2017-2018

Christopher and Colin Campbell concentrate on scooping up lightning-fast tadpoles in a vernal pond on a 98-degree summer day at Potomac Overlook Regional Park. Park Naturalist Emily Rarity is teaching a class on exploring vernal ponds. Potomac Overlook is 68 acres in the middle of Arlington located at 2845 N. Marcey Road. The park offers year-round activities, two miles of hiking trails with access to the Potomac River, an interactive Energeriuim Center, an organic urban garden, summer camps and special programs for tots and older children as well as monthly summer concerts.

What's Ahead

Two County Board members outline upcoming political issues for Arlington.

BY VERNON MILES
THE CONNECTION

Things are changing in Arlington. Demand is growing on the schools and Metro in excess of funding levels. Populations continue to rise throughout the county. Two County Board members, a Democrat and an Independent, outlined what they see as the top political issues for the Arlington County.

Libby Garvey was elected to the County Board in 2012 after 15 years on the School Board. She was chair of the board in 2016.

Some of the upcoming issues from her perspective include:

- ❖ Pace of Development: The pace of development and its effect on traffic, parks and green space, tree canopy, etc.

- ❖ Schools: The need for more school facilities for the burgeoning school population — where to locate them, how to pay for them, their effect on traffic, green space etc.

- ❖ Confederate Icons: The naming issues that have become clear after the terrible events in Charlottesville. Does the county keep or change the names of roads named after Confederate leaders (especially Lee Highway and Jefferson Davis Highway), or of Washington-Lee High School, and how to handle other monuments in the county? If names are changed, what would they be changed to?

County Board member John Vihstadt, an Independent, was elected to the County Board in 2014. Before that, Vihstadt had served on Arlington's Planning Commission, Housing Commission, and Advisory Commission on Aging. Vihstadt says the county struggles with finite resources and a limited availability of land, all of which factor into the challenges the county will face over the next few years.

Some of the upcoming issues from his perspective include:

- ❖ Schools: Meeting schools' capacity challenges and the educational needs of children. Need to bring schools construction costs under control while still providing more seats for more students. Need greater future collaboration with School Board counterparts towards these key goals.

- ❖ Transit: Shoring up the troubled Metro system through a combination of administrative, managerial, enhanced oversight and employee productivity reforms, along with a new, permanent, dedicated funding stream provided by all participating jurisdictions. Metro is Arlington's circulatory system, and its economy and environment depends on safe, reliable and sustainable public transit.

- ❖ Managing Growth: Shaping and managing growth in an era of rising population and increased demand for both programmed and non-programmed green space, parks and fields. It is time to act on a key recommendation of the 2015 Community Facilities Study: require a cost-benefit analysis for every new site plan project, whether commercial or residential. The county should also launch a conversation about how to enhance and diversify its community benefits process to better provide for the schools, community centers, and other public facilities.

Gravelly Point Perspective

THE CONNECTION

Located just along the George Washington Memorial Highway, lies a local gem. Gravelly Point is a destination for cyclists, picnickers, sightseers and boaters. Adjacent to Reagan National's north runway, Gravelly Point is a great place to watch airplanes and enjoy a day in the sun.

Gravelly Point was the location of the Abingdon estate, which was at one point the residence of John Parke Custis and his daughter Nelly, the stepson and granddaughter of George Washington. The home itself was destroyed by fire in the 1930s, though the stabilized remains have been preserved and commemorated. Today's visitors can enjoy the same views and landscapes that made the land along the Potomac River such coveted real estate for members of the Washington family.

The Gray family from Waldorf, Md. brought their grandson to Gravelly Point because he loves to see the airplanes and Gravelly Point's location at the end of the runway is the perfect place to watch them go by. A mother daughter duo from Maryland was in the shade watching planes fly by overhead. The two recommend Gravelly Point to other families looking to have a great time in the outdoors.

If planning to visit Gravelly Point be sure to pack sunscreen and bug spray, chairs and/or a picnic blanket, Frisbee, kite, bike, ball, and snacks and food.

Gravelly Point is a public park within the National Park Service. It offers free parking, trail access and is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Whatever Your Taste, You Can Find it in Arlington

Ethnic choices around every corner.

BY SHIRLEY RUHE
THE CONNECTION

You can find everything from the Salvadoran grocery store carry-out with outside tables at La Union Grocery to the sophisticated Balkan Cuisine with a modern twist at Ambar. Arlington neighborhoods offer authentic cuisines often prepared by natives from the countries. This is a small selection of the many choices available.

Elba Pozo grills chicken for the New Zealand sandwich with apricots, brie, and mango chutney. Cassatt's features a different New Zealand specialty every night Monday-Thursday. Tonight it is New England Leg of Lamb roasted with thyme and mint jelly. Every Saturday night you can find live jazz, blues or bebop from 7-9 p.m. Local art is displayed on the walls.

Queen Amannisa at 320 23rd Street S in Crystal City was the first Uyghur restaurant to open in the metropolitan area. It specializes in several different versions of Lagman, with chopped, braised or minced lamb or chicken and combinations of peppers and other vegetables. Lagman is served with fresh hand-pulled noodles. The skill of the chef is measured in the length of the noodle that is created as the base of the dish. Owner Yimamu Maimaiti says Uyghur food represents a crossroads of Central Asia.

Step up and grab a number while you decide whether to order The Capri, The Genoa, The Roma, or a meatball Italian sub on a soft or hard roll. Manager Kim Gotcher says the customer favorite is The Milano which she has layered here with two hams, provolone and salami. Add lettuce, onion, tomatoes, sweet and hot peppers, oregano and oil if you choose. The Italian Store is located at 3123 Lee Hwy. In addition to hand-made subs, it offers a large selection of dry and frozen pastas and sauces as well as homemade cannolis and sweet sausages made with the Tremonte family recipe.

Alice Maggio whips up a Flat White at Cassatt's Cafe and Gallery, a New Zealand restaurant located at 4536 Lee Hwy. She says there is a science to making the foam on top of this espresso drink and "it took one girl who worked here two years before she finally got how to make the laurel leaf that we design in the foam."

A customer at Delhi Club helps himself to chicken tandoori at the Indian buffet available every day from 11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Delhi Club is located just across from the metro on the corner of Clarendon and Highland Streets.

Two-year-old Mason Tiwari practices his chopsticks skills at Peter Chang on Harrison Street. Peter Chang features an extensive menu including the chef's Szechuan specialties such as soup steam pork buns, dry fried eggplant, cilantro lime fish, crisp pork belly and customer favorites such as scallion bubble pancake, cilantro flounder fish rolls and New Zealand lamb chops with cumin.

Noon customers crowd around the small meat case at La Union Grocery at 4308 Lee Hwy. as Walter Bamaca fills up a white styrofoam container with pupusas and corn relish, tamales or quesadillas. Picnic tables outside the grocery are available. La Union also has a full restaurant at 5517 Wilson Blvd.

Chef Julio Deleon stirs a large pot of chickpeas that will be used to make hummus at the Lebanese Taverna Market at 4400 Old Dominion Drive. Lebanese Taverna Market is a family-run business with another Arlington-based restaurant in Westover on Washington Blvd. as well as a number of other restaurants and cafes in the metropolitan area.

Ambar, a new Balkan restaurant at 2901 Wilson Blvd., primarily features small plates such as suvi svinjski vrat (smoked pork neck), urnebes (aged cow cheese), jagnje a paateta (lamb paté). In addition, they offer an unlimited tasting menu for $35 where the dishes just keep coming. The restaurant was opened by Ivan Iricanin and the space designed by his wife, Nya Gill, to recreate a sophisticated European experience.

The pizza case is full as Clare McInerney dishes up a large slice of mushroom with other hot pizza alternatives available from the back kitchen. A new and larger The Italian Store is also located at 5837 Washington Blvd.

Step Back into History

Join Arlington Historical Society.

BY MARK BENBOW
ARLINGTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Do you like history? Do you like local history? The Arlington Historical Society (AHS) was founded in 1956 to preserve and promote the history of Arlington County. Since 1963 the AHS has operated the Arlington Historical Museum in the Hume School at 1805 South Arlington Ridge Road. The Hume School is itself a historic building. Built in 1891, it operated as a school until 1958. The museum is open from 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and from 12:30-3:30 p.m. Wednesdays.

So, what would you see if you came to the AHS museum? Running through Nov. 11, 2018 we feature an exhibit on the First World War. We also have an exhibit on the Union forts that filled the county during the Civil War. There is even have a cannon ball a local resident found while planting a bush in her yard.

Local businesses are also represented in the collection. If you came over the Key Bridge into Rosslyn in the 1940s and 1950s you'd find a number of pawnshops. The museum has the trefoil pawn sign (three large gold balls) that hung over the National Pawn Shop for decades. If you wanted to get something to drink after visiting the pawn shop you might want to have a Cherry Smash, made for years in the old Arlington Brewery by John Fowler.

One of Mr. Fowler's grandsons gave the AHS some rare Cherry Smash items and his generous gift sparked one of our most colorful and popular displays. We also have relics from businesses that existed in Rosslyn in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, including gold mining.

There are also displays on local African-American History, the Little Tea House, the Pentagon on 9/11, and more. Please come visit and check us online at our website www.arlingtonhistoricalsociety.org/ or on Facebook.

Of course this area was inhabited before the Europeans arrived. Numerous Native American villages sat along the Potomac and their inhabitants left behind their own artifacts. The museum displays some of the items found by archeologists in the county, including a stone ax head found on a local golf course.

Speaking of archeologists, did you know the AHS sponsored an archology dig at its second property, the Ball-Sellers House? Built in the 1740s by John Ball and his family (he had a wife and five daughters) it's the oldest surviving building in the county. It's open from 1-4 p.m. on Saturday afternoons from April into September.

Check the AHS website for more information: www.arlingtonhistoricalsociety.org/

Meet Carol and MJ. Carol and MJ are great buddies. They are also next door neighbors. Carol is 88 years old and MJ is 79. Carol moved to Hermitage Northern Virginia from Arlington about a year before MJ, who came from Montgomery County, Maryland. After moving, the two friends discovered a shared love of outdoor walks on the grounds of the community and around the quiet neighborhood streets. Carol focuses on her balance with a functional fitness class 4x a week and MJ enjoys reading in the library. Carol likes the many interesting people and MJ enjoys the many excursions and the reading club. It feels like a family here at Hermitage Northern Virginia.

Alison Priscilla Dough (I)

Note on School Board candidates: Virginia law requires all candidates for School Board to qualify for the ballot as independent candidates, although they may be supported or endorsed by a political party.

Virginia Voter ID

Virginia has voter identification requirements, plan to bring photo identification with you to vote, whether that is absentee or on Election Day.

Among accepted ID: valid Virginia Driver's License or Identification Card; valid Virginia DMV issued Veteran's ID card; valid U.S. Passport; other government-issued photo identification cards issued by the U.S. Government, the Commonwealth of Virginia, or a political subdivision of the Commonwealth; valid college or university student photo identification card from an institution of higher education located in Virginia; valid student ID issued by a public school or private school in Virginia displaying a photo; employee identification card containing a photograph of the voter and issued by an employer of the voter in the ordinary course of the employer's business.

Any registered voter who does not have one of the required forms of identification can apply for a free Virginia Voter Photo

Identification from any general registrar's office in the Commonwealth. Voters applying for the Virginia Voter Photo ID complete the Virginia Voter Photo Identification Card Application, have their picture taken, and sign the digital signature pad. Once the application is processed, the card will be mailed directly to the voter.

A voter who does not bring an acceptable photo ID to the polls will be offered a provisional ballot.

Provisional Ballot Process for Voters Who Arrive Without Identification

If you arrive at your polling place on Election Day without an acceptable form of photo identification, don't panic or give up. You will be given the opportunity to vote a provisional ballot. After completing the provisional ballot, the individual voting will be given written instructions from the election officials on how to submit a copy of his/her identification so that his/her vote can be counted.

A voter will have until noon on the Friday following the election to deliver a copy of the identification to the local electoral board or to appear in person to apply for a Virginia Voter Photo ID Card. Voters may submit a copy of their ID via fax, email, in-person submission, or through USPS or commercial delivery service. Note that the copy of the ID must be delivered to the electoral board by noon on Friday, or the provi-

This document may be provided to the electoral board to suffice the identification requirement.

Law Enforcement

The difference between Arlington's Police Department and Sheriff's Office.

BY VERNON MILES
THE CONNECTION

Some counties have Sheriff's Offices. Some cities have Police Departments. Arlington has both, and for newcomers to Arlington, the differences between the two can be confusing. While both have the ability to enforce laws, and Sheriff's Deputies can act as secondary law enforcement, the two branches of Arlington's law enforcement have distinct roles.

The Arlington Police Department carries out the criminal processes of Arlington's law enforcement. Arlington Police run patrols, investigate crimes, and make arrests. Once the accused is taken to the jail, then it becomes a job for the Sheriff's Office.

According to Major Bruce Black from the Arlington Sheriff's Office, the role of Arlington's Sheriff's Office is to oversee the jail and courthouse and to enforce civil processes, like serving eviction notices or protective orders.

In recent years, Black says the mission of the Sheriff's Office has undergone some changes.

Black said there's a common misconception that after someone is convicted, they are locked up and the key gets thrown away. Black calls this the "Mayberry Syndrome." But he says those days are over, and studies into high recidivism rates have forced Sheriff's Offices to recognize their responsibility to enact programs to help reform inmates. In Arlington, Black says this has manifested into programs like a kitchen school where inmates can finish their sentence with a certificate that will allow them to work in restaurants.

Another difference between the two organizations is that the Chief of Police is appointed by the County Board while the Sheriff is an elected, constitutional office.

What's in a Name? School Board considers renaming Arlington schools.

BY VERNON MILES
THE CONNECTION

No policy has officially been established yet, no final decisions have been made, but the writing is on the wall for Washington-Lee High School. One week ago, a series of violent clashes in Charlottesville over a statue of Robert E. Lee ended with an alleged white supremacist driving his car into a protest and killing 32-year-old Heather Heyer. Across the south, localities have been reexamining the role of the confederacy in local icons and names. At a School Board meeting on Aug. 17, School Board chair Barbara Kanninen announced that the board will be developing a naming guidelines system to reevaluate the names of all current and future schools. While Washington-Lee High School was not named specifically, it was clear speakers on both sides of the issue where the policy was targeted.

"All of us are extremely concerned and saddened by the violence that took place last weekend in Charlottesville," said Kanninen. "This has been a tragedy for our community, our state, and our nation."

Kanninen said the time had come to talk about the names of the schools and the messages they conveyed to the students in attendance.

"No decisions have been made or will be made without extensive community input and discussion," said Kanninen. "This process will take time, but we are getting started."

The feedback on the proposal started five minutes after it was announced with clear sides already established.

The majority of the speakers supported renaming Washington-Lee.

"The time has come to remove the name," said Ryan Sims. "Lee was an avowed white supremacist who took up arms against the United States to preserve the institution of slavery. Veneration of confederate icons throughout the south ensured every citizen understood that racist state and local institutions remained committed to denying the basic rights of African Americans, often violently so. Lee remains a potent symbol of hate."

For Mark Bealer from Indivisible Arlington, the name was antiquated and morally repugnant.

"Whatever we may attribute to Lee the man," said Roy, "Lee the symbol has become associated with that same thing."

ton, the name was antiquated and morally repugnant.

"It is hypocritical and shameful moral equivalence of those who fought for slavery and those who fought for independence," said Bealer.

Nick Roy, the father of three graduates from Arlington Public Schools, compared Lee and other symbols of the confederacy to the swastika. Roy, whose father is from India, said the symbol is a 5,000-year-old emblem of love and peace, but that as much as he might like it, he can't use it in his home because of its horrible associations in the west.

"But support for renaming the school was not universal. At the time of writing, a petition on getpetition.com to preserve the name Washington-Lee High School is 24 signatures shy of its 1,000 goal.

"Washington-Lee has been part of the lives of Arlington school children since the 1920s and has been one of the top high schools in the country throughout its existence," reads the petition. "To change the name of the school now is not reflective of W-L spirit nor W-L pride. Our pride is in our school. And our school's name was, currently is, and we hope will remain, Washington-Lee."

At the School Board meeting, the discussion was book-ended with those supporting the current name. John Peck, an alumni, said the 92-year-history of the school cannot be separated from the name, pointing especially to a 1966 basketball championship with an integrated team.

Mila Albertson, a graduate of the class of 1966 and president of the alumni association, opposed the renaming.

"The name Washington-Lee is exalted because of its graduates, not the men it's named after," said Albertson. "I'm being polite to those calling for renaming Washington-Lee when I say it is irrational. Do we change the name for Stratford because it was named after Lee's birthplace? Do we ban the Virginia state flag because it reminds us the commonwealth protected slave owners? Do we rename Virginia and all confederate states? Do we rename Richmond because it was the capital of the rebellion? President [Abraham] Lincoln called for reconciliation ... Can we not follow his magnanimous lead?"

"No decisions have been made or will be made without extensive community input and discussion. This process will take time, but we are getting started."

— School Board Chair Barbara Kanninen

What happened last year: The Knights won their 21st softball state championship in school history. They finished their season with a 23-5 record and defeated Norfolk Christian School 16-0 on May 20 to secure their 5th straight title.

Head coach Tommy Orndorff coached his 24th straight 20-win season in his 31st year as head coach.

O'Connell's all time softball state tournament record is 67-2.

Arlington 55+ Centers

The Office of Senior Adult Programs (OSAP), a unit of Arlington County's Department of Parks and Recreation, coordinates programs and activities at five 55+ senior centers and operates the 55+ Travel program. An annual registration with OSAP for $20, entitles seniors, age 55 and over, access to all 55+ centers and community centers with senior programming, plus local and regional travel opportunities and a subscription to the bi-monthly 55+ program guide. Each center offers programs in physical fitness, education, social, wellness and recreation. Taxicab transportation to and from 55+ senior centers is available through SCAT (Senior Center Adult Transportation) at a cost of $5 round trip. For more information, call OSAP at 703-228-4750.
