesthetics of his goods. "I have no illusions that I'm Yves St. Laurent and I wouldn't pretend to have an affinity for style," he said. "There is a difference between design and style. Design is the engineering, construction, materials and performance, and that's my focus."

Before hitting the market, for example, each piece undergoes a careful inspection by Smith and his business partner John "JB" Behrens

"We know all of our pieces intimately," said Behrens. "The designs essentially come out of a collaborative process. We think about furniture logically and practically and we obsess over comfort."

"We focus a lot on scale and proportion and how that relates to a furniture buying decision," he continued. "When we have a chair, for example, John and I look at it together, think about what works, what

What's Permissible When Planning a Home Renovation?

Complete due diligence upfront to research any ordinances or restrictions that may affect the project.

By Josh Baker

nfortunately, homeowners and contractors often forget important steps during this project feasibility phase, which sometimes leads to wasted time and money or abandoned projects. To ensure you sidestep those mistakes, start with this checklist to look into to help minimize setbacks while planning and executing your next renovation.

Local Jurisdiction/County

First, call your local county government to find out if there are any site restrictions or requirements for your home or property.

Propose your plan to the county before you start and get their feedback on any setbacks before moving forward. Ask them about any potential zoning ordinances as well. Also, check with the county to get building permits and land disturbance applications prepared. Many counties now allow these forms to be submitted electronically.

Department of Environmental Safety

You will also need to contact your local health department or department of environmental safety for water and septic tank restrictions or conflicts. There are many water and sewer construction requirements that have to be adhered to by the contractor and homeowner. Long delays can arise during your permitting process if this part of the planning phase is neglected.

Homeowner's Association

Call your homeowner's association (HOA), condo association or equivalent, to see if there are any requirements or restrictions. HOAs can stop you from using certain materials or building on certain parts of the home. Additionally, HOAs sometimes require a review of your plans before you start the building process. These restrictions typically come written in covenants and, in most cases, are reviewed with prospective buyers before a purchase. To make sure you have the current information to share with your builder and get your project started on the right foot, it's always best to engage your association early in the process.

Check with Local Historic Boards

Do you know if your property is in or near a historic area? If there is any question, call your local historic review board or registries to double-check. Some requirements from historic boards are extremely specific and involve special attention and advance planning. For example, we have seen instances where a board has only allowed the use of one specific brick on a home addition. Make sure you know what your requirements are, so you can plan in advance and avoid a battle and costly changes later.

With so many requirements for designing, building, budgeting and engineering it can be easy to overlook certain steps. Always make sure you hire an advocate that knows how to manage the many aspects of your renovation from start to finish, so that your project runs as smoothly as possible.

Combining Style and Comfort in Furniture doesn't, what things bother us, how can we figure out a solution to turn problems into positives."

A combination of versatility and comfort drew Potomac, Md.-based interior designer Anne Walker of Anne Walker Design to Willem Smith furniture during a recent home redesign. "All of their pieces are incredibly beautiful. They combine this very clever combination of Old World and classic style with innovation," said Walker. "The greatest strength is the comfort of their pieces. They take painstaking details. You can tell the first time you sit on one of their products that they are extremely comfortable."

Smith's wife, Mary, helps with marketing and other tasks. "The clear differentiator for the furniture is the attention to comfort and functionality," she said. "There is a lot of furniture out there that may look good, but isn't functional. A lot of the public doesn't realize it. That's the fun of the marketing piece: educating others about this great solution for people. Like before there was Starbucks people didn't realize they were drinking bad coffee all them time."

This attention to detail attracts clients ranging from furniture-seeking homeowners to interior designers on a mission to create a showplace.

"Their furniture has a bespoke quality and an incomparable level of comfort," said Joseph Van Goethem of Joseph Van Goethem Interior Design in McLean. "I believe Willem Smith is the epitome of authenticity and timelessness." Even better, he added, "when I first took a client to Willem Smith, there was no smothering my client, no sales pitch. When your furniture is that good, there's no need to sell it."

Locally, Peet's Coffee & Tea selected Willem Smith's Rio Java chair for the lounge area of its coffee shops.

choose sides. But here, when we're successful as a county, it's because we work together."

And combined with COT and the county's Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission, said Cook, "That spirit will, I hope, make us a model for other communities in the nation. Our police chief is looking at policing in a more complete way, thinking about how to re-engineer the department for 21st-century policing."

He said this county is the safest jurisdiction of its size in the U.S., with "relatively little" violent crime.

"But when someone is vulnerable, has an emotional difficulty, suffered a trauma or is upset about something, we want to give our officers the tools to deal with these things," said Cook. "So they'll be more understanding and residents can know that, when they call 911, the police can take a bad situation and, through dialogue, make it better."

COUNTY POLICE CHIEF Ed Roessler said the Police Department believes in "ethical leadership through engagement with the community." The goal is for police to be able to fight crime while maintaining a safe community where life is valued."

Seven of the COT's 33 members comprised a panel at Saturday's event. They shared their viewpoints and then received questions from those attending. Jorge Figueredo, executive director of Edu-Futuro – which empowers under-resourced Latinos through education – led things off.

"The first thing I learned when I came to this country was that I had a label – Hispanic," he said. "I was put into a box. But after more than 20 years here, it's wonderful that we're constantly learning about respect and opportunity. The immigrant community has to look for what unites us so scapegoats can go away and we can realize what's important."

In Edu-Futuro, said Figueredo, "We give children hope and make sure they go to school so they can join the workforce and be successful. My message today is that we are one community and are lucky to have the leadership we have in Fairfax County; we all need to work together."

Milton Harding

Special Agent Keith Palli is with the FBI's Washington Field Office. He said the FBI uses its community outreach and civil rights programs to unite people. The community outreach programs are for teens and youth.

"We liaison with police and business owners about civil rights to understand what's going on in the community," said Palli. "But we need to get into minority communities to understand them better. And we want people to know they can report criminal activity to us."

The Rev. Milton Harding, former pastor at Centreville Baptist, said people first have to learn "how to engage one another before we can engage law enforcement. We have a human problem; take the information you get today and put it into practice."

COT Chairman Shirley Ginwright is president of the county's NAACP and works on the police Diversity Council. "We're trying to reach young people to respect themselves and law enforcement," she said. "And we established the [nonprofit] Public Safety Outreach Foundation through which we'll work with younger, at-risk kids in our communities."

Shirley Ginwright

A 27-YEAR MEMBER of the county Police Department, Major Rich Perez coordinates policy change for the police. "We reviewed our police use-of-force policies with the community and are re-engineering our academy training [accordingly] to preserve the sanctity of human life," he explained. "We also provide training on critical decision-making and crisis intervention, and we've worked with mental-health personnel to divert those people away from jail."

Lt. J-P. Koushel has spent 33 years with the Virginia State Police and said the troopers have five stations in Northern Virginia. "We have about 170 troopers when we're at full-strength," he said. "We have a diverse workforce from around the world, and about 33 percent of them represents the minority community."

"Most of our traffic stops are audio- and video-recorded, and we don't tolerate our officers mistreating the public," he continued. "We work hard to be fair and impartial, and our officers receive diversity training."

Claire Gastañaga, executive director of the Virginia American Civil Liberties Union

(ACLU), said community responsibility comes first. She said Ferguson happened in great part because "There was a significant effort to deprive certain people of their civil rights." She also said fees and policing for profit also played into the problems.

"So we need to look at this," said Gastañaga. "We need accredited policing like Fairfax County just received. We also believe civilian engagement is also about civilian authority. And we disagree with police collection of license-plate data. Constitutional policing is more than just [whether] we trust and get along well with each other."

Also speaking was Officer Jonathan Keitz of the Sully District Station. He spoke from the perspective of a patrol officer out on the streets. "The majority of the time, our problems can be solved with communication and compassion," he said. "But it's not always easy."

"In a couple minutes, I have to determine if a stranger is going to be friendly, is the victim, or will hurt me," he said. "Our biggest challenge is trying to figure out your situation and if you actually need help, or mental help, and if the situation is actually happening. The people involved make it complicated."

But, said Keitz, "If things go bad, it's our job to remain communicative and compassionate. For that person, it may be the worst thing that's ever happened to them, and you have to figure it all out in only five minutes."

"Training is so important, and that's our gap in law enforcement throughout the nation," added Perez. "Here, Chief Roessler brought in police T3 training dealing with tact, tactics and trust, and that furthers the relationship between the community and Police Department."

The panel then received several questions from the audience on index cards, and before the meeting ended, they answered a few of them. One was about how to build trust, and Ginwright advised residents to "Get actively involved in the community and with what law enforcement is doing. Get to know them as people and keep interfacing and communicating with them, and help young people do this, too."

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, Sept. 15, from 5-8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust them, as needed.

Because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected. That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the correct use of the child seat. Call 703-814-7000, ext. 5140, to confirm dates and times.

Dulles Suburban Center Meeting

The Dulles Suburban Area Study Advisory Group is holding several meetings to examine the Dulles Suburban Center area. It will then make recommendations to Fairfax County for potential land-use changes and future development.there. The meetings are open to the public, and the next one is set for Tuesday, Sept. 20, at 7 p.m., in the Sully District Governmental Center, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly.

FABB to meet in Chantilly

The Fairfax Alliance for Better Bicycling (FABB) will meet Tuesday, Sept. 20, from 7:30-9:30 p.m., in the Sully District Governmental Center, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly, and the public is invited. Guest speaker will be Supervisor Kathy Smith (D-Sully).

These meetings in district venues are part of FABB's efforts to hear from local residents about their bicycling needs. Fairfax County Bicycle Coordinator Adam Lind will discuss future projects in the district, and a FABB representative will lead a group discussion about local improvements needed.

Public Hearing on Land Exchange

The Fairfax County Park Authority will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, Sept. 28, to receive public comment on the exchange of property in the Sully District. The hearing on the Halifax Point District Park property will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the ninth floor Park Authority Board meeting room in the Herrity Building, located at 12055 Government Center Parkway, Fairfax.

The Fairfax County Park Authority proposes to exchange approximately 10 acres of property, which is a portion of the overall 169.5 acres in Halifax Point District Park for approximately 63.7 acres of property that is owned by Columbia Gas Transmission, LLC. Both properties are located on Bull Run Post Office Road in Centreville.

Written comments on the exchange of property will be accepted until Sept. 27, 2016. Written comments should be directed to David R. Bowden, Director of Planning & Development Division, Fairfax County Park Authority, 12055 Government Center Parkway, Suite 406, Fairfax, VA 22035. Email comments should be sent to: parkmail@fairfaxcounty.gov.

Learn about Trees

"Sully District Tree Forum: Everything You Wanted To Know About Trees But Were Afraid To Ask" will be held Thursday, Oct. 6, from 7:30-9 p.m. at the Fair Oaks District Police Department, 12300 Lee Jackson Memorial Highway, Fairfax.

Topics to be covered include the importance of a healthy urban forest; how to maintain healthy trees; who to replace damaged trees; and how to maintain common area.

This program is free and open to the public, however, space is limited, so RSVP to 703-324-1770 or TTY 711.

Moving Equipment Sought

The Centreville Labor Resource Center is in need of moving equipment to add to its tool supplies. Requested items are back braces, lift belts, sliders and straps that are used for moving jobs.

This equipment can be checked out by workers and brought back when they complete jobs. It will ensure that they're able to complete moving jobs more safely. In addition, the CLRC is seeking Spanish-speaking people to fill a number of volunteer positions. Contact Molly Maddra-Santiago at director@centrevillelrc.org.

Fire & Rescue Academy Classes Open

The Citizens Fire & Rescue Academy (CFRA) is open to persons 18 and older who live in Fairfax County. Classes meet Thursday evenings for nine consecutive weeks, from 6-9 p.m. beginning Sept. 22 and ending Nov. 17.

In each session, participants learn about a different aspect of the fire department, ranging from fire suppression, emergency medical services, hiring and training firefighters to special rescue operations. Participants will also spend time at fire stations, training academy, Public Safety Headquarters, and at the 911 dispatch center. For more information contact Battalion Chief Willie Bailey, willie.bailey@fairfaxcounty.gov or atfire.CFRA@fairfaxcounty.gov.

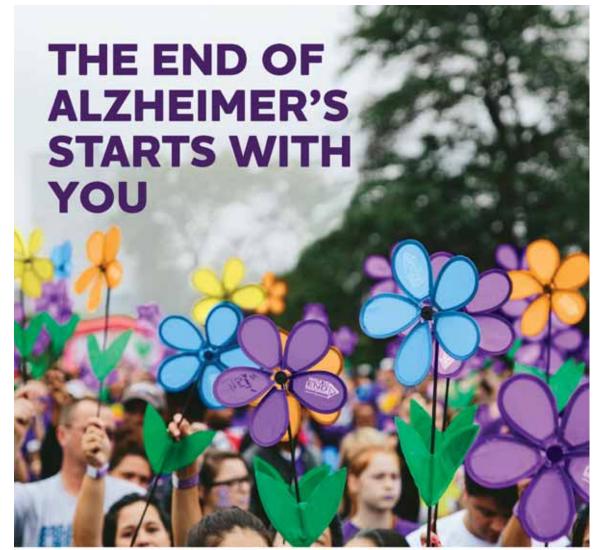

Authority Seeks Ideas on Center

The Fairfax County Park Authority is holding a meeting on Thursday, Sept. 15, in an effort to find partners interested in shaping a vision for a Sully Woodlands Stewardship Education Center.

Sully Woodlands encompasses 4,400 acres and 43 parks with multiple uses. The proposed facility would be a state-of-the-art interpretive center to manage non-recreational parkland, provide educational and visitor services, conduct research and include natural and cultural management activities.

The meeting will take place from 7-9:30 p.m. in Conference Room 9/10 at the Government Center at 12000 Government Center Parkway, Fairfax.

Contact the Public Information Office at 703-324-8662.

Shore About One Thing

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

"Want to get away?" No. Not usually. I'm more of a home body than I am an awayfrom-home-body. But occasionally, even I have the urge to get up and go. And now that I've come up with a system to safely transport the 50 pills-plus I ingest daily, I feel less constrained by my previous limitations (how does one pack up/plan for travelling with 20-plus bottles of pills worth an estimated $200? In a car? OKAY. But on a plane? If I do carry them on, are that many bottles/type of content even allowed? Do I carry on a day's worth and pack the rest? Would a note from my oncologist help? If I checked my luggage instead, what if the luggage get's lost?). So I'm now using bank envelopes (the kind used by the drivethrough tellers) to segregate my a.m. and p.m. pills. As James Whitmore (as Brooks) in "Shawshank Redemption" said to Andy Dufresne (Tim Robbins) about distributing the library books to the inmates: "Easy peasy. Japaneasy." In effect, no fuss, no muss. As a result, I feel as if I've regained some control over my life (always a good thing for a cancer patient).

Ergo, I am now sitting poolside in New Jersey at my wife, Dina's, cousin's beach house. My pills are "enveloped" in our bedroom, my alkaline water (another transportation problem which I have not yet solved) is "galloned" in the fridge and my usual and customary anxiety is back home in Maryland. And if there's one thing a cancer patient undergoing chemotherapy needs, it's relief, maybe even relocation from all that is usual and customary. Not that you ever forget — for one second, your diagnosis/original prognosis/abbreviated life expectancy, but it "sure beats Bermuda off season" as the old adage rationalizes.

So, even though I'm not exactly fat and happy, neither am I skinny and miserable. And for a cancer patient originally characterized as "terminal" (by my oncologist), not being 'skinny and miserable' is all it's cracked up to be and I mean that sincerely and serenely. And though I'm not yelling "Serenity Now" at the top of my lungs to reduce stress as Frank Costanza was advised to do and did, on a long-ago Seinfeld episode, I am feeling "unencumbered" (to quote one of my father's favorite words) and can't help wondering: what took me so long?

But I know what took me so long. Me, myself and I; that's who, and my commitment to maintaining my pill regi-men/consumption — for fear of upsetting my emotional apple cart. Other than the regular/recurring infusions I've experienced over the past seven-plus years, the second most constant anti-cancer routine I've embraced has been my non-prescription supplements (most recently adding Chinese wormwood and Indian ashwagandha, while dropping N-Acetyl-L-Cysteine). For all I know, my unexpected survival has had as much to do with my pills as it has had to do with my chemotherapy? Finding a way after all these years to maintain this status quo might hopefully/presumably allow me to live longer and prosper and perhaps enhance my life, maybe even extend it. Besides, "I'm too young to die. Too handsome. Well, too

I realize I may be making a mountain out of a mole hill here. Nevertheless, when the adversary is cancer, specifically a heretofore incurable form of cancer: non-small cell lung cancer, stage IV, any port in this storm is seems, finally, I am ready, willing and able to continue the fight away from home - should the opportunity present itself.

QB Rehman Johnson (#17) bursts through his teammates' blocks.

Westfield Stalls SC Comeback

he Westfield Bulldogs traveled to play South County in a nonconference match up — the teams' third meeting in two seasons. Westfield's only setback last year came in week 2 against the the Stallions. The second match up was the regional final which was held at South County and Westfield dominated South County 40-8, before advancing to and winning the 6A State Championship in Charlottesville.

Enter week 2 of the 2016 season.

Eugene Chung would open scoring in the first quarter with a 2 yard run. Chung would tally 79 yards on 19 carries for the game. Brian Delaney's PAT made it 7-0, which stood until the 3rd quarter when Westfield QB Rehman Johnson, scampered in from 1

Johnson would lead the team in rushing, running for 81 yards on 11 carries. With Westfield up 14-0 in the 4th quarter, South County struck fast after inserting QB Jack McDaniels for Michael Salisbury in the 4th quarter. McDaniels twice hit receiver Seth Dunn for touchdown passes. The first was a 39-yard strike with 10:26 to go in the 4th, then a 73-yarder which had the Stallion fans hoping for a comeback. After a missed South County extra point, Westfields lead was 14-

Soon thereafter, Joey Free stopped the comeback after intercepting his second pass of the game. Moments later Brian Delaney would add a 36-yard field goal to conclude scoring at 17-13.

Westfield improves to (2-0) and will face T.C. Williams in a non-conference game, while South County (1-1) will travel to Havfield.

— WILL PALENSCAR

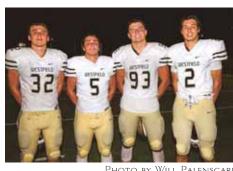

Where They'll Play Next Year

Four seniors from Westfield have committed to schools for the 2017 fall season.

Brian Delaney will be attending UVA and hopes to major in business or Global systems security and justice. Delaney also considered UNC but said, "There wasn't one specific deciding factor for choosing UVA but between the amazing academics, coaching staff, campus, and opportunities, UVA seemed like the clear choice for me. " Delaney will play football for the Cavaliers.

Zach Jewell will be attending Georgetown University and has not yet decided on a major. Jewell also considered Columbia University and James Madison University. Jewell said, "The many deciding factors included the way the coaches made me feel like I was at home when I was at Georgetown, the location and the level of academics." Jewell will play football for the Hoyas.

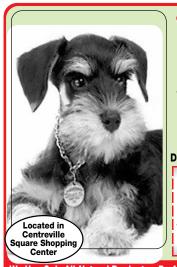

Kevin Petrillo will also be attending Georgetown University. Petrillo hopes to study business or medicine. Petrillo said, "The deciding factor was the overall experience Georgetown offers me. With a mix of incredible academics, a beautiful campus and very good athletics it would be hard to turn down." Petrillo will play lacrosse for

Sean Eckert will attend West Point. Eckert plans on majoring in engineering, and would like to go into the Air Force. Eckert also considered VMI, the University of Delaware, and William and Mary. Eckert deciding factor of why he chose West Point "the thought of making a difference in the world and giving back to my country." Eckert will play football for West Point.
