Real World Calling

Teens and parents browse West Springfield teen job fair.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

Catherine Ly of Lorton remembers by the time she went off to college, she didn't have much work experience and was overwhelmed with her first job.

For her daughter Rebecca, a junior at South County High School, she thinks of getting real life experience and preparation through a first job: "The earlier, the better."

The two women attended the third Fairfax County teen job fair, this one held April 1 at West Springfield High School. The list of dozens of companies and organizations included representatives from the military, law enforcement, restaurants, political groups, parks and pools.

Rebecca is interested in pursuing some type of medical internship, but is also looking at lifeguarding as a stepping stone in that direction.

But looking for work opportunities on the vast internet was too open-ended, they both said. "We didn't know what to look for," Catherine said.

They heard about the job fair and decided to check it out. Catherine said she was impressed with the variety of opportunities and vendors at the fair, that they were all laid out well and easy to navigate.

Hanna Bjarnason, a West Springfield sophomore, was also at the fair searching for first-time employment: summer work, a small job to get experience.

"It's good to talk with prospective employers," Bjarnason said. "Maybe something at a restaurant, in the service industry."

Her mother Mary Frances Bjarnason walked around the fair with her daughter, keeping a safe enough distance so Hanna could interact on her own, but also able to observe.

"The employers have been great with this age group," she said. "They've been calm, patient, helping them with what questions to ask, how to act — I'm very pleased."

Pat Malone of Alexandria helped hatch the concept for the teen job fair with supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield). This is the third year a fair has been held at West Springfield.

Malone said parents have appreciated being able to browse prospective employers along with their children.

"They watch, see where their child could work," he said, "and see if they think they're going into a good situation."

Herrity said he was pleased with the turnout, which he estimated to be around 500 for the day. As the event continues to grow and evolve, the supervisor said he hopes to include more employers from the tech field, though he concedes it's more difficult to find companies looking to hire in this age group.

Herrity also said he'd like to see more opportunities for 13- and 14-year-olds. While they can't work professionally, he'd like to include more volunteer and service opportunities to bring them into the fair and get experience in the social-semi-professional environment.

At 13, Porter Wallington of Centreville attended the job fair looking for volunteering and service opportunities. He said he was interested in the Fairfax Democrats, but was "open to anything."

Though he couldn't walk away an employed young man, he said he did gain confidence. "I know how to talk to people now," Wallington said, "what to ask."

For more information and to register either as a student or a business for the next teen job fair, visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/springfield/teenjobfair.htm.

The final fair is scheduled for Saturday, April 29, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., at South County High School, 8501 Silverbrook Road in Lorton. Co-sponsored by Supervisor Dan Storck, South Fairfax Chamber of Commerce, South County Federation, and South County High School.

Another Step to Police Transparency

Opening up records of “unattended deaths” to families.

The first paragraph of Virginia Freedom of Information Act, passed by the General Assembly in 1968, states that all public records “shall be presumed open.” But the legislation includes an exception that allows police to withhold “complaints, memoranda, correspondence, case files or reports, witness statements and evidence.”

EDITORIAL

As a result, many police departments around the Commonwealth, including Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax, have adopted what they call a “blanket” approach to using their exemption. That means they have decided to withhold any document they can without any analysis of whether they should. Police chiefs and prosecutors from across the commonwealth have spoken out against any effort to undermine their broad power of exemption.

To its credit, the Fairfax County Police Department has committed to “release police reports with redactions rather than creating a summary document,” and the new policy is in progress.

During the 2017 session of the General Assembly, state Sen. Scott Surovell’s bill, SB1102, passed both the House and Senate without any votes in opposition. The bill would require police to release the records of investigations of deaths by suicide to the closest family member.

The bill summary: “Virginia Freedom of Information Act; completed unattended death investigations; mandatory disclosure. Requires that records of completed unattended death investigations be released to the parent or spouse of the decedent or, if there is no living parent or spouse, to the most immediate family member of the decedent.”

Gov. Terry McAuliffe proposes to gut the bill by amending it to only require the police to provide a summary of the report.

Families deserve to have access to completed police reports about the death of a loved one. (This is also an issue for murder victims and other situations, but is not addressed by this bill.)

The General Assembly meets for its veto session Wednesday, April 5, and we urge every member who voted in favor of Surovell’s bill to vote to block the amendment.

We note that police departments do not have to withhold these reports; nothing in the current law prohibits their release. Police departments could choose the compassionate and transparent approach by releasing reports, redacting the names of witnesses and other information as reasonably necessary. This is what the FCPD is working towards.

Bidding Farewell to Circus ‘Big Top’

Last chance to see it in Northern Virginia.

BY MICHAEL MCMORROW
THE CONNECTION

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus will close early next month and become a page in history. A few troupes will continue, some with specialties like Cirque du Soleil and others that are true circuses but small like Circus Flora. But the “Big Top” will be gone.

Attending the final few performances, nobody would guess that the end is drawing near. Performers, at the peak of their profession in “The Greatest Show on Earth,” are not about to ease up their routines or disappoint the audiences.

A blur of countless colors, music pouring from carefully positioned speakers, costumes alight with spangles and crystals, lions and tigers caged with a man and a whip, lights scanning the crowd and reaching high above the ring, horses with bareback riders, people climbing to and hanging from the rafters, everything one expects in a circus envelops each guest, young or old. Everything, that is, except the elephants that are retired to a conservation center in Florida.

Circuses can be measured by the members of clown alley, and Ringling always has some of the best. While facing disappointment as the company closes, the clowns have lost none of their energy and joy performing. In fact, they display optimism alongside professional pride.

Joan Fernandez Cabrera said he is happy to work with Ringling, but when it ends he will visit his family in Cuba and then journey to Europe with confidence of finding work. “There is always room for a good clown,” he said.

The story is much the same with Victor Rossi, originally from France and of a family with many generations in the circus.

Ringling has brought laughs and gasps to countless millions during its 146 years crisscrossing the country. It could hold its own with moving pictures, but not with the hundreds of television channels in high definition and color.

Over the next few days, a man with a tall hat and wearing a military cut jacket of many colors will step into the spotlight and cry out “Ladies and gentlemen and children of all ages, you are about to see the most extraordinary performers and exotic animals one last time at The Greatest Show on Earth.” Older listeners will recall memories of years past, and the young will file away a memory to be recalled in years yet to come.

The bad news is that the circus is passing away. The good news is that it also is passing through Northern Virginia for a final time, right now.

Donations collected during the meal between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. will go to City Blossoms, which sets up educational green spaces in Washington, D.C., for children and teenagers. Gardening, sustainability and healthy eating are all on the menu.

Cava Burke general manager Manuel Sanchez of Dumfries said all the food at the restaurant is prepared on-site each morning. “Everything is fresh,” he said, “nothing sits around for the next day.”

Diners can customize their meal with choices including base salad, grains, pita and soup, adding dips or spreads, protein and additional toppings and dressings.

Sanchez said the salad with SuperGreens is one of their most popular bases.

Q. I have TMJ and the presenting symptoms (jaw pain, clicking, etc.) are text book. Will I have to have major in patient dental surgery? Are there any new innovative procedures like laser technology or less invasive procedures to correct and or alleviate TMJ problems?

A. You have brought up a very involved topic. The Tempromandibular Joint (TMJ) connects the mandible (lower jaw) to the skull. TMJ can also stand for Tempromandibular Joint Disorder or a group of problems that are related to the joint. Symptoms include but are not limited to clicking and/or popping in the joint, muscular pain, temporary locking of the mouth, facial pain, and headaches. It can be caused by clenching and grinding of the teeth, malocclusion (off bite) arthritis, injury, stress, and muscle tension. Treatment usually begins in a conservative manner with oral medication. In situations where patients clench or grind their teeth at night, splints or occlusal guards may be prescribed. Surgery is often a last result. In many instances the condition is temporary and improves on its own. Question? Email: info@drevelynsteaguesamuel.com

Enforcement Is Feds' Responsibility

Clarifying county's stance on immigration sparks sharp exchange among supervisors.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors usually presents a fairly united front at the open-to-the-public general board meetings. The supervisors may ask for clarification from staff on a particular item under consideration or express a less than enthusiastic response to a motion, but more often than not, "Approved Unanimously," or "the motion carries without exception" are the words that are entered into the record.

At the meeting on April 4, with a packed agenda and 47 speakers registered to provide testimony on the Advertised FY 2018 Budget, it was the chairman's resolution on "Diversity and Inclusion" in the county that sparked some polite but pointed debate on the dais.

For Chairman Sharon Bulova, the resolution was something that the residents of the county needed to hear from their leadership.

"Fairfax County is a welcoming and accepting community ... we are a safe, diverse and caring community, and if that harmony is threatened, I believe we have a duty to speak out and clearly articulate our values," the chairman stated before reading her proposed resolution.

BULOVA was alluding, in part, to an incident in February, when agents of the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) detained a group of homeless men as they were leaving a church-run hypothermia shelter in Alexandria. This action, and a surge in ICE raids and sweeps, has caused a wave of fear in the immigrant community, an outpouring of concern from social service providers and law enforcement personnel, and anger from social justice organizations like the members of Herndon-Reston Indivisible who attended the meeting, waiting to hear the county's official line.

"Whereas, Fairfax County Police successfully engage in community policing, which requires the trust of residents who are not afraid to call law enforcement if their safety is at risk, or to report information that may help solve a crime," reads one segment in the resolution, acknowledging fear and the anxiety that has accompanied the see-saw of Trump administration proposed travel bans, the rise in hate crimes, threats against ethnic groups and religions, and incidents of vandalism, particularly at Jewish cemeteries and Muslim mosques.

Members of the Herndon-Reston Indivisible group came to the Board of Supervisors meeting to learn what stance the county would officially take on immigration enforcement by county personnel.

Supervisors Clarify Stance on Immigration Enforcement

Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) didn't disagree with the sentiments of inclusion that framed the resolution, but he said it seems like "a statement done for political reasons." In Herrity's view, the resolution fails to address the "real issues in front of us," citing the impact on the public school system, other services, and the recent increase in gang violence.

Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee District) was quick to respond, saying that he resented the attitude that blame for gang violence should be directed only at the immigrant community, insisting that the resolution was the "antithesis of a political statement ... it's our moral imperative ... to tell our community where Fairfax County stands."

McKay later added that if this resolution was indeed political, then it represents a political stance he was proud to be associated with.

The waters around the resolution were further muddied when Supervisor Cathy Hudgins (D-Hunter Mill) suggested the resolution should be more specific and asked that language be included to clearly oppose any immigrant registry. This request opened another round of exchange among several of the supervisors. Bulova did not see the value in having the county engage in a series of "what if" scenarios and develop hypothetical responses. At one point, Hudgins made the remark that she felt she was "being placated" by the response to her request, one which she sees as showing the real leadership qualities of the county.

Supervisor Dan Storck (D-Mount Vernon) finally summed up the resolution as being a "place to start ... a great foundation," painting the motion as more of a "high-concept" statement than a procedural piece, or a response to deeper issues being raised by other supervisors.

The motion did carry, but not before Supervisor John Cook (R-Braddock District) made it clear and for the record that the resolution was not declaring the county a so-called "sanctuary jurisdiction." "It does not say that, and people shouldn't think that it does."

Nevertheless, the Herndon-Indivisible supporters and others in the crowd applauded the outcome that does make clear that Fairfax County police are "not asked to assume the responsibilities of federal immigration officials ... it is the responsibility of our officers to ensure the safety of Fairfax County residents through community policing rather than through immigration enforcement."

UNANIMOUS APPROVAL was afforded several other matters before the board, including two proclamations offered by Cook; one declaring April as Sexual Assault Awareness Month, and another adding Child Abuse Prevention as a focus for the month. There was also no dissension on the proclamation marking April 24 as Holocaust Remembrance Day in Fairfax County. Holocaust survivor Michele Margosis accepted the document from Bulova.

Later in the session, the board voted to approve a "Sewer Ordinance Amendment" which will raise rates for water consumption by 7 cents per 1,000 gallons, raise the quarterly Base Charges, and other related fees, while reducing the daily flow per unit from 300 gallons to 280 gallons per day. The rate increases were applauded by speaker Reba Elliott, who is the executive director of Faith Alliance for Climate Solutions. Elliott thinks more funds are needed to keep water supplies safe in the area. "Go storm water treatment!" Elliott called out as she left the speaker's podium.

"Thank you," replied Bulova. "I honestly think that's a first for us."

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors general and committee meetings are streamed live via the county's website, and can be found after the event in the video archive. Agenda items and materials are also available on the site. See www.fairfaxcounty.gov.

Inventive Storytelling

Hub Theatre presents "The Late Wedding," about Love and Longing.

BY DAVID SIEGEL
 THE CONNECTION

"Come ready for an adventure and buckle up" is how Hub Theatre's artistic director, Helen Pafumi, is inviting audiences to "The Late Wedding." The play is an exploration of human nature by the inventive, international award-winning playwright Christopher Chen.

Chen is noted for fabricating plays that combine the absurd with the more realistic. "The Late Wedding" delves into love, the human condition, acceptance of others, and it tops it all off with a big dose of humor and some very bold theatrical choices," said Pafumi. "This will not be a typical theatrical experience. The play takes you to imagined tribes with different marital customs, into a spy thriller, through a revolution and even into space."

Directed by Kathryn Chase Bryer, "The Late Wedding" centers on the mysteries and surprises of love and longing. "It challenges us to look at ordinary moments between people in extraordinary ways," said Bryer. "How many plays do you know where you can go from a scene between two people discussing their marriage and be instantly catapulted into a spy thriller? And yet, it is not confusing, but instead is comical and eye opening.

"I love plays that turn life on its head and ask us to examine ourselves and the human condition in new and surprising ways, asking the audience to bring their own experience, their own imaginations and fill in the blanks a bit in order to bring their own meaning to the play," added Bryer.

"I think that it is very empowering for the audience to take ownership of the play in this way and allows for a deeper more personal theatre experience."

"The Late Wedding" has a six-member cast with local theatrical veterans Tamioka Chavis, Nick DePinto, Gwen Grastorf, Carolyn Kashner, Matthew Pauli and Jacob Yeh.

"I wanted actors who were funny, grounded, diverse and smart. I looked for a company of people who would complement each other in energy and looks and bring many talents to the table," said Bryer. "The actors for this show are well trained, bring years of experience, can sing, play instruments, dance and even juggle!"

Hub's Pafumi added, "I want to engage the community in something we all share and that can offer, at its core, hope. With 'The Late Wedding,' love, and the longing for it, does that." All as the actors, characters and audience explore one another in remarkable ways.

Arun Nair of Springfield, left, has worked with Sergei Sivolobov, Kelly Radford and Eric Ramlow — all brain injury survivors he refers to as “my boys.” Together, they go out for coffee, food and just spend time together.

Del. David Bulova (D-37) announced outgoing BIS executive director Karen Brown as the 2017 Alan Mayer award recipient, saying that she’s well-respected and trusted by leaders of many kinds and levels of government, while building BIS into a special organization.

Sergei Sivolobov of Arlington said it’s hard to describe how isolating living with the effects of a traumatic brain injury is. Sivolobov said he was just out riding his bike to lunch when he was sandwiched between two cars and suffered the injury. That was three years ago, before he was referred to Springfield-based Brain Injury Services.

BIS is a non-profit assisting young people and adults from around Northern Virginia with finding recovery and rehabilitation resources from brain injury, stroke and concussion, as well as managing the effects of the injuries and getting back into their communities.

In Sivolobov’s case, BIS was able to send people to help cook for him, and connected him with Arun Nair of Springfield. Nair has worked with Sivolobov, Kelly Radford and Eric Ramlow — all brain injury survivors he refers to as “my boys.” Together, they go out for coffee, food and just spend time together.

“Thanks to this program,” Sivolobov said, he has a “new lease of life.”

“It gives us some reflection,” he said. “To stop giving up on yourself. Getting referred to Brain Injury Services and meeting Nair,” Sivolobov continued, “changed my life.”

Nair, his boys and dozens of not only brain injury survivors, but also those who have gone back into their communities to volunteer and work, were recognized Wednesday evening, March 29 at the Brain Injury Services Annual Reception. The event took place at the Waterford Hall in Springfield.

NAIR AND COMPANY were recognized as part of the PALS partnering program, along with 27 other matches from the program. He said the three men teach him that hard things will happen to you in life, and that you have to take on all those new challenges.

“They teach me every day is a new day,” Nair said.

The first recognition of the night was the Alan Mayer service award, given in honor of a former BIS executive director and representative to the Virginia General Assembly, where he established a The Virginia Disabilities Commission.

Del. David Bulova (D-37), who has sat on the BIS board for two decades, called Mayer “a fierce advocate for the brain injury community.”

Bulova announced outgoing BIS executive director Karen Brown of Alexandria as the 2017 Alan Mayer award recipient, saying that she’s well-respected and trusted by leaders of many kinds and levels of government, while building BIS into a special organization.

“She’s empowered and inspired people around her to do great things,” Bulova said.

Brown, on accepting the award, thanked all the volunteers, saying retiring this year it would be “difficult to walk away from all of you.”

Donnie Garner of Manassas represented the BIS person-centered volunteer program along with his volunteer Amanda Hall. Garner was an accomplished musician, his wife Marilyn said, before he suffered a stroke in 2013.

Springfield-based Brain Injury Services honors volunteers, survivors.

“It changed the course of his life plans,” she said. But when BIS connected her husband with Hall, it got him “back on track, pursuing the music he loves so much.”

With Hall standing beside him, Garner slowly but surely strummed and sang through “Amazing Grace,” and drew a standing ovation from the audience.

BRAIN INJURY SERVICES also recognized the professional partners supporting its work and the individuals receiving services — also known as the BIS Supported Employee Program.

Tim Spadafore, chief financial officer for Dominion Consulting in Reston, said they didn’t think twice about bringing back a young developer who suffered a brain injury.

Spadafore said, however, it’s important when hiring someone with an injury to be patient and not force someone into a role.

Every company has different needs, he said, and it’s important to “find the right fit” with the employee. Spadafore then recognized the employee as he entered the Waterford, assuring him he’s part of the family, and that he does belong.

Elaborating a Log Cabin

Retirees find special satisfactions in pair of art studios, and front porch with view.

BY JOHN BYRD

Blissful retirement often validates of the old homily: “Busy hands mean happy hearts.”

On this point, it is hard to imagine a more fruitful environment than the home of Kirby and Helen Thornton, two 70-something retirees who recently completed focused renovations to a log cabin style home in Lorton they have occupied for more than 20 years.

The changes were all about tweaking to even higher relevance aspects of the home that had gradually become a source of distinctively personal satisfaction to both seniors.

Kirby Thornton, a former electrical engineer, has been exploring his passion for woodworking for many years. Helen Thornton, a one time research analyst, revels in creating shimmering objets d’arte from fused glass. When not pursuing their hobbies, the couple might otherwise be found taking in the scenery from the wide, rustic-style front porch that now graces the home’s front elevation.

For all the quiet simplicity that abounds in every direction though, the Thornton’s lifestyle accommodation has been decades in the making, beginning with purchasing the 2,900 sq foot house and garage in the late 1990s.

“We were attracted to the relaxed ambiance of a log home,” Kirby Thornton said. “There were changes we wanted to make from the first, but since we were both busy, modifications would have to occur in phases.”

The first step was acquiring more storage space.

As Kirby Thornton tells it, the couple hired Foster Remodeling Solutions of Lorton to remove an unneeded balcony, add a floor above the open garage and apportion the space for storage and other uses to be determined.

Soon Kirby Thornton decided that the windowless garage loft would work fine as a place to take up woodworking. He had actually purchased a lathe from the home’s previous owner. Helen Thornton, seeing the loft’s potentials as a studio, acquired a kiln and began fusing glass.

The pursuit of one’s muse being all-absorbing, the pair spent little time worrying about the fact that the workspace provided zero natural light, or that it was hard to stand erect under the four foot high ceiling that dominated much of the floorspace.

About the only change to the physical space in this interval was the introduction of a partition designed to keep wood dust on Kirby Thornton’s side of the studio.

Even so, as full retirement dawned, both saw there was now time to reconsider the larger “wish list” of remodeling preferences.

“We knew we would have to change the studio roof line to get the head room and natural light we wanted,” Kirby Thornton said. “About this time, Helen was looking into front porch ideas in log home magazines. We sketched out several designs of what we thought we wanted. That’s when we called Foster Remodeling back in.”

But the first surprise inspired another pause: Turned out the front porch seen as spanning the entire front elevation couldn’t be built because of its proximity to a part of the home’s septic system.

“The symmetry, the curb appeal, was important to us,” Helen Thornton said. “We wanted a balanced facade on both the house and the garage. We were kind of at a loss.” Fortunately, Foster’s team led by Chris Arnold came up with an innovative solution.

Foster’s architectural concept call for a faux peak on the main house at exactly the same pitch as the one above the garage which is, in turn, reinforced by the peak of a front-facing archway that defines the ground-level entrance to the porch.

A porch swing occupying the far corner now fleshes-out the portrait of a restful care-free idyll amidst flowers and trees. For an expanded view, there’s a large Velux skylight overhead.

Underfoot, a flagstone patio lends color and texture, a natural tonal complement to the dark-stained log siding. Kirby Thornton says the couple selected the color palettes at a nearby stone yard over several days, and played with combinations until they found what they wanted.

Rough-hewn timbers, the handiwork of Foster master carpenter Mike Borman, is integral to the aesthetics of a new front elevation that is both inviting and whimsical. Red cedar trim and molding, meanwhile, provide sympathetic color accents.

To fashion studio space useful to all, Foster found a way to elevate the headroom to fully six feet, freeing up all 770 square feet of floorspace. A front-facing dormer featuring a pair of double hung windows invites generous southerly light. Kirby’s wood shop — equipped with a lathe, a drill press and table saw — is tucked snugly behind a new partition. Helen Thornton uses two kilns to produce her work.

Matching the logs needed to “pop up” the second level also entailed a close examination of existing details.

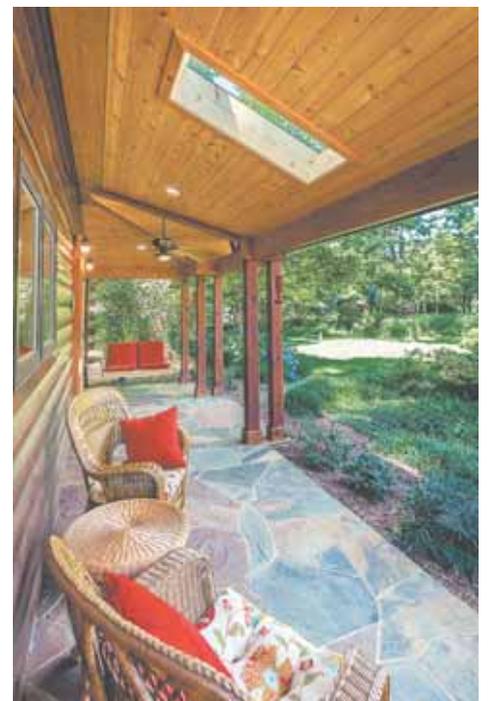

“We spent quite a while researching options with various vendors, which is a challenge when you’re working with a 30-year-old exterior,” said project manager Chris Arnold.

Summarizing the well-planned lifestyle shift, Kirby Thornton says the couple are frequently in the studio at the same time.

A window in the interior partition allows each spouse to witness the other’s progress, if so inclined. It’s a working environment, but also a place of interaction and play.

The distinctive by-products of the Thornton’s labors are mostly donated to friends, children and grandchildren. Kirby Thornton is keen on picture frames and book cases; Helen Thornton recently completed a glass bird bath.

“This is a very sweet place to be spending this time in our lives, “Kirby Thornton said. “Perfect in fact.”

It Takes a Village: Supporting Seniors

What Is a Village?

The Village concept is a growing grassroots movement that aims to provide the support that older adults may require when choosing to age-in-place. The idea is simple: neighbor helping neighbor. Villages help older adults stay in their communities by helping to coordinate and deliver services and support within their communities.

How Does It Work?

Village organizers, who are typically ages 50 and older, create volunteer programs for seniors in their communities as well as vet and negotiate with service providers to assist older adults in their homes. A broad range of services may be available, including rides to medical appointments, discounts at local theaters, reliable home repair services, and home health care. Many Villages also offer social activities and informational seminars for their members.

What Is the Cost for Services?

Some Villages may charge a membership fee, which varies from Village to Village. In some cases, there are no fees and instead the Village establishes volunteer programs. Some utilize volunteer time exchanges called "time banks." The cost for professional services, such as for home repairs, will vary. Visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/hd/ltccc/villages.htm.

LTCCC

The Long Term Care Coordinating Council (LTCCC) is promoting the Village concept in the Fairfax community and helping interested volunteers set up Villages in their neighborhoods by providing them with guidance. The LTCCC Services for Seniors committee created a sub-committee so Fairfax area villages can exchange information and learn from each other. County staff who support the LTCCC provide technical assistance to citizens interested in developing Villages in their communities. Visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/hd/ltccc/.

Fit for the Golden Years

Exercises for strength, endurance, balance and aerobics are key.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

At 7 a.m. each weekday, a group of Del Ray seniors meet at Starbucks to embark on a brisk, 45-minute walk. The women return to their starting point for coffee and conversation. Their goal is to stay active and socially engaged.

“Even those of us who’ve never exercised and aren’t necessarily fit enjoy our walks,” said Joyce Herrington, one of the group members. “It’s mostly social and we enjoy it. The fact that we’re getting some exercise is a bonus.”

Late last month, representatives from Go4Life, a program created by the National Institute on Aging (NIA), held a pilot workshop in Potomac, Md., that was designed to test methods for motivating older adults to increase their physical activity. Workshop participants were from Potomac Community Village, one of several Go4Life partner organizations of seniors who are helping to design strategies to engage seniors in exercise programs.

Sheila Moldover, Potomac Community Village Communications Chair believes that local seniors can benefit from Go4Life.

“We’re going to include some easy and simple flexibility, balance and strength exercises at each of our Potomac Community Village meetings, and distribute Go4Life materials to our members, including to those who are already exercising,” she said. “We want to encourage everyone to pay attention to their balance, flexibility and strength as well as to endurance. We see that as enabling us to age in place, to thrive in place, and be healthy and active.”

Go4Life, an exercise and physical activity campaign from the National Institute on Aging (NIA) at the National Institutes of Health (NIH), is designed to help those who are over 50 incorporate exercise and physical activity into their daily lives.

“We want people to know that it’s never too late to start an exercise program, and we focus on four types of exercise: strength, endurance balance and flexibility,” said

“The most important thing is to find an exercise or activity that you enjoy. If you enjoy what you are doing, you will be more likely to continue.”

— Susan P Thompson, Ph.D., Northern Virginia Community College.

Stephanie Dailey of the Go4Life program at the NIA. “It’s important that they’re doing all four components. Older adults can gain a lot from exercising. In fact, people have a lot more to lose by not exercising than by starting exercising.”

WHEN BEGINNING an exercise program, Dailey recommends guidelines established by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

“About 150 minutes per week of moderate activity is recommended for adults,” she said. “If you are going to start a fitness program, see your doctor first.”

For older adults exercise is important for maintaining function, physical strength and fitness, managing and preventing diseases, improving your mood and giving you more energy.

In spite of a popular misconception, older adults can gain strength and improve their muscles with these exercises, says personal trainer Christian Elliot, CEO, Founder TRUE Health and Wholeness in Arlington, Va. “I work with people who are in their 60s, 70s, 80s and 90s and I’ve never met a person who couldn’t improve their fitness,” he said. “We’re not going to stop aging, but you can certainly slow it.”

Elliot recalls a client who was in her late 50s who didn’t have a history of physical fitness, but wanted to get in shape. “She has hit some of the most phenomenal milestones, like being able to hold a 12-minute plank, do 50 push-ups and five push-ups on one arm,” he said.

FOR THOSE WHO are new to fitness, there is good news. “There’s a lot of evidence that middle age is a great time to get fit,” said Julie Ries, Ph.D, professor of physical therapy at Marymount University. “You want to be active and healthy in your middle age so that will keep dementia at bay in your old age. Exercise is not only for your physical health, but also your cognitive health.”

A well-rounded exercise program should include exercises that focus on aerobic exercise, flexibility, muscular strength and muscular endurance, and balance, says Susan P Thompson, Ph.D., assistant dean, Health Physical Education at Northern Virginia Community College.

“Cardiovascular exercises should be done most days of the week for a minimum of 20-30 minutes,” she said. “Walking, swimming, cycling, dancing, hiking and any activity that uses your large muscles in a continuous movement will increase your heart rate and improve circulation.”

Stretching and moving your joints through their range of motion will keep the joints lubricated and less stiff. “Stretching will also help decrease pain and stiffness in the back, neck, hip and feet,” said Thompson. “For the sportsman it will increase your power and ability to improve your follow through motion. For the hiker, it will let you lift your arms and legs higher. You can stretch daily. Yoga and dance are activities

Women in Retirement? Busier than Ever

BY EDEN BROWN
THE CONNECTION

More than a half-dozen local women recently answered the question: What can you say about retirement? Jamie Usrey, who was a teacher in the Arlington County Public School system for 20 years, is hardly letting a lot of grass grow under her feet.

She said, “I feel a little embarrassed when I say I am retired when I look at people who are still working hard ... like Hillary Clinton. I am enjoying being able to be outside more — biking, playing tennis, working in the yard, going for walks with friends and taking more trips to see national parks where we can hike through the beauty of nature. I have more time to exercise ... love those zumba classes ... and read. ... I do want to find a way to be more helpful in making our government work better ... next week.”

Jan Heining says she is “happier than ever with even more travel, near daily long bike rides, daily mile swims in the summer, and far more time for reading ... I also get to spend far more time at our beach house where I can more easily avoid politics.”

Ruth Neikirk said: “Retire? I never did retire. I stay busy. It’s good to stay busy.”

Karen Smagala said: “I’m busier than I ever have been since retirement, and I’m enjoying life so much more. My blood pressure went down when I stopped working. I do the Master Gardener program and I work at the library in the tool shed.”

Sheridan Collins said: “Busier than ever! Docenting at the Textile Museum provides continuing education for the brain, tennis and gym keep me fit, and this year more time on politicking helps maintain a healthy attitude. And then there’s grandmothering requiring lots of travel. All good!”

Mary Lanaras said: “Retirement is like: everyday is a snow day!” Lanaras worked to home school her children until middle school and helped her husband, Charles, with his real estate business.

Joanna Cameron said: “Retirement is just a word signifying that your priorities have shifted to ones that are all about enjoying what you love, getting outside more and relishing the things that make you happy. Staying in motion above all.”

And then there are people like Flo Broussard, 88, an Arlington resident from 1960 until she moved to Goodwin House a few years ago: she responded by saying: “Retirement? I’m a lifelong volunteer. I have volunteered for WETA, The White House, Alexandria Hospital, and several other organizations. Then when I ‘retired’ to Goodwin House, I still volunteer, doing plantings and making crafts for sale to benefit local charities.”

And there she was on April 2 at the Rehydration Salts project at Temple Beth El.

which focus on stretching.”

Improved muscular strength and endurance will allow you to do everyday tasks with less energy with less chance of injury, advises Thompson. “Leg strength will enable you to walk faster, get up and down from chairs with more ease,” she said. “For resistance, [you can use] hand weights, resistance bands, weight machines, water walking and exercise or your own body weight. Resistance training should be done two-three times a week working the major muscles. Pilates and other floor work focus on the core muscles.”

Balance training is important to prevent falls. “Although muscular strength, muscular endurance, flexibility and cardiovascular exercises contribute to better balance, specific balance training is focused on body awareness, controlling your center of gravity, being able to navigate your environment and react quickly,” said Thompson. “The most important thing is to find an exercise or activity that you enjoy. If you enjoy what you are doing, you will be more likely to continue.”

Mid-Century Classic for Artful One-level Living

In 1950s, Hollin Hills was a mecca for cutting-edge housing design; 60 years later, mid-century modern is a resurgent style ripe for nuanced improvements.

BY JOHN BYRD

Two years ago, Jeff and Jenny Herre, both retired, were living in a five-level townhouse in Old Town Alexandria with a view of the river. Long-term residents, they were satisfied with all the house had to offer. They collected art and fine furniture and their periodic renovations over several years had extended all the way to the attic.

As they approached their 70s, however, they questioned how much effort they wanted to expend getting from room to room.

"We were wondering aloud whether we'd still want to be climbing five flights of stairs in 10 years," Jeff Herre said. "That's when we began thinking about downsizing, and ways we might concentrate our primary living needs on one level."

As the research got under way, Jeff Herre saw that cost would inevitably play a role in their choices. One-level structures in and around Old Town were appreciably beyond the family budget. Looking further out of town, the options boiled down to: a) purchase a ready-to-occupy home which would come at a higher price; or b) find an older home with renovation potential that could be shaped into a place brimming with personal style.

The latter course would entail finding a creative design/build team with whom one could collaborate closely.

After assessing available northern Virginia properties for several months, a Realtor inroduced the Herres to a home in Hollin Hills, a community of some 450 houses in Hybla Valley. Hollin Hills is renowned in architectural circles — even listed in the historic record as one of the first communities in the U.S. to feature modern architecture exclusively, mid-century modern in particular.

"In the 1950s, most progressive modern homes were owner-commissioned," said Roger Lataille, a design consultant at Sun Design Remodeling. "But Hollin Hills was an entire development focused on the advanced architectural concepts that emerged after World War II."

Part of the enduring appeal was that architect Charles Goodman and landscape architect Dan Kiley had sited each Hollin Hills residence to maximize privacy. Even though lots are seldom more than one acre, it's difficult for your neighbor to see you from their house, and vice versa.

"We loved the wooded setting right away," said Jeff Herre. "The problem was, the house itself didn't look like anything we'd want to live in."

For starters, there were the obstructed sight lines starting from the front entrance. Walking in, one looked left at interior drywall that defined the parameters of a 10-foot-by-10-foot galley kitchen. To the immediate right, a floor-to-ceiling exposed brick hearth with a masonry niche designed for firewood. To the left, a floor-to-ceiling bookcase and an odd chandelier. Straight ahead, an open stairwell descending to ground level.

Further back, a door leading to the master suite, which included the original 70-square-foot tile-clad bathroom. Two closets less than two feet deep provided the only wardrobe accommodation.

While floor-to-ceiling windows dominating the eastern and western wall elevations boasted a dramatic view of surrounding woodland, the Herres also soon learned that much of the glazing was single pane.

Herre's question for Lataille from the start was right to the point: "Can you make the changes we want within our budget?"

Topping Herre's wish-list: an open plan with places for art display that will work well for entertaining; design that allows the couple to mainly live on one level; a master bath with a walk-in shower and a new powder room; additional storage; a visually compelling interior design; replacement of single pane windows with insulated double-ply thermal glass.

"There have been significant developments in open floor plan design in recent years," Lataille said. "Part of this is driven by demand: more people want spaces that allow for both privacy and easy interaction."

A kitchen-centric floorplan a popular option for a home's primary living space, and offered a practical solution for amateur chef Jenny Herre, who enjoys regaling guests with her original dishes while otherwise fully engaging in the party all around her.

"We thought an open kitchen would really work in this house," Jeff Herre said, "but we needed to see well-developed ideas before moving forward with the purchase."

Enter Jon Benson, Sun Design's lead designer, master craftsman with several published books on woodworking to his credit.

"When you're removing kitchen walls, the goal is to develop a space plan that meets all functional requirements, yet really supports the room aesthetically," Benson said. "That's why it's important to design elevations that present an appropriate combination of color, texture and tone."

On this score, Benson designed a cook top island and dining counter perfectly positioned between the dining room and the seating area around the fireplace.

Light maple Shaker-style cabinet facings combined with quartz Caesarstone counter surfaces present clean lines and reinforce the light, accessible ambiance of a room surrounded by windows.

Collectibles from India, Lebanon and Brazil are now on view in Benson-designed display spaces.

"This really feels like our home now," said Jeff Herre. "We've made the transition we wanted, and are pleased with it."
