BY DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

Under the discerning direction of Helen Hayes Award recipient Nick Olcott, "My Name is Asher Lev" at 1st Stage is a burnished gem packed with acting prowess and terrific technical artisanship.

Winner of awards for theatrical achievement, "My Name is Asher Lev" is written by D.C. area playwright Aaron Posner. He adapted the play from a novel by Chaim Potok. Posner's script is a penetrating look into thorny relationships of a gifted young Jewish artist named Asher Lev seeking a respectful exodus from his cloistered upbringing in a post-Holocaust Brooklyn Hassidic community.

The production is told in a series of flashbacks. The Lev character is portrayed by Lucas Beck with an understated command of the moody, willful Lev. Beck is a founding artist of 1st Stage. As Lev, Beck is both a narrator speaking directly to the audience and the protagonist himself.

Beck never leaves the stage or falters as he weaves his way through the heartbreak of loving his parents, yet becomes convinced he must live by the commandment, "As an artist you are responsible to no one and to nothing, except to yourself and to the truth as you see it."

Other characters are played by Andy Brownstein as "The Men" and Hyla

Matthews as "The Women."

Brownstein is successful at providing distinct life for three characters. Brownstein is Asher Lev's domineering, distant father as well as the stormy provocateur Jacob Khan, an older artist who becomes Lev's mentor. Brownstein also portrays the Rebbe who is generally sympathetic to Lev.

Matthews' main stage character is as Asher Lev's affectionate mother who is also seeking her place in the world. Matthews is often a haunted presence, sunk in a fragile depression, while attempting to make sense of her headstrong son.

The "Asher Lev" design team adds immeasurable underpinnings to the show's success. Jessica Cancino has designed a homey set with three well-defined performance areas. The stage has large windows that become central to the play's path forward, especially as impressively lit by lighting designer Kristin A. Thompson. Marsha M. LeBoeuf's costumes are spot-on modest befitting the characters. Reid May's sound design is an awesome passage through a Klezmer repertoire with a fitting crossing into Dave Brubeck's composition "Take Five."

"My Name is Asher Lev" is a savvy tale of a struggle to find one's place when family, community and one's own need for individuality are at constant loggerheads.

‘A Disaster for Northern Virginia’

Connolly holds roundtable on congressional tax plan.

BY ANDREA WORKER

U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) says that he and his Democratic colleagues are more than willing to work in a bipartisan effort on meaningful tax form. “As a leader of the New Democrat Coalition, a group of pro-business Democrats, I have written on several occasions to Speaker Paul Ryan and Ways and Means Chairman Kevin Brady asking them to partner with us ... to simplify the tax code, create revenue ... and provide middle class tax relief.”

Speaking at a roundtable gathering that the congressman hosted at the offices of the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors (NVAR) on Monday, Nov. 13, to discuss the consequences of the GOP tax plans, Connolly says those overtures have been rejected.

“Congress had a real opportunity to pursue neutral tax reform that would lower corporate tax rates and benefit the middle class,” Connolly expressed “deep disappointment” at the House and Senate bills being proposed, categorizing both as “shameful, corporate giveaways” that will have unprecedented and far-reaching negative effects on Northern Virginia, the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the nation.

Connolly reported that by using “dynamic scoring” – a method of analysis that includes the potential feedback effect certain tax cuts can have, and that he said Republicans often advocate “because it provides more generous deficit projections for tax cuts” — the proposals actually increase the country’s deficit to $1.5 trillion over 10 years, “and somebody has to pay that bill.”

An assessment of the tax plans by Congress’ nonpartisan Joint Taxation Committee released on Monday, Nov. 20, seems to support the congressman’s concerns. The committee’s analysis projects that some 13.8 million moderate-income American households would actually see a tax increase as a result of the Senate plan by 2019. Households earning less than $200,000 per year would face increases of $100 to $500. The tax liability rises even more for earners between $75,000 and $200,000. According to the analysis, tax increases would be felt by 21.4 million households by the year 2025.

Connolly likened the plans to previously failed “trickle-down” attempts at tax reform and economic stimulus.

“1981, 2001, 2003. The Reagan and Bush tax cuts. So disastrous that they had to enact tax increases in 1982, 1983, 1984, 1987 and 1990” to raise the needed funds. “Then in the early 2000s, President George W.

U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) meets with local leaders to discuss the consequences of the proposed Senate and House GOP Tax Reform Bills. Connolly admitted from the start that he wasn’t there to “sing their praises.”

Bob Adamson, chairman of the board of the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors, views the proposed legislation as “unfair to homeowners,” and that they will have a negative “ripple effect” on the local economy and residents of the community.

Bush took the record surpluses of the Clinton era and created record deficits.” Connolly added that the trickle-down theory is based on “the hope and the prayer that such tax cuts will someday pay for themselves,” but that history has already proven “that assumption to be false.”

TO DISCUSS THE IMPACT of the proposed legislation on the Northern Virginia region, Connolly convened a group of local business leaders, economists and financial experts, as well as participants representing social service providers, persons with long-term medical and care needs, economists, parents of students with significant student debt, and seniors.

Connolly set the stage for the discussion with a few more facts and figures, although he cautioned that “we still haven’t seen the whole of either proposed legislation.”

* The plans either repeal or limit several tax breaks that are crucial to Northern Virginians, including medical and dental expense deductions, premiums for long-term care insurance, in-home and nursing home care, and mortgage interest deductions.

* The state and local income tax (SALT) deductions would be limited or even repealed. In Connolly’s 11th District, 50 percent of tax filers claim the SALT deduction, with 75 percent of the claimants being in middle income tax brackets. The number of SALT claimants throughout Fairfax County is as high as 280,000 households.

* The plans call for the repeal of Estate Tax, which only applies to about the wealthiest 5,000 decedents each year, while cutting adoption tax credits and credits for small businesses that invest in accessibility improvements for persons with disabilities.

* According to the Tax Policy Center, after-tax income for the top 1 percent of earners would rise by about 2.6 percent by 2027, while those at the bottom 80 percent would see after-tax increase of between 0.0 percent and 0.6 percent.

After Connolly’s remarks, Bob Adamson, chairman of the board of the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors, was the first of the gathering to offer comments.

Representing some 12,000 Realtors in the region, Adamson stated that the NVAR “wants to be part of the solution,” but finds the proposed legislation to be “unfair to homeowners,” disproportionately placing the burden of “filling in the financial gaps” directly on them.

NVAR Chair-elect Lorraine Arora agreed, adding that “real estate bolsters the economy” with so many related jobs and services, and that any plan that suppresses home buying will cause a “ripple effect of harm.”

The Realtors at the table also worried that the proposed tax reform will actually lower existing house values. NVAR CEO Ryan Conrad said that in the NoVa region, that decrease could be as much as $30,000 lost in home equity.

ADDITIONALLY, THE REALTORS foresee a decrease in housing stock that is already an issue, and even see Fairfax County’s successes toward ending and preventing homelessness, slip into reverse, as developers are less able than ever to profitably build affordable housing.

Continuing the “ripple effect” theme, JoAnne Carter, managing director of PFM Financial Advisors, LLC, said that the proposals threaten the means by which municipalities, nonprofits and other businesses fund their services and investments in improvements and expansion.

“Eliminating Private Activity Bonds and causing cuts to ‘advance refinancing,’” said Carter is severely hampering the ability to finance the basics, like “schools, roads, hospitals, transportation, airports, sea ports, all of it.”

That in turn “increases the burden on the counties,” said Adamson, while potentially depleting their main source of revenue. For municipalities like Fairfax County, that are, in essence, only able to raise funds through property taxation, the choices are dauntingly few. Either raise those taxes significantly, or reduce expenditure on infrastructure and public and social services.

“And if we damage our AAA Bond rating,” added Carter, “it costs more for these municipalities and service providers to borrow.” According to Carter, Fairfax County could save between $3-12 million when re-financing with a Triple A Bond rating. “Losing that could mean that public structures just don’t get built.”

Nancy Mercer, a licensed clinical social worker and the former executive director of the ARC of Northern Virginia, and Ridge Multop, an economist, former AARP Congressional Affairs and former House Budget Committee staffer, both discussed the impact the proposed tax bills could have on seniors, those with long-term care and/or medical issues, and those most in need and most vulnerable in the community.

Multop “put a face” on the discussion, speaking about an economist friend. “He’s 85 years old, on a fixed income, in assisted living. He looked at how these bills would impact him based on his 2016 tax filing and said it would raise his taxes by more than $3,000. How do people like him cope with that?”

Eliminating tax deductions for medical expenses and long-term care would be harmful to seniors, Multop said, possibly forcing more into custodial care and placing an additional burden on municipalities

Shop Locally, Give Locally

Every day is for shopping small and shopping locally.

An effort to support locally owned businesses has resulted in the recognition of Small Business Saturday, the Saturday after Thanksgiving. This year that is Nov. 25. Black Friday, the day after Thanksgiving, is promoted as a day of national zeal for shopping. Presumably the next day shoppers can focus on local shopping.

EDITORIAL There is a joy to shopping in local stores at the holidays, to walking along a sidewalk with the streets decked out for the holidays, to being greeted by someone likely to be the owner of the store, to finding gifts that are not mass-produced.

We all benefit when local stores thrive, when local business districts beckon.

Locally owned retail shops, services, restaurants depend on vibrant local communities to thrive. Most small, locally owned businesses invest in community, helping to transform our towns and communities with a sense of place.

Supporting small businesses, locally owned businesses, has to be more than a one-day affair. And in this area, there doesn't have to be anything small about shopping locally.

But still, local families will shop and exchange gifts during the next month, spending tens of millions of dollars in a variety of places.

One way to be sure holiday shopping comes with some holiday spirit is to do a portion of your shopping in some of the area's locally owned stores. There is special holiday ambience available by shopping in the heart of a town that is decked out for the season. Small retail shops are part of defining any community. Their livelihood depends on the livability and quality of the neighborhoods around them. A small business owner pays attention to every detail in his or her business in a way that no chain can.

The small business owner is often the leader for fundraising for local charities, for fire and rescue service, for local schools and in organizing holiday events.

Local shoppers should be sure to save some shopping time and dollars for local stores. Spend some time shopping in your own community, and also plan an excursion to a nearby town to check out the holiday spirit there.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Focus on Community Policing, Positive Outreach

To the Editor:

In response to: www.connectionnewspapers.com/news/2017/nov/08/commentary-independent-progressive-doublespeak-imm/

Fairfax County police officers do not conduct immigration enforcement sweeps or stop individuals solely to inquire about immigration status. Fairfax County police officers follow General Order 601 and cannot arrest someone unless there is reasonable suspicion that a crime was committed or is being committed.

Operation and policy decisions regarding the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center fall under the authority of the Sheriff, an elected constitutional officer, independent of the Board of Supervisors. Per Code of Virginia 19.2-83.2, when individuals are arrested and booked into the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center, their computerized fingerprints are automatically transmitted to the Virginia State Police's Automated Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS), regardless of their immigration status. The Virginia State Police forwards the information to other state and federal databases per their guidelines. From there, it is up to ICE to determine who is a priority for deportation. Before 2016, ICE operated under the Priority Enforcement Program and focused its efforts on deporting undocumented immigrants with serious criminal records. Under the Trump Administration, the Priority Enforcement Program no longer exists, and any immigrant who is in the country illegally may be selected by ICE for deportation.

If ICE places an arrest warrant and an order to detain on an inmate in the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center, the Sheriff's Office will hold that inmate for up to 48 hours (not counting weekends and holidays) past his or her scheduled release date. If ICE does not take custody of the inmate within that time frame, the inmate will be released.

The Board of Supervisors, the Police Department, the Sheriff's Office and all Fairfax County government agencies comply with state and federal laws, and immigration is a federal matter. Any changes regarding deportations or the focus and direction of ICE must come from the federal level. On the local level, we continue to focus on community policing through positive outreach and building trust with the residents we serve. All residents of Fairfax County should know that Fairfax County police officers are here to protect and serve any and all community members, regardless of citizenship. No person should be afraid to call the police out of fear of deportation — our police officers are not in that business.

Planning Changes to Planning Commission

Twelve-member commission endures multiple changes through grief, triumphs, retirement and more during 2017.

BY KEN MOORE

Two seats on the 12-member Fairfax County Planning Commission remain open.

And earlier this month, Hunter Mill District Supervisor Catherine M. Hudgins announced Frank de la Fe's decision to retire at the end of the calendar year.

"After 16 years of dedicated service, the Hunter Mill District Planning Commissioner Frank de la Fe has announced his intention to retire," Hudgins told the Board of Supervisors at its meeting on Nov. 2. De la Fe has served on the planning commission since 2001, and currently is vice chair.

Hudgins will appoint a new commissioner to begin on Jan. 28, 2018.

"We will have lots to say about Frank in the future," said Hudgins.

Sully District Supervisor Kathy L. Smith will also search for a new planning commissioner.

"I guess it's a day for Planning Commission announcements," she said at the supervisors' meeting.

Smith's Planning Commissioner Karen Keys-Gamarra announced her resignation effective Oct. 25. Keys-Gamarra won a special election in August to fill the at-large School Board seat vacated by Jeanette Hough two years into serving her four-year term. Hough resigned after her husband accepted a position overseas.

Of Keys-Gamarra, Smith said, "As much as I would have loved for her to continue as my planning commissioner, it's just not possible to do both jobs."

Springfield District Supervisor Pat Herrity followed.

"I have no news on my planning commissioner," he said. "That is good."

Herrity's Planning Commissioner is Peter Murphy who also serves as chair of the Planning Commission and was first appointed to the commission in 1982.

MURPHY ANNOUNCED at-large commissioner Janyce Hedetniemi's immediate resignation at the opening of the Planning Commission's public hearing on Oct. 26.

"It's a great loss to the commission, she knows it, we all know it," said Murphy. "We appreciate everything you have done for us."

Chairman Sharon Bulova appointed Hedetniemi in 2013 and plans to appoint her successor at the Board meeting on Nov. 21.

Murphy read a full version of Hedetniemi's statement to the commission:

"Tonight, I step away from this wonderful experience as an at-large member of the Fairfax County Planning Commission. ... From capital improvements to land use and parks, schools, the environment and more, here it is, we give it all, through regulations, procedures, judgement and intuition, always in public view, and sometimes until 2 in the morning."

"I am proud to have shared the title of commissioner with my esteemed colleagues," she wrote. "Commissioners, the honor has been mine. I wish you all the best in your continuing efforts for the betterment of Fairfax County."

THE PLANNING COMMISSION on Sept. 14 voted to change the start time of public meetings in January from 8:15 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., in part to encourage additional citizen participation and to keep meetings from lasting as late into the night.

The Planning Commission advises the Board of Supervisors on all matters related to land use in Fairfax County, a particularly busy time right now reviewing redevelopment along the Silver Line. The commission holds public hearings, often multiple times a week, and often brings together residents, developers and county planners to work through concerns and conflicts.

This includes the location and character of public facilities; amendments to the Comprehensive Plan; amendments to the Zoning Ordinance, the Public Facilities Ordinance, and the Subdivision Ordinance; rezonings and special exceptions; approvals of final development plans; and also sometimes advises the Board of Zoning Appeals.

Planning commissioners are appointed by the Board of Supervisors for four-year terms

Kenneth Lawrence,

Providence
District

on a staggered basis. Each of the nine supervisory districts has a representative, and three members are appointed at-large.

PHILLIP NIEDZIELSKI-EICHNER replaced Kenneth Lawrence as the Providence Planning Commissioner on Jan. 11, 2017.

Lawrence died in December 2016 after serving 13 years on the Planning Commission.

"Ken had a difficult role, responsibility for Providence District at an exciting time, doing new and ambitious things in Tysons and elsewhere," said colleague James Hart, at-large planning commissioner.

"His public service responsibility was a part of his core being. He gave the County all he had," said Hart.

Hart and Lawrence were sworn in on the same day 13 years ago.

"I could count on one hand the number of votes Ken and I disagreed in that 13 years. I couldn't begin to count the number of hours we spent in meetings together, so many topics," he said. "Ken's legacy added so much to Fairfax County. ... We absolutely will have more and better parks in Tysons thanks to him. His commitment improved our quality of life."

Oakton Church of the Brethren Hosts Christmas Craft Show

By COLIN STOECKER
THE CONNECTION

Thursday to Saturday, Nov. 16-18, was the Christmas Craft Show at the Oakton Church of the Brethren in Vienna. Hand-made holiday arts and crafts lined the tables, and the kitchen counter was filled with freshly baked home-made pies, vegetable soup and other baked goods.

The church held its 24th annual craft show and offered a chance for local residents to complete some early Christmas shopping or just pick up a freshly made pie from the church kitchen.

"I was so tired from baking, and my feet hurt, and I was driving home the other day and I saw a rainbow. I said, 'thank you God,'" said Mary Ellen Judd of Prince William County, a deacon and member of the Oakton Church of the Brethren since 1965. "It's such a great benefit to the community. I make everything from scratch, and volunteers help by peeling apples for the pies," she said.

Pat Reed, from Philmont, leader of the women's fellowship group at the church was in charge of the event. "We make it all by hand. A lot of people help out by chopping and peeling the vegetables for the soup. Another best seller are the beef salad sandwiches. A woman just came in here and tried to buy 50!" she said.

In addition to the food, as a holiday destination for shoppers, the church offered bargains that could not be matched anywhere else in town.

"People come here because our prices are reasonable. We have a lot of repeat customers year after year who come with new ideas. Our craft supply room offers materials for the artists to use as well, and the prices there you just can't beat," said Reed.

Shoppers Friday were enjoying the food and browsing the tables for the perfect gift or ornament to adorn their tree this year. Anna Bledsoe, of Chantilly, a mother and crocheter was surprised by the selection.

"The artistry will surprise you, and it will leave you with a lot of joy," said Bledsoe. "I had the apple pie and it was magnificent!" she said.

One of the artists who was selling products at the event was Stuart Allison Hindle. She utilizes the materials from the church and sells item in the craft sale. "It's an intimate community, promoting traditional crafts, which are going the way of the dodo," she said.

Hindle and her daughter come to participate in the event year after year, making bookmarks, cards, sachets, and table covers. "My daughter is raising money for the World Wildlife Fund, but this year the money will probably go to help all of the animals from the floods across the country," she said.

The main hall of Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church in Vienna was crowded with seniors who were provided a Thanksgiving luncheon Tuesday, Nov. 14. The meal – complete with turkey, stuffing, gravy, mashed potatoes, green beans, and pumpkin pie – was prepared by culinary students from the nearby Davis Career Center. "This is a wonderful service to the mature adults in the community," said Rema Smith, an office administrator with the Shepherd Center who sponsored the event in coordination with the Vienna Community Center, A First Class Move, and the town of Vienna.

teers here. Today we have around 100 people, from nursing and retirement homes. We do this in conjunction with the town of Vienna," said Estelle McNeil, a 65-year Vienna resident and former member of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

One of the organizers of the event, Beckyanne Theriot, the owner of A First Class Move, a local moving company that assists the elderly with their move from home into retirement communities, was holding her pet and mascot, Pearl the pug.

"This is my second year working at this event, and it's important to be closer. The people here are real and appreciate having the community being a part of their lives as much as we do. Pearl is our consultation therapy dog," Theriot said.

A barber shop quartet style band, the "Antiques Road Show," were wearing red matching jackets, with one of them was in a distinctive green jacket as they prepared to perform for the lunch audience.

Richard Kirkland and his wife Maria were sitting with Theriot and her pug enjoying the Thanksgiving lunch. Richard Kirkland is an air force WWII and Korean War veteran, and used to fly fighter planes.

"He's quite the ace," said Maria Kirkland. "He used to share a tent with Dick Bong and Tony McGuire in WWII. He also flew rescue missions with helicopters in Korea," she said.

"The food is great!" said Richard Kirkland.

and nonprofits. “We are cutting our social safety network, one strand at a time,” said Mercer.

Multop donned his economist’s hat once more to also note that so far he had heard no mention from the GOP plan makers of the debt service on the increasing deficit. “That’s another $200 billion in interest costs that I don’t hear them having accounted for.” Multop’s concern is that Medicaid, Medicare and Social Security benefits will become the targets to shore up the financial levee in the wake of these tax cuts and the domino effect of their implementation.

Another personalized example of the the proposed reforms was offered by attendee Edythe Kelleher. The executive director of Southeast Fairfax Development Corporation, Kelleher could have spoken about impacts to development in that region, but instead, told how cuts to student loan interest deductions and a proposal to tax teacher’s assistant stipends would affect her graduate-school son.

“He works, he goes to school, he lives frugally. We provided him with a cheap car.” Kelleher says that if a tax on the modest teacher’s assistant stipend is adopted, “that’s $6,000 more each year, and he doesn’t know where that money will come from.”

Connolly responded to this story by saying the need to educate for competitiveness in the world’s marketplace is greater than ever.

The congressman said that making getting an education even more difficult means “some will have to leave school. That’s hardly ‘making America great again.’”

As the session came to a close, NVAR CEO Conrad asked Connolly, “What’s your advice? What do we do next?”

In addition to the rally call to NVAR membership and AARP members, Connolly replied, “Run, don’t walk and immediately express your concerns to your representatives” at every level of government, and “tell everyone you know.

This plan does not reflect our values and priorities. We can and should do better than this.”

Welcome to the Club

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

“Some club,” as my late mother would likely scoff. And the club to which I refer is, to spin an old Groucho Marx joke: a club you’d rather not join especially if they’d have you as a member. This is of course, the cancer club, a club whose membership continues to grow despite worldwide efforts to the contrary. According to Medscape.com, one in two men and one in three women will be affected by cancer in their lifetime. Hardly a statistic to be ignored. And so, even though I had a rather uneventful/healthy upbringing and further on into adulthood, in late middle age, 54 and five months, Feb. 27, 2009, I was impacted and rudely awakened with a non-small cell lung cancer, stage IV diagnosis – out of the blue, and given a “13 month to two-year” prognosis to boot. As a life long non-smoker with no immediate family history of cancer, whose parents both lived well into their 80s, I was more inclined to worry about the Boston Red Sox pitching depth than I was about cancer.

But cancer, for the past nearly nine years has been my life and amazingly, so far anyway, not the cause of my premature death (what death isn’t ‘premature?’). And what brightens my day and lifts my spirits more than anything else (other than a Red Sox World Series Championship) is when I meet a newly-diagnosed lung cancer patient who exhibits the can/will do positive-type attitude necessary to endure the inevitable ups and downs to follow. To be selfish, it empowers me and strengthens my own resolve to live life to the fullest (it’s not as simple as saying it) and damn the torpedoes.

Within the last few months, I have met, over the phone, two such individuals. The first man, Lee, I met before he even had his first infusion. The second man, Mark, a bit more experienced, I met a year and a half after his first infusion. Each man was engaging, outgoing, confident, enthusiastic and quite frankly, happy to make my acquaintance. You see, after being given a less-than-desirable prognosis, it’s helpful to meet someone who, despite having received a similar diagnosis, has nevertheless managed to live almost nine years post diagnosis. (If he can do it, I can do it kind of feeling.)

As for me, the nearly nine-year survivor, meeting cancer patients who are at the beginning of their respective cancer journeys, helps me to reconnect with my roots, so to speak, and share and share alike some memorable experiences, both cancer-related and not. In a way, we get to live vicariously through one another which for me reinforces how lucky I’ve been to survive for as long as I have. And not that I need reminding, but it’s easy to take for granted one’s good fortune and forget – occasionally, the seriousness of my situation and the cloud that hangs over my head. The sword of Damocles has got nothing on me, literally or figuratively. Living with cancer is akin to nothing really. The chance that you’ll survive beyond your prognosis, maybe even have your tumors shrink, or see your scans show “no evidence of disease,” creates a kind of tease that cause your emotions to run the gamut. The possibility of living after being told you’re dying – and vice versa, perhaps more than once, over your abbreviated – or not, life expectancy, is simply too much to handle/absorb sometimes. It’s a roller coaster for sure, but one that rarely comes to a complete stop and never allows you to get off. Moreover, it’s not multiple rides, it’s one long, endless ride with no guarantees about what happens next – or where it even happens.

Meeting people who are ready, willing and able to confront their cancer future is just as important and stimulating as meeting someone like me who hasn’t succumbed to this terrible disease. It’s a win-win situation. Particularly significant when at date of diagnosis, it appeared to be a lose-lose. I’m proud to be a member of the cancer club, especially so when I meet people like Lee and Mark.

Oakton Presents 'Orphie and the Book of Heroes'

Grab your sword and your children, because Greek mythology is about to get even more epic. Take the family chariot down to Oakton High School Dec. 1-2 to see their production of "Orphie and the Book of Heroes."

Join the spunky young Orphie on her quest through Ancient Greece as she tries to save a kidnapped Homer and his famed Book of Heroes from Hades. On her journey, Orphie encounters a rollerskating Hermes, an egotistical Heracles, and more classic characters with modern twists from favorite myths. The audience will be enchanted by the songs of the (hilariously catty) Sirens and transported into the colorful world of Mount Olympus as Orphie learns that "stories can show you who you truly are" and proves along the way that even "scrawny little orphan girls" can be heroes.

Energetic, funny, and entertaining for all audiences, this family-friendly show is a must-see. Orphie and the Book of Heroes runs Dec. 1 at 7 p.m. and Dec. 2 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the Oakton High School Robert "Skip" Bromley Auditorium. Buy tickets online at oaktondrama.org or at the door for $10.
