Langley High Seniors Argue Before the ‘Supreme Court’

“Case Day” has been held at the school for the past 25 years.

BY FALLON FORBUSH
THE CONNECTION

The library at Langley High School was unusually busy at 8 o’clock in the morning. This was because Monday, March 27, was not an ordinary day. It was Case Day.

The annual event has been held at the school for the past 25 years by seniors who conduct a mock oral argument of a real case that is before the Supreme Court of the United States.

In this library that is transformed into a courtroom, students get to be the attorneys representing the petitioner and the respondent of the case as well as the judges deciding the case.

The real case that was selected for this year’s event was Turner v. United States, a case that sought justice for the murder of Catherine Fuller in 1984 in Northeast Washington, D.C.

This is because, years later, convicted defendants of the case appealed the trial court’s decision citing Brady v. Maryland, a case that set precedent for overturning convictions if evidence was withheld intentionally or inadvertently during a trial.

The Supreme Court has nine Justices, but Langley’s court only had eight members to reflect the reality of the Court, which has not yet filled the seat that Justice Antonin Scalia left empty when he died. While the empty seat was accurate, it was also meant to honor Scalia, according to Allison Cohen, who teaches Advanced Placement U.S. Government at the school and oversees the students who put on the event.

“Justice Antonin Scalia spoke to the students each year for 23 years,” Cohen said. “He took their questions and helped them to understand the Court and the role of oral arguments.”

Langley High students and teachers pose with Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg on Wednesday, March 29, the day the case’s oral arguments were made before the Court. From left: Lauren Malcolm, Assistant Principal Laura Moore, Simran Ahmed, AP U.S. Government Teachers Matt Kissling and Micah Herzig, Nik Popli, Shivani Iyer, Julia Tamantes, Julia Stucky, Mary Margaret Chalk, Jack Simmons, Lauren LaTeef, Domenic Aulisi, Maryam Madhi, Aamil Shah, Kendall Raymond, Gabby Sutton, Patrick Halm, Alyssa Czaban, Lindsey McKula, Zahra Hassan, Jacob Shapero, Marina Smith, Aria Zand, Elena Marcovici, Kaitlin Bonacci, Kareem Al-Attar, Olivia Augustini and AP U.S. Government Teacher Allison Cohen.

The yellow light indicates that Patrick Halm’s time arguing is almost up.

While there are a limited number of spots for seniors to participate in the oral arguments, more students get to participate throughout the day through presentations and performances before the oral arguments begin.

“I’ve always loved the extent to which students take ownership of the planning of the day’s events,” Cohen said. “They decide which issues they want to talk about, who they want to bring in and plan the student presentations.”

THE SIX STUDENTS who participate in the main event had to try-out for their role by engaging in five-minute oral arguments. Of the top six, four are selected to serve as counselors and two as justices.

“I think that everyone who comes to see Case Day would agree that they wouldn’t otherwise believe that these were high school students,” Cohen said. “The process of preparing for oral argument builds so many skills that will serve these students well, no matter what they end up doing.”

While the majority opinion of the Langley Case Day Court decided to reverse the judgment and set aside the convictions of the petitioners, the real Supreme Court will make their decision later this year.

In fact, the real Supreme Court heard oral arguments for the case on Wednesday, March 29, just two days after Langley students conducted their mock arguments.

Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg agreed to meet with the students at the court on that day.

“It was an experience these students will not soon forget,” Cohen said.

2017 first quarter looking good for McLean and Great Falls real estate.

Karen Briscoe

BY KAREN BRISCOE
HBC GROUP AT KELLER WILLIAMS

The year 2017 is off to a good start for real estate sales in McLean and Great Falls. The number of transactions was up 22 percent for first quarter 2017 over the same time period in 2016. Furthermore, compared to the 2007 market over one decade ago, it was up about the same amount. This is good news for the market area as we enter into the traditional spring selling season. Interesting to note that 2016 performed very similarly to 2007 market. All segments performed better or remained steady in 2017 over 2016 and 2007, with the exception of the over $3 million price point.

The most significant increase occurred in the lower brackets, considered to be under $1.25 million for the zip codes 22101, 22102 and 22066. The combined lower brackets were up in total sales by 30 percent year over year for the first quarter. The lower brackets represents three price ranges: under $750,000; $750,000 to $1 million and $1 million to $1.25 million. The under $750,000 is predominantly condos, townhomes, smaller single-family homes or lot/land where the existing home is torn down and a new home is constructed. The next two brackets typically represents the move-up buyer.

The upper brackets also represents three price ranges: $1.25 million to $2 million; $2 million to $3 million and more than $3 million. The market improved for the $1.25 million to $2 million price range in 2017. The other two segments though held steady or were softer. The number of buyers who qualify to purchase homes in this segment is considerably smaller and remains fairly constant.

Sellers in McLean and Great Falls are experiencing the "best of times" market conditions in early 2017. The number of transactions was up year over year and even greater than 2007, which experts consider to be one of the last peak years for the area. Heading into the spring 2017 market there are strong indications that homes in good condition and priced correctly should continue to sell for strong prices. Further there are some market segments that could experience price appreciation, provided demand continues to remain strong relative to supply.

CECILIA DURAN

One of the truly remarkable things about getting together with my old friends, no matter what directions our lives have taken us, is that we can agree that we loved growing up in McLean. There may have been hardships and challenges—growing up is like that—but McLean, and all its resources, made it culturally rich, invigorating and nurturing. The McLean Community Center, through its classes, events and sponsored programs, draws those attributes together and offers them to all of us. Aren't we lucky?

ELIZABETH JOHN

I am a mother of three children under the age of five, who moved to McLean years ago so my family could be part of this incredible community and school system. I know firsthand the value MCC has brought to this community, and I'd like to play a central role in its advancement by strengthening and varying its programs for children and adults, and helping deliver the upcoming renovation. I'd love to use my experiences—as McLean resident, mother, engineer, buyer and management consultant—to pay it forward for all of us.
Email: lissyjohn@gmail.com

RAJ MEHRA

I am running for a seat on the McLean Community Center board because I care deeply about the community. My family has been residents of McLean since 2003 and my wife and daughters grew up in McLean. We are supporters of the McLean Project for the Arts, I have served for the last five years on the board of the Greater McLean Chamber of Commerce and when my children were younger, I was a coach for McLean Youth Soccer and McLean basketball. The charm of McLean is what I treasure most, and I want to help preserve this.

BRITTANY R. OATES

I am excited by the prospect of giving back to our beautiful community and serving on MCC's Board of Directors. I hope to both maintain and improve the Center's diverse activities, events and programs. As the very heart of our neighborhood, the Center inspires all of our families. For our three children, it's made McLean a marvelous place to grow up, explore and spread their wings. I want to continue to support its tradition of excellence and ensure that the MCC remains a beacon of our community that serves all of our residents. I respectfully ask for your vote!

ALICIA PLERHOPLES

I am an educator, nonprofit lawyer, wife and mother. My family regularly visits the McLean Community Center, where my daughters take dance classes and we attend performances at The Alden. I would like to contribute my legal expertise to the Governing Board. I am law professor at Georgetown Law, where I teach an experiential course. My students and I represent small businesses and nonprofits (including arts and community nonprofits) on legal issues, such as contracts, financing, leasing, employment law, licensing and permitting. If elected, I will use my expertise to steward the successful completion of the Community Center renovation.

JULIE WATERS

As a board member, I'll work hard to continue growing our community. I am an attorney and served in the active Army for 12 years. When I left active service, my husband and I were thrilled to find McLean and make it our long-term home. In the Army, I gained experience in leadership, criminal and administrative law and working with a team. I now stay home with our two children during the day, and serve in the Army Reserve. I would love to give back by representing the citizens of McLean in making MCC an even better resource for everyone.

I look forward to this wonderful opportunity to serve on the Governing Board for McLean. I was born in Virginia and have lived in McLean since 2004. I currently go to McLean High School and I've attended Franklin Sherman Elementary, Haycock Elementary and Longfellow Middle School. I read that the McLean Community Center sets policies, approves budgets and provides general oversight for Center programs and facilities. I am truly interested in learning how all that is done and developing my leadership skills. I assure you that I will prove a sincere, honest and reliable team member if selected.

I want to make sure that throughout the Ingleside renovation, the McLean Community Center institution will continue to educate, entertain and inspire us. Another Step to Police Transparency Opening up records of “unattended deaths” to families.

The first paragraph of Virginia Freedom of Information Act, passed by the General Assembly in 1968, states that all public records “shall be presumed open.” But the legislation includes an exception that allows police to withhold “complaints, memoranda, correspondence, case files or reports, witness statements and evidence.”

EDITORIAL

As a result, many police departments around the Commonwealth, including Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax, have adopted what they call a “blanket” approach to using their exemption. That means they have decided to withhold any document they can without any analysis of whether they should. Police chiefs and prosecutors from across the commonwealth have spoken out against any effort to undermine their broad power of exemption.

To its credit, the Fairfax County Police Department has committed to “release police reports with redactions rather than creating a summary document,” and the new policy is in progress.

During the 2017 session of the General Assembly, state Sen. Scott Surovell’s bill, SB1102, passed both the House and Senate without any votes in opposition. The bill would require police to release the records of investigations of deaths by suicide to the closest family member.

The bill summary: “Virginia Freedom of Information Act; completed unattended death investigations; mandatory disclosure. Requires that records of completed unattended death investigations be released to the parent or spouse of the decedent or, if there is no living parent or spouse, to the most immediate family member of the decedent.”

Gov. Terry McAuliffe proposes to gut the bill by amending it to only require the police to provide a summary of the report.

Families deserve to have access to completed police reports about the death of a loved one. (This is also an issue for murder victims and other situations, but is not addressed by this bill.)

The General Assembly meets for its veto session Wednesday, April 5, and we urge every member who voted in favor of Surovell’s bill to vote to block the amendment.

We note that police departments do not have to withhold these reports; nothing in the current law prohibits their release. Police departments could choose the compassionate and transparent approach by releasing reports, redacting the names of witnesses and other information as reasonably necessary. This is what the FCPD is working towards.

Bidding Farewell to Circus ‘Big Top’

Last chance to see it in Northern Virginia.

BY MICHAEL MCMORROW
THE CONNECTION

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus will close early next month and become a page in history. A few troupes will continue, some with specialties like Cirque du Soleil and others that are true circuses but small like Circus Flora. But the “Big Top” will be gone.

Attending the final few performances, nobody would guess that the end is drawing near. Performers, at the peak of their profession in “The Greatest Show on Earth,” are not about to ease up their routines or disappoint the audiences.

A blur of countless colors, music pouring from carefully positioned speakers, costumes alight with spangles and crystals, lions and tigers caged with a man and a whip, lights scanning the crowd and reaching high above the ring, horses with bareback riders, people climbing to and hanging from the rafters, everything one expects in a circus envelops each guest, young or old. Everything, that is, except the elephants that are retired to a conservation center in Florida.

Circuses can be measured by the members of clown alley, and Ringling always has some of the best. While facing disappointment as the company closes, the clowns have lost none of their energy and joy performing. In fact, they display optimism alongside professional pride.

Joan Fernandez Cabrera said he is happy to work with Ringling, but when it ends he will visit his family in Cuba and then journey to Europe with confidence of finding work. “There is always room for a good clown,” he said.

The story is much the same with Victor Rossi, originally from France and of a family with many generations in the circus.

Ringling has brought laughs and gasps to countless millions during its 146 years crisscrossing the country. It could hold its own with moving pictures, but not with the hundreds of television channels in high definition and color.

Over the next few days, a man with a tall hat and wearing a military cut jacket of many colors will step into the spotlight and cry out “Ladies and gentlemen and children of all ages, you are about to see the most extraordinary performers and exotic animals one last time at The Greatest Show on Earth.” Older listeners will recall memories of years past, and the young will file away a memory to be recalled in years yet to come.

The bad news is that the circus is passing away. The good news is that it also is passing through Northern Virginia for a final time, right now.

The McLean Orchestra, not to be confused with the McLean Symphony, is going into its 46th year. This weekend, Dorchester Apartments at Vinson Hall in McLean sponsored the annual Patron's Gala "Upbeat McLean, Paint the Town Red" fundraiser.

"Community support of activities in any city is crucial to its lifeblood; however, perhaps the most difficult challenge in all of the fundraising is financial support for such endeavors," said Anne Paige, chairman of the Annual Patron's Gala.

Events included a live auction including jewelry and vacations, hors d'Oeuvres, cocktails, and a three-course meal, along with live music courtesy of the Loudoun Jazz Ensemble.

Maestra Miriam Burns was congratulated on another successful season as music director and conductor. Guests watched a video that she edited herself of the McLean

Orchestra and community outreach that they do with local youth.

U.S. Rep. Barbara Comstock Republican (R-10) was present at the event to show her support for the McLean Orchestra and its board of trustees.

Matt Henry, 50, a recently retired Air Force band conductor is now the Executive Director of the McLean Orchestra. "My heart and passion is conducting, and the quality and number of musicians has created a new challenge for me," said Henry. "Non-profit work is a challenge."

The 2017 to 2018 season for the McLean Orchestra will include performances of Bach, Beethoven, and Schubert in "Majesty and Triumph," Respighi, Vivaldi, and Mendelssohn in "Viva l'Italia," and Beethoven, Bruch and Brahms in "The Three B's."

Dranesville District Brushes Up On Safety Preparedness

BY FALLON FORBUSH
THE CONNECTION

People gathered at the American Legion Post 270 in McLean on Wednesday, March 29, to learn how to prepare for emergency situations.

The Greater McLean Chamber of Commerce collaborated with the McLean Citizens Association, the Great Falls Citizens Association and the Fairfax County Federation of Citizens Associations to host the public safety preparedness program for the Dranesville District. Delegates Kathleen Murphy, D-34, and Marcus Simon, D-53, also attended.

The event convened a panel of experts including:

- ❖ Grelia Steele of the Fairfax County Office of Emergency Management
- ❖ Rob Brown of the Virginia Department of Emergency Management
- ❖ Special Agent J. Michael Talbot of the FBI Washington Field Office
- ❖ Maureen Scholz of the McLean Insurance Agency
- ❖ John Jewell of Jewell Technical Consulting
- ❖ Alex McLellan of Quality Business Coaching
- ❖ Ralph Petti of Continuity Dynamics, Inc.

WHILE THE FIRST PORTION of the panel focused on how to safeguard businesses, including investing in business continuity plans and insurance policies, the panel also discussed the realities that face the region.

“Because we’re right next to the nation’s capital, we are prone to terrorism,” Grelia Steele of the Fairfax County Office of Emergency Management, said during the panel.

Her agency, along with the Northern Virginia Hazard Mitigation Advisory Committee, which includes representatives from 21 jurisdictions, recently updated the Northern Virginia Hazard Mitigation Plan.

According to the plan, the potential hazards that could affect Northern Virginia include: flooding, winter storms, high winds, tornadoes, droughts, earthquakes, land-slides, wildfires, landslides, dam failures and extreme temperatures.

The Fairfax County Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) was recruiting for its next training class, which begins on Monday, April 24, at the Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Academy. Other safety organizations at the event were the Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department, the Fairfax County Police Explorers, the Fairfax County Police Department and its Auxiliary Police Officer Program and its Citizen Advisory Committee.

Since the area is a part of the national capital region, the group’s assessment also identified other threats: pandemics, cyber attacks, terrorism and chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear and explosive materials.

The plan identifies 448 critical and historic assets in Fairfax County alone that could be targeted.

“We’ve got a lot of things here,” Rob Brown of the Virginia Department of Emergency Management, said during the panel. “We’ve got a lot of critical infrastructure, not only our transportation systems but also our communication systems, server farms and a lot of federal agencies that have critical assets in Northern Virginia.”

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors will vote on whether to adopt the updated plan at its next meeting on Tuesday, April 4, after deadline for this newspaper.

AFTER BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT safety preparedness were covered, Steele urged the audience to take steps to safeguard their families during emergency situations. One thing families can do is create an emergency preparedness kit, she said.

“Make sure you have materials to keep you going for 72 hours, the materials you use every day,” Steele said.

Brown also urged the audience to use a resource his department helped create: www.readynova.org.

“If you get on this website, it will actually walk you through building a plan,” Brown said.

The site features plans that are tailored for families, businesses and faith communities.

The audience was also encouraged to sign up for Fairfax Alerts at www.fairfaxcounty.gov/alerts.

are getting is directly from the source. We obviously won’t give you all of the details, but the snippets will help you make your next decision.”

TO FINISH THE PANEL, Special Agent J. Michael Talbot of the FBI Washington Field Office talked to the gathering about how to respond to active shooters.

“I do not like that word anymore or that name: active shooter,” Talbot said during the meeting. “If I had anything to do with it, I would change it to active killer.”

His reasoning for his terminology is that perpetrators of these incidents are killing people with knives, cars and bombs and not just guns.

“Their intent is to kill as many people as possible and they usually don’t care if they live or die,” Talbot said.

Talbot said that people dealing with these situations have three options: evacuate, hide or take action. While the third option is of last resort, he says it is better than negotiating.

“I don’t care who you are, you actually now have advantage over the shooter because the shooter is not going to expect any one of you to take the fight to him,” he said.

Midsummer in Early Spring

McLean Community Players present “A Midsummer Night’s Dream.”

BY DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

“We want our audiences to prepare to be enchanted as they join us for ‘A Midsummer Night’s Dream,’” said Rosemary Harris, director of the McLean Community Players next production.

“This delightful tale has many human elements of love, revenge, humor and mystery with its mystical magic and enchantment,” said Harris. “It is my favorite Shakespeare comedy.”

“Midsummer” is a peppery comedy in which “the course of true love never did run smooth” as Shakespeare wrote. It is a spinning, witty play, full of mix-ups, magic potions, music and young couples falling instantly in-and-out of love before finding their true partners.

There are plenty of humorous obstacles to true love put in place by the King and Queen of the Fairies. They rule a magical world in which a sprite named Puck can turn a human into a donkey-like creature. “Midsummer” also has a hilarious band of wandering amateur actors known as the “Rude Mechanicals.”

At a recent “Midsummer” rehearsal, cast members Gary DiNardo, Mytheos Holt, Ilyana Rose-Davila and Eleanor Tapscott took time for a group interview.

Asked to describe the McLean Community Players production of “Midsummer,” Holt called it “a very Millennial-friendly tale. In some ways it is about a crusty old dad who wants his daughter to marry some rich hedge-fund fellow, though she is in love with someone else; a handsome young romantic.”

Rose-Davila portrays Helena, one of the play’s confused young lovers. Asked about her character, Rose-Davila indicated that Helena feels betrayed by her best girlfriend and the men in her life. Rose-Davila then recited some lines from one of her monologues about the uncertainties and pain of young love. “Love can be an obsession and not easy at all as Cupid is confusing and blind.”

Veteran Northern Virginia actor and director Eleanor Tapscott, of Reston, plays Oberon, the King of the Fairies. She is also the master of the sprite named Puck. Describing the play as great fun, Tapscott noted that Oberon enjoys using his powers to get laughs for himself often at the expense of others.

Sick & Tired

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Man o' man was I sick last weekend (that was not a question). It began as a runny nose, followed by an annoying hacking cough, compounded by sneezing and watery eyes, an occasional headache, with zero interest in food and hardly any energy to get myself out of bed where I spent practically the entire two days. I haven't been that sick/incapacitated since, I don't know when. Thankfully, there was no temperature, sore throat or nausea to further complicate my inability to move off the bed. And most thankfully, there was no urgency to visit the bathroom (I don't know if I would have had the wherewithal to even get there). Otherwise, I might have actually had to call/email the doctor and/or make an appointment at the Emergency Room. After all, I do have cancer so I really shouldn't ignore — totally — the times when I'm feeling uncharacteristically bad. This past weekend, had I gone from bad to worse, I would have called.

However, my symptoms, as miserable as they were, especially for two days, didn't meet the this-is-it threshold as set forth by my oncologist. Though the symptoms were new and different versus the everyday norm, they certainly weren't uniquely different (lung cancer related) for a seasonal-type cold. Moreover, the pain/discomfort/cough wasn't coming from my lungs, and the symptoms had only lasted a few days, not a few weeks. I therefore determined that unlike Babe Ruth who felt "just as bad" as he sounded in his famous Babe Ruth Day farewell speech at Yankee Stadium on April 27, 1947, I wasn't dying. I was just sick with a bad cold, one that was worse than any I remember (although maybe I've forgotten. See column titled "I Can't Forget What I Don't Remember" published 3/22/17).

Nevertheless, since I'm not a doctor, just a patient, presumably I should know what my body is telling me. However, I may not be so inclined to listen (fear mostly). Though my life may occasionally be at stake, I still struggle with the facts of my case. I delude myself into thinking that if I don't give in to the pain and suffering — as rare as they usually are, then I won't suffer the consequences: dying before my time. I don't want to believe the worst so I don't. I wouldn't attribute my above-average life "unexpectancy" since diagnosis (eight years — AND ALWAYS COUNTING) as the power of positive thinking since I never read the book written by Norman Vincent Peale. But I try not focus too much on my diagnostic reality.

I mean, it's not as if I laugh in the face of death; heck, I cry more than ever, especially while watching programs on television when heartstrings are pulled. Somehow though, I try not to take my cancer personally, if that makes any sense? I try to take it the same way Curly Howard of The Three Stooges took his many slapstick pratfalls: "I'm a victim of soycumstance."

But when I get sick, whether or not I feel anything in my chest/lungs, I cross over into an entirely new realm. No more am I able to talk/humor myself into or out of things, no more am I able to deny my cancer reality and no more am I able to pretend that all is right in my world. It's during these situations when the metaphorical/proverbial you know what hits my emotional fan that I suffer the most. Unfortunately, there's no shut-off button. I just have to ride it out, as bumpy as it typically is, and hope I come out the other end in better shape than when I went in.

So far, so good. Although I'm still coughing a bit and blowing my nose, all the other symptoms have subsided and no more do I feel worse for the wear. I don't suppose it's cancer-related, but of course, what do I know? What I do know is this: if the remaining symptoms linger, I'll worry, and on Wednesday, April 19 — and for the following week, I'll worry even more awaiting the results from the CT Scan and lower abdomen MRI I have scheduled that day (it's a special: two for one). Granted, these tests are not any newer than catching a cold, but still, I can't help wondering: since I was diagnosed as "terminal," this can't keep going on forever, can it?

It Takes a Village: Supporting Seniors

What Is a Village?

The Village concept is a growing grassroots movement that aims to provide the support that older adults may require when choosing to age-in-place. The idea is simple: neighbor helping neighbor. Villages help older adults stay in their communities by helping to coordinate and deliver services and support within their communities.

How Does It Work?

Village organizers, who are typically ages 50 and older, create volunteer programs for seniors in their communities as well as vet and negotiate with service providers to assist older adults in their homes. A broad range of services may be available, including rides to medical appointments, discounts at local theaters, reliable home repair services, and home health care. Many Villages also offer social activities and informational seminars for their members. Visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/hd/lccc/villages.htm.

At slightly over 900 square feet, the primary living area the Herre's remodeled home in Hollin Hills is comparatively small but designer wall elevations employ texture and color that make the space feel expansive.

Mid-Century Classic for Artful One-level Living

BY JOHN BYRD

Two years ago, Jeff and Jenny Herre, both retired, were living in a five-level townhouse in Old Town Alexandria with a view of the river. Long-term residents, they were satisfied with all the house had to offer. They collected art and fine furniture and their periodic renovations over several years had extended all the way to the attic.

As they approached their 70s, however, they questioned how much effort they wanted to expend getting from room to room.

"We were wondering aloud whether we'd still want to be climbing five flights of stairs in 10 years," Jeff Herre said. "That's when we began thinking about downsizing, and ways we might concentrate our primary living needs on one level."

After assessing available northern Virginia properties for several months, a Realtor introduced the Herres to a home in Hollin Hills, a community of some 450 houses in Hybla Valley. Hollin Hills is renowned in architectural circles — even listed in the historic record as one of the first communities in the U.S. to feature modern architecture exclusively.

"In the 1950s, most progressive modern homes were owner-commissioned," said Roger Lataille, a design consultant at Sun Design Remodeling. "But Hollin Hills was an entire development focused on the advanced architectural concepts that emerged after World War II."

Part of the enduring appeal was that architect Charles Goodman and landscape architect Dan Kiley had sited each Hollin Hills residence to maximize privacy. Even though lots are seldom more than one acre, it's difficult for your neighbor to see you from their house, and vice versa.

"We loved the wooded setting right away," said Jeff Herre. "The problem was, the house itself didn't look like anything we'd want to live in."

Herre's question for Lataille from the start was right to the point: "Can you make the changes we want within our budget?"

"There have been significant developments in open floor plan design in recent years," Lataille said. "Part of this is driven by demand: more people want spaces that allow for both privacy and easy interaction."

Enter Jon Benson, Sun Design's lead designer, master craftsman with several published books on woodworking to his credit.

"This really feels like our home now," said Jeff Herre. "We've made the transition we wanted, and are pleased with it."

Sun Design Remodeling frequently sponsors design and remodeling seminars as well as tours of recently remodeled homes. Headquartered in Burke, the Sun Design also maintains an office in McLean. Sun Design will be sponsoring an open house in a recently remodeled home on April 29 and 30 from 11a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. For more information: www.SunDesignInc.com

Fit for Golden Years

Exercises for strength, endurance, balance and aerobics are key.

At 7 a.m. each weekday, a group of Del Ray seniors meet at Starbucks to embark on a brisk, 45-minute walk. The women return to their starting point for coffee and conversation. Their goal is to stay active and socially engaged.

"Even those of us who've never exercised and aren't necessarily fit enjoy our walks," said Joyce Herrington, one of the group members. "It's mostly social and we enjoy it. The fact that we're getting some exercise is a bonus."

Late last month, representatives from Go4Life, a program created by the National Institute on Aging (NIA), held a pilot workshop in Potomac, Md., that was designed to test methods for motivating older adults to increase their physical activity. Workshop participants were from Potomac Community Village, one of several Go4Life partner organizations of seniors who are helping to design strategies to engage seniors in exercise programs.

Sheila Moldover, Potomac Community Village Communications Chair believes that local seniors can benefit from Go4Life. "We want to encourage everyone to pay attention to their balance, flexibility and strength as well as to endurance. We see that as enabling us to age in place, to thrive in place, and be healthy and active."

Go4Life, an exercise and physical activity campaign from the National Institute on Aging (NIA) at the National Institutes of Health (NIH), is designed to help those who are over 50 incorporate exercise and physical activity into their daily lives.

"We want people to know that it's never too late to start an exercise program, and we focus on four types of exercise: strength, endurance balance and flexibility," said Stephanie Dailey of the Go4Life program at the NIA. "It's important that they're doing all four components. Older adults can gain a lot from exercising. In fact, people have a lot more to lose by not exercising than by starting exercising."

WHEN BEGINNING an exercise program, Dailey recommends guidelines established by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

"About 150 minutes per week of moderate activity is recommended for adults," she said. For older adults exercise is important for maintaining function, physical strength and fitness, managing and preventing diseases, improving your mood and giving you more energy.

Older adults can gain strength and improve their muscles with these exercises, says personal trainer Christian Elliot, CEO, Founder TRUE Health and Wholeness in Arlington, Va. "I work with people who are in their 60s, 70s, 80s and 90s and I've never met a person who couldn't improve their fitness," he said. "We're not going to stop aging, but you can certainly slow it."

Elliot recalls a client who was in her late 50s who didn't have a history of physical fitness, but wanted to get in shape. "She has hit some of the most phenomenal milestones, like being able to hold a 12-minute plank, do 50 push-ups and five push-ups on one arm," he said.

"There's a lot of evidence that middle age is a great time to get fit," said Julie Ries, Ph.D, professor of physical therapy at Marymount University. "You want to be active and healthy in your middle age so that will keep dementia at bay in your old age. Exercise is not only for your physical health, but also your cognitive health."

A well-rounded exercise program should include exercises that focus on aerobic exercise, flexibility, muscular strength and muscular endurance, and balance, says Susan P Thompson, Ph.D., assistant dean, Health Physical Education at Northern Virginia Community College.
