‘Mistakes Will Teach You the Most About Life’

Speakers share words of wisdom with Marshall High graduates.

BY BRIAN WEINGAST

For the class of 2018 at George C. Marshall High School, a Statesmen is more than a mascot, it is a model to live by. On the morning of their graduation in the packed Constitution Hall, the trials and tribulations of the man whom their school was named after offered a guide for their own journey to come.

Serving as Chief of Staff under President Roosevelt and later Secretary of State and Defense for President Truman, General Marshall was one of the most distinguished leaders in American history. An architect of the allies’ strategy in World War II, Marshall was hailed as the “organizer of victory” by Winston Churchill. While brilliant on the battlefield, his plans to rebuild Europe following the war displayed his immense power as a humanitarian, later being awarded a Nobel Peace Prize in 1953.

THE GUEST SPEAKER Judge Manuel A. Capsalis, an alum from the class of 1977, instructed the graduates to uphold the same morals as their honored Statesman. In every task he undertook Marshall maintained his dignity and flawless rectitude while serving his nation with pride. As Capsalis explained, such leadership is rarely found but must always be emulated.

As he continued his speech, the Judge reflected on his own graduation ceremony many years prior and how he could not recall the speaker or even what was said. Rather than offering advice that many would not remember, Capsalis decided to write a letter to himself at that age and share it with the graduates now.

He told himself that though he may believe he has everything figured out, there are many more things to learn, and many things he still does not know today. “You will make mistakes,” he said, “but it is those mistakes that will teach you the most about life.” He emphasized that one dumb decision does not define you as person, yet it is up to you to learn and grow from it. Quoting the great American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson, Judge Capsalis told the graduates to “always do what you are afraid to do,” while taking full advantage of the opportunities you are given.

Towards the end of his speech, Judge Capsalis stressed that the graduates must honor their parents for “all that you are and all that you will be is because of them.” He told them to define their lives not by their own success but the people around them and the impact they make on others. In his last words of advice for the graduates, Capsalis explained that they will be tested throughout their life’s journey but just like Marshall in the time of crisis, one’s moral courage will always guide you to the right decision.

Following Judge Capsalis commencement speech, history teacher Dean Wood took the podium for an emotional address from the faculty. Wood told the graduates that they themselves have made him a better teacher and person. “You are my people,” he told the graduates. Later bringing up the death of a beloved classmate, Wood encouraged the graduates to always be there for each other for you never know what others may be dealing with.

FOR HIS LAST WORD OF WISDOM, the teacher told the graduates that you do not gain strength by tearing people down but by building them up. Using the famous quote from Martin Luther King, Wood emphasized that “Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that.”

Madeira Celebrates Graduation in Outdoor Amphitheater

Madeira held its commencement on June 8. The student speaker for the Class of 2018 was Zoe Crawley.

Shayna Riggins from the Class of 2018 introduced the keynote speaker, Katlyn Grasso, Founder and CEO of GenHERation. Pilar Cabeza de Vaca, Head of School, gave her address. Anne Faircloth, Trustee from Madeira’s Board of Trustees, gave the final speech before the diplomas were conferred.

As has been tradition since Madeira first opened this campus, the graduation ceremony took place in Madeira’s outdoor amphitheater, surrounded by the lovely wooded areas and views of the Potomac.

Each of the 79 graduates (wearing long white gowns) carried 13 red roses in a time-honored tradition to honor the original 13 boarders at the school.

Madeira’s Class of 2018 hails from 13 different states and represents 13 different countries. The school flies the flags of these 13 countries as a backdrop to the amphitheater for the graduation ceremony: Canada, China, France, Germany, India, Ireland, Lithuania, Netherlands, Nigeria, Saudi Arabia, South Korea, Thailand and United States.

For their Co-Curriculum internships, the Class of 2018 contributed in meaningful ways, including:

- ❖ Nearly 14,000 hours in sophomore year serving the local community, such as Special Olympics, senior centers and schools.

- ❖ As juniors, Madeira students logged another 14,000 hours on Capitol Hill, learning the legislative process firsthand (and by the way, Capitol Hill is a big place, as the girls quickly learn while navigating through underground tunnels and several city blocks...each Capitol Hill intern walked on average the equivalent of over 5 marathons during her 5 weeks on Capitol Hill!)

- ❖ Senior year Co-Curriculum placements were as varied as the career aspirations and passions of the Class of 2018, with 50 different internships including working with doctors, architects, engineers, advocates, business consultants and more....and at offices ranging from George Washington Hospital Cancer Center to the Peace Corp to Deloitte...and from locations ranging from D.C. to Bonaire and McLean to Mozambique.

Wexton to Take on Comstock

Moderate state senator did not get pulled to the left in primary.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
CONNECTION NEWSPAPERS

State Sen. Jennifer Wexton (D-33) made a name for herself in Northern Virginia as a tough-as-nails prosecutor, including one case that grabbed national headlines involving a woman who persuaded her boyfriend to kill her father with a samurai sword. During her campaign for the Democratic nomination in Virginia's 10th Congressional District, she never lost that sense of law-and-order grit, refusing to be pulled to the left as other candidates were calling for President Trump to be impeached.

"We are now on a mission to bring real representation to Northern Virginia and to remove Barbara Comstock from office," said Wexton in a statement shortly after securing the nomination. "Barbara Comstock has worked to strip healthcare from millions of Americans, proudly touts her A rating from the NRA, and is so out of touch with this district that she hides from her constituents and has never held a single town hall."

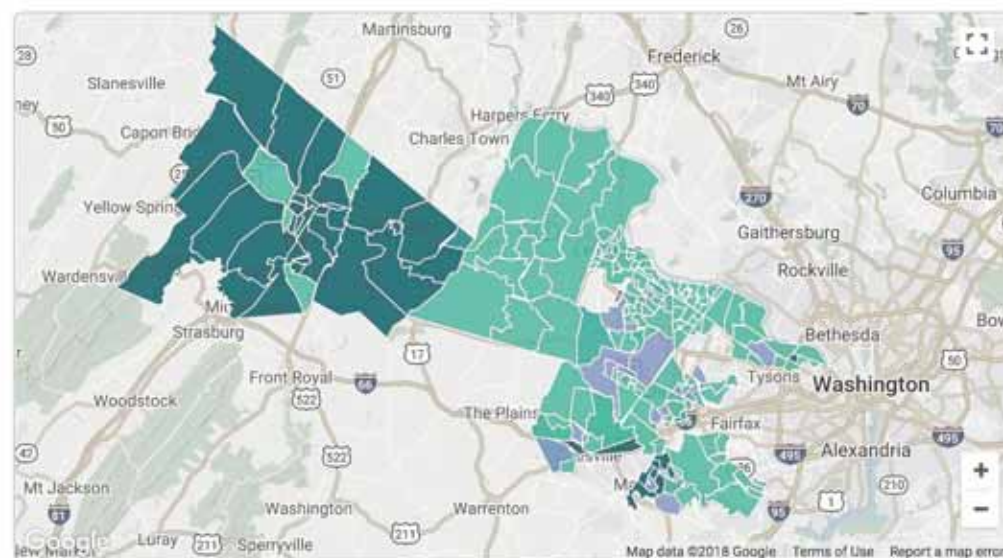

Comstock is the only Republican incumbent in Virginia to be defending a district that Trump lost in 2016, which puts this particular race at the top of the agenda for Democrats this fall. Two years ago, Comstock won 53 percent of the vote against Democrat LuAnn Bennett. But Hillary Clinton also won the district with 52 percent of the vote. Since that time, Comstock has tried to position herself as a centrist looking out for the interests of her constituents while taking an arms-length approach to some of Trump's more conservative rhetoric.

"She is the only candidate in this race who has voted to cut our taxes and increase our take home pay and grow jobs," said Susan Falconer, campaign manager for Comstock, in a written statement after her primary victory against Republican challenger Shak Hill. "She is the only candidate in this race to have passed two MS-13 anti-gang bills on a bipartisan basis that the president has already committed to sign."

LAST YEAR'S BLUE WAVE election has given Democrats hope that they're entering a midterm election season with the wind at their back, and they're targeting three incumbent Republican House members in Virginia. Aside from Comstock, incumbents who find themselves in the crosshairs include U.S. Rep. Dave Brat (VA-07) and U.S. Rep. Scott Taylor (VA-02). The House Maajority PAC is supporting Democrats in all three of these races, hoping to turn these red parts of Virginia blue.

"These candidates will stand up for Virginia families and fight for an agenda that lifts up the middle class while their Republican opponents have made it clear that they aren't looking out for the hardworking Virginia families they're supposed to represent," said Charlie Kelly, executive director of the political action committee. "These Republicans have enabled a toxic GOP agenda that raises taxes on hardworking Virginians, imposes a devastating age tax and takes away health care from millions of Americans."

WEXTON was able to beat back a crowded field of Democratic challengers, including two former Obama administration officials. One, Alison Friedman, was able to pump $1 million into her own campaign and remained a constant presence on television ads. The other, Lindsey Davis Stover, became a constant presence at community meetings and town halls over the last few months. In the end, neither was able to match the name recognition that Wexton has built.

"From the moment it began, this campaign has been about putting people back into the center of our politics," said Stover in a concession statement, thanking the other candidates in the race. "Together, we built momentum and enthusiasm that will ensure Democrats can unseat Barbara Comstock this November."

Friedman was able to win seven precincts in Fairfax County and nine precincts in Loudoun County. And Stover had a strong showing in Frederick County, Manassas and Winchester. But Wexton was able to run up the numbers in Fairfax, Loudoun and Prince William County for a comfortable margin of victory. Republicans say they're ready to take on Wexton this fall.

"The nasty and divisive Democratic primary forced Nancy Pelosi recruit Jennifer Wexton to lurch to the far-left, rendering her unelectable," said Maddie Anderson, spokeswoman for the National Republican Congressional Committee. "Barbara Comstock has defeated a Jennifer Wexton-type candidate before, and she'll do it again in November."

Kim Greer is New Langley High Principal

Former AP at Marshall High has 25 years as an educator.

BY STEVE HIBBARD

Kim Greer of Fairfax, who has 25 years in education, was named new principal of Langley High School, effective July 2. She will be replacing Fred Amico, who is retiring. Greer will be leading 1,800 students and a staff of 157 teachers at the only high school in Fairfax County that offers a Russian and Japanese immersion program.

As part of the Langley Pyramid, the ethnic breakdown of students at Langley High from 2016-17 stats includes: white, 64.59 percent; Hispanic, 5.07 percent; Black, 1.12 percent; Asian, 23.59 percent; and Other, 5.63 percent. There are 95.18 percent of students in the General Education program.

"It's going to be a school where it's less diverse than most in Fairfax County, but it's a high-achieving school. It's a supportive community where everyone wants to make sure the students have the skills necessary to be successful post-secondary," she said.

She added: "When you look at the fact that you have a school where most of the students come from a higher socioeconomic level or background, that provides resources to students who are highly motivated to do well, I think, and get a lot of support from the community," she said, adding. "For me, it's about meeting the needs of the whole child. While these kids might have a lot of financial and physical resources, at the end of the day, they're still kids. So, we need to make sure we're able to take care of all of their needs."

"The Langley High School community will quickly learn how much Kim cares about students, teachers, staff, parents and the community at large."

Jeffrey Litz

Built in 1965, Langley High, which is completing a schoolwide renovation, already has a business partnership with Deloitte of McLean. Greer is looking to strengthen it and make it a two-way partnership. "I'm looking to provide many opportunities to our students through the partnership," she said. Deloitte employs 245,000 people in 150 countries and provides audit and assurance, tax, legal, risk and financial advisory and consulting services.

AS FAR AS CHALLENGES, she's looking forward to getting to know the Saxons community, the kids and the families of Langley. "There's a very strong contingent of teachers who have been there for many years, so I want to continue to meet the needs that they may have as well as finding ways to be innovative in our teaching and learning practices," she said. One of her goals is to build relationships and trust with key stakeholders, she added.

What she loves about her job is "being able to ensure that the needs of every student and teacher are being met. That's what really gets me up in the morning," she said.

While working with the school's PTA, she wants to "make sure I recognize that right now there's a strong relationship between the school, administration and PTA, so I want to continue that relationship to use the organization for a resource for the school and a way for us to be able to meet the needs of all of our learners," she said.

According to Marshall High Principal Jeffrey Litz who worked with Greer: "Kim Greer is an extremely competent administrator who I am sad to lose at Marshall High

Graduating from Potomac

Hundreds of family members and friends cheer for the 118 graduates.

After weeks of rain, June 8 dawned bright and sunny – a perfect day for an outdoor Commencement celebrating The Potomac School's Class of 2018. Hundreds of family members and friends were on hand to cheer for the 118 graduates as they crossed the stage to accept their diplomas from Head of School John Kowalik and shake hands with Board of Trustees Chair Dr. Marjorie Brennan. William Duryea '18 spoke on behalf of the graduating class, offering remarks that combined insightful observation with humor. He recalled being concerned about not fitting in when he came to Potomac at the start of his sophomore year. Initially resolved to blend in quietly, Duryea said, "I realized quickly that Potomac wasn't going to let me keep my head down." He described how being nudged out of his comfort zone and encouraged to stretch, both personally and academically, helped him become an engaged member of the school community. He expressed appreciation for the fact that "Potomac has consistently challenged me in ways that force me to be receptive to help and influence. Despite my efforts to tackle things on my own, I have had to open myself up to teachers and friends operating with the community in mind."

English Department Chair Anne Nightingale gave the faculty address, offering some deeply felt observations. She spoke about taking her own daughter to college; along with all of the practical dorm supplies, Nightingale delivered two houseplants to her daughter's new home – a bamboo and a bonsai. She explained, "Bamboo is a symbol of integrity. It is straight and upright. Bamboo reminds you to bend, but not break. It embodies the power of being flexible and firmly rooted in one's beliefs. ...As for the bonsai, I wanted to give her something thriving and lovely, to keep beauty and the joy of growing forever before her." She told the graduates, "Amid the joy and thrill of college, there will be a few sad moments. And yet you will conquer and rise above. What you carry in your hearts is a special part of you that will enable you to grow strong and stay rooted through the rest of your lives. Do not be afraid to bud and bloom. Send out a new shoot. Open your leaves in the bright light. ...Be brave like bamboo and beautiful like the bonsai."

Head of School John Kowalik also offered the Class of 2018 some valuable advice. Citing the adage "What lies behind you and what lies ahead of you pale in comparison to what lies inside you," he challenged the graduates to value and nurture what lies inside them. He noted, "Your inner core must be strong and healthy, vibrant and resilient." While acknowledging that intellectual growth and career preparation are key aspects of the college experience, he asserted, "A more important dimension of college is understanding and refining that which lies inside you – your ethical, emotional, and psychological core and well-being." Kowalik went on to speak of the value of maintaining equanimity in the face of both success and failure. He advised the graduates, "The wise thing is to live life in moderation, keeping your composure and an even temperament. Widen your aperture and see the bigger picture. You will be calmer in the face of stress; you will be more willing to take productive risks; and in the end, I believe, you will be happier and more successful."

School. At the same time, I am very happy for her. She has been working very hard and has earned the opportunity to be principal of such a great school. Kim strongly believes that every child is an individual and that we, as educators, need to reach each child by name and by need. The Langley High School community will quickly learn how much Kim cares about students, teachers, staff, parents and the community at large. I am confident Kim will be a wonderful principal and continue what has been a strong career."

Added Helen Anderson, special education teacher at Marshall High: "Langley is so fortunate to have such a strong administrator as their principal. (Kim) is an expert in all things FCPS. She is fair, progressive, and open-minded. My favorite thing about Mrs. Greer is that she hires the best and most qualified teachers, and then she stands back and allows us to do our jobs. She has never micromanaged us. As a special education teacher, I have faced many challenging students and situations, but Mrs. Greer has always been incredibly supportive, and she has an intimate knowledge of Virginia's Special Education laws."

Ellen Reed, learning disabilities

teacher at Marshall High, added: "Kim Greer leads with grace, confidence, and poise. Her example of leadership is pristine and she exudes respect for her staff. Kim has been instrumental in my personal development as a leader, consistently mentoring and supporting me in my journey. I've gained invaluable skills from being under her leadership, and she is going to be greatly missed."

GREER GREW UP in Lenoir, N.C., and received her bachelor's degree in middle grades education from UNC Greensboro; a master's in curriculum and instruction from Virginia Tech; and an Administrative Endorsement through George Mason University.

She started her teaching career at Key Middle School where she taught English; then Hayfield Secondary where she taught civics and U.S. history (teaching for a total of 12 years); then held assistant principal jobs for 11 years at Westfield High, South Lakes High, and Marshall High schools. She is already transitioning over to Langley High.

At Marshall, Greer is known for saying: "A bad day at Marshall beats a good day anywhere else," which she says (with a smile) she'll be using at Langley, too. Greer is married and has three children ages 17, 15, and 12.

Great Falls Student Awarded in National History Day Competition

In the National History Day program held at the University of Maryland, College Park June 10-14, Jane Carskaddan, a tenth-grader from Great Falls, and a Langley High School student, received the Virginia Outstanding Senior Entry Award for her research paper, "444 Days in the Dark: The Iran Hostage Crisis." Her paper advanced to the final round of judging and was among the top ten of ninety-seven Senior paper entries. Founded in 1974, the National History Day Contest was created to inspire students to conduct original historical research. Since its creation, the contest has grown into an international competition with more than half-a-million participants and thousands of dollars in scholarship awards and prizes annually. According to an independent study in 2011, students who participate in the National History Day Contest are better prepared for college, careers, and citizenship. They also outperform their peers in areas including communication, planning, research and perseverance. Many of the fifty-nine Virginia students who competed at the National Contest have already turned their attention to next year's theme: Triumph and Tragedy in History. They will have until next February and March to put their final touches on new exhibits, documentaries, papers, performances, or websites – before the 2019 competition season starts anew.

The Art of a Deal with the Devil

BY GERRY CONNOLLY
U.S. REPRESENTATIVE (D-IL)

Against the backdrop of American and North Korean flags, the world finally got a glimpse into the negotiating skills of the so-called “Master of the Deal.” After much fanfare more appropriate for a reality television show than a historic diplomatic summit, the president emerged empty-handed. Trump gave the North Korean dictator everything he’s longed for — international legitimacy, an audience with an American president, and the cancellation of military exercises with our South Korean ally. And President Trump got nothing.

There is great danger in a president more committed to the optics of a getting a deal than the substance within it. Trump’s on-again, off-again agreement to a nuclear summit with Kim Jong Un was a high-risk gambit that squandered valuable leverage and gained no concessions in return. With little preparation and guided by his “feel” that within the first minute he would know if a deal is possible, the president rolled out the red carpet for Kim, ignoring that the devil is in the details.

Kim got the propaganda he needs back home, while concrete commitments from the North Koreans to denuclearize remain elusive. The administration’s oft-repeated language that denuclearization must be “irreversible” and “verifiable” was not even mentioned in the joint statement, nor any reference to North Korea’s egregious human rights violations and Kim’s illegal imprisonment of more than 100,000 people in gulags. And the president’s weakness and naiveté signals to nuclear threshold states that they too should adopt the North Korean model of extreme brutality, threats and endless provocation.

Even more troubling, this summit follows President Trump’s shameful behavior with our closest allies at the G-7 summit. While we repay our allies’ loyalty with misguided tariffs and disrespect, the president is cozying up to one of our greatest foes, cementing the worldview that America is retreating again.

The Korean peninsula is a dangerous global flashpoint and we must remain open to diplomatic engagement with the North, but not at any cost and not without assurances that such an endeavor is guided by steady hands. We can’t have amnesia about the past. North Korea has previously made denuclearization commitments in 1994, 2005, and 2012, only to renege on each in 2002, 2009, and 2012, respectively. But Mr. Trump cares little about substance, history or strategy.

We had a model that worked. In response to illicit Iranian nuclear activities, the international community established a robust sanctions regime that drove Iran to the negotiating table. Before agreeing to formal talks, the United States extracted specific commitments from Iran to freeze portions of its nuclear program. But it was the promise of relaxed sanctions and increased international trade that convinced Iran to reverse its nuclear program and adopt the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), with which it is in compliance to this day. Articulating incentives for denuclearization, commensurate with strict and verifiable nuclear dismantlement, should have been an essential component of any diplomatic engagement with North Korea.

When the president tore up the Iran nuclear agreement, simply because it was signed by his predecessor, he set his own standard for North Korea: absolute denuclearization, absolutely verifiable. Anything less than that is a failure by his own admission. Following the summit, we are not even close to the goal of a denuclearized North Korea.

The consequences of a nuclear North Korea are real and rushing to a bad deal could prove catastrophic on a global scale. The president needs to step back and recognize that substance and details matter. You are negotiating with a manipulative, erratic, and murderous dictator. Proceed with great caution, because this isn’t real estate. You can’t just walk away. Millions of lives hang in the balance if you agree to a deal on Kim Jong Un’s terms.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Disappointed By Changes

To the Editor:

The following statement was issued regarding the Fairfax County School Board’s vote on its Family Life Education (FLE) curriculum.

While I am pleased that the Fairfax County School Board has voted to retain clergy among the list of people our youth ought to consider trusted adults, I am nevertheless disappointed to see the board has chosen ideology over biology in introducing such terms as “sex assigned at birth” in place of “biological sex” in the schools’ Family Life Education (FLE) curriculum. It is also distressing to see students receiving information about the drug regimen PrEP (Pre-exposure prophylaxis) while at the same time not learning that abstinence is the only 100 percent effective way of preventing the transmission of sexually transmitted infections (STIs). As a community committed to proclaiming the truth about human life, dignity and sexuality, the Catholic Church in the Diocese of Arlington will continue its efforts to educate the public regarding the content of the FLE curriculum and encourage parents to exercise their God-given right to “opt-out” their children from those lessons that distort the truth and are morally offensive.

Board, in 10-0 Vote, Approves More Inclusive Policies

To the Editor:

On June 14 at its regular meeting, the Fairfax County School Board approved updates to the Family Life Education Curriculum which are more inclusive of transgender students and family members, and a provision which will teach about ways to help fight the HIV/AIDS epidemic and inevitably save some of our students from infection.

Many members of the LGBTQ community and many allies came to the School Board meeting wearing purple, outnumbering those opposed by more than two-to-one. School Board members Karen Corbett Sanders (Mount Vernon), Tamara Derenak Kaufax (Lee), Megan McLaughlin (Braddock), Jane Strauss (Dranesville), Dalia Palchik (Providence), Pat Hynes (Hunter Mill), Sandy Evans (Mason), Karen Keys-Gamarra (at-large), Ilryong Moon (at-large) and Ryan McElveen (at-large) spoke eloquently and clearly in support of these provisions. Sully representative Tom Wilson and Springfield representative Elizabeth Schultz spoke against them, but were in fact away from the table for the final vote; it was unanimous at 10-0.

As president of FCPS Pride (a social welfare organization for LGBTQ employees, parents of LGBTQ students, and LGBTQ parents and allies in Fairfax County Public Schools), I would like to express my gratitude for the citizens who came to support, and to the elected officials who responded to those community members. We look forward to contributing, canvassing and voting at the elections in 2019.

Deafening Silence

To the Editor:

Once again Barbara Comstock’s silence is deafening. It should be remembered that Representative Comstock failed to speak up quickly in the wake of President Trump’s ill-thought out and discriminatory Muslim Ban. These past few weeks, Comstock similarly has failed in her duty to represent not only her district but the values that should guide and limit American policy. Separating kids, including babies, toddlers, and others who cannot possibly understand such separation, is unbelievably cruel. Separating children and then detaining them is reminiscent of some of the lowest moments in our history. Although hard-liners justify such actions using the language of national security and even, in the case of Jeff Sessions, the Bible, we have done similar things in the past, such as Japanese internment, to our shame. Republicans finally are joining Democrats in calling for an end to this cruelty. Just this week

Talking to Children about Suicide

Creating safe environment is key to opening a discussion.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

The recent high profile deaths by suicide make it inevitable that children will ask questions and express a curiosity about the topic. However, some parents might feel a sense of uneasiness about answering those questions. Local mental health educators say that the steady increase in death by suicide each year since 1999 makes those conversations vital.

Parents can begin by creating a safe environment for an age-appropriate dialogue, says Linda Gulyn, Ph.D, professor of psychology at Marymount University. "As always, reassure young children that you are there for them no matter what," she said. "Don't feed into the anxiety. Teens understand it 100 percent, probably more than you realize."

"Encourage children to ask questions and answer them honestly," added Jerome Short, Ph.D., associate professor of psychology at George Mason University. "Parents should state that they will help their children handle any bad feelings or problems that happen."

Suicide can be a frightening topic for children and a difficult subject for parents to explain, advised Short. "Explain that people die in different ways and suicide means that people hurt themselves and died from it," he said. "A more detailed explanation is that our thoughts and feelings come from our brain, and sometimes a person's brain is sick. People feel alone, believe they are a burden on others, and are hopeless that it will change. Some people cannot stop the hurt they feel inside by themselves, but they can get help."

Parents should have a general understanding of suicide rates, signs and methods of preventing before embarking on a conversation with their children about the topic, advises Monica Band, Ed.D., assistant professor of counseling at Marymount University, who recommends the National Suicide Prevention and the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention as sources of information. "I would also recommend parents challenging their misconceptions and preconceived notions of [those who] who attempt and think of committing suicide because it is an issue that has an impact across cultures."

Some children might not understand the difference between feelings of sadness and clinical depression. "Explain that we all get sad and have good days and bad days," said Gulyn. "Usually we feel better. But kids who commit suicide are so sad that they don't know what to do to feel better. But the truth is there is a way to feel better, and there are very helpful adults in school and at home who are great to talk to."

However, some children might have difficulty grasping the concept of mental illnesses like depression. "Sad is normal, sad is part of life, and usually we feel sad when something outside of us happens, like when a friend moves away. And we know that we will feel better," said Gulyn. "Depression is when someone feels hopeless that he or she won't be sad anymore. And that makes them not want to do fun things, or take care of themselves."

An awareness of warning signs of mental illness and the fact that depression is not a normal phase of adolescence are two factors that Gulyn underscores. "[Depression] is a serious mental health disorder for which there are effective treatments," she said. "Parents need to be aware of kids isolating themselves from others, especially peers. Other signs [include] not taking care of your physical appearance, consistently performing poorly in school, substance abuse, eating disorders, excessive or inadequate rest."

If a parent notices any of these symptoms or suspects that their child might be depressed, Gulyn advises a straightforward approach. Don't be afraid to ask your teen directly, "Do you think you are depressed?" or "Have you been thinking about hurting yourself?", she suggests.

Teaching a child healthy help-seeking behaviors will give them an invaluable tool when facing mental health issues, advised Monica P. Band, an assistant professor of counseling at Marymount University. "If parents raise the child to have specific religious or spiritual beliefs, this could be a way to begin the discussion of how one finds strength, resilience, or peace in times when they feel like they're not in control," said Band. "Regardless of one's religious or spiritual beliefs, it is worth it if parents have an understanding and awareness of mood shifts or changes with their children and set an example and expectation with how to address these issues when things aren't feeling right or normal for their child."

Taste of Reston 'Savors the Flavor of Reston'

The Greater Reston Chamber of Commerce once again produced Taste of Reston, the largest outdoor food festival in the area. Now in its 35th year of production, Virginia Living Magazine named it Northern Virginia Best Food Festival for the past six years. According to organizers, the event held June 15-16 on Reston Town Center's internal streets and its carnival component at Lake Fairfax drew a reported crowd of approximately 40,000 people.

SoberRide Offered on Independence Day

Preparing to combat that time of year when, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), more than 40 percent of all U.S. traffic deaths involve drunk drivers, free Independence Day Lyft rides will be offered to deter impaired driving throughout the Washington-metropolitan area beginning Wednesday, July 4.

Offered by the nonprofit Washington Regional Alcohol Program (WRAP), the 2018 Independence Day SoberRide program will be in operation beginning at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, July 4 (Independence Day) and continue until 4 a.m. on Thursday, July 5, as a way to keep local roads safe from impaired drivers during this traditionally high-risk holiday.

During this nine-hour period, area residents age 21 and older celebrating with alcohol may download Lyft to their phones, then enter a SoberRide code in the app's "Promo" section to receive their no cost (up to $15) safe transportation home. WRAP's July 4 SoberRide promo code will be posted at 5 p.m. on Wednesday, July 4 on www.SoberRide.com.

Last year, 513 persons in the Washington-metropolitan area used WRAP's Independence Day SoberRide program rather than possibly driving home impaired. The charity also offers its SoberRide program on St. Patrick's Day, Cinco de Mayo, Halloween and the winter holidays.

Last year, WRAP announced a partnership with the ridesharing service Lyft to provide WRAP's SoberRide service in the Washington-metropolitan area. SoberRide, the free safe ride service to prevent drunk driving, is now solely available via the Lyft mobile app ridesharing platform.

"Over 40 percent of all U.S. traffic fatalities during the Independence Day holiday in 2016 involved drunk drivers according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration," said Kurt Gregory Erickson, WRAP's president. "Worse, two-thirds of those killed in drunk driving crashes during the 2016 Independence Day period had BACs of .15 or higher."

Since 1991, WRAP's SoberRide program has provided 72,377 free safe rides home to would-be drunk drivers in the Greater Washington area.

More information about WRAP's SoberRide initiative can be found at www.SoberRide.com.

LETTER

Laura Bush wrote a powerful op-ed highlighting the "immoral" nature of Trump's family separation policy. I suspect Comstock eventually will go on record opposing these policies—the power of images of kids ripped out of their parents' arms, trapped behind chain-link fencing, and relegated to sleeping on the floor of former Wal-Mart spaces or in tents in the Texas heat is just too great to be denied politically—perhaps even before this letter is published. But the fact that Comstock simply waits, that she lacks courage and conviction even in the face of obvious evils done by the Trump administration should not be lost on voters.

Regardless of one's feelings about immigration, we should expect more from our representatives.

Watching Some More and Wondering No Less

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Recently, I bought my wife, Dina, the "Limited Edition, Downton Abbey, The Complete Collector's Set." Twenty-two discs, all the episodes, bonus features, etc. Now we can finally delete the saved content off our DVR; that should open up about half the available storage. Storage that we've happily used and accessed many times.

In its prime though, we did not miss a Downton Abbey episode when it was first broadcast on PBS (starting Jan. 9, 2011 and ending Jan. 3, 2016) and we've been recording, saving and watching ever since. We are two, of millions, who couldn't get enough viewing time of this period drama then and still can't to this day.

Ergo, the purchase. Now we are in control. If anything happens to our cable box – and it needs to be replaced/upgraded, we will not – as previously happened, suffer a potentially tragic loss of content in the exchange. Eliminating that worry alone has made the purchase worth the very reasonable price we paid.

Having the complete set in hand, Dina and I have decided to re-watch the series from start to finish. Heretofore, we had watched episodes in sequence, but not necessarily in chronological order – meaning season one, episode one through the final episode of season six. As a result of this decision, we have gotten reacquainted with story lines which had somewhat faded over time as there are some episodes we hadn't seen in years. We had saved many, but not all (when it was free to do so; now, the there's a cost, $2.99 per episode to buy, I believe).

So far, we're through season two and we've thoroughly enjoyed the people, places and things – and the many nuances we may have missed or forgotten. However, this passage of time has caused Dina and I to rethink some of our opinions of characters and story lines.

There are two primary reassessments that oddly enough, Dina and I share.

One concerns Dr. Clarkson, the local/family doctor who runs the Downton Cottage Hospital. The other concerns Patrick Crawley (the cousin/ original heir who was thought to have died when the Titanic sank in 1912) who reappears in season two as a convalescing Peter Gordon, a.k.a. P Gordon. As much as we like Dr. Clarkson, and are amused by his straddling the line between himself and the aristocracy, we have decided that we don't like some of his medical opinions: his hesitancy to even consider the treatment for dropsy for Mr. Drake that "cousin" Isobel (an experienced nurse) had proposed; his misjudgment of the possible psychological consequences of transferring the patient with gas blindness (with whom Thomas had developed a rapport) who subsequently killed himself – presumably rather than accept being transferred; and finally Matthew who suffered what Dr. Clarkson described as a transection of his spine when he and William were injured in battle which turned out to be a bruise.

An injury that he said would prevent Matthew from ever walking and – as later realized, fathering children either. In all three instances, Dr. Clarkson was proven to be wrong. As a consequence, if Dr. Clarkson was diagnosing my cancer, I'd ask for a second opinion.

As for Peter Gordon/P Gordon/Patrick Crawley and the story line concerning his reappearance as heir/heir pretender so many years after the family thought he had died – I would love to ask Julian Fellowes (writer and creator of "Downton Abbey") if this element was fact or fiction or simply a mere diversion for affect.

It all seemed so contrived, especially after "P" Gordon (who says he got his "name from a liquor bottle") leaves a note for the heartbroken Edith before there's any resolution. I mean, was he the heir or wasn't he? Did he leave because he felt the jig was up and the ruse was likely to fail? Or did he feel so betrayed and disrespected by his family (the Crawleys) that he felt his present and/or future could never be what he envisioned?

Consequently, there are two questions I'd like answered: was Peter Gordon actually Patrick Crawley and where did Dr. Clarkson get his medical training?
