One More Battle in War of the Dawn Redwood

Concerns over county's tree canopy.

BY SHIRLEY RUHE
THE CONNECTION

The battle is heating up between Richmond Custom Homes who purchased a lot at 3260 N. Ohio Street and a group of conservationists attempting to preserve a 114-foot high dawn redwood tree located on the property. The County Board sits in the middle.

A group of about 20 local residents, wearing green imprinted "Please Save Our Trees" T-shirts sat as a block of protestors at the County Board meeting on Saturday, July 14. Angela Dickey, spokesperson for preservation of the dawn redwood tree at the meeting, focused on the importance of the tree's location in a Resource Protection Area (RPA). An RPA includes streams, rivers and other water bodies and environmentally sensitive lands within 100 feet of these water resources. The updated Chesapeake Bay Preservation Area map approved by the County Board on July 15, 2017 places the dawn redwood in one of Arlington's RPAs.

Dickey was followed by speakers representing other Arlington neighborhoods with similar concerns including Upton Park, Lyon Village and Cherrydale. Mary Glass, who appeared on behalf of Donaldson Run, said, "There were really so many areas represented here that they have to take notice."

The owner-developer has indicated he plans to demolish the current home on N. Ohio Street, subdivide the lot and build two new six-bedroom homes. The plan involves cutting down the dawn redwood, the largest of its species in Virginia. The tree is designated as both an Arlington and a State Champion.

Arlington Tree Action Group (ATAG) in a June 25 press release declared, "This has the makings of a landmark case. A Champion Tree and the RPA in which it is located are at stake; the loss of either would call into question the enforcement of the Chesapeake Bay Protection Ordinance (CBPO), not to mention the county processes used to designate Champion Trees and RPAs."

AFTER THE PURCHASE of the property, a petition was initiated in early June by an Ohio Street neighbor and within a week it had over 800 signatures. By the time of the County Board meeting, the number of signatures on the petition had grown to 1,047. The petition argued that the nearly 40,000 square-foot lot could easily accommodate the tree and still build the new homes. Since then neighbors have been searching for solutions from buying the lot themselves to transferring the tree to someone else's property to voting out board members who don't support preservation of Arlington's trees.

The Resource Protected Area (RPA) runs along the stream bordering the house on Ohio Street where the dawn redwood is located.

The president of the Williamsburg Civic Association sent a letter on behalf of its residents to the County Board on June 22 expressing "dismay and concerns regarding the proposed removal of a mature dawn redwood at 3260 N. Ohio." The letter points out the location of the dawn redwood in the RPA is protected by the "state and local law which generally prohibit the removal of trees in RPAs, to preserve precisely substantial environmental benefits"

THE COUNTY BOARD responded on July 11 that "the tree is a state-recognized 'champion.' However in terms of legal protection, this is an honorary recognition only. The tree is not protected under state law or county regulation." The response explained there while there is a procedure to give a tree legal protection as a Specimen or Heritage Tree under the county's Tree Preservation Ordinance, it requires consent of the property owner. The previous owners of the property did not apply for either designation.

The board response explains: "The owner has considerable development rights under State and local law." However it indicated the county is exploring options for preserving the tree including direct discussions with the owner-developer, Richmond Custom Homes, as well as exploration of the ordinances related to the RPA which balances private property rights with maintaining effective buffer zones for water quality. Katie Cristol, chair of the County Board, and John Vihstadt, the board's liaison to the Urban Forestry Commission, signed the letter.

While designation of a Champion tree appears to afford no legal protection, according to the Urban Forestry Commission (UFC) the tree's location within the buffer zone of an RPA does give it protection. UFC weighed in with a letter to the County Board indicating the UFC meeting on June 28 considered the issue of the re-development of the property at 3260 N. Ohio Street. "This property is located within the Little Pimmit Run (of the RPA) and due to the small size of the surface stream is particularly sensitive to the effects of adjacent development."

The letter indicates two neighboring properties have recently adjusted their building designs to meet the RPA requirements. "According to (Section)61-17 of the Chesapeake Bay Preservation Ordinance: 'The County Manager on behalf of the County Board may seek injunctive relief to enjoin a violation for a threatened violation of any provision of this chapter.'"

However, County Board Manager Mark Schwartz indicated at the board meeting on July 14 the county-managed RPA has a strong advisory role but not with legal protection.

Kit Norland, one of the core members of the ATAG, added, "The County Board said this morning we really care but if we can't do anything it's not really our fault."

Glass says, "That's not really true; there are a lot of things they can do if they choose to do them."

A BROCHURE ISSUED by the Arlington Department of Environmental Services in November 2012 states under activities requiring RPA approval that "creating a new structure generally will require an exception request. In all cases the county will review the proposed RPA activity to ensure that water quality is protected." It continues, "The removal of mature trees with a diameter of 3 inches or greater requires county review and approval."

Norland declares the county's response "could not be more limp. Pathetic. Disappointing ... not much said about preserving the Resource Protection Area that runs the length of the property if the RPA means nothing here; what kind of precedent is being set?"

A Council of Governments (COG) for the Chesapeake Bay meeting is scheduled for July 27.

Libby Garvey, chair of the group and a County Board member says the dawn redwood won't be on the agenda because regional cooperation rarely gets to that level of detail. "But what I hope will happen in that COG meeting is that we decide to work more closely to find solutions to the issues we all have of preserving existing trees in the watershed."

This battle to save the dawn redwood is part of a larger war in Arlington to save the tree canopy. The Williamsburg Civic Association in its 2017 Neighborhood Conservation Plan identified the loss of mature trees through development as one of the biggest concerns of residents.

The letter from the Williamsburg Civic Association points out that Arlington's most recent Tree Canopy Assessment, the WPA has experienced a slight decline in overall canopy in recent decades and "the specific site at issue here — the West branch of Little Pimmit Run has seen a decline of 5 percent in tree canopy in the last five years alone."

Board Approves Park Improvements

The County Board at its July 14 meeting approved the award of two contracts to make improvements to two county parks.

The board approved the award of a $2 million contract to Bennett Group, Inc. to convert a grass diamond playing field at Gunston Park to the county's second synthetic turf diamond field. The Arlington Sports Foundation, an Arlington non-profit that raises funds for capital improvements to sports fields and facilities throughout the county, is helping fund the project.

Gunston Park Diamond Athletic Field #1 was approved for a capital maintenance project as part of the Fiscal Year 2016 Pay-As-You-Go budget. The plan at the time was to maintain the field as a grass field. The Arlington Sports Foundation then offered to help the county meet the costs of converting the field from natural grass to synthetic turf to allow for year-round play, adding nearly 880 possible playing hours to the field.

Current Gunston Park diamond field.

The foundation raised $180,000 of the $370,000 needed for the conversion, and the Arlington Sports Commission recommended allocating $190,000 from the Arlington County Diamond Field Fund to complete the project.

The County Board also approved a $684,000 contract to replace picnic shelter #2 in the 95-plus-acre Glencarlyn Park, 301 S. Harrison Street, and renovate the adjacent parking lot. Crown Construction was awarded the contract in a competitive bidding process.

The new shelter and adjacent parking lot is located within a Resources Protection Area and 100-year floodplain along Four Mile Run stream. To minimize disturbance of the natural area, staff designed the updated shelter to be placed on the same location as the former shelter. Stone and Douglas Fir will be used in building the new shelter, to complement the feel of the site.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Misleading Impression

To the Editor:

We always read the Connection Newspapers with interest, especially since we moved to senior living at The Jefferson in Arlington. The Jefferson is an independent living, senior living, residential condominium. The buildings include with two floors of quality Recovery, Assisted Living, Skilled Nursing, and Memory Care healthcare facilities which are legally separate from The Jefferson Residential Condominium. The current ratings of all entities are stellar.

I was impressed to see a full page, out-of-state advertisement prominently located on page 2 of the July 11-17, 2018 edition of The Arlington Connection. Congratulations on the revenue this should be providing.

The advertisement was about The Jefferson's healthcare aspects, but indicted all entities in the buildings. Reading the advertisement carefully, I found it might be technically accurate, but was highly misleading. When I went to the included link to view "the full inspection results and severity of these deficiencies..." I found it documented old, reported, and resolved issues.

As with any operation, not everything is always perfect. The "failures" highlighted in the Connection Newspaper advertisement are unfortunately common throughout the healthcare industry. Mistakes happen. They get corrected and we move on. Each of the "failures" cited happened, were promptly corrected, and sometimes staff was changed. That is how it should be. This full page advertisement, however, creates a misleading impression and damages the image of The Jefferson as a whole while trying to incite litigation. The hundreds of upscale independent living condominium owners that make up most of The Jefferson were indirectly slandered. Sad.

Best for Family Road Trips

Top audiobook picks for long drives with children.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

With summer comes roadtrips. In fact, a study by New York University's School of Professional studies showed that 63 percent of American families will take a vacation by car this summer. Long stretches of interstate and backseat time call for loading up on audio books before hitting the road. "Audio books are great for long car rides and they're much better than video games," said Barbara Marshall, department chair for Education and Social Sciences at Montgomery College. "They don't take the place of actually reading a book, but there is a time and place for them.

One of those times, says Marshall, is long drives without scenic views. She and others who are familiar with children's literature suggest some of the best books for family vacations by car.

"Ghost" by Jason Reynolds and narrated by Guy Lockard is a recommendation by Jennifer Rothschild, Youth Services Collection Development Librarian for Arlington Public Libraries. This 3.5 hour audio books is about a gifted runner named Ghost who has a chance to run for a prestigious middle school track team, but is challenged to stay on track both literally and figuratively in order to reach his full potential.

Fantasy buffs might appreciate "Dealing with Dragons" by Patricia C. Wrede, while fans of dystopian novels might enjoy "Leviathan," written by Scott Westerfeld and narrated by Alan Cumming, suggests Rothschild.

Set in an alternate version of WWI, Leviathan is the first in a trilogy. Primary characters include Prince Aleksander, the would-be heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and Deryn, a girl who disguises herself as a boy to serve in the British Air Service. The story takes off when the two cross paths.

History lovers might appreciate another Rothschild pick: "Notorious Benedict Arnold" which was written by Steve Sheinkin and narrated by Mark Bramhall. Running at 6.5 hours, this is a true story about an American war hero who loses his career and freedom for greater recognition.

Music lovers might enjoy "Solo" by Kwame Alexander, says Yunna Iqbal of Scrawl Books in Reston. The audio version of the New York Times best selling book by the same name, tells the tale of Blade, the son of a former rock star with a drug addiction. Intertwined with songs, the story follows Blade as he tries to escape his family's fame and fortune.

"Each chapter has a specific song and story follows and that makes it good for both young kids and older kids," said Iqbal.

"Artemis Fowl" by Eoin Colfer, narrated by Nathaniel Parker could appeal to thrill-seekers. The main character, a 12-year-old named Artemis Fowl is the heir to a crime family who appears to be unusually skilled at masterminding crimes until greed threatens to ruin his most brilliant plan. This Rothschild suggestion runs 6.5 hours.

Timeless classics like "Charles and the Chocolate Factory" and "James and the Giant Peach," both by Roald Dahl, are also fail-safe choices for family road trips, says Iqbal.

"Ghost Boys" by Jewell Parker Rhodes is a recommendation from Lelia Nebeker, Book Buyer at One More Page Books in Arlington. "It's a very short book, so if you're only driving for three hours, you can probably finish it," she said. "It's from the perspective of a seventh-grade black boy who is shot and killed by the police, and his ghost is telling the story of seeing the world after his death, where he meets the ghost of Emmett Till. It's a heartbreaking book, but beautifully written, well performed on the audiobook."

Despite the mature sounding premise, Nebeker says that it's intended for readers ages 9 and up.

"Avalon High by Meg Cabot' is a fun contemporary take on the King Arthur myth by the prolific Meg Cabot," advised Nebeker. "This one does take place in a high school setting, but it's appropriate for ages 10 and up for sure. So cute and funny."

"Two of my coworkers read 'Love Sugar Magic: A Dash of Trouble' by Anna Meriano ... and raved about it," said Nebeker.

"Amal Unbound' by Aisha Saeed is about a 14-year-old girl in Pakistan who becomes a servant to pay off her family's debts," said Nebeker. "[This is] another book for young readers that has some mature content, but is good for ages 10 and up and will start good discussion between parents and young readers."

"Howl's Moving Castle" by Diana Wynne Jones and "A Wrinkle in Time" by Madeleine L'Engle are two additional suggestions from Nebeker.

For a wider selection of choices, Marshall suggests the American Library Association's website which offers reviews of audio books: www.ala.org/alsc/awardsgrants/notalists/ncr.

"Audiobooks are great for long car rides and much better than video games."

Aging in Arlington Aging in Place reforms approved.

By VERNON MILES
THE CONNECTION

Arlington is getting more expensive to live in year after year. For many Arlingtonians the continually rising rents and property values are making it harder to stay in the county. During the tax relief study, one member of the working group was priced out of their home. Arlington County currently offers tax relief for elderly residents, but at its July 14 meeting, the County Board unanimously approved a series of changes that will alter the program to the better for some and more challenging to others.

"People want to age in place," said Laurie Young, chair of the Commission on Aging. "I'm grateful for tax relief for elders. You provide a way for folks to remain in their homes. Aging in place would be in jeopardy without that."

Two of the biggest changes to the program are an extension in the application deadline and increasing the program's exemption asset limit. The original deadline was Aug. 15, but the deadline was moved to Nov. 15 and the exception asset limit was increased from $340,000 to $400,000. Currently homeowners with assets greater than $340,000 but less than $540,000 may qualify for a deferral. Deferrals allow homeowners to postpone payment of some or all of the real estate taxes, to be paid without interest or penalties when the property changes ownership.

The changes will net Arlington $153,898 of revenue that was previously not being collected.

However, some local residents say the new changes overestimate how far those numbers can go for elderly or disabled residents.

"I'm one of those people supposedly wealthy," said Gail Davis. "I am also disabled and almost 75 years old. The theory that I can take equity out of my house and pay your tax bill: I already have two mortgages on my house. I took out home equity line which just converted to full payment ... If I sold the house, I would have nothing left."

County Board member John Vihstadt said he recognized the concerns of citizens, but that the change was necessary to help cover costs elsewhere.

"Seniors real estate tax relief is a critical component of aging in community and aging in place," said Vihstadt. "Many do want to remain in their own home. They don't want other living arrangements which ultimately they may have to transition to. At the same time, we do need to be mindful of property tax trends and affordability at all ages."

Site for Bus Parking Purchased

The County Board at its July 14 meeting unanimously approved the acquisition of three parcels of land along Shirlington Road that will be used as storage for the county's Arlington Rapid Transit bus fleet.

The $23.86 million purchase was made with funding from state, regional, and dedicated local transportation sources.

The county already had been using the largest parcel of land, 2.52 acres at 2629 Shirlington Road, to store ART buses through a rental agreement. That property comes with a small piece of undeveloped land, used for stormwater drainage, and a .94-acre lot at 2633 Shirlington Road, most recently used by a towing operator.

The purchase – from joint owners NOBE I, LLC and SHCII, LLC – supports county planning detailed in the adopted FY 2017-2026 Capital Improvement Plan and the 10-year Transit Development Plan, adopted in 2016.

ART buses parked at Shirlington Road site.

The Shirlington Road properties would complement the ART light-maintenance facility on South Eads Street in Arlington, and the heavy maintenance facility site in Fairfax County that the county may acquire.

Comparatively Speaking

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

After writing such an emotional column last week ("A Relative Unknown"), I'm having a little trouble finding footing for my pen for this week's column.

It reminds me of thoughts I had about continuing to write my "Everything in general about nothing in particular"-themed columns – which I had published in The Connection from December 1997 through May 2009, after I received my terminal cancer diagnosis in late February, 2009. How could I continue to write such lightweight nonsense after being given a "13 month to two-year" prognosis?

Not that my intention writing forward was ever to immerse you regular readers in self-indulgent Kenny at his self-important worst. Hardly. It was more that I had a need and apparently, an ability, to write about my cancer experiences with a similarly light touch as I had previously done so discussing everyday topics dating back 12 years or so.

Those columns, as you incredibly regular readers may recall, ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous, including everything in between. However, they never mentioned politics, current events, personalities in the news or anything of substance, quite frankly.

To give you a few examples: "Armed and Dangerous," a column about drivers who drive with their left arms hanging out the driver's side window (one of my mother's favorites); "Sole Man," a column about seeing so many single shoes lying by the side of the road; "Registering a Complaint," a column about the new (at the time) self-checkout registers at supermarkets; and "Victim of 'Soycumbstance,'" a column about why there are always so many packets of soy sauce in Chinese carry-out, and so many more, hundreds in fact, about "everything in general ...".

For me, they were – and continue to be, an amusing diversion/avocation which enabled me to pursue my passion and dream about writing a syndicated climate from a warm climate, preferably one with an ocean view, while maintaining my day job. A day job which I still maintain. And though the challenge for maintaining both may be greater now than ever, us true believers in the newspaper business will continue to read and write as best we can, in print and online.

Now, throw in a cancer diagnosis, which at the outset was extremely discouraging, and you might wonder how any of this makes sense. Well, perhaps it didn't. But perhaps having tasks and responsibilities was exactly the kind of regularity that a cancer patient given a rather grim prognosis needed, consciously, and maybe more importantly, subconsciously.

Somewhere in my head (or wherever one's subconscious exists) going on about life as if nothing was particularly life threatening (heck, more like life ending, at age 54 and a half, no less) perhaps was the kind of antidote my body needed. Though told then – and now, that there's no cure for what ails me: non-small lung cancer, stage IV, nevertheless, I am still alive nine-plus years later, "advocating" and "vocating."

However, maintaining my status quo; reading, writing and "rithmeticking" doesn't generally make me cry as writing last week's column did. And in living long enough to experience what I wrote about last week, I am always grateful to whomever/whatever power is responsible for yours truly being here, there and everywhere (also a reference to the name of the first song, by The Beatles, that Dina and I danced to as husband and wife).

Amazingly, life goes on, as does this column. But fortunately, for you irregular readers, not for much longer.

Have written this far, I think I've transitioned now from an extremely emotional experience: meeting my cousin from Argentina to an un-emotional/normal one: life in the mundane and boring Kenny lane. A lane I hope to continue to travel. At least I hope so, anyway.
