ROUNDUPS

Learn about New Center

The Joint Sully District Council/WFCCA Land Use meeting is set for Monday, Aug. 20, at 7 p.m., in the Sully District Governmental Center, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. Agenda items are as follows:

❖ Montessori Mansion: Naima Dar has been operating a home daycare in Chantilly for almost 18 months. And at parents' requests, she'd like to increase the number of children from seven to 12.

❖ Sully Community Center: Members of Fairfax County's Building Design and Construction Division, DPWES, will brief the panel on plans for a new Sully Community Center. It would be built on a 5-acre parcel next to Sully Highlands Park.

❖ Izaak Walton League: The applicant is filing a special exception amendment to permit the phasing of site modifications at its existing facility at 14708 Mount Olive Road in Centreville. Phase I would add a 60-space, gravel parking lot. Phase II would permit the future construction of an indoor education and training facility, two additions to existing facilities, plus more parking spaces and detached pavilions.

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, Aug. 30, from 5-8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust them, as needed.

Because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected. That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the correct use of the child seat. Call 703-814-7000, ext. 5140, to confirm dates and times.

CRIME

The following incidents were reported by the Fair Oaks District Police Station.

BURGLARY: 4000 block of Fair Valley Dr., between July 26 and July 29. A resident returned home from vacation and discovered that their basement door had been kicked in. Several items were stolen.

BURGLARY: 2472 Centreville Road. (Beacon Hill Missionary Church), July 23, 10:35 p.m. A member of the church reported electronics had been stolen. Surveillance video showed a man enter through a side door and take the items.

COMMERCIAL ROBBERY: 4000 Majestic Lane (7-Eleven), July 16, 2:58 a.m. Two men entered the store; one approached the clerk while the second man approached another employee. The man who approached the clerk displayed a gun and demanded money. The suspects took an undisclosed amount of cash and left the store. Both suspects are described as men wearing dark clothing.

POSSESSION OF BURGLARY TOOLS/OBTAIN MONEY BY FALSE PRETENSES: 11900 block of Fair Oaks Shopping Center (Lord and Taylor), July 14, 7:12 p.m. Lord and Taylor loss prevention received information about a group who stole from a store in Maryland. While watching live surveillance footage, the group was spotted inside the Fairfax store making a return without a receipt. Based off the information received from loss prevention, our officers located the suspects, all from Connecticut, and their vehicle in the parking lot. An investigation revealed the suspects were making fraudulent returns.

BURGLARY: 2961 Hunter Mill Road (Sunoco Gas Station), July 11, 2:40 am. Cash and cigarettes were stolen from the business. The two males were wearing all black clothing and black balaclavas and black gloves. On the surveillance video a small white SUV is seen in front of the bay door where they smashed a pane of glass. It appears they used a yellow crow bar to break the glass and then pry open the door into the store.

BURGLARY: 2957 Chain Bridge Road (Exxon Gas Station), July 11, 3:00 am. Officers responded to the Exxon gas station for an in-progress burglary call. Officers saw the door to the business had been pried open. Two suspects were on-camera stealing the cash register, store safe, and cigarettes. The suspects were seen arriving in a white Kia Sportage vehicle. They were described as wearing all black clothing with hoodies covering their heads. This is an active criminal investigation.

BURGLARY- 13200 block of Stone Heather Drive, between the dates of July 3 and July 4. A neighbor walking their dog advised someone appeared to have broken into their neighbor's home. It was not known if anything was taken.

WFCM Thanks Community for its Generosity

Stock Our Shelves drive gathers 5,005 pounds of food.

BY BONNIE HOBBS

Despite heavy downpours producing more than 5 inches of rain, local residents didn't leave Western Fairfax Christian Ministries (WFCM) up the creek without a paddle. Instead, they grabbed their umbrellas and went to three stores, Saturday, July 21, to help replenish WFCM's food pantry.

It was the nonprofit's annual, Stock Our Shelves food drive that enables WFCM to keep feeding families in need in Western Fairfax County. Overall, the event yielded 5,005 pounds of food and $586 in cash, and WFCM Community Outreach Manager Jennie Bush was delighted.

"WFCM is grateful for the support of the community at our food drive," she said. "It really was neighbors helping neighbors."

Each month, the organization's food pantry in Chantilly serves more than 370 hungry individuals and families. But, said Bush, "This is a very critical time of year for WFCM. Keeping the food-pantry shelves stocked during the summer months is always a challenge — particularly with children out of school [and those eligible for free and reduced-price meals not receiving them], plus donors on vacation."

That's why the Stock Our Shelves event was so important. The stores participating in the food drive were the Centrewood Plaza Giant in Centreville and the Walmart, and Franklin Farm Giant in Chantilly.

'He Just Wanted to Kill Someone' Man convicted of felony murder in pedestrian's death.

BY BONNIE HOBBS

Kenan Ozcan was determined to kill someone. He was angry and upset about his life and decided to take it out on someone he didn't know.

At first, said the prosecutor, he wanted to kill a family. But when he saw an elderly woman crossing a road on foot, he targeted her, instead, intentionally striking her with his vehicle — not once, but twice.

The tragedy occurred April 14, 2017, shortly before 10:15 a.m., near the intersection of Route 50 and Rugby Road in Fair Oaks. The victim, Maria Amaya de Ascencio, was crossing Rugby Road, eastbound, when she was struck by a 2016 Dodge Dart driven by Ozcan, traveling south on Rugby.

Ascencio, 75, of Fair Oaks, died at the scene, and Ozcan fled. But police arrested him, a few hours later. And last Tuesday, July 31, in Fairfax County Circuit Court, he was convicted of murder.

Kenan Ozcan

The victim, Maria Ascencio

But even then, Ozcan, 33, of Fairfax, didn't fully take responsibility for his actions. Instead of pleading guilty, he entered an Alford plea of guilt — not admitting any wrongdoing, but simply acknowledging that the prosecution has enough evidence to convict him of the crime of which he's accused.

"Are you entering this plea both freely and voluntarily?" asked Judge Thomas Mann. "Yes, sir," replied Ozcan. Mann also asked him the highest level he'd achieved in school, and Ozcan said he has a master's degree in biology.

Then Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Brandon Sloane presented what the prosecution's case would have been, had it gone to trial. He said police dispatched to the scene discovered the victim lying face down in the intersection.

"Several witnesses described a small, gray sedan being in the intersection while the pedestrian was in it and hitting her in the middle of Rugby Road," said Sloane. "They said the impact threw her in the air, 10-15 feet. Then the vehicle made a U-turn and accelerated through the intersection to hit her again before fleeing north on Rugby."

A lookout was given for the car, and a police officer later saw a vehicle with front-end damage stuck in traffic on the Fairfax County Parkway. The officer also noted that the driver was suspiciously watching him as he passed by the officer. But initially, police weren't certain of the car's make and color, so that vehicle wasn't pulled over.

Then, at 12:45 p.m., police were called to Everybody Fitness Center on Fair Ridge Drive in Fair Oaks for a report of a robbery. "A customer there saw the defendant behind the counter and told him he wasn't an employee and didn't belong there," said Sloane. "She tried to photograph him with her phone, and he assaulted her; he took her phone and ripped her shirt."

Sloane said Ozcan was apprehended in a restroom there, and key fobs to three different vehicles were found on him. "He said he owned the gym, but he had no ID on him and wouldn't tell police where his own vehicle was," said the prosecutor. "So an officer went into the parking lot to find the cars responding to the key fobs."

According to Sloane, Ozcan had keys to his mother's vehicle — which was being repaired — plus keys he'd stolen earlier from

The Scouts first learn safety and the range rules. They are then instructed on the proper use of the BB guns all before taking their first shot.

In STEM, the boys engaged in various crafting and science based projects. The two favorites this year were the Den Flags and the Cryptology Wheels that helped them to decode the camp's secret message.

Sully District Hosts Twilight Camp

BY REBECCA SHEN
TWILIGHT CAMP DIRECTOR

Kicking off the summer fun was the only way to go for many Cub Scouts. Keeping it local was the only way for parents of these Scouts to achieve those goals. Nestled alongside I-66 in Centreville lies the Arlington-Fairfax chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America where Cubs (boys and girls alike) enjoyed fishing, archery, BB's, STEM, and nature.

Naturally, every camp needs a great staff. For the past three years, Troop 1137 stepped up to the plate in every way, all of them were giving, cheerful volunteers.

Learning to work and guide others effectively, young Scouts come in as LITs (Leaders In Training). Learning as they are working, they begin to utilize the "E.D.G.E Method" (Explain, Demonstrate, Guide, and Enable). When the Scouts become 14 they are then recognized as Staff and help man the different stations located around the camp.

Adult staff at camp play an integral role as leaders at each station, guiding youth staff and LITs as they give guidance and help the camp run smoothly.

Dens and Packs also brought adult leadership to help guide the Cubs around camp. Parents and leaders were not only there to guide but had the opportunity to participate at each station with their Cubs enriching the experience for the whole family.

That said, many thanks to all the Staff, Adult Leaders, and, most importantly, the Cubs. Without all of you this amazing camp never would have happened, and we hope to see all of you back next year.

Preparing for New School Year

Home organizing saves space and time.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

The sight of store shelves overflowing with school glue sticks and crayons signals that the beginning of school is just around the corner. While squeezing in one last vacation, the thought of turning an eye to getting one's home in order before the school bell rings might be met with dread.

"It can feel like a daunting task to organize when artwork overflows from school or small trinkets come home from birthday parties, the end of summer is a great time to purge a lot of unnecessary items to make way for new school year ahead," said Allie Mann, designer-senior interiors specialist, Case Design/Remodeling. "And it's always a great time to donate gently used items as well."

"Especially now as families are preparing to get back to school, it's so important to get organized," added Anne M. Walker, Esq., Allied ASID, Owner + Principal Anne Walker Design LLC. "Nothing is more stressful than searching for something when you're already five minutes late, it's pouring down rain, it's picture day at school, and you have a big work meeting in 45 minutes."

Now that organization is often considered a part of interior design, the tools and hacks available are more stylish and innovative than ever, say local designers. "In a kitchen in Old Town, Alexandria I installed four shallow drawers underneath the countertop at the island — one for each family member," said Sarah Glenn, interior designer and project manager, Braswell Design+Build, Alexandria. "I designed the drawers to be just large enough to store school papers and a laptop so that each family member would have a dedicated temporary storage space without creating four individual junk drawers."

A Potomac, Md. family recently enlisted Walker's help in redesigning and reorganizing their home from top to bottom with an eye toward all things chic and stylish. She began in the bedrooms of the family's teenage daughter, creating custom closets.

"After the new closet was installed, I spent the better part of two days helping this teen fill the closet with all of her belongings, putting things where they were visible and readily accessible," she said. "Organization is important primarily because of the time it saves. If you can find what you need to get out the door right away, you can sleep 20 minutes later."

Hooks for backpacks and jackets, like this one by Allie Mann of Case Design/Remodeling, are a must for an organized mudroom.

A similar closet was created for the family's middle school aged son. "Amazing how even young children can keep their rooms tidy as long as there's a system in place that they can understand and is practical enough for them to use," said Walker. "If you know exactly where all of your clothes are, and exactly where to put them back after laundering them, it will seem like you just won the lottery. You won't believe how many things you have, many of which have been long forgotten, stuffed in the back of some drawer or under the bed."

One of the most important tasks on Walker's agenda was organizing a large basement space with abundant shelving to create a home office. "In an office this size, children could easily use it for homework while the parent was working there, also," she said. "Sometimes it's calming and comforting just to be in the same space, even if you aren't actually helping the child with their work."

A home's mudroom is supposed to serve as a gateway into the main house, creating order and keeping clutter from overflowing into the home's interior, but often that isn't the case as clutter overtakes the space. In a recent mudroom project, Mann incorporated elements into the design that addressed the family's lifestyle. "Cubbies and bench storage for sports and after-school activities for older children are a must," she said. "If space allows, allocating a designated cubbie for each child is best to keep things separated and from getting lost."

"With organization, you are constantly trying to strike a balance between carving out enough space for a specific function without over-organizing to the point that you lose flexibility to change what you store as your life evolves," added Glenn.

Northwest Federal Credit Union employees came with their families to help make WFCM's Stock Our Shelves event a success.

Gathering 5,005 Pounds of Food

The event was held from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. At each location, volunteers distributed a list of the most-needed food and personal-care items to encourage shoppers to purchase what was especially needed.

"Thanks to the caring customers who donated food and toiletries — and store management who made the food drives possible — many families in need will have an abundance of food to shop for at WFCM's pantry," said Bush. "In fact, our volunteers often witnessed generous donors push a cart full of groceries out of the store, remove just one bag for themselves and donate the rest to WFCM."

Also praising the volunteers working outside each store, Bush said they, too, contributed to the event's success. Throughout the day, they stood — often in the rain — passing out the lists of the most-needed items, sharing WFCM's story and explaining why there were there.

"They kept smiles on their faces as they accepted food, weighed, marked and sorted it for the pantry," she said. "And at the end of the drive, many volunteers were also on hand at the pantry to unload the trucks full of food and personal-care items. They then stocked the nearly empty shelves with the donations."

Pleased with the results, Bush said, "Our community is very caring, supportive and generous. We couldn't do what we do without our neighbors, and we thank them all for donating food and for making Stock Our Shelves such a success."

someone at the gym. "But he couldn't figure out how the pushbutton start worked, so he had to get a rental car," said Sloane. "And the car in the parking lot that responded to the key fob turned out to be a car he'd rented that morning."

It was a gray, Dodge Dart with front-end damage. "Police obtained strands of hair from the windshield wipers and human biological material from the undercarriage," said Sloane. "It was later compared to the victim and was a match. The coroner determined that she died of blunt-force trauma to the head, torso and extremities."

Furthermore, said Sloane, the police officer who'd found the car at the gym spoke with the officer who'd seen the suspicious vehicle stuck in traffic, and they concluded that it was Ozcan and the Dodge Dart, both times. In addition, while in jail, Ozcan shared further details with another inmate.

"He told his cell mate the victim's head hit his vehicle and he ran over her again to make sure she was dead," said the prosecutor. "He said he just wanted to kill someone because he was upset about other things in his life, such as his mother losing his house."

"He said he'd planned it for two days and that, initially, he wanted to kill a family – maybe a van full of children," continued Sloane. "Then he saw [Ascencio] and thought she'd be a perfect victim. He said, after he hit her, he saw her still moving, so he struck her again."

Sloane said Ozcan told his cell mate he'd "robbed people before and wanted to know what it was like to kill someone. He also said he was going to pretend he was crazy to try to beat the charge."

Judge Mann then asked Ozcan, "Are you entering your Alford plea because you don't want to risk going to trial and being found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt?" Ozcan replied affirmatively. In response to another question from Mann, Ozcan said that, at the time of this incident, he was on probation for committing a previous offense. So the judge told him that, as a result of this new conviction, part or all of his probation could be revoked.

Mann further advised him that he could be receive a maximum of 40 years in prison and must serve at least 85 percent of his sentence. He noted, as well, that several other charges against Ozcan will be dropped in exchange for his guilty plea. But he stressed that no agreement has been made regarding his sentencing.

The judge asked Ozcan, "Do you understand that, even though the [state sentencing] guidelines may call for a shorter period of probation or incarceration, I can exceed them and give you the maximum of 40 years – and you won't be able to withdraw your plea or appeal to a higher court?" Ozcan said he did.

Mann then officially accepted Ozcan's plea and found him guilty of felony murder. He ordered a presentencing report be made and the defendant returned to jail to await sentencing on Nov. 16.

"Slow Progression"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

OKAY. It's not exactly what I wanted to read in the email from my oncologist interpreting the results of my July 25 CT Scan.

Since August 2013 when I was hospitalized for a week with fluid in my lungs, "CT stable" has been the recurring message. Now the message is different.

My question, which will be addressed Monday afternoon: can I live with 'slow progression?' I would imagine that there are more aggressive characterizations of 'progression.' Nevertheless, I have to wait three more days to find out.

What has been suggested so far by my oncologist is simple enough: reduce the interval of my infusions or change medications. Sounds reasonable and not particularly drastic. What's distressing (but not at all drastic) however, is the fear of the unknown.

Not having had a reason to change in five years, I've grown awfully comfortable and confident in the ebb and flow of my life vis-à-vis my cancer treatment/side effects. I've known what to expect and when to expect it.

For a terminal cancer patient still undergoing treatment, this kind of regularity/normalcy is as good as it gets. Accordingly, I've been able to live a relatively manageable life.

And by 'manageable' I mean a life worth living and one not consumed by, if I may retrieve a phrase from last week's column: "cancer centrality." Not that I don't have deficits or spiritual, emotional or psychological problems/complications, I do, but I have so much more than that. I not only have a present, I have a future too.

No small caveat when one considers I was given a "13 month to two year" prognosis on Feb. 27, 2009. Over nine years ago – and counting. As Maurice Chevalier sang to Hermione Gingold in "Gigi" (1958): "I remember it well."

So life has indeed gone on and I'd like to think that despite this most recent email from my oncologist, life will continue to go on. I have to think positive; I'm my father's son, and deceased though he may be, he wouldn't have it any other way.

Besides, as Dr. Mobley said to Augustus McCray in the epic mini series, "Lonesome Dove," (1989) when Gus refused to let him amputate his remaining leg: "I assure the alternative is gloomy."

Well, Gus was rarely gloomy and considering my circumstances, neither have I been gloomy. There's just no future in it.

Right now, it's the present I'm concerned about. Specifically, Monday afternoon when my oncologist and I (we, actually; my wife, Dina will be on the phone as well) will talk.

Having a three participant phone conversation is a little awkward. The questions and answers might not flow as easily as if the three of us were sitting together in an examining room. But since that's what's happening/been scheduled, we'll endeavor to make the best of it.

What probably will help, oddly enough, is the three days Dina and I will have to think about what concerns we have, what questions we'll ask and what answers from the oncologist we anticipate hearing.

Then, with the doctor's encouragement, together we'll be able to make an intelligent decision concerning a prudent course of action/treatment going forward. A discussion we've had many times before.

And given our respective history over the last nine-plus years, there's no reason to think we can't achieve similar success living forward.

Swift Action to Protect Migratory Birds. Sully Historic Site is home to a new family: chimney swifts. These small, migratory birds recently moved into the chimney of the original 18th century kitchen and made a temporary home. It is illegal to disturb the birds, their nests or eggs. To protect the birds for the next six to eight weeks, Sully will do its part with some minor programming changes. Sully kitchen programs often include a hearth fire to demonstrate the kitchen use. However, to prevent disturbing the birds' nesting cycle, no fires will be lit until they leave. To learn more about swifts, visit any of Fairfax County Park Authority's five nature centers.
