Federal Tax Reform, Bad for Fairfax?

Supervisors split on effects of eliminating state and local tax deductions.

BY KEN MOORE

Most often, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors appears unified. But last week, discussion about the pending tax reform measure in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives sparked discord.

“My primary concern on the federal package is that we are emphasizing on page one opposition to federal tax reform and that is a position that I simply do not agree with,” said Braddock Supervisor John Cook.

The board adopted its updated and revised strategies and principles for the 115th Congress on Tuesday, Dec. 5, despite objections voiced by Cook and Springfield Supervisor Pat Herrity, the two Republicans on the 10-person board.

“The concept of reducing tax rates and eliminating deductions is one needed for the national economy and I am disappointed that despite my requests and Supervisor Herrity’s requests, the board is only looking at one side of the tax reform issue and that is the elimination of deductions, and not looking at the other side which is the economic growth potential that come with the other aspects of it,” Cook said.

MAJOR TAX REFORM packages have passed both the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives, and a reconciled bill is expected to affect almost every aspect of the economy. The measures differ, but both increase the standard deduction and eliminate or cap many itemized deductions, including the deduction for state and local taxes and the deduction for mortgage interest payments.

In Virginia, 1.5 million households claim $16.5 billion in state and local tax deductions, according to U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11). Connolly said in a release that 280,000 households claim this deduction in Fairfax County, for an average deduction of $16,535.

“As a matter of fact, that [federal tax] bill was structured in a way, in my opinion, to explicitly discriminate against more urban localities across the country which do have higher assessed values,” said Lee Supervisor Jeff McKay, “and in a lot of cases higher tax rates because they believe morally that we must provide certain services for our population.”

Page 1 of the Board of Supervisors Strategies and Principles for the 115th Congress expresses concern about changes in tax policy:

“Because revenue options for localities in Virginia are extremely limited, the County opposes actions that impact County revenue sources or programs, including eliminating or capping federal deductibility for state and local taxes, which are used to fund education, public safety, transportation, infrastructure and human services (current law allows taxpayers to deduct state and local taxes paid from their federally taxable income, preventing double taxation and allowing state and local governments to maintain authority over the tax structures supporting those services).”

JOHN FOUST, Dranesville District supervisor, found Cook’s opinion hard to take.

“I just have to say, I just cannot accept that the tax package that is before the federal government is anything but destructive to local government which is where things are actually getting done these days,” Foust said.

“To support elimination of the real estate tax deduction as a member of a Board of Supervisors, the local government, to me is just unbelievable,” he said. “We absolutely are going to suffer, not just our local government, but, across the nation, local governments are going to suffer as a result of this tax package. We have to do everything we can to stop this.”

Herrity countered, “You can’t talk about that piece of it while ignoring the fact you’re doubling the standard deduction and the value that brings especially to our low income residents.”

“I’m failing to understand anyone who believes this tax bill was built and predicated on helping low income people,” said McKay, chair of the Board’s legislative committee. “I’m surprised I’m hearing it here today.”

“Over 60 percent of our budget is built on revenue from real estate. To mess with or tinker with our largest source of revenue in any way that can have an effect on what people can sell their property for, what people can afford to buy and what their bottom line is and how that bottom line affects the county’s revenue — to ignore that would be absurd,” McKay said. “It absolutely will have an effect and local governments across the country see that.”

“I was going to be silent, but I think it is hard to do so,” said Catherine Hudgins, Hunter Mill District supervisor. “The tax package really sounds like something that is going to be very destructive in the long term.”

“Essentially this is taxing taxes, taxing tax revenues and doubling taxation,” said Chairman Sharon Bulova.

Cook did not budge.

“I have to disagree vehemently with the statement that the tax bill takes away from our local tax revenue. It’s absolutely false. It’s absolutely false,” said Cook.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM WITH A SIDE OF OPTIMISM?

During the same board meeting on Dec. 5, supervisors formally adopted the 2018 Legislative Program for the General Assembly, with a note of optimism based on changes in the makeup of the House of Delegates because of last month’s elections.

Dan Storck, Mount Vernon District supervisor, said: “With recent elections we have the opportunity to change some of the dynamics, and some of the focus, and some of the results that we get from Richmond. That’s essential for this county, essential for the wellbeing of residents here and I would say particularly for schools.”

Jeff McKay, chair of the board’s legislative committee and Lee District supervisor reiterated the importance of schools as the county’s top priority, citing particular concerns about state failure to provide any funds for teacher raises in FY17, and very limited funds in FY18.

“Our [state legislative] program features state support for education as its top priority, and urges the state to fully meet its responsibility to adequately fund K-12,” said McKay.

Virginia ranks 11th nationwide in per capita personal income, but 48th in state and local revenue as a percentage of personal income. Virginia ranks 38th nationwide in state per pupil funding. State K-12 spending per FCPS pupil was $3,267 in FY 2016, while Fairfax County provided $10,526.

TRANSPORTATION IS another priority.

“In this year’s program, we’ve also elevated our WMATA position into its own priority statement which encourages the General Assembly to support dedicated funding and governance reforms for Washington Metrorail.”

The region will have to work together to address Metro’s critical funding needs, McKay said.

On other transportation issues, McKay emphasized the importance of transportation funding that is fair to Northern Virginia.

The Human Services Issues paper, which accompanies the legislative program, includes three priorities, according to McKay. “The first is increased state resources for the Children’s Services Act. The second relates to increasing waiver rates and slots for those with developmental disabilities. And the third is state support for diversion services for nonviolent offenders experiencing mental health crises; this is in line with the county’s diversion first initiative.”

Herrity, Springfield District supervisor, was the lone vote against the legislative program this year. The program was adopted, including the Human Services issue paper, on Tuesday, Dec. 5.

NEW BRIDGE OVER THE POTOMAC?

The Legislative Program asserts the importance of addressing capacity and congestion crossing the Potomac River.

“The American Legion Bridge, one of the most heavily used in the region, is also the most congested. .... Since the largest number of vehicles traversing the American Legion Bridge travel between Fairfax and Montgomery Counties, the chokepoint created by this bridge requires long-term solutions. ... The volume of commuters demonstrate that another crossing is essential to mobility in the area. ... It is vital that the capacity needs across the Potomac River be addressed, including at the American Legion Bridge and Rosslyn Tunnel, to alleviate the existing congestion.”

Moving Ahead with Dog Park Design

Both proposed sites are at the former Westmore School.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Last spring, the Fairfax City Council approved $50,000 for the design and construction of a dog park in its FY '18 budget. And it's now given the go-ahead for the design work to proceed.

The space will be a place for dogs to exercise and play off-leash – under supervision by their owners – in a controlled environment. It's slated to go on part of the site of the former Westmore School at 11000 Berry St. in Fairfax. It will have access to on-site water and will be surrounded by a 5-foot-high fence.

At a recent, City Council work session, Parks and Recreation Director Cathy Salgado said, "We'd like consensus to move forward so we can get the design underway. We'd like to get the dog park built before next summer."

She said it would be about 10,000 square feet and could go on two, possible locations – where the school building was or on an asphalt parking lot to the east of that spot. "The old, school footprint is flat, has access to parking and would need shade structures," said Salgado. "The parking lot is smaller and deteriorating, but has a nice shade tree."

THE DESIGN will examine both locations to determine which one would be best suited for the dog park, which will operate from dawn to dusk. And, said Councilwoman Janice Miller, "We need the asphalt not just repaired, but really brought up to standards."

"Once we have a design and do community outreach, we can see which location would be best for it and for the community it'll serve," said Salgado. "A grass surface doesn't last long, and turf is too expensive, so we're looking at stone dust. It's inexpensive and maintenance-free, and dogs like to dig in it."

And with option two – the parking lot – Salgado said they'd be putting a pervious surface on what was previously an impervious surface, so that's better for the environment and stormwater runoff. She also noted that people are expected to both drive and walk to the dog park.

Regarding the potential for naming rights, she said, "There are all sorts of possibilities. Once we get further down the line, we'd like to do some fundraising. And there'll be opportunities to name a bench, a water fountain, etc."

"We have a number of pet stores in the City," said Councilwoman Ellie Schmidt. "So there's a lot of potential for financing there."

Salgado further explained that 10,000-square-foot dog parks generally have a 30-40 dog maximum, and "We'll have signage saying it. And this will be a fenced dog park. [City] staff would pick up trash, check for safety issues and see how things are running."

Councilman Michael DeMarco asked if Westmore is considered public, open space, and Brooke Hardin, the City's director of Community Development and Planning, responded. "It's identified as public, open space in the City's Comprehensive Plan," said Hardin. "But a dog park there would require a special-use permit, and it would cover the entirety of the property."

THE COMPLETED DESIGN will be reviewed by the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB), the Board of Architectural Review and City Council. The Council members will also discuss the proposed design during a future, public work session. City residents will also get to have their say during a public hearing on the project.

The design and review process can take as long as nine months. But public outreach will be ongoing, and people are welcome to review and comment on the dog park plans.

Pleased with what he'd heard, Fairfax Mayor David Meyer told Salgado, "You have unanimity to give the go-ahead to staff to do the design and the two, location assessments."

"You have unanimity to give the go-ahead to staff to do the design and the two, location assessments."

Save Healthcare for Children Right Now

If U.S. Senate fails to act soon, 69,000 children and pregnant women in Virginia, more than 8 million nationally, will lose health coverage.

The Children's Health Insurance Program, CHIP, provides health coverage to low-income, children with family incomes too high to qualify for Medicaid, up to 200 percent of the federal poverty level in Virginia, up to $49,200 for a family of four. In Virginia, coverage under CHIP is called Family Access to Medical Insurance Security (FAMIS) and covers more than 69,000 children and pregnant women. More than 8.4 million children are covered nationally under CHIP.

Ironically, families with children covered under FAMIS (note that the S stands for "security") will receive letters this week letting them know that their medical insurance security ends in January unless the U.S. Senate acts to reauthorize (fund) CHIP by the end of the year. The House of Representatives passed a bill to reauthorize CHIP in November, funding it mostly through cuts to programs in the Affordable Care Act.

The letter to Virginia FAMIS participants reads:

"We are sending you this letter because these people in your family are enrolled in FAMIS or FAMIS MOMS:

"FAMIS and FAMIS MOMS are paid for by state and federal funds through the Children's Health Insurance Program known as CHIP. For 20 years CHIP has had the strong support of Congress and has been renewed many times. We are hopeful that Congress will once again provide the funding to continue this program. However, because Congress has not acted yet, we need to let you know that there is a chance the FAMIS programs may have to shut down.

"If Congress does not act soon, the FAMIS programs will end on Jan. 31, 2018."

Having tens of thousands of uninsured children is bad health policy for every Virginian. It's better for all children in school to have all children be able to access health care, both preventative care and care when they are sick.

According to a recent publication in the New England Journal of Medicine:

"The body of evidence summarized here indicates that coverage expansions significantly increase patients' access to care and use of preventive care, primary care, chronic illness treatment, medications, and surgery. These increases appear to produce significant, multifaceted, and nuanced benefits to health.

"Some benefits may manifest in earlier detection of disease, some in better medication adherence and management of chronic conditions, and some in the psychological well-being born of knowing one can afford care when one gets sick. ... Some of these changes will ultimately help tens of thousands of people live longer lives.

"Conversely, the data suggest that policies reducing coverage will produce significant harms to health, particularly among people with lower incomes and chronic conditions."

Also, having health coverage leads to greater financial security, and that helps the economy. "There is abundant evidence that having health insurance improves financial security," according to the same study.

Virginia's U.S. Senators Mark Warner and Tim Kaine have repeatedly called for a vote to reauthorize CHIP.

Yesterday, they said, "Today is a scary day for a lot of families in Virginia, and it was completely preventable. We asked Senator McConnell multiple times to help us support the 66,000 children and 1,100 pregnant women in Virginia who receive their health care through the CHIP program, but Republican leadership still hasn't brought it forward for a vote. There is a bipartisan bill on the table, and it's critical that we pass it before Congress leaves for the holidays so we can give some peace of mind to Virginia parents who are worried about whether their children will have health insurance in the new year."

We wish everyone peace of mind in the New Year.

COMMENTARY

A Matter of Perspective

BY JEAN JIANOS

In Washington, D.C. it is common to see a tourist posing for a photo, trying to create the illusion that they are holding one of the monuments in the palm of their hand. A similar kind of photo was prominently displayed as a party gag at a birthday party for a friend. The man celebrating his birthday was shown in the photo talking with his hands. In the background of the photo was a bikini-clad friend, creating the illusion that he was cupping her breast in his hand, in effect groping her. Hilarious, right?

The man being roasted by his friends acted sheepishly, but he was not really embarrassed. After all, he was depicted as being in control and the dominant figure in the photo.

The female friend who was also present at the party was mortified and left the room angry and close to tears. Overreacting, right? No sense of humor.

Perhaps another person would have laughed it off in an attempt to regain equal footing with all the other party guests, but then none of us would have recognized this for what it was — one of "those situations."

She purposely had not been consulted about the use of the photo because it was suspected she would object to her body being used as the brunt of a sexist joke. Her friends, a group of men and women, thought she shouldn't mind too much because she looked good in her bikini, but that was not our decision to make.

In that moment when the photo was revealed she went from being a peer to a prop. We were using someone else's body for our own entertainment and satisfaction at the expense of their dignity. We had put that other person in a position where they couldn't object before the fact and would feel bullied into not objecting after the fact. There is a right and a wrong. The only matter of perspective is whether we see it.

Armed as For a War Zone

To the Editor:

I have followed the gun control correspondence with dismay. I hope nobody is under the misapprehension that a few tweaks like better gun purchase checks, closing some loopholes and clamping down on some fast fire gadgetry — all in themselves desirable — will somehow make a significant difference to America's national disgrace. While every gun death reduced is good, we are still not even in the right ballpark in dealing with the scale of the problem.

The reason Britain has negligible gun deaths compared to America is that gun ownership is very low, about 7 percent of America's figure, and guns are heavily regulated. As a result, there is no arms race between potential attacker and attacked and no arms race between criminal and police.

Most of the recent gun control proposals have been, frankly, marginal fiddling and a sop to our consciences. If enacted, they would barely inconvenience the NRA.

Without drastic reduction in the number of guns — by say 80 percent — alongside very tight gun type and use restrictions, we will continue to live in a country where deer get far better protection than humans and where daily slaughter of children and adults is normal.

Wringing our hands and pretending, almost weekly, that we are still trying to understand the reasons for this global anomaly — gun deaths at 45 times the UK — may make us feel better but it falls way short of solving the problem. If the number of guns is not drastically reduced then we had better just hunker down and get used to another century of this madness.

But please, let's not wring our hands and ask why it happens. We know the answer to that. Per hundred people, we have twice the number of guns in Yemen! We are armed as for a war zone.

AREA ROUNDUPS

Seminars on Keeping Your Faith-Based Organization Safe

Back by popular demand, FCPD Crime Prevention Unit is hosting two free Worship Watch seminars in the coming weeks. Implemented in 2015, Worship Watch is a program similar to Neighborhood Watch, but catered towards houses of worship and keeping them safe. The seminars open a line of communication between congregants and officers, and attendees receive crime prevention tips and training specific to protecting their places of worship.

The first seminar is on Saturday, Dec. 16 from 9 a.m. until noon at the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Springfield and the second seminar is on Wednesday, Jan. 3 at the new Public Safety Headquarters in Fairfax from 6 to 9 p.m. Due to space limitations, registration is required for each seminar. See below for exact addresses and a registration link for each.

The seminars are the same. Register for one workshop to allow others the opportunity to attend as well.

Filler-Corn Appointed Co-Chair Commerce and Trade Policy Council

Del. Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41) was appointed as Co-Chair of the Commerce and Trade policy council of Governor-Elect Northam's transition committee along with the President of George Mason, Angel Cabrera. "I consider it an honor and privilege to serve in this capacity on the transition committee and appreciate the trust that the Governor-Elect has put in our Council," said Filler-Corn. She also mentioned that she looks forward to ensuring the new administration continues Governor McAuliffe's legacy to bring jobs and businesses to our Commonwealth.

Filler-Corn, herself, is a veteran of the gubernatorial administrations of former Governors and current U.S. Sens. Mark Warner and Tim Kaine. She also served on the transition committee of current Gov. Terry McAuliffe.

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Creating a Free-Flowing Kitchen

Remodel yields brighter space.

When Alexis and Jason Sabloff decided it was time to remodel their kitchen, the Herndon homeowners set out with a goal of creating a modern space, improving the lighting and replacing appliances.

They enlisted the help of Winn Design + Build. The team, which consisted of owner Michael Winn, architect Amy Finch, designer Jennifer Hall and carpenter Diego Cabrera, was tasked with creating a free-flowing and aesthetically appealing space without changing the existing footprint.

The 302-square-foot kitchen was long, narrow, dark and accessorized with "too-tall soffits, a funky green tiled floor and insufficient lighting," said Hall.

The family wanted to redesign the space so that it flowed seamlessly into the family room to allow for easy entertaining. Hall says that the homeowners also wanted to relocate the existing pantry, create a mudroom and generally improve the circulation, utility and aesthetics of the kitchen and surrounding areas.

dark wood cabinets with Hanover door style cabinetry in Glacier White to create a light and airy feel. The Winn team replaced the green tile with a hardwood that matches the flooring in the rest of the home. They also rearranged the appliances and breakfast table to make the kitchen appear more spacious.

A Kitchen for the Ages

When empty nesters Mike Rogan and Sue Shaffer decided to move out of the Arlington home where they had lived for 27 years, they embarked on a two-year search for a new abode. They were looking for a home where they could age in place and have space for live-in caretakers if needed.

They settled on a McLean home and hired Rill Architects to redesign it, creating an open floor plan that allowed for entertaining. The design team created a space that connects the kitchen to the family room, dining room, rear patio and garage.

The Rogans wanted the kitchen to have an island, multiple workstations, clean lines with Victorian detailing and enough space for multiple cooks.

The design team incorporated the Rogan's love of casual and modern. "The painted wood ceiling and traditional casing with an arched pass-through play off the more contemporary cabinets and glass tile backsplash, creating both a sleek and casual inviting space for family gathering and team cooking," said Jim Rill.

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Long-Anticipated Home Remodel

Proves perfect for holiday entertaining.

BY JOHN BYRD

There's something quite satisfying about finally getting exactly what you want after years of anticipation, especially as the holidays roll around.

"I really saw this past Thanksgiving how well our re-designed home fulfills a whole host of plans," according to the couple, speaking of the completely re-furnished mid-century modern house on Lake Barcroft they recently occupied after extensive remodeling.

Looking back, the owners' far-reaching "wish list" was never assured. The couple had been looking for a lakeside house for years, but couldn't find anything suitable for a young family with two children just starting school.

Then last year the couple hired design consultant Roger Lataille of Sun Design Remodeling. The task: assess the rehabilitation possibilities of a circa 1950's mid-century modern actually situated on the lake.

Sun Design Remodeling had come with a considerable resume, having renovated some 30 Lake Barcroft residences. Still, at just over 2,000 square feet, the house under consideration seemed too small for the decades of occupancy that may lay ahead.

On the other hand, the water-side view was exceptional, and Sun Design Remodeling offered both an attractive design/build approach and a versatile creative team.

"They wanted a house that would work for them long into the future," Lataille recalls. "We saw our goal as not only adding usable new space, but enhancing a classic style."

The house "begged for a bold visual continuum," the designer said. For instance, the existing interior was formed around a "boxy" floor plan with an enclosed kitchen visually sequestered from the beautiful view, and a wall between the living room and dining room.

The contrast between the old plan and the emerging vision was a textbook case of how "space-use expectations have changed in the American home in the past 25 years" the designer said.

Perhaps not coincidentally, the couple had also gradually concluded that the traditional floorplans such as the one in the Arlington home the couple had previously owned wasted too much space. The front-facing living room was seldom used; ditto the formal dining room.

TO ACCOMMODATE master suite requirements, Lataille proposed adding a top level addition with a large master bath and walk-in closet. Truss joists calibrated to meet new load-bearing requirements reconcile the challenges of building on a beveled roof.

With the location of the master suite now resolved, the second floor gains re-deployable floor space, gaining a washer/dryer closet off the hallway.

Meanwhile, the most compelling feature in the primary living area is a steel moment frame which replaces the old window wall, and provides the tensile strength needed to support the new master suite.

By highlighting the elemental drama of woodland and lake, expansive wall-to-wall glazing invites an interior design treatment that explores textural surfaces, period furniture design and contrasting lights and darks.

Overhead, large-format structural beams wrapped in walnut-stained pine present a vivid contrast to the white tongue-and-groove ceiling. Waterfall Silestone counter surfaces and hardwood flooring neutralize, while the mid-century accents of the stools, chairs and even a bright turquoise sectional in the living room present eye-catching intimations of a resurgent American style.

Morgan Hutchinson, Sun Design's specialty designer, said, "Finding a balance that respects a classic style and [the couple's] personal tastes was the real nature of the assignment. The design explores unique rustic elements along with a new generation of kitchen innovations. The goal was to make a statement that can last, yet be easily adapted."

Six Overdoses by Deadly Strain of Heroin

Police believe six overdose deaths last week, five from opioids in Alexandria, Fairfax Station, McLean, Clifton, and Fairfax, were caused by a deadly strain of heroin.

"In my 20 years in Narcotics, I have never seen anything like this," according to Second Lt. James Cox of the Organized Crime and Narcotics Division.

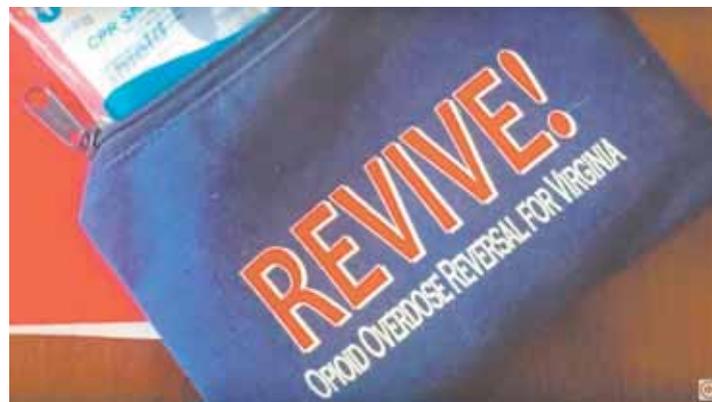

According to the Fairfax County Police Department, "Our detectives believe there are batches of heroin currently on our streets which could be laced with fentanyl and carfentanyl, synthetic opioids which can be lethal even in the smallest doses."

Police won't know conclusively until lab results are conducted and concluded.

"The opioid crisis is an epidemic affecting localities everywhere," according to Lee District Supervisor Jeff McKay.

"We need to work together to end this tragic addiction by helping those using and their families," he said.

Since the start of 2017, there have been 102 fatal overdoses in Fairfax County; 70 percent have already been confirmed to be opioid related, according to police.

A kit used to attempt to revive people who have succumbed to potential opioid overdose, used in training volunteers.

Symptoms of opioid overdose include: loss of consciousness, nausea or vomiting, pinpoint pupils, snore-like gurgling sounds, low, shallow or erratic breathing, bluish, purple or ashen skin color, and fingernails turning blue or close to black.

"We don't want to see anyone else die. Please have a plan in place. You may remain anonymous," said Cox.

Police urge people to call 911 if someone has overdosed. Fairfax County Fire and Rescue personnel carry Narcan, a medicine that can reverse an overdose when used quickly and correctly.

Narcan is available without a prescription at local pharmacy stores in Virginia.

Free training on how to use Narcan is available through the Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board.

"If you or someone you know needs help to overcome drug dependence, please call the Community Services Board at Merrifield Center at 703-573-5679 to help find appropriate treatment and recovery services," according to police. "Walk-ins are also welcome Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m."

Dog Killed in Suspected Coyote Attack in Annandale

Wildlife officials provide safety tips and information.

A dog is believed to have been killed overnight Sunday in a suspected coyote attack in the 7000 block of Bradley Circle in Annandale. The pet had been let out in the backyard of a home to use the bathroom, and could not be located by its owner hours later. When the owner went back out to look again, the dog was found dead just outside the yard. An animal matching the description of a coyote had been seen nearby both before and after the suspected attack — according to FCPD news release.

Wildlife officials have experienced an increase in the number of calls reporting coyote sightings in recent weeks across Fairfax County. Coyotes are now established and widespread in Fairfax County so it is important for residents to know and understand a bit more about them in order to safely co-exist with these secretive wild neighbors.

Coyotes are medium to large sized members of the canine family, which includes wolves, foxes, and dogs. They have pointed and erect ears, a long, slender snout, and a bushy tail pointed downward. Fur coloration varies from reddish-brown to tan, gray or black with a pale blaze on the chest. The tail usually has a black tip and is held downward while running. Coyotes average 30-40 pounds but can weigh as much as 60 pounds.

Wildlife officials have experienced an increase in the number of calls reporting coyote sightings in recent weeks across Fairfax County.

COYOTES PLAY an important ecological role as a natural predator that may help to regulate and balance other wildlife prey species that are abundant in Fairfax County. Coyotes are opportunistic foragers with diverse diets that commonly prey on small animals such as rodents and rabbits but will also readily eat reptiles, amphibians, insects, fruits, plants and carrion. Coyotes may also take larger prey such as turkeys and white-tailed deer (primarily fawns).

Coyotes are seldom encountered but probably live nearby, even if you haven't seen them. Pets left unattended outside may be at risk to coyotes, especially during nighttime and early morning hours. Coyotes may mistake small, unattended pets including cats and small dogs as prey due to their similar size to natural prey. Coyotes are territorial and may view larger dogs as a threat. This behavior may be more pronounced during the mating season (January-March) and when coyotes are caring for their young (March-August). Wildlife officials recommend that residents maintain supervision over pets when outdoors and keep them inside whenever possible to reduce encounters with coyotes and other wildlife.

Most coyote encounters in residential areas stem from attractants in the form of available food or den sites. In urban areas, garbage, compost and pet food may become alternative food sources. Feeding or unintentionally providing food for coyotes is a primary concern by wildlife officials as these actions may result in coyotes becoming less wary of humans or cause them to display bold and aggressive behaviors.

Unprovoked coyote attacks on humans are very rare. In most cases where coyotes have acted aggressively, a coyote is responding to the presence of a dog, is in close proximity of a den with pups, or has become too comfortable around humans, often a result of people feeding them.

PRECAUTIONS should be taken in areas where coyotes are active to minimize encounters with people and their pets. Preventive practices such as reduction and removal of food attractants, habitat modification and responding appropriately when interacting with wildlife are keys to minimizing the likelihood of conflicts with coyotes.

- ❖ Never feed or attempt to "tame" a coyote.
- ❖ Place garbage and compost in an animal-proof container, such as a metal trash can with latches on the lid or secure with bungee cords.
- ❖ Keep trash inside until the morning of trash pick-up whenever possible.
- ❖ Do not feed pets outside or store pet food outside.
- ❖ Pick up ripe, fallen fruit and do not let it accumulate on the ground.
- ❖ Put away bird feeders at night to avoid attracting small rodents and other coyote prey.
- ❖ Trim shrubbery to ground level to remove hiding cover.
- ❖ Close up all openings under porches/decks, crawl spaces or out-buildings where animals might establish dens.
- ❖ Keep small pets inside and do not leave unattended when outside.
- ❖ Keep dogs on short leashes (less than 6 feet) while walking outside.
- ❖ Provide secure shelters for poultry, rabbits, and other vulnerable animals.

Coyotes Widespread in County

❖ Be alert at dusk and dawn. Coyotes are most active at night and early morning hours; however, they may be active during the day in search of food or denning sites.

IF A COYOTE IS SIGHTED around your residence, let it know it will not be tolerated. Use hazing techniques to frighten coyotes from the property or exclusion measures to restrict their access in areas where they are unwanted. In some cases, repeat hazing attempts may be necessary to get a coyote to leave an area.

- ❖ Do not run from a coyote.
- ❖ From a safe position, yell and wave your arms at the coyote.
- ❖ Use noisemakers such as whistles, air horns, bells, "shaker" cans full of marbles or pennies, or pots and pans banged together.
- ❖ Throw non-edible objects in the direction of the coyote including sticks, small rocks, cans, or tennis balls.
- ❖ Spray the coyote with a water hose.
- ❖ Install motion sensor lights or a motion-activated sprinkler around your home.

❖ Install fencing to keep coyotes out of yards. Fencing should be at least 6 feet tall, have an outward slanting overhang or roller-type device to prevent coyotes from climbing or jumping, and have an L-shaped mesh apron buried one to two feet to deter digging. Few fences are completely coyote-proof.

If these techniques do not solve the problem, Virginia regulations allow nuisance coyotes to be removed by a licensed trapper or critter removal service. It is illegal in Virginia to trap and relocate wildlife to another area.

If coyotes are behaving aggressively or appear sick or injured, contact the Animal Protection Police through the Fairfax County Police non-emergency number at 703-691-2131.

For additional information on managing wildlife interactions and resolving human-wildlife conflicts, the Virginia Wildlife Conflict Helpline is available toll-free at 855-571-9003, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. This helpline is a collaborative effort between the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries and the U.S. Department of Agriculture – Wildlife Services.

Mental Health Services for Youth Expanded in 2017

The Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board (CSB) began offering same-day, in-person screening for adults with mental health and/or substance use concerns in July 2015 and extended same-day access service to youth in late 2016. More than 500 youth and families have been served this year.

According to a recent national survey, "The State of Mental Health in America 2018," Virginia is ranked high in several categories concerning the mental health of today's youth: 12th in youth with alcohol dependence and illicit drug use, seventh in youth alcohol dependence, 10th in illicit youth marijuana use and eighth in youth cocaine use. More than half of people who took the online depressive screening (in Virginia) had thoughts of self-harm or suicide nearly every day. According to the report, youth are at risk – 62 percent of female youth and 52 percent of male youth scored as having moderately severe or severe depression.

Same-day access is considered a best practice in behavioral health, and the CSB staff has worked to make this system change. Fairfax County Public Schools, the county's Department of Family Services and other agencies began referring families and youth to the CSB for same-day walk-in services on Nov. 1, 2016, as a "soft launch" for the service. Since that date, more than 500 young people have sought screenings and/or assessments. If a family and/or individual prefers to schedule an appointment for a screening or assessment, they may still do so by calling 703-383-8500.

In August, CSB's youth walk-in screening staff became a referral source to the Short-Term Behavioral Health Service Program (STBHS). Young people with mental health needs, such as depression and anxiety, can receive 6-8 sessions of outpatient counseling using evidence-based approaches. The STBHS is a program of Healthy Minds Fairfax, the county's initiative to coordinate a full range of mental health and substance abuse services for children and youth across multiple county agencies, the school system and private treatment providers.

Jim Gillespie, LCSW, MPA, Healthy Minds Fairfax director, said, "We're working hard to provide services and support to youth and families who need them, while reducing the stigma surrounding mental illness and help-seeking."

Often when people recognize that they need help, there may be a brief window of time when they are willing to look for and receive help. If a person has to wait too long for services, the chance to help may be lost.

Individuals of any age seeking help for a mental health and/or substance use concern, may walk in, without appointment, to the CSB's Merrifield Center and speak with a staff member in person, rather than initiating contact over the phone. If the individual appears to qualify for CSB services, they may be able to receive a more in-depth assessment for services that same day. Each CSB assessment clinician is trained to assess for substance use disorders as well as mental health and co-occurring disorders.

For more information, contact the CSB at 703-383-8500 (Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., extended hours for youth until 7 p.m. on Tuesdays). In an emergency, call CSB Emergency Services at 703-573-5679 (answered 24/7).

As Good As It Gets

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Five weeks of blissful ignorance. (Speak for yourself. I am.) No 24-hour urine collection. No pre-chemotherapy lab work. No chemotherapy infusion. No CT scan. No follow-up appointment with my oncologist – or any other doctor for that matter. No brain MRI. No fasting. No emailing. No prescription-drug refilling. No vitals. No weight check. No taste/eating side effects. No anything. Other than pretending and presuming that all is not wrong in my "whirled" (my underlying diagnosis), life is for the living, and I'm living proof, random though it may be, that an incredibly grim/surreal prognosis: "13 months to two years," was not all it was cracked up to be.

Forgive me if I unleash my pent-up inner demons. As a cancer patient, there's just so much to worry about; daily, weekly, monthly and always, that when you get a break/brake in the action, it becomes a moment in time to celebrate and cherish.

Good things may come in small packages, but great things come in five-week intervals. And though the minor deficits I have as a result of nearly nine years of chemotherapy have not dissipated; in the scheme of things, in the midst of two-fortnights-and-a-half of "uncumbrances," to quote my late father, I am "untethered," to once again quote my father. This time however, quoting the late, great Sid Caesar for a skit he performed (involving "an elephant," my father always said) on "The Show of Shows" back in the early 50s.

And so for the next month and change, I am almost normal (or a reasonable facsimile thereof); other than following my daily anti-cancer, non-Western routine which I have long ago assimilated into my dos and don'ts, that is. A routine which, though it can always be enhanced, is a direct result of the advice I've received from my certified Holistic Health Coach. And despite the fact that I may not exactly be on the straight and narrow – more like the squiggly and wiggly, I certainly am not on the path I was when my cancer cells activated after I slid into my first PET scan back in early February 2009, and "lit it up like a Christmas tree," according to my thoracic surgeon. An indication/confirmation which led to a surgical biopsy a week or so later which then led to the last nine years of my life.

Still, it's been a life worth living and one for which I have few regrets. I have lived so far beyond my original prognosis, it's not even funny; it's ridiculous. Sure, I'm doing more of the right things than I ever did, but hardly am I the poster boy for "see what happens when you ... ." If I'm the poster boy for anything, it's more likely "how to maintain and even increase your weight while being treated for stage IV, non-small cell lung cancer."

Not that I won't savor the moments ahead, but I am mindful, which led to the substance of this column, of what happens after this semi-party is over: Jan. 2, 2018 – 24-hour urine collection; Jan. 3, 2018 – pre-chemotherapy lab work; Jan. 5, 2018 – chemotherapy infusion; Jan. 17, 2018 – CT scan; and finally, Jan. 26, 2018 – follow-up appointment with my oncologist to discuss the results of my scan, and then maybe another emotional honeymoon or, God forbid, a nightmare that diagnosis to date has rarely raised its ugly head.

That possibility roams my head, constantly; compartmentalized – yes; "in the vault" – yes, but unfortunately, "the cancer," (as "Forrest, Forrest Gump" said) still in my body and, medically speaking, not yet something one can flush out with treatment. But there's always hope.

In the past few years, the FDA has approved half-a-dozen new lung cancer drugs, more than during the preceding decade. I don't think medical professionals would say they have lung cancer on the run; they might say however, they have it on the trot. Which is good for me because I can't run, but I can trot.
