STAYING SAFE TOGETHER

May 9 is Bike to School Day.
Here are some safety tips to remember.

Allow 3 feet when passing a cyclist. Motorists may legally cross the double yellow line if the oncoming lane is clear.

Be careful at intersections. Look both ways for people biking and walking before making your turn.

After parking, look over your left shoulder for approaching cyclists before opening your car door.

Almost 2,000 people, plus 900 singers, packed Hayfield Secondary School for the 46th annual All-County Chorale Festival.

Do-Re-Me SING!

Voices ring for All County Choral Festival.

The young singers have been honing their voices for months, singing in large and small groups every week since January.

On Saturday, they finally got the chance to showcase their work, as nearly 900 sixth-grade singers — hand-picked by their elementary school music teachers for their vocal talent — sang together at Hayfield Secondary School for the 46th annual All-County Choral Festival.

“It is truly an honor for the students performing today to be a member of this select group of vocalists,” said Kelly M. Harbison, president of the Fairfax General Music Educators Association and a music educator at Canterbury Woods Elementary School.

Led by guest conductor Dr. Jamie Hillman, the students sang a variety of music — from George Handel’s classic “Sing for Joy!” to Joan Varner’s “When I Am Silent,” a tribute to young Holocaust victims.

The song, and the voices of 900 sopranos, moved many in the audience to tears. “These young singers were truly amazing,” said Hillman, who previously taught music at Phillips Academy and Boston University.

“They’ve only had one day to practice as a complete group, and they came together flawlessly. Their energy and enthusiasm was inspiring.”

In addition to the 900 singers, Hayfield’s auditorium was packed with twice as many family members, including School Board members, school principals and Superintendent of Schools Dr. Scott Brabrand.

“I told parents ‘prepare to be wowed by these singers.’ I think we were all blown away by the talent and organization it took to accomplish this,” Brabrand said.

Organization was key as music teachers used songs and audience sing-offs to quickly reunite singers with their families and move 2,000 people out of the auditorium in under 15 minutes.

“The festival was a rousing success at every level. We’re all proud of these students and our music teachers for this festival,” Brabrand said.

‘Celebrating the Magic of Giving Back’

Some 144 individuals and groups honored at Fairfax County Volunteer Service Awards.

About 400 people attended the 26th annual Fairfax County Volunteer Service Awards on Friday, April 27, at the Waterford in Springfield where some 144 individuals and groups were honored. With the theme “Once Upon a Volunteer, Celebrating the Magic of Giving Back,” the breakfast included the “Who’s Who” of Fairfax County’s leaders in business, education, government and nonprofits. It was sponsored by Volunteer Fairfax, members of the Board of Supervisors and Chairman Sharon Bulova. The volunteers, who do everything from helping with technology mentoring, supporting at-risk seniors and working to combat homelessness, gave a total of 328,760 hours of service worth $7.9 million in support of the Fairfax County community. Peggy Fox, Virginia Bureau Chief at WUSA9/CBS affiliate, served as event emcee.

Many different awards were given out, including 2018 Benchmark Awards for volunteering 100, 250, 500, or 1,000 hours; 2018 Community Champions who were selected by the Board of Supervisors honoring a volunteer in their districts who was dedicated to improving life in the county and beyond; and 2018 Competitive Awards for youth, adult, and seniors in individuals and groups.

“Today is all about recognizing the wonderful volunteers we have in Fairfax County,” said Elise Neil Bengtson, CEO of Volunteer Fairfax. “We’re giving them a platform so the county can understand better where volunteers fill gaps and meet the needs of the community and nonprofits at the same time. Without volunteers, we could not get everything done that we do. We have a tremendous wealth of experience and education in this area so even when you’re older and retired, you can do amazing things and feel good and stay energized in this county and be an active participant.”

Added Rick Garza, Volunteer Fairfax board president: “This is a signature event for Volunteer Fairfax and Fairfax County and the City of Fairfax to just honor so many people who devote their time outside of their working hours helping others, helping our community be a better place.”

Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova, who offered a Fairfax County Proclamation to Volunteer Fairfax, which was established in 1975, added: “Fairfax County has a unique culture and that includes volunteerism through the roof ... We would not be able to do as much as we do with volunteers if we didn’t have an organizational body pulling people together, connecting people and making volunteerism happen. Congratulations Volunteer Fairfax and thank you so much for everything you do for our community.”

County Residents Named Community Champion

The following citizen volunteers from the area were chosen by members of the Board of Supervisors from each of their districts as a Community Champion. This award recognizes volunteers who are committed to improving Fairfax County through service that fulfills or addresses a pressing community need.

Joanne Walton has been a Braddock District resident for over 20 years. Her first foray into volunteering was with the Burke MOMS Club where she sat on the board, served as president, and ran the Preschool Fair. She also co-chaired Braddock Dogs, a local group dedicated to bringing a dog park to Braddock District — the only district that did not have one. For several years, Walton attended meetings and rallied the community for funds to ensure this project came to fruition. As a result of her efforts, there will not only be a new dog park but a playground and skate park as well. Lately, she

For more than five years, Ed Joseph has been chair of the Lee District Land Use Advisory Council, a volunteer organization that hears land use cases and provides their opinion to the Lee District supervisor. Every resident of Lee District and Fairfax County has benefitted from the success of the revitalization efforts, and in turn from his work. His sense of community has been a driving force behind the district’s growth. In addition to the Land Use Advisory Board, he has given back directly to his neighborhood as the former president of the Mews Homeowner’s Association working on a variety of issues.

“Ed is an incredible volunteer,” said District Supervisor Jeff McKay. “His work benefits all of Lee District’s residents and is one of the reasons our revitalization efforts have succeeded as much as they have. His self-has devoted many volunteer hours to helping start the Fairfax County Special Education PTA where she serves as the fundraising co-chair. In addition to that role, she is recruiting, training, and coordinating PTA specialist education liaisons for every Fairfax County School — over 180 schools.

District Supervisor John Cook said, “Joanne Walton’s generosity and dedication to service has made her an exemplary leader in the Braddock District. Her tireless efforts improve the lives of parents, students, and animals in our community.”

lessness and dedication to service are inspirational, and we are very fortunate to have him in our community.”

Every Friday, Shirley Steenstra is at Lorton Community Action Center’s thrift store Lorton’s Attic, leading a team of volunteers. Lorton’s Attic serves a dual purpose in the community by providing vouchers for families to shop for free as well as raising revenue for Lorton Community Action Center (LCAC) to help assist families with food, rent, utilities, and other needs. For more than eight years, she has crossed paths with more than 1,000 individuals in the store helping LCAC families find what they need. Previously, Lorton’s Attic was only open Monday through Friday; but because of Steenstra’s commitment, the store is now able to open its doors on Saturdays with Steenstra serving as the lead volunteer.

Mount Vernon District Supervisor Daniel Storck said, “Shirley is a selfless volunteer and a true ‘behind the scenes’ champion.

Supervisor Daniel G. Storck honors Shirley Steenstra, Mount Vernon District.

The Mount Vernon District is fortunate to have a very active citizenry that is dedicated and devoted to helping others and connecting within the community.”

Supervisor Linda Q. Smyth honors Tysons Partnership, Providence District.

The Tyson Partnership serves as a collaborative of stakeholders working together to transform Tysons into a new downtown by serving as a convener, a voice, and a catalyst for the people who work, live, and do business in Tysons. The Tyson Partnership through its Community Responsibility Council provides a forum for business, civic, and government leaders committed to improving the lives of underserved populations within the Tysons community. Officially launched in 2016, the council’s roster has grown to over 45 members, including representatives from local employers, residential entities, and the Fairfax County government. Its signature TysonsCares Season of Giving raised over $90,000 for local initiatives providing food, clothing, and shelter with a specific focus on children and youth. They connected with eight Fairfax County Public Schools to distribute over 1,000 pairs of new athletic shoes to Title 1 students with a Shoes4Kids donation drive and partnered with Food for Others on a 5K charity run at Tysons Corner Center.

As District Supervisor Linda Smyth said, “While we think of Tysons as our corporate and business center, the Tyson Partnership has looked beyond the new high rises to see the needs of the people who live and work there. Through its charitable efforts, the Partnership is pulling together all stakeholders to build a new community with a promising future for everyone.”

Full house at Lake Braddock debates six options to save the lake.

MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

The sediments filling up Lake Accotink have been focus of local officials before, so as development and natural erosion occur upstream and the lake depth decreases, options are being laid out on what to do with this local outdoors recreation spot.

Supervisors John Cook (R-Braddock) and Jeff McKay (D-Lee) held a public meeting on April 30 to discuss six plans for the lake, and the auditorium at Lake Braddock Secondary School was packed with nearly 300 people.

The options were prepared by the Fairfax County Park Authority, Department of Public Works and Environmental Services, and a restoration science consultant.

"Whatever we're going to do, we need to be thinking of a permanent fix," said Cook. But a couple of the options, mainly option A and partially E and F, rely heavily on nature taking its course. It turns out though, the consequences of the sediments flowing down Accotink Creek and settling elsewhere will be costly too.

"All that sediment has to go somewhere," said Allan Robertson who is president of SaveLakeAccotink.org where volunteers can sign up to "spread the word about the danger to Lake Accotink," as stated on the website. Robertson sported a custom tee-shirt bearing that sentiment, and there are popsicle signs around Springfield with the same message. Robertson is for option C, which follows the theme of dredge it now and dredge it deep. A $45 million price tag comes with that option too.

Gale Hooper, the project manager of the Lake Accotink Master Plan Revision with the Fairfax County Park Authority, discussed each plan.

Plan A would let nature take its course, and Hooper said the lake would lose its recreational value in 2025. That recreational value was the boating and fishing, but not the bike trails, bird watching or hiking that would come with an environment like that.

Option B was dredging some and redredging; C was a full dredge; D involved "beaver dams," upstream to catch the sediments; E was a dam reduction; and F was a modified dam with a side lake half the size. "Similar to the size of Lake Fairfax," Hooper said.

With each dredging option, there was the location of "forebays," to consider, which are places to dump the sediments after the water is removed, and the suggestions were all over the place. Open spaces beneath the power lines near Braddock Road and Wakefield Park were mentioned.

When it came time for comments from the audience, the line to the microphone was 20 people long. A resident of Kings Park wanted to save it, whatever the cost. "I can't believe one of the richest counties in the country would let our lake go," he said. Another Kings Park resident wanted the "slow dredge," and maintain it year by year. And with pricetags in the millions, another speaker wanted to know how the rest of the Board of Supervisors felt. "Whatever financial decision we choose is going to be a board decision," said McKay.

The comment period ends May 28, and the decision will be reached in fall 2018. "This is analysis time," said Cook.

Celebrating Earth Day at Laurel Hill Park

Earth Day awareness, and a love for Laurel Hill Park in Lorton, brought 17 volunteers out for a trash pick up event on April 22.

The two-hour event was held in conjunction with the Fairfax County Park Authority and Clean Fairfax. Volunteers collected 29 bags of trash and several unusual oversized items, including: plastic pipes of many colors and sizes, a sneaker, and a headlight cover. The most common items were plastic bottles, beverage cans, and plastic bags.

This effort by the Park Volunteer Team, combined with efforts the NoVA Disc Golf Association members have taken for on-going trash pick up on the adjoining course in the Park, making a visible difference.

OPINION

Small But Needed Step in the Right Direction

Why raising the felony larceny threshold to $500 is an important step in Virginia?

BY EILEEN FILLER-CORN
STATE DELEGATE (D-41)

Recently, Governor Ralph Northam signed legislation to raise the felony larceny threshold from $200 to $500 in Virginia as part of a bipartisan compromise. While imperfect as many bills are, HB 1550, carried by Delegate Les Adams, is a small but necessary step in the right direction.

Raising the threshold is a key breakthrough for common sense criminal justice reform. I applaud Governor Northam for not only delivering on a top campaign promise within his first few months in office — but doing so by coming to a bipartisan compromise and working with his Republican partners across the aisle. I was privileged to carry the Governor's legislation the past two years to raise this threshold. While my legislation did not move forward, I was honored to serve as a co-patron on HB 1550 and privileged to have the opportunity to finally help make this initiative the law.

In recent years, Virginia has been a leader in the nation when it comes to providing people second chances — which is why it is surprising that Virginia has held the lowest larceny threshold in the country alongside New Jersey at $200. In my mind, this was simply unacceptable. Since 2000, at least 37 states have raised their felony thefts thresholds, and many of our neighboring states, including North Carolina and West Virginia, have their felony larceny threshold at $1,000.

Raising the threshold will not only create a more just and fairer system — but it is fiscally responsible and will create a safer Commonwealth. According to the ACLU, larceny convictions accounted for one out of every four individuals incarcerated in 2012, at a cost of approximately $25,000 a year per individual. The Virginia Department of Corrections found that the state could have saved between $18.3 million and $22.5 million just in prison costs between fiscal years 2009 and 2014 had the General Assembly raised the threshold to $500 or $600 in 2008. And the savings could have been even higher if it was raised to $1,000.

It is worth noting that people cannot contribute to our economy if they are incarcerated. Virginians who have paid their debt to society and strive to actively contribute to it, find themselves struggling to find employment because of a felony record, when it could have been a misdemeanor. Those convicted of larceny also face barriers to housing, healthcare or taking out a loan.

Raising the felony larceny threshold does not only pertain to adults; it impacts the Commonwealth's children too. Larceny was the top category for juvenile arrest in Virginia in 2017. This means that one can be carrying the weight of an adolescent mistake on their back for the rest of their life. We can and must do better.

I have been working on the issue of raising the felony larceny threshold for two years now. While I was proud to carry versions of this bill on behalf of Governor Ralph Northam and former Governor Terry McAuliffe, I kept thinking to myself during that time that we cannot let one's mistake ruin that person's entire life. Virginia's progress on this issue has been slow, but this breakthrough for criminal justice reform is a small and needed step in the right direction.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Missing Numbers

To the Editor:

County Chairman Sharon Bulova's April 25 opinion piece, "Budget Hits All the Right Notes," about the proposed FY2019 real estate tax hike, is misleading. When she says the proposed real estate tax rate is $1.15, she omits the stormwater rate. When that is included the FY2019 rate will be $1.1825 instead of $1.15.

She states that new budget includes a 2-cent increase in the real estate tax rate, but this omits the additional tax increase due to the 2.2 percent increase in average residential assessments. The effective rate increase when assessments and the additional stormwater rate increase (1/4 cent) are included is 4.7 cents, not 2 cents.

The typical Fairfax County homeowner's real estate tax bill will increase by $258, a 4.2 percent increase. Loudoun County reduced its average tax bill by $48, a 1 percent decrease.

Chairman Bulova states that the tax hike fully funds the Market Rate Adjustment, Performance, Merit and Longevity increases for county employees and states that the Market Rate Adjustment is 2.25 percent. She does not state the total salary increase resulting from the Performance, Merit and Longevity increases. When those are included county employees will see average increases ranging from 4.25 to 4.50 percent.

Likewise, the school board is funding a 2.3 percent step increase and other salary adjustments, but does not say what the total average raise will be when the other adjustments are included. It is likely to be 4 percent also.

The real estate tax hike will increase county revenues by about $116 million. The cost of next year's county and school raises is $139 million. Raises are the primary driver of the county's annual real estate tax hikes.

Since FY2000, the supervisors have increased real estate taxes 169 percent, more than three times faster than inflation, which increased 53 percent.

If Chairman Bulova felt that the voters who defeated the 2016 meals tax, which would have raised $100 million, would support next year's 4.2 percent tax hike to raise $116 million for 4 percent raises, why didn't she acknowledge those numbers in her statement?

Medicaid Expansion: It's Time

To the Editor:

The 2017 elections demonstrated that Virginians believe that individuals cannot work, take care of their families, or pursue happiness if they cannot see a doctor when they are sick. The candidates who heard this message and ran on expanding access to healthcare, won. Those advocating for expansion are more than willing to compromise with lawmakers who may have legitimate policy concerns.

We know that 33 other states have already opted to insure their working poor. It is time that our federal tax dollars stay here in Virginia to help cover approximately 400,000 hard-working families earning up to 138 percent of the poverty level. Making health insurance available to more Virginians is the right thing to do and the sensible thing to do. The Federal government is offering to cover no less than 90 percent of the costs of insuring Virginia's working poor. Virginia's hospitals are committed to covering the remaining 10 percent of the costs. Additional money flowing to Virginia under Medicaid expansion will enable the state to increase funding for schools and other needed services. Another benefit of Medicaid expansion is the likelihood of smaller rate increases in our health insurance plans. Studies have shown that in states where more people are insured, the cost of uncompensated care drops. Yes, we will all benefit if more of us have access to healthcare. It is time to act!

COMMENTARY

Supporting Health Of all Virginians

BY DR. J. STEPHEN JONES, NANCY HOWELL AGEE AND
HOWARD KERN

After wrestling with Medicaid expansion for years, the Virginia House of Delegates voted in favor of providing coverage for hundreds of thousands of our neighbors across Virginia. We want to commend the delegates from both parties for their perseverance in tackling a difficult topic and thank them for voting to improve health care for all Virginians.

Helping our neighbors makes sense for several reasons. Bringing back Virginia taxpayer dollars to the state would strengthen the economy. That action stands to support thousands of new jobs. Also healthy people equal a healthy economy, a more productive workforce and ultimately a lower cost to society overall.

Research continues to prove that individuals who have insurance see their primary care doctor more routinely, take care of their chronic conditions more effectively, and stay employed (and employable) longer.

What would Medicaid expansion mean if the Senate, House and Governor found a compromise solution during the special General Assembly session to finalize the state budget?

With additional funds from the federal government, the Commonwealth can expand coverage to the up to 400,000 additional low-income Virginians who currently do not qualify for Medicaid.

The cost of uncompensated care is initially absorbed by a health care provider such as a hospital or physician office. But it ultimately gets passed on to people through higher insurance rates, to employers who provide insurance for their employees, and to workers who see their premiums rise.

Funding health care is not just the work of government programs, however. We, as hospitals and health care systems, need to partner with patients to take responsibility for lowering costs. With that in mind, we've been approaching care in new ways.

Additional Medicaid dollars are really just the next piece in a much larger puzzle. Hospitals like ours will continue to provide care to those who need it in an emergency, but increasingly we've shifted to a model of care that offers support to people who might be at risk for needing acute care. If we're able to help them before they become acutely ill, they have a much better chance at a fulfilling life, and the cost to our health system and the community is much lower. In other words, we're focusing on the complex work of keeping chronically ill patients from unnecessary hospitalizations.

As major employers in the Commonwealth, we share a commitment to ensuring the economic vitality of our great state. We know that a healthy economy is only possible within a healthy community where individuals have the tools and resources to keep themselves well and to seek care close to home when they need it.

Thank you to the House of Delegates for reaching out of your comfort zone in this year's budget to include federal Medicaid dollars. As health care systems, we exist to ensure our communities are healthy, and we appreciate you joining us in that mission. We're optimistic that the climate of compromise will find its way to the Senate during this special session, for the sake of all Virginians.

Volunteers Honored

In May of 2011, Tom Bash was appointed by District Supervisor Pat Herry to serve as Springfield's commissioner of the Fairfax Area Commission on Aging. Since then, Bash has been a tireless advocate for all 50-plus related needs working on various projects. Most noteworthy includes implementing the 50-plus Community Action Plan. This includes 31 initiatives regarding housing, transportation, community engagement, and other services. He has collaborated with local partners and staff on webpages, criminal exploitation awareness, and a real-time online transit data portal. He has also worked on an alternative to Metro-Access that would provide on-demand, quality service to people with disabilities. His reach of service also includes volunteering on the Fairfax County Disability Services Board and with nine other local organizations.

"I am proud to call Tom Bash my 2018 Volunteer Fairfax Community Champion," said Herry. "He does not take 'no' for an answer and continues to pursue all avenues to make Fairfax County the best place to live, work, and play."

Supervisor Pat Herry honors Thomas Bash, Springfield District.

For the last quarter-century, Charlie Fegan has served on the Fairfax County Library Board of Trustees as a reliable source of guidance for both the board and the community. He has been an invaluable source of knowledge and voice for both the libraries and the community in his role on the board. He has put in hours of outreach, library advocacy, as well as building and maintaining relationships with members of the Board of Supervisors to further serve the citizens of Fairfax County.

As Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova said, "Charlie has gone above and beyond the quality and quantity of service to the community as my appointee to the Library Board of Trustees for the last 25 years."

Chairman Sharon Bulova honors Charles Fegan, Fairfax County.

Ecumenical Community Helping Others, better known as ECHO, is an all-volunteer, charitable, nonprofit organization supported by 24 local faith groups which include Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Baha'i faiths in the Springfield and Burke areas. Since its incorporation in 1969, ECHO has continued to be an all-volunteer organization that implements broad-based programs for families and individuals who suffer the effects of long-term poverty or are facing an emergency need. During 2017, ECHO counselors held over 4,400 client visits and provided nearly $225,000 in financial support to families. Weekend food packs provided simple-to-prepare meals and snacks to 12 elementary schools and a middle school for students who face food insecurity at home over the weekends. ECHO client families with school-aged children received book bags filled with new school supplies and holiday gifts for more than 600 children. ECHO's administrative volunteers take leadership roles to ensure work is done and clients are served fairly all while making sure the building is kept in a safe, orderly condition. Support volunteers provide other necessary assistance such as

IT services, website maintenance, and grounds keeping.

As ECHO President Bob Diegelman said, "This is simply neighbors helping neighbors. Everything that ECHO does is possible only because of the tremendous generosity of its 24-member congregations, churches, and temples: its deeply committed volunteers, supporting groups and associations, and an active and committed business community."

Fairfax County Government Volunteer Program: Fairfax County Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) with Board Chairman Sharon Bulova.

Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department Volunteer Liaison Jeffery Katz said, "Fairfax County's CERT program is a prime example of 'Neighbors helping Neighbors.' 2017 was another year of unprecedented growth and innovation during which our CERTs further improved our County's disaster preparedness."

Erasing the Stigma

Mental Health advocates work to tear down barriers to treatment.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

It was during college when Laura Greenstein began to notice that something was not quite right. “I noticed that things that were creating anxiety on a daily basis, they weren’t just situational,” she said. “My anxiety was grabbing onto anything that it could. If I was running late, I would start to panic. Any small thing became a big issue.”

“My mother has always been supportive, but when [my anxiety] got to a certain point some close friends and family began to stigmatize it,” said Greenstein, who now works for the National Association for the Mentally Ill (NAMI) in Arlington. “They would say, ‘You’re not doing enough.’ It was difficult to feel that I wasn’t being fully accepted.”

After months of therapy and recent session with a psychiatrist who prescribed medication, Greenstein said that she is beginning to feel some relief. She even began blogging about her experience. “This was my first time sharing my story,” she said. “It’s been a really validating process. Being open can really improve your outlook.”

During May, Mental Health Awareness Month, Greenstein and other mental health advocates are sharing the ways in which negative perceptions about mental illnesses can impact those who suffer from it. NAMI reports that approximately 1 in 5 adults and children in the United States are experiencing mental illness in a given year. Only 41 percent of those adults received mental health treatment, while slightly more than half of children aged 8-15 received those services. One of the roadblocks to treatment, say mental health professionals, is the stigma surrounding mental health.

“Micro-aggressions towards individuals with mental illness are very common, such as assuming that someone with a mental illness is inferior, stupid, or not in control of their own behaviors,” said Jessica McLaughlin, Ph.D., assistant professor of psychology at Montgomery College. “Because of our society’s misperceptions of mental illness, many individuals struggling with mental health problems feel ashamed and isolated. They may even feel like it is not appropriate to seek help. “[And] being on the receiving end of these hurtful comments and beliefs actually worsens symptoms.”

With a theme of “Cure Stigma,” NAMI activists are encouraging people to educate themselves and eradicate the stigma which can be a roadblock to those who suffer from mental illness to get the treatment they need. They were afraid of being labeled, so they suffered in silence. This is particularly true with teenagers and preteens, advises Stacie Isenberg, Psy.D., a child psychologist who specializes in anxiety disorders. “A mental illness stigma may cause a teen or pre-teen to be hesitant to admit to her or himself that they are having a mental health problem, to share with a parent, teacher, or pediatrician about their problem, and to seek mental health treatment,” she said.

The stigma surrounding mental illness is an important issue that often goes unrecognized, says McLaughlin. “Individuals with mental illness face both overt and covert discrimination,” she said. “For example, there is an assumption that people with mental illness are violent or crazy, which is not true. However, our belief in these myths can affect someone’s ability to find employment or obtain housing.”

“Education is a powerful tool in combating mental health stigma, and community-wide, mental health awareness campaigns are helpful,” added Isenberg. “Individually, kids often search online to check out what their symptoms mean. Education from credible websites, and those of mental health organizations often provide clarity and guidance for those seeking help.”

Allowing those who might be experiencing symptoms of a mental illness to speak freely about their condition without fear of judgment can remove barriers to treatment advises McLaughlin. “That means asking how we can help, listening with an open mind, and being nonjudgmental,” she said.

Sometimes it can be a tremendous help just to let someone know that they have someone to lean on and that they are not alone.”

People can also fight the stigma of mental illness by being accepting and supportive of people who are experiencing mental health issues, and by modeling this acceptance for their children, suggests Isenberg. “Employers can encourage employees to use mental health days as needed, and to permit longer lunch hours or flexible dismissal or arrival at times to accommodate therapy appointments,” she said. “Similarly, schools can work with families to allow kids to use free periods, lunch periods, etc. to attend therapy when an after-school time is not available and the need for treatment is significant.”

A family’s attitude about the mentally ill can affect a child’s willingness to ask for help, advises Isenberg. “A child who comes from a family that does not consider mental health issues to be real or problematic may be reluctant to share with her or his parents,” she said. “Similarly, kids whose friends stigmatize mental health issues, or kids who don’t talk much about personal issues with friends, are often unsure about sharing with their friends. On the contrary, kids who believe their families and friends will be sensitive and supportive to them are more likely to be open with them about any concerns they are having.”

A healthy body starts with a healthy mouth!

At Peter K. Cocolis, Jr. and Associates, we believe optimum oral health is key to total body health and well-being. These days, going to the dentist is not just about taking good care of your teeth; it is about taking good care of your health. Problems in your mouth can be signs of trouble elsewhere in your body. Your oral exam reveals important early warning signs for many total-body conditions including diabetes, oral cancer and high blood pressure.

Whether your family seeks general preventive maintenance, cosmetic, or advanced restorative and implant dentistry to transform your smile’s function and appearance, Drs. Packers Draft South County Graduate Burks

Green Bay selects Vanderbilt linebacker in third round.

BY JON ROETMAN
FOR THE CONNECTION

Oren Burks caught the attention of NFL scouts while starting at three different defensive positions during his four seasons at Vanderbilt University. But it wasn't until Burks received a late invite to the Senior Bowl that the 2013 South County graduate started to establish himself as a potential early-round draft choice. The Green Bay Packers on April 27 selected Burks in the third round of the 2018 NFL Draft. After taking a cornerback in each of the first two rounds, the Packers drafted Burks, a 6-foot-3, 233-pound inside linebacker, with the 88th overall selection.

"I felt really good about my process following graduation and the season last year," said Burks, who watched the draft with family and friends in Fairfax Station. "[Things] got rolling with the Senior Bowl and I went into the combine and had great numbers."

Burks played safety during his freshman and sophomore seasons at Vanderbilt before moving to outside linebacker as a junior. Burks transitioned to inside linebacker as a senior following the departure of standout Zach Cunningham, who was selected by the Houston Texans in the second round of the 2017 NFL Draft. Burks totaled 82 tackles as a senior and recorded one sack, an interception and a fumble recovery. With the 2017 season having ended, Burks was working out in Oakland when he received a late invite to the Senior Bowl — a showcase game for college seniors held Jan. 27 in Mobile, Ala.

Burks recorded six tackles, including two tackles for loss, for the victorious South team.

Three months later, Burks attended the NFL Scouting Combine in Indianapolis. His broad jump of 10 feet, 11 inches tied for the best result among linebackers. He also produced the second-best time in the 20-yard shuttle (4.15 seconds), the second-best vertical jump (39 1/2 inches) and the third-best time in the three-cone drill (6.82).

How much did Burks' performance at the Senior Bowl and combine help his draft stock?

"Magnificently," Burks said. "Before the Senior Bowl and the combine, I was a late-round guy."

Prior to his days as a college standout and an NFL Draft pick, Burks terrorized opposing offenses as a South County Stallion. As a junior, Burks led South County to a region championship and a berth in the 2011 5A state championship game. He totaled 128 tackles, 11 sacks, two interceptions and three defensive touchdowns. The following season, Burks was a first-team all-state selection, totaling 123 tackles, six forced fumbles and three interceptions. After success at the high school and college levels, Burks now has an opportunity to compete against the best in the world as a member of the Green Bay Packers. "I feel," Burks said, "like I can come in and compete right away."

Evenings of Laughter and Standing Ovations

Rambunctious Theatre Company at Robinson presents 'Monty Python's Spamalot.'

BY NATALIA MEGAS
THE CONNECTION

"Monty Python's Spamalot," the musical comedy performed by Rambunctious Theatre Company at Robinson Secondary High School is a must-see this week.

"Spamalot," the multiple Tony award-winning musical by Eric Idle based on the 1975 motion picture "Monty Python and the Holy Grail," is an irreverent parody of the Arthurian legend with a few twists and hilarious ones at that.

When high school director Megan Thrift chose the school edition of "Spamalot" for Robinson students, she did so with the intention of giving everyone an opportunity.

"The show is so full," she said. "It's full of moments and opportunities for everyone to shine. We have 70 kids in this cast and they are fully immersed on stage and off." This show also provided a lot of unique challenges for the 40 student designers and technicians to work through collaboratively. And their work truly shines, and in some cases, steals the show."

Having auditioned 89 high schoolers and 32 elementary and middle schoolers, the final cast and crew's two months of rehearsals paid off.

ON OPENING NIGHT, Friday, April 27, a packed theatre gave way to an engaged audience in non-stop laughter and standing ovations for performances that wowed.

High school actor Daniel Williams' standout performance as King Arthur coupled with Claire Burton's soulful and agile vocal range as Lady of the Lake Godiva were the icing on the cake.

But everyone's perfected performance impressed the audience equally as much from the pit orchestra to the makeup and costume designers to the tap dancers to the Frenchies with their precise accents to the Wee Knights Who Say Ni, including its youngest cast member, middle school drama department chair Amy Hard's three year old daughter.

"I loved the show," said audience member Shelly Persil. "I had a smile on my face the entire time and I was very impressed with the talent. The voices were amazing and I especially loved Steven Eckloff as Prince Herbert. Beautiful vocals and a rich character filled with emotion."

Collaboration among students is vital, said Thrift. "I'm in constant awe of these students who choose to work collaboratively and give of themselves, realizing that the show is about the ensemble and supporting each other."

"That consistent process through rehearsals and tech is what creates such an incredible product that the kids can be proud of because they know they added to it every step of the way," said Thrift.

Hard, who only recently began collaborating with the high school theatre said it was a fulfilling experience to see her former middle school students perform.

"Ms. Thrift's leadership and inspiring spirit is the key to these huge productions. She trusts her students, and sets the bar higher than many a professional theatre. The sky is the limit, and her students jump, strive, and reach for what many would view as impossible 'for high school.' She has built a theatre program that is beyond most people's expectations, except for hers," said Hard, who choreographed for the production along with students Izzy Guzzano and Maria Gleason.

"Incorporating local elementary school students is another way she has reached out to the community to include all," Hard added.

Anna Maria Shockey who played Lady of the Lake Guinevere said the Monty Python quest is a classic nobody forgets.

"There is something so magical about the audience already loving the story so that the actors onstage are actually living and enjoying the adventure right along with them. It makes our job easy and fun!" she said.

"People should definitely come see the show because the level of performance is so much higher than what you'd expect from your average high school presentation," said Alexa Mitchell, who is a freshman and played the viola in the pit orchestra. "I couldn't stop laughing the first time I saw it, and everyone should have that experience."

"SPAMALOT" runs from May 3 to May 5, 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Robinson High School. For tickets, visit <https://rambunctious-theatre-company.ticketleap.com/spamalot/>

Teen Job Fair Held in Springfield

About 400 people attend event sponsored by Supervisor Pat Herrity.

BY STEVE HIBBARD
THE CONNECTION

About 400 people attended a Teen Job Fair featuring more than 40 businesses on Saturday, April 28, at West Springfield High School in Springfield.

The event sponsored by Springfield District Supervisor Pat Herrity and The Connection Newspapers included representatives from lifeguard and pool companies, stores like Target, and military recruiters, among others. Herrity said the job fairs have grown in size from about 250 visitors when they first started four years ago, and expanded from one job fair at West Springfield to six job fairs at high schools around the county.

"This is our sixth job fair this year, which has grown from four years ago when this was the only job fair that we did in Fairfax County. So, I'm excited about providing the opportunity for all our youth and so happy that we've grown from one job fair to six job fairs throughout Fairfax County," he said.

He added: "This is one of the favorite things I do as a supervisor. I absolutely love seeing our kids come out and talk with employers and get their jobs because there's dignity in work and first jobs are important," he said.

Scoping out a new job was Springfield resident Alan Brown, 16, a sophomore at West Springfield

High School. "I am here to get information about different jobs and have a plan after I leave high school," said Brown through his computer.

Lake Braddock Secondary Junior Charles Pritz, 16, of Burke, who was also looking, said: "I'm here at the job fair looking to find an opportunity for a summer job or internship to really gain real-world experience — hopefully in the field that I'd be interested in."

Jessie Chen, 16, a Woodson High School sophomore from Fairfax, added: "The reason why I'm here is to do something over the summer and to do something fun, that's why I'm here — to find something that I like."

Samuel Dade, 18, who attends Mount Vernon High School, said: "I came to the job fair to get a job so when I'm going through school I can pay for school and not be broke. So that's basically why I came here today." Kyle Vanderlaan, 16, of Springfield, who attends West Springfield High, said: "I'm just looking for a job. It's a really good opportunity to meet people and companies so you can just choose where ever you want to go and find out whatever you want to do."

Ivan Ramirez, 14, of Falls Church, who attends Corpus Christi School, added: "I came to the job fair to look for a job at a young age. I want to work with kids younger than me to help them do something in life and also get money."

West Springfield resident Ben Anderson, 15, who attends West Springfield High, said: "I'm just looking for a job this summer. I'm trying to get some money to pay for whatever I need. I think it's great that there are these places around here that are coming to the fair."

You Mean Next Week Tuesday?

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Today, Sunday, April 22, I am not on any real – or imagined, deadline pressure, quite different than my previous column (“You Mean Tomorrow Tuesday?”), published April 25. This column isn’t due until nine days from now, since my copy editor returns from vacation that Tuesday. And of course, since there’s no abbreviated/immediate-type deadline, and it’s a relatively quiet weekend at home (as opposed to the “triple threat” Tuesday I wrote about last week), Chino, in addition to any of our other four cats, are nowhere to be found. Certainly, they’re all sleeping. I mean, it is 12:30 pm. In fact, as I get up to investigate, Chino is sleeping on the very same chair he ended up on last week. This week however, when I have minimal deadline pressure, Chino has minimal Kenny interest. At present, he is not the least bit involved in the creative process, other than as a point of reference, that is.

And just as Chino is minding his own business – for now, I am able to mind mine and stay on task. It is so much easier to do so when my writing pad is not the exact midpoint and/or crossroads for where Chino is and for where he wants to be. Therefore, I have no excuses for not maintaining a creative flow as pen is put to paper. No cat interruptions or interference whatsoever. To quote my late father, I have no “encumbrances” – at the moment.

More so even than Chino walking right to left across my desk (and back of course). I just received an email from my oncologist, yes on the weekend, telling me that my two scans taken on Wednesday, April 18, continue to show “stable.” News, with which I’m extremely fond of writing – properly, I can live. As much as I could likewise live with tumor “shrinkage” as well, I am ALWAYS pleased when I see my new favorite word: “stable,” in any communication from my doctor. For a cancer patient still undergoing treatment – as I am, or for any cancer patient in remission, a “stable” result is hardly the problem. The problem is growth and/or movement or appearance elsewhere in the body. (For lung cancer patients, movement to the brain, which occurs in approximately 30 percent of patients, is the predominant worry. As such, I get a brain MRI regularly.)

So, no scan-result pressure. No post-chemo side-effect pressure. No newspaper and/or deadline pressure. And no cat-related pressure compounding any of the aforementioned pressures. Ergo, the ‘pressure’ is officially off. And when the ‘pressure’ is off, my creativeness is on. Though this may not be the best column I’ve ever written, it’s certainly been one with the least amount of ‘encumbrances.’

And speaking of my father, Barry, who died in in 2006, and now my mother, Celia, who died two years later, almost to the day, what I am particularly grateful for is the timing of my diagnosis/prognosis: it all happened after they had died. They never knew. My first symptom manifested four weeks after my widowed mother was laid to rest. They both know now though as I regularly update them when I visit their gravesites at the cemetery. And though the conversations are mostly one-sided, still, it brings me comfort and a peculiar sort of joy to share the details of my treatment and the miscellaneous pressures I experience, some of which I’ve mentioned and some of which I haven’t. Many of those my parents knew about, and were often topics of discussion – while they were alive.

I was lucky then and I continue to be lucky now. Great parents before and an amazingly fortunate post-cancer-diagnosis after. Whoever I have to thank: thank you.
