'It's Our Time to Act'

Students at Langley High School spark support for National Walkout Event.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

Alina Ghobadi and Ben Goodson are both 18 year-old seniors at Langley High School in McLean. Neither can recall a time "before this, when school safety and lockdowns against possible 'active shooters' hadn't become, at the least, the background [consideration] of a school day," as Goodson puts it. "But you always think it can't happen at your school," adds Ghobadi.

There have been dozens of violent incidents at schools across the country in recent years, but the latest, where 17 students were killed at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Fla. by a former student armed with a semi-automatic weapon, really touched Ghobadi, and she reached out to Goodson for help in "showing our solidarity with Parkland, and making a statement. Enough is enough. It's our time to act."

THE TWO, who have known each other since the eighth grade, decided to do their best to galvanize their fellow students into joining the National School Walkout Day on March 14, the one-month anniversary of the Parkland tragedy. They met with teachers and school principal Frederick Amico to discuss their intentions, and while they weren't given a "free pass" to leave class for the 17-minute protest (one minute for each of the students who were killed), they were not given a categorical denial.

"We were asked to use a study period to avoid disrupting classes," said Ghobadi, "but we felt it was important to do this at the same time as others around the country. Together, our voices are stronger. If there is a consequence, then I guess we will have to bear it."

Goodson agreed. "The years go by. More kids are killed. Nothing happens. We have to speak and act together, and then maybe we will be heard and something will be done."

Neither Ghobadi nor Goodson were impressed with the action taken by the House of Representatives on the same day as the Walkout. By a vote of 407-10, the House passed a "School Safety Bill" that focused on better coordination between schools and law enforcement, and offered funding for training, including of students, in the detection of the early signs of potential violence, as well as for anonymous reporting systems. The bill, which is backed by the National Rifle Association, makes no mention of guns or any type of gun restrictions or regulations. This omission contributes to the resolve of the two high schoolers to speak out.

"It's ridiculous not to address gun regulation as part of the solution," insisted Goodson, who also sees the House bill as ignoring the dangers for those of us beyond the campus confines. "We're not saying that people don't have the right to have guns for

From left, Langley High School walkout co-organizer Alina Ghobadi stands with fellow students Roumina Adab, James Rau and Emily London. Profoundly affected by the school shooting in Parkland, Fla., that saw 17 students lose their lives to a teenaged gunman with an assault rifle, Ghobadi decided it was time to speak out for school safety and sensible gun regulations.

Ben Goodson, a senior at Langley, co-organized the student protest. "It's time for us to try, to make our voices heard. It's crazy that nothing has been done, shooting after shooting, death after death."

One of many signs that students held at the National Walkout to honor the Parkland, Fla. victims, and to advocate for better gun regulations.)

protection or hunting," said Ghobadi, "but what are you hunting with assault rifles?"

"Exactly," said Goodson, who upholds the Constitution and its Amendments, but believes that the language of the 2nd Amendment "doesn't make sense today." He notes that today's weaponry "can be loaded and repeatedly fired a lot faster than a musket," and that the spirit of the Amendment "came from fighting back against a hundred years of a tyrannical government. I think things have changed a bit since then," he said. Like Ghobadi, he doesn't see assault weapons as having a place in a modern, civilized society.

BOTH STUDENTS also question why gun ownership is treated with less oversight than getting and keeping a driver's license, with classes, a database, taxes, renewals and insurance as requirements. "And tests to determine mental health and fitness. These are just basic common sense," argues Ghobadi.

As for the proposals to arm teachers against attackers, neither thinks that is a reasonable solution, "or even a good idea." Both think putting more guns in classrooms is "just asking for trouble" and see the move as pushing schools to be "more like prisons than places of learning."

"Teachers already have so much to do and think about. Adding armed protector to their jobs is not the answer," said Ghobadi.

What's next for these two concerned young people? They were encouraged by the support their Walkout efforts had among their fellow students. "We weren't sure anyone would join us," said Ghobadi, but when, by their estimations, about 25 percent of the school population took to the athletic fields for the action, "we felt really good, proud of our generation," added Goodson, who plans to join the national March For Our Lives protest in D.C., one of hundreds of protests scheduled worldwide to take place on March 24. Ghobadi will be out of town next weekend, but hopes to join up with a local march near her destination. Writing letters, continuing to speak out, and supporting voter registration among their peers is also on their agenda.

"I hope we can help things change," said Ghobadi. "Since Parkland, now when I head out in the morning, I make sure to say 'Mom, I'm going to school. I love you.' Nowadays, you just never know what might happen."

Four Comstock Challengers Discuss Foreign Policy

George Washington University student moves crowd to tears.

BY EDEN BROWN
THE CONNECTION

Suzie Egolf of Herndon was glad she had come to the Foreign Policy Candidate Forum on Sunday, March 4, at the Tysons Corner Hilton Doubletree Hotel.

"I came here because I really knew nothing about these candidates who are running for Rep. Barbara Comstock's seat in Congress," she said. The June 12 primary is coming up. She didn't think she really needed to know what their foreign policy positions were, but at least she would get a chance to see them in action so when she voted she could pick the right candidate. Then she realized, as she listened to positions on intervening in Syria, the Iran-Nuclear deal, and North Korea, that the role of every congressperson in deciding whether we go to war or not, seek peace or not, just got a lot more important.

State Sen. Jennifer Wexton (D-33), Lindsey Davis Stover, Daniel Helmer, and Alison Kiehl Friedman addressed a standing-room-only crowd of Congressional District 10 voters to address questions about foreign policy. Wexton acknowledged humorously that she hadn't been involved in a lot of foreign policy decisions during her tenure as a state senator, unless you count cross border issues with Kentucky and Tennessee.

Helmer, who was a Rhodes Scholar, noted his foreign policy is directly related to his time abroad as a soldier. Davis Stover and Friedman both held jobs in the Obama administration with direct policy engagement. Friedman led a team combating human trafficking at the Department of State, and Davis Stover served in the Department of Veterans Affairs, working on increasing access to care for veterans.

Fawad Barak spoke to the crowd about his father's Jan. 20 death in Kabul and his determination to see justice done and live out his father's American dream.

Egolf wasn't put off by Friedman's "California connections" and "outside money," buzzwords sometimes used to describe Friedman in the press. Friedman led the pack in fundraising thanks at least in part to an early endorsement from the feminist activist and writer Gloria Steinem.

When Is Passover Supposed to Be?

BY RABBI LEIBEL FAJNLAND
DIRECTOR CHABAD OF RESTON-HERNDON

This was the question recently asked of me by a close friend who is not Jewish. I, of course, was totally caught off guard by the question. I had no idea what he was asking. So, I asked him what he meant.

He replied: "Well, I have lots of Jewish friends. And over the last nearly two decades I have attended many Passover Seders. Almost every year, the conversation turns to either how 'early or late' Passover is that particular year. So, if every year Passover is either 'early or late', when is Passover supposed to be?"

For the uninitiated, the ancient Hebrews were enslaved to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, a little over 3,300 years ago. Passover commemorates the miraculous redemption from this slavery and the birth of the Jewish nation. Though the events took place a very long time ago, we believe that not only do they provide us with eternal lessons and instructions on how to live our lives, even in the most modern of times. We believe that they are also events that are to be relived and re-experienced by every one of us, in every time and place. So, to me, the question runs deeper:

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Costs and Benefits of Arming the Teachers

To the Editor:

The lead editorial by Monte F. Bourjaily, IV ("No Guns in the Classroom," Connection March 7-13, 2018) warns of many ills that would attend the arming of school personnel. Whether that is a good idea or not, it bears consideration that hundreds of U.S. school districts have done so for some years, apparently without untoward consequence (at least so far), as detailed by a recent New York Times news article (available at <http://nyti.ms/2oLEem0>). That experience should not be overlooked in forming a necessarily probabilistic judgment as to whether the benefits (such as more rapid response to active shooters and general deterrence) are likely to outweigh the costs (such as the potential for accidental shootings and general unease).

As for the supposed "gag rule," the Dickey Amendment does not prohibit research into the effects of gun violence, only CDC advocacy for gun control, reading in relevant part: "none of the funds made available for injury prevention and control at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) may be used to advocate or promote gun control" (available at <http://bit.ly/22zCqKD>, pdf page 245).

Alzheimer's Is a Growing Public Health Crisis

To the Editor:

According to the Alzheimer's Association, 140,000 Virginians over the age of 65 live with Alzheimer's. Additionally, Latinos are at one and a half times greater risk of Alzheimer's than older whites. Alzheimer's is the most expensive disease in the United States. Alzheimer's costs the country more than $259 billion a year.

My grandfather, my "Abuelito" in Spanish, was an outgoing, social, and active man and a caring grandfather. One day, he was wandering nearby on surrounding streets, unable to find his way home after one of his daily walks. Luckily, a neighbor recognized him and knew where we lived. She brought

This year, join friends and family at the Chabad Community Passover Seder. Relive the exodus, discover the eternal meaning of the Haggadah, and enjoy a community Seder complete with hand-baked Matzah, wine, and a wonderful dinner spiced with songs & insights.

"When, indeed is Passover supposed to be?"

Well, it turns out, the Hebrew word for Egypt, Mitzrayim, comes from the same root as the word for "limitations or boundaries." Read this way, we can experience an "Exodus from Egypt" by "emancipating ourselves from our limitations and boundaries."

Every day we are faced with self, or societal-imposed limitations. It may be as big as some world-changing cause with which we would like to get involved, but feel like it is "beyond us." Or, it may be something as simple as a smile and a "hello" to someone next to us in line at the market, or in an elevator. Irrespective of the deed, it is our "limitations" which hold us back from a myriad of acts of goodness and kindness. And yet, it is precisely these acts which can change the world forever, and usher in an era of humanity, understanding and peace, exceeding our wildest dreams.

So, it seems that the correct answer to the question is: Passover is supposed to be every minute, of every day. And, one certainly does not have to be Jewish, or celebrating Passover to experience their own "Exodus."

How about we start right now? Think of something noble and great you have hesitated to do, and do it. And watch the world change around you, for good!

Happy Passover to all!

Passover observances include conducting a Seder. The Seder is a fifteen step, family oriented, tradition and ritual packed feast.

The focal points of the Seder are:

- ❖ Eating Matzah.
- ❖ Eating bitter herbs to commemorate the bitter slavery endured by the Israelites.
- ❖ Drinking four cups of wine or grape juice, a royal drink, to celebrate the newfound freedom.
- ❖ The recitation of the Haggadah, a liturgy that describes in detail the story of the Exodus from Egypt. The Haggadah is the fulfillment of the biblical obligation to recount to our children the story of the Exodus on the night of Passover.

Change in Richmond Brings Metro Funding

To the Editor:

As a long-term resident of Northern Virginia, I have been frustrated year after year to hear of a funding crisis for Metro or breakdowns affecting safety and reliability. In Virginia we were always faced with a hostile legislature that was controlled by downstate interests who did not see value in supporting mass transit. Meanwhile Metro suffered from the lack of a secure funding source.

This year we see a different picture with the results of last November's election which found the Democrats just one vote short of winning control of the House of Delegates. Elections matter and now we see the real impact of an election that empowers the Northern Virginia delegation to deliver support for Metro funding.

I was pleased to see the Northern Virginia delegation in the House and Senate take leadership on the Metro funding issue.

Manners in the Tech Age

Etiquette classes aim to teach lost art of manners.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

On a sunny, autumn day a group of 10-year-old children sat around an a formal dining room table at a home in Arlington. The boys wore blazers, pressed khakis and shiny loafers, while the girls have donned festive dresses, nude stockings and wore grosgrain ribbons in their neatly combed hair. They had arrived at the home for a lesson in etiquette, but most of them would have rather been someplace else.

"I have to leave early for a soccer game," said Jimmy, who didn't bother hiding his glee over missing part of the class.

In an era when it's commonplace to order pizza on a smartphone and coordinate play dates by text, old-fashioned etiquette can appear obsolete. A recent survey of teachers shows that 73 percent of instructors believe that students are less polite than when the teachers themselves were students. In the age high-tech conveniences, children can become over scheduled and under socialized, which has led to an uptick in the number of parents who are enrolling their children in etiquette classes, say protocol instructors.

"Parents have a tremendous interest in etiquette classes because so many parents realize that they don't have that knowledge themselves, said Dorothea Johnson, who founded the Protocol School of Washington and is the author of the book "Modern Manners: Tools to Take You to the Top," which she co-authored with her granddaughter actress Liv Tyler.

"I think most parents know that good manners and etiquette will be important to their [children's] future," added Henryette Neal who teaches etiquette classes for children through the Fairfax County Park Authority. "Young people will be educated, but without proper social skills they will not be able to present themselves properly." Neal is also the owner of Steppin Out Charm and Imaging Studio.

The result of fast-paced lifestyles combined with overloaded schedules is a generation of children who place more value on social media savvy than on knowledge of social graces. Family dinners are replaced by fast food, says one parent. "Who needs good manners to gobble down a slice of pizza," said Carole Mincey of Alexandria, whose 14-year old daughter and 11-year old son have taken etiquette and ballroom dance from Mrs. Simpson's Classes, one of the area's invitation-only etiquette schools. "Because everyone is so busy and technology is so advanced, reality television shows are setting standards of behavior and handwritten thank you notes have been replaced by emails and texts."

Good manners are as important to a child's future success as academics, says another parent. "I feel like if people know what do to in social situations it empowers them," said Sarah Henry of Chevy Chase, mother of a 10-year old daughter and a 12-year old son. "If you're unsure of what to do it can make you feel intimidated. So it's all about empowering children with knowledge. And it's good for them to be exposed to proper etiquette in case they're not getting it at home. And if they are getting it at home, etiquette classes can reinforce it."

Interactive class sessions help keep their children engaged in the etiquette lessons. "The key is to keep the children occupied," said Johnson. "For example, when teaching proper introductions, I would call two children up to the front of the room and have them introduce themselves to each other."

In addition to learning such common courtesies such as saying "Please," "Thank you" and "You're welcome," children learn to write thank-you notes and introduce themselves to others by making direct eye contact and offering a firm handshake.

"Knowing how to give a proper handshake is important. When I took my seven-year-old granddaughter Liv to formal events, her little hand went out as she was being introduced to someone," said Johnson. "I could take her anywhere because she had impeccable manners."

Henry says that in a class that she coordinated for her daughter's Girl Scout troop, part of the curriculum included having the children form a receiving line with parents where they practiced handshakes and eye contact.

"We also printed proper table setting samples online and give the girls n plastic forks spoons, knives, napkins and a copy of the place setting," said Henry. "We talked about how to talked about the placement of the utensils, how to hold a knife and fork properly. One of my pet peeves is watching people hold a knife like it's a stick."

These are good life lessons, says Neal. "Etiquette classes are important because people still need to be respectful of others, and it starts with our children," she said. "A simple please and thank you is important."

Students from 23 Fairfax County Public Schools were named recipients of the 2018 Student Peace Awards of Fairfax County, which were handed out in a reception held Sunday, March 11, at the Sherwood Community Center in Fairfax.

Since 2006, the awards have recognized youth who introduce programs in their schools on many different issues that promote peace and conflict resolution throughout the county. In the 2017-2018 school year, the recipients each received $200, plus another $100 to be given to any nonprofit organization of his or her choice.

"It's an honor to be here to help recognize you today for your outstanding work to promote peace throughout Fairfax County and beyond. Your areas of focus cover a wide range of topics and methods, but all unite in one common goal, and that is to encourage and to strengthen peace and unity among all of us," said Sharon Bulova, Board of Supervisors chairman. "In Fairfax County, we consider our diversity to be our greatest asset. It is what makes us special."

Special guests included Bulova; U.S. Rep Gerry Connolly (D-11); state Del. Ken Plum (D-36); School Board Member Ilryong Moon; School Board Chair Jane Strauss; School Board Member Ryan McElveen; and Guest Speaker Janessa Gans Wilder, founder and CEO of the Euphrates Institute, who flew in from California for the event. The host and organizer was Margaret Fisher.

Bryce Liquerman, 16, of McLean, a Junior at McLean High School, worked with Special Olympic athletes by coaching soft-ball and soccer teams. "I help spread the word in the community that people shouldn't be awkward around them and people should be very accepting of people who are different mentally and physically," he said. "We're all people; it doesn't really matter, we're all the same I've led a lot of activities like doing tournaments and team events with many different Special Olympic athletes who have partnered a lot with other kids in our community."

Arnaz Carter-Newman, 17, of Reston, who attends Cedar Lane High School, worked with a Positivity Project. "We just hope to pass on the message that no one should be having a bad day. Everyone should be having a better day; everyone should be in a better mood," he said. "When you produce negative energy, then other people around you want to produce negative energy. When you produce positive energy, you start spreading positive energy and then everyone around you gets more happy."

Janan Iranbomy, 17, of Falls Church, who attends Marshall High School, served on the Fairfax County Student Human Rights Commission and was president of Marshall's Amnesty International group. "I started a Fairfax County campaign called the 'Embrace Diversity Campaign' where we involved all students from Marshall and other Fairfax County high schools to have a campaign to unite the diverse community that we have in Fairfax County and just celebrate the unity in the community," she said.

Katie Oliveira, 18, of Vienna, who attends James Madison High School, is one of the presidents of Madison's Amnesty Interna-

McLean High School: Bryce Liquerman was honored for his work as a Special Olympics coach, and with the school's Sources of Strength group that helps students deal with pressure and anxiety related to school and home. He is with U.S. Rep Gerry Connolly (D-11).

Marshall High School: Janan Iranbomy was honored for her work to co-found Humans of Marshall Educate, a website that highlights the diversity at her school, and the Embrace Diversity Campaign. She is with U.S. Rep Gerry Connolly (D-11).

tional group along with Allison Janowski. "We worked really hard this year to do a 'Write for Rights Campaign' at our school, which is one of Amnesty International campaigns to get prisoners of conscience released from prison internationally," she said.

"And we also led some debate days which we tried to promote healthy discussion within our school from many different groups of people in the school to create a healthy debate and a safe space for people to speak their mind."

Helmer received loud applause when he spoke about gun control and talked about carrying an AR-15 on the streets of Baghdad and how a weapon like that doesn't belong on the streets of the U.S. He was passionate about immigration, holding onto the Iran Deal, and healthcare, and he made it clear that war should be a last resort, not a step lightly taken. All the candidates decried "foreign policy by Twitter" and Friedman evoked the concern that we might engage in a first strike use of nuclear weapons because of a bad twitter day. Davis Stover endorsed more diplomatic action and enacting a law that would prevent the U.S. from having a first strike capability, "something it would be possible to do right now."

All the candidates decried the "border wall" — Davis Stover called it a symbol of hate which had no place in this country; Friedman called it a stupid idea; Wexton pointed out Mexico's role as a major trading partner; and Helmer rejoined: build more schools instead.

On the Iran Nuclear Agreement, Helmer's statement that nuclear weapons are not the only component of the U.S. relationship with Iran, and that the U.S. needs to increase other areas of engagement with Iran, whether or not the agreement remains, followed a chorus of pro-agreement statements.

CANDIDATES appeared to agree the U.S. is ceding its leadership position and that it has a hollowed out State Department which as a result is missing opportunities.

The forum's highlight wasn't a candidate, he was a student at George Washington University: Fawad Barak, who was born to an Afghan refugee, Rahim Barak, who fled the Soviet invasion of his country in 1979, made his life in the U.S. and just recently returned to Kabul, to see his family. The 58-year-old was excited to head home to Afghanistan for the first time in 30 years. He checked into the Intercontinental hotel and, on Jan. 20, was eating with friends when Taliban insurgents shot him in the head, his son said. Fawad Barak sees the event as a catalyst for him to pursue the democratic process and "see justice done."

Barak talked about a father who worked four jobs a day, who never had a day off, and whose dream was to see his son graduate from university. Barak's remarks brought many to tears, and everyone to their feet, as he received a standing ovation.

Barak was at the meeting of District 10 candidates because he was invited to the meeting by eMgage, a family of civic and political institutions dedicated to

Man Dead in Shooting in Great Falls

A 21-year-old man is dead after being shot by an acquaintance inside a business on March 13. Officers responded to Vapology101 in the 10100 block of Colvin Run Road around 7:40 for a shooting. Bao Hung Van, of Herndon, was found and pronounced dead at the scene. The suspect was still at the business when officers arrived, and was taken into custody without incident. Manvinder Aulakh, a 22-year-old from McLean, was charged with murder and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. He is being held at the Adult Detention Center without bond - according to FCPD.

Detectives are continuing to investigate the incident and what led up to the shooting. There does not appear to be a threat to public safety or the community as this is believed to be an isolated incident involving parties who knew each other.

Almost Exactly Four Days ...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

... was the length of time during which we were powerless a few weeks back when the wind nearly brought down the house; yet it was no laughing matter. I might have written this column sooner but until Tuesday, March 6 – when the power finally came back on, we were semi-frozen to the bone. The old-fashioned thermostat in our living room indicated 42 degrees at its most frigid.

Aside from the obvious physical discomfort – made a bit more bearable while wearing hats, gloves, coats and scarfs – inside, the toll the cold took on my mental acuity was much less manageable. My brain still worked, but not overtime. It was, to invoke a “Star Trek” reference: “On impulse power,” somewhere between barely functioning and imminent danger.

This power outage was the most significant we had experienced at “Belly Acres” in the 26 years since we took ownership in late May 1992. And though this four-day non-sojourn was difficult, it was for us not a return down power-outage lane. We have been lucky in our time here; very little has upset the apple cart. Considering the hundreds of trees that surround our house, and the many thuds they all made as they fell and hit the ground that extremely late Friday night/early Saturday morning, the miracle is that not one of them hit the house, or either of our two cars parked in the driveway.

I wouldn't say I woke up in the morning to find our house relatively unscathed because as of 3:30 a.m. when I felt the house shudder for the first time, I never was able to fall back asleep as I kept bracing myself for incoming trees and limbs. Given the potential damage and hassle a direct hit likely would have caused, a power outage seemed a minor inconvenience, all things considered.

As it happened, when the power came back on, I was not at home. I was en route to the Glenmont Metro station in Wheaton to pick up Dina. When I came to a stop at “Kiss and Ride,” I looked at my cell phone and noticed a “missed call” from one of my neighbors. I immediately called back and soon heard my neighbor, Helene, singing “We're in heaven, ...” with the explanation – not in verse – that power had returned to New Birmingham Manor (the official name of our 10-home dead-end street). BG&E, our utility company, had finally come by to cut/trim the tree that had been uprooted in the storm and fallen across the power line which electrifies our neighborhood.

As difficult as it had been for some of us, it had not been nearly as difficult for the four neighbors who had generators and thus were prepared and able to keep the lights on and the heat circulating. One of whom was kind enough to call around the neighborhood and offer hot showers as well as refrigerator and freezer storage to anyone interested. Given that the previous week was a post-chemotherapy week for me when I'm not eating much and shopping at supermarkets even less, we had minimal food in the freezer - all of which ended up being a loss, and a bit less than usual in the refrigerator which, after putting the contents into two coolers filled with ice, ended up being a gain.

Oddly enough, I haven't re-inventoried the refrigerator/freezer as yet. I don't know if I'm being paranoid or just plain lazy, but I haven't felt inclined to stop and shop, not even at the Giant. I imagine the feeling will pass because after eating out every night; some fast, some slow, over the last week or so, I'm probably way over our imaginary budget and way under prepared for the next go around. But as is often heard on basketball courts on playgrounds all over America: “No harm. No foul.”

The four days without power weren't particularly pleasant but we survived the ordeal nonetheless and may have even learned something in the process: our long underwear still fits.
