Deer Management Program Set to Start Sept. 8

Officials hold public information meetings ahead of program launch.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

Saturday, Sept. 8, marks the start of the Fairfax County 2018-2019 Deer Management Program.

There are probably very few county residents who can claim to have never seen a deer in their travels around our region. Sadly, quite a few can claim having experienced an up-close-and-personal whitetail encounter on the roadways.

In a 2016 study, Virginia was ranked 13th in the nation for the number of deer-vehicle collisions. The latest study by State Farm Insurance companies puts the Commonwealth in 11th place. Since 2010, the state has averaged 111 deer-vehicle collisions reported annually, but those numbers are probably underestimating the actual events according to Dr. Katherine Edwards, the county's wildlife management specialist.

"The real number could be three or four times higher than that," said Edwards, noting that the Virginia Department of Transportation is called to pick up 1,500-1,600 deer carcasses each year and that field work has also shown that probably only 25 percent of the deer who are hit actually die on the roadside.

Edwards, along with Sgt. Earit Powell of the Fairfax County Police Department, and Kristen Sinclair, an ecologist with the Fairfax County Park Authority, are the county officials charged with the supervision of the program and they have been hosting a series of public information meetings prior to the launch to explain the logistics and answer any questions or concerns from citizens. The trio have already hosted two meetings; one at Fairfax County Government Center, and a second at the North Government Center in Reston.

THE SESSIONS OPEN with a bit of history explaining that public safety was the impetus behind the development of the program. Following a fatal deer-vehicle collision in 1997, and public demand for local government to address the issue of deer population, the Board of Supervisors mandated that a strategy to control the deer population in the area be put in place. The strategy addressed public safety concerns and also the increasing damage being done by the deer to private property and ecosystems of public parklands.

Today, the deer management program is implemented by the Fairfax County Police Department in partnership with the Fairfax County Park Authority and the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority.

Powell heads the deer harvest operations. Edwards is the wildlife management specialist, and Sinclair is the expert on all things related to the natural environment which the deer inhabit — and which they are in danger of permanently damaging.

deer is "hindering forest regeneration," said Sinclair, by their consumption of seedlings and saplings, shrubs and bushes, changing the very composition of the forest over time.

Gathering accurate data on the deer population and their ecological impact continues to be challenging, Sinclair admits, but efforts have been increased and scientifically improved over the last several years.

She oversees hundreds of "browsing plots" throughout the county's park system and in conjunction with the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority.

The ecologist provided data showing that the impact of unchecked deer populations on parklands allows for the proliferation of non-native, invasive plant species and slowly erodes the biodiversity of these habitats. "Over-browsing by deer can lead to a loss of ecosystem services," said Sinclair, "negatively affecting native plants, insects and birds in the area."

THERE ARE THREE methods of deer harvesting that the county employs, all permitted under the Commonwealth's Department of Game and Inland Fisheries: archery, managed firearms hunts, and sharpshooting conducted at night by police personnel in closed-park situations.

❖ Archery is the number one management tool as it has been shown to harvest the most deer with the highest degree of safety for hunters and for the general public in such high-density areas as Fairfax County. The archery harvest will run from Sept. 8 through Feb. 23, 2019.

The hunters must complete a bow hunting education course, pass proficiency tests and criminal background checks before being assigned to a hunt cluster under the oversight of a cluster supervisor. Each hunter has a personal ID number and their equipment should be marked with that number. All activity by the hunters is logged into a database within 24 hours and are monitored.

"They are also required to field dress any deer they harvest, and to remove the carcass covered and as discreetly as possible," said Powell.

The hunts are conducted from 30 minutes prior to sunrise to 30 minutes past sunset. Parks remain open during the harvests, but Powell notes that every precaution to protect citizens is taken. Hunting can only be done from raised deer stands using the ground as the backdrop. Hunters must remain 100 feet from any private property line, and at least 50 feet from a trail. Entering private property is strictly prohibited without the consent of the property owner.

"We have had zero safety incidents," said Powell, "and we work diligently to keep things that way."

Questioned about "wounding rates" versus proven kills, Powell insists that every effort is made to track "unrecovered hits." Powell himself can take to the woods to try and find a wounded animal or determine if the deer died later from the hit. The wounding rate between 2014-2018 is between 4-to-7 percent. "But even that is too high," added Edwards, who vows that they will keep working to reduce that number.

❖ Managed firearms hunts have been scheduled in the Sully Woods area, on Wednesday, Nov. 28, Wednesday, Jan. 9, 2019, and Wednesday, Feb. 6, 2019. Again, strict control and supervision is employed to ensure hunter and public safety. Hunters are assigned tree stands by 6 a.m. and the hunt concludes with all participants vacating the stands by 1 p.m.

❖ Planned night time sharpshooting operations by specially-trained police personnel are scheduled for the Annandale Community Park, Bull Run Regional Park, Huntley Meadows/Dogue Creek Stream Valley, and Loftridge Park/Clermont Park. Officials are also considering sharpshooting at Fryling Pan Farm Park. These operations will

Freedom of the Press, Friend of Democracy

Under attack, abroad and now at home.

The press is protected in the U.S. Constitution by name in the First Amendment. The founders recognized the key role that newspapers would play as watchdogs for all layers of government, a key ingredient in a successful democracy. Newspapers have played that role well.

Newspapers have been under assault by technological and economic forces for years. Some of the harm done to government and the public good when newspapers close was documented in recent study, "Financing Dies in Darkness? The Impact of Newspaper Closures on Public Finance."

But now newspapers and other news outlets are facing for the first time a sustained attack from the 45th President of the United States.

It is the role of the President of the United States historically to inspire the American people by words and actions. This president has hammered away at the press in general and reporters specifically.

Today we join hundreds of other newspapers to identify the danger involved when the leader of the free world invokes the language of dictators and authoritarian rulers in attacking the credibility of the press, referring to it as "the enemy of the people." Calling our work "fake news." There are many nastier quotes that we choose not to repeat here.

The editorial board of Boston Globe made a national call to action for all newspaper editorial boards — both large and small, rural, suburban and metro — across the country to publish a coordinated response to the president's "enemy of the people" rhetoric today, Aug. 16. "We propose to publish an editorial on Aug. 16 on the dangers of the administration's assault on the press and ask others to commit to publishing their own editorials on the same date," the Globe editorial board wrote.

Journalism is a dangerous occupation in many other countries, usually not here in the U.S.

But the fear local journalists feel increased close to home here after the murders of five in the newsroom of the Capital Gazette in Annapolis recently.

Here at Local Media Connection, we are unified in our mission to benefit the community. We are blessed to work in a place where we know violence is rare, and our efforts are more often appreciated than cursed. We won the 2016 Virginia Press Association Award for Journalistic Integrity and Community Service, the Virginia Press Association's highest award, for coverage and editorials leading to police reform in Fairfax County.

We last won the award in 2011 "for exhaustive coverage of homelessness in the newspaper's circulation area." First place for "in depth and investigative reporting" went to our series on teen sex trafficking. We've focused on efforts to feed hungry children right here. We feature good works by members of the community in our 15 papers every week. We're fighting the good fight in the face of devastating economic forces, changes in advertising patterns and huge newsprint increases.

We shouldn't have to fear thinly veiled calls for violence and hatred from the leader of our nation.

Back to School

COMMENTARY

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

Last week I had the opportunity to visit one of my grandsons' schools, and I was genuinely impressed. Parents were invited to come by last week to meet the teachers because his school started on Aug. 15. It was one of the friendliest environments I have experienced — smiles everywhere, genuinely warm greetings for all, and an obvious feeling of caring for all children and parents and grandparents coming into the school. My grandson was clearly eager to get back to school and to see his teachers. He has some special needs that require additional understanding and assistance, and he is clearly getting it in his school setting.

The teachers and administrators wore the school's special tee shirt and were giving high-fives all around.

As one who taught in the classroom for several years, many old memories came back to me. I remember the need to always be "on" in the school day for students who needed help or attention. In most careers we can coast on a bad day and make up for it later; not so with teaching. You are always the center of attention and must be appropriately responsive to student needs whenever they occur. Students can learn as much about life from your body language and attitude as they can from the subject you are teaching them.

While teachers are assigned a grade level or a subject area, ultimately teachers are teaching children more than just content. I am convinced my son who teaches students in automotive technology is teaching as much about attitude, work habits, developing confidence and being a good citizen as he is about an automobile.

Our daughter who teaches multiply challenged children at the elementary level is demonstrating for parents, the school, and the community the inherent value and potential for every student regardless of the challenges they might face. My wife who was a preschool teacher and director demonstrated how important it is that young children get off to a good start and is now teaching other teachers to do the same.

Increasingly school divisions are getting an exception to the "Kings Dominion Law" requiring that schools begin after Labor Day. Fairfax County Public Schools is one district now starting before Labor Day. I have always opposed the current law and have voted to repeal it many times. A bill carried over from the past session for further consideration would leave the decision of the starting date for schools up to the local school division based on the unique circumstances of the community.

The legislature can do much more to support education of our children than dabble in the starting date for schools. Pay for Virginia teachers lags below the national average by about $4,000. Clearly teachers do not stay in the profession for the money, but they should not have to suffer with low pay because they chose to educate our children. At least in the community we can express appreciation and offer our thank you to our teachers for the important work they do!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Raising School Bus Insurance Policy

To the Editor:

Many thanks so Supervisor Cook for his excellent "Back to School Safety Tips" (Connection, Aug. 9-15, 2018). While many of the tips focused on what drivers can do around school busses, there is more work to be done by our local government to protect our school age children.

When school bus drivers cause accidents that injure students, Fairfax County will assert that both the county and its drivers are immune from claims for damages in excess $50,000, which is the limit of the county's school bus insurance policy. This claim of immu-

Sleepy Clifton isn't known for putting out top-notch country rock musicians but then there's the Thompson family, who have lived there for years, bringing the town's musician status up a notch.

Dad Thompson has impacted the country rock genre for years, and his son Colin is climbing into the driver's seat on the music scene.

On Aug. 8, The Colin Thompson Band was the lead act at Burke Lake as part of the Fairfax County Summer Entertainment Series in the Park. "Crippled Creek," by 1980s band Little Feat was a hit on the second song of their 10-song set. "Here we'll keep it upbeat," he said of the upcoming set.

The family has roots in Robinson High School in the Burke-Fairfax area, where both Randy Thompson and his son Colin graduated before embarking on the country-rock scene.

"My parents met at Robinson," Colin said. Colin's high school band won a "battle of the bands," competition at school before graduating in 2009. In Clifton, they've both played in the big barn, and "the whole town comes out," said Randy Thompson.

Since then, Colin has played at several Celebrate Fairfax events, Herndon Day festivals, and Clifton Day festivals. Randy still lives in town and uses the historic nature of the town for some of his song writing. One song, "Unknown Zone," is "about all the Civil War ghosts," said Colin.

The Fairfax County Park Authority's "Summer Entertainment Series in the Parks, 2018," was funded "in partnership with the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and generous contributions through the Fairfax County Park Foundation," it stated on the entertainment calendar. be conducted between November 2018 and March 2019, but no hunts will take place over the Thanksgiving holidays or during the winter holiday season between Dec. 19, 2018 and Jan. 2, 2019. The venison from the harvest is donated primarily to homeless shelters through the nonprofit "Hunters for the Hungry."

Hunting deer as a method of controlling their population is not always met with approval. Some residents object to destroying an animal that is just trying to survive in a vanishing wilderness. But as Edwards explained, other, non-lethal methods like tagging deer with birth control drugs or sterilization "just haven't proven effective or are cost prohibitive, although we continue to stay up to date with the latest research and will adjust our program accordingly."

THE DEER MANAGEMENT program is ultimately about public safety, said Edwards, "and the protection of the environment, and about helping sustain a population of healthy deer as part of our natural surroundings."

There is one more public meeting scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 16, at 7 p.m. at the Mount Vernon District Police Station Community Room at 2511 Parkers Lane in Alexandria. A complete list of the parks where deer harvesting will take place, and the methods that will be employed at each, including dates for managed firearm and sharpshooting operations, is available on the county's website at www.fairfaxcounty.gov/wildlife/deer-management-program.

The site also provides historical data on the numbers of deer harvested in past operations by location, by method, and by sex and more information about the logistics, requirements, and frequently asked questions.

Reston resident Tammi Petrine talks about the effects of deer over-browsing on her property with Mark Gauntner, who will be joining the deer management team in September.

Gwyn Whittaker, CEO of GreenFare caf in Herndon, has a few questions for Sgt. Earit Powell who heads the deer harvest operations.

Edwards, Powell and Sinclair welcome comments and questions from residents of the county, and are more than willing to speak with local groups, HOAs and other organizations, or private citizens looking for advice on how to coexist with hooved neighbors. Their contact information can be found on the website.

Business Outweighs Neighbors Concerns

Community objections over last two years can't change that the zoning is right for a carwash in Festival at Manchester Lakes.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

Legitimate concerns didn't lead to a legitimate reason to stop a car wash from being built in the Festival of Manchester Lakes shopping center. But a legitimate reason to permit the car wash didn't overflow neighbors with good feelings when the Board of Supervisors unanimously approved the plan.

"For two years, my neighbors and I have been speaking out in opposition to the proposed location of this business. We have brought forth environmental concerns, increased traffic concerns," said Carolsue Carlson-Jones. "We are tired, we are tired of coming to meetings the last two years when we feel our voices are not being heard."

Festival at Manchester Lakes: The new carwash will have an entrance on Charles Arrington Drive.

Karen Jackson, Carlson-Jones and their neighbors voiced environmental objections, traffic congestion and safety issues, historical proffer issues, and noise concerns before the Planning Commission in April and the Board of Supervisors on July 31, 2018. "Why is the onus to maintain a quiet residential neighborhood on us and not on the business that may disrupt our lives?" said Jackson.

Jackson said 16 of the 17 public speakers opposed the plan when the Planning Commission conducted its public hearing in April. "I do not feel that the concerns voiced by residents have ever been taken in earnest," she said. "This area is already busy enough as it is and we don't need more congestion, especially when there are already car washes nearby."

The Board of Supervisors approved the case unanimously at its meeting, July 31, 2018.

"I don't love this case, I don't love this use, but it's not my role to question if it's what is needed," said Lee District Supervisor Jeff McKay.

"While I don't love it, I don't think I have reason to recommend denial," he said.

Chairman Sharon Bulova thanked the 15 speakers for their public service and advocacy.

"I know you're disappointed in the outcome, but I know you made a difference in some of the elements," said Bulova.

WHITE HORSE FOUR'S 4,800 square foot stand-alone car wash will be located in a 17.14 acre shopping center zoned for commercial activity.

The car wash is expected to attract 150 customers per day, according to Casey Judge from the Department of Planning and Zoning, and will be permitted to operate from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., seven days a week.

"This is C-8 zoning on this particular parcel?" asked Mason Supervisor Penelope Gross.

"That is correct," said Casey Judge, from Department of Planning and Zoning.

"Which is our heaviest commercial zoning," said Gross.

"That is correct," said Judge.

The site had been previously approved to permit a car wash, according to county documents.

"I'm excited and proud of the facility that we are proposing," said Bob Rust, who appeared before the Board.

"I think it's going to result in a thoughtful and innovative proposal before you. I think it's something, if approved, the community could be proud of," said Rust.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD did make a difference in a number of issues.

"These changes included a reduction in building height, installation of 7,000 square feet of pervious pavers on-site to help with stormwater management, a reduction of hours-of operation by four hours, and a tonal alarm for noise reduction based on a newly-provided noise study," said Lee District Planning Commissioner James Migliaccio.

White Horse Four committed to capturing at least 80 percent of the wastewater associated with a car wash cycle, designed a plan to accommodate stacking up to 40 cars, will use a tonal alarm noise abatement system, and also proffered $15,000 for nearby traffic improvements, said Migliaccio.

NEIGHBORS WEREN'T CONVINCED, then, or now.

"I will always support economic growth but I do not understand how putting a car wash in a parking lot not seen or accessible from a main thoroughfare is beneficial. Long term sustainability must be considered," said Jackson.

"It's just like no other location for a car wash," said John Pearson, who described Charles Arrington Drive, the main access proposed for the car wash.

Mason Supervisor Gross remembers a similar situation in her neighborhood before she became the Mason Supervisor. As a supervisor, she's had "several" car wash applications "in my own District, and they've always been a little difficult."

"But the only problem we've had with those car washes has been some stacking in the main road after snowstorms, which has been a very temporary kind of situation," Gross said. "I remember in my own neighborhood, years ago, this was probably 1982, '83, '84, there was a proposal for a car wash next to a gas station in our neighborhood. And people did not want it. And it never got built," she said. "That is still a vacant lot, next to a gas station. It now has a chain link fence around it because it was such a problem. It's ugly and nothing is ever going to happen there because the community did not want the car wash and nobody has ever touched it since."

"And I've always lamented that, that perhaps if we'd been a little more forward thinking at that time, it was long before I was on the Board, if my community had been a little more forward thinking we might have had a viable commercial entity there serving the community."

Cutting fresh produce into bite-sized pieces can make school lunches appealing to children, advises Terri Carr of Terri's Table.

Lunches That Make the Grade

Ideas for packing healthy foods that children won't want to trade.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

For many children, one of the exciting back-to-school rituals is selecting a new lunchbox. For parents, that means choosing midday fare to pack in those lunch-pails. While fresh ideas for healthy and satisfying meals may flow freely at the beginning of the school year, as the weeks pass, it can become easy to slip into a lunchtime rut of daily turkey sandwiches. Local nutritionists and culinary instructors offer ideas designed to serve up lunchbox love all year long.

"Making healthy lunches is just about parents educating themselves on the healthy food options that are available and then teaching their kids to make healthy food choices," said Mary Murray of Reston-based Teri Cochrane, Beyond Nutrition. "With my own kids, I just kept bad food choices out of the house so they didn't have those options."

Trade junk food favorites like potato chips for healthy alternatives like plantain chips, advises Murray. "Plantain chips are actually very good and they're also good for you and still have the crunch. If kids were to bring some extra to share with their friends, more kids will see that they're actually delicious."

"Protein and vegetables are remarkably important, but underrepresented," said Sara Ducey, professor, Nutrition and Food at Montgomery College. "A lot of carbs or snacks, stuff like chips, end up in children's lunchboxes because they have a social value for kids who feel like they're open to being judged."

There is a social component to lunchbox fare that should not be overlooked, continues Ducey. "Lunches should be exciting and appealing, especially when children are feeling like they might be judged," she said. "Cutting fruit into larger pieces for example, keeps them from turning brown as quickly. A Granny Smith apples for example is less likely to turn brown than a Red Delicious apple."

Packing a lunchbox with foods that are hearty and nutrient-dense is a key to maintaining a feeling of satiety throughout the day, advises Ducey. "You want your kids to have a stable blood sugar," she said. "Beans are good for protein and keeping their blood sugar stable. Try things like white bean hummus, chili and stews and soups that are made with beans."

Involving children in the process of selecting and preparing the items that go into their lunch boxes is a key to increasing the chances that those healthy items will actually be consumed, advises Terri Carr of Terri's Table, a cooking school in Potomac, Md. "Children love to cook and the desire for cooking classes in this area is tremendous. Carr offers classes on cooking with children.

"Many kids will eat fresh baby carrots, celery and cucumber, which are also hydrating," added Carr. "Crunchy dried fruit like blueberry, apples and mangos can go in their lunchboxes instead of chips and they're usually a hit."

Replacing fruit juice with natural fruit water by soaking fresh fruit in water to add a burst of flavor without added sugar is another option offered by Cochrane's firm. Stevia or monkfruit can also be added to sweeten the taste without increasing the sugar content.

"When it comes to beverages, children should only have whole milk and water in their lunchboxes," said Ducey. "Whole milk keeps the child fuller longer. Skim milk actually spikes sugar and they're full at first, but hungry soon after. And a hungry kid doesn't learn as well."

As important as the food that goes into a child's lunchbox are the containers that hold each dish, suggests Ducey. "Invest in good quality stainless steel containers and utensils rather than plastic," she said. "Plastic can transmit chemicals into your food, so stainless steel is a good alternative."

"Lunches should be exciting and appealing, especially when children are feeling like they might be judged."

Mark Smith of Springfield umpires the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

After umpiring Little League baseball games for more than 20 years starting with the Central Springfield Little League when his boys were small, Mark Smith, 57, of Springfield got the thrill of his lifetime when he was chosen to umpire the Little League World Series this week in Williamsport, Pa.

"I'm ecstatic; it's what I've been striving for as an umpire for 15 years. It's what Little League is all about ... it's what everyone sees on TV in August. It gives me great pleasure and I'm glad I have the opportunity to go do it," said Smith, a civilian who works as naval architect at Washington Navy Yard.

"For a Little League umpire, this is huge. It doesn't get any bigger. This is the Stanley Cup of Little League baseball. As far as Little League baseball, there will be millions of people watching worldwide."

In Williamsport, where the Little League has existed since 1947, there will be 16 teams competing — eight U.S. teams and eight international teams from Seoul, South Korea; Australia, Canada, Puerto Rico, Barcelona, Spain, Japan, Panama and Mexico.

"They all come from Regionals so for a Little League umpire, this is what we refer to as the 'Golden Ticket,'" he said.

THE EVENT features an opening-day parade on Wednesday, Aug. 15 with 10-, 11-, and 12-year-old Little Leaguers and umpires marching through town. Ozzie Smith, the former shortstop for the St. Louis Cardinals, will be the Grand Marshall. It will be televised on ESPN and ABC-TV; the Opening Ceremonies start on Thursday, Aug. 16 at 11 a.m., and games begin at 1 p.m. and continue through Sunday, Aug. 26 at 3 p.m. when the championship game is scheduled. There's room for 3,500 people in the stadium.

At this point, Smith doesn't know his position yet as assignments are given out the night before the World Series games begin. He will eventually be doing all of the posi-

Smith started umpiring when his boys (Gregory, now 26; and Bryan, now 25) played at Central Springfield Little League (CSLL). While at CSLL, he became the UIC (Umpire in Charge) for five years and was responsible for training local umpires, scheduling and actively umpiring. Eight years ago, he became the Chief Umpire for the Virginia District 9 Little League, which is made up of 10 leagues from Springfield to Quantico.

"As the boys moved up in age, I decided to get into the umpiring. I started out as a coach in T-Ball, and when the kids moved up to kid pitch, I started umpiring 20-21 years ago," he said.

Over the years he has umpired at numerous local, district and state tournaments. In 2013, he was chosen as one of eight volunteer umpires to officiate at the Southeast Region Tournament (Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida) in Warner Robins, Ga.

He has continued to umpire at the local, district, state and regional levels, as well as being the UIC for District 9 in Virginia. This year he was evaluated by the Southeast Regional staff and selected to go to the World Series. The Southeast region is being represented by a team from Peach Tree City, Ga.

Smith says umpiring of 40-50 games a year is strictly volunteer; he gets a small stipend for the hotel and travel to the World Series.

He said the qualities that make a good umpire are: "Focus; having a thick skin; staying involved in the game and not letting things outside the fence distract you. The biggest thing is training, staying involved, keeping yourself up-to-date on the rules changes and mechanics changes. Every year there's minor changes and little tweaks."

He added: "I think all umpires strive to be fair and non-biased. When you walk off the field, you don't want to be recognized for showmanship or boastfulness. You want to almost be an invisible part of the game."

SMITH, who lives in the South Run Crossing community, is married to wife Andi, 57. The couple also has a daughter Molly, now 23. He graduated from the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy in New York.

According to Andi: "He found something that he loved and I'm happy to support him on that. I go to most of the games, regions and state tournaments. I used to run the concession stands and he would take care of the umpires."

This is our 22nd year in the Little League. We stepped up pretty quickly to be the volunteers which is what makes this program run so well — which is the volunteers who support it from the umpires, the coaches, the managers, team parents, concession stands and the Board of Directors."

Back-to-School Brigade in Springfield

Operation Homefront gives backpacks and school supplies to military families.

Operation Homefront held its annual Back-to-School Brigade on Saturday, Aug. 11, 2018, at the Springfield Hilton Hotel. Some 500 military families from mostly Fort Belvoir, but also Quantico, Andrews Air Force Base, Fort Meade, and Baltimore, could take home free backpacks and school supplies like spiral notebooks, binders, crayons, rulers, and pens and pencils. “Our mission is to build strong, stable and secure military families because we really want them to thrive in the communities they work so hard to protect. And not just struggle to get by. So, one of the ways we are doing that today by helping defray the cost of returning children to school,” said Vivian Dietrich, Senior Director, Operation Homefront. She said it costs as much as $500 to buy school supplies for just one child.

In addition to the back-to-school freebies, there were Superheroes for photo ops, face painting, and Nikita the Therapy Dog. This year, Operation Homefront partnered with the Dollar Tree store, which gave donations

Construction Over Accotink Creek Slows Traffic

Lanes narrow and shift but work will only last into this fall.

BY MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

Motorists on the Fairfax County Parkway in Springfield might have seen the dreaded orange traffic cones and temporary lane configurations as they crossed over Accotink Creek due to the Virginia Department of Transportation’s (VDOT) median project to connect guardrail barriers on the bridge over this historic creek.

According to VDOT, there was a safety study in 2010, and from the study, guardrails and cable barriers were installed for safety reasons, connecting the guardrail barrier on either end of the bridge via a concrete “Jersey” barrier. The barrier will have a standard 2’8” height. The portion over the bridge was not covered, and now crews are going back to properly anchor the concrete barriers to the bridge deck, VDOT said. This requires daytime work on this site, and lane shifts that impact the speed of traffic in this area, which is just south of the Rolling Road exit. According to VDOT, the bridge averages 45,000 vehicles a day. At the start of construction, eastbound and westbound traffic was shifted to the right along the bridge to create the work zone in the center. Monday through Thursday, lanes are closed from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and again overnight between 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. On Fridays, the lanes are closed from 9:30

The $967,000 project is being financed with state and federal funding and is ex-

NNO to Crime

Bren Mar becomes an outdoor living room for National Night Out 2018.

BY MARTI MOORE
THE CONNECTION

During a warm summer evening, Bren Mar resident Sue Hotto almost feels like she's one snow cone away from a heat stroke as she feeds ice into a machine.

The 69-year-old retiree and full-time volunteer has spent a couple of days running around to prepare for her annual block party the first Tuesday of August.

For more than two hours Aug. 7, Hotto has helped her neighbors in the Bren Mar community turn their quiet cul-de-sac along Indian Run Parkway into an outdoor living room with a tent-covered buffet table for their potluck dinner, and a seating area with camping chairs plus a coffee table fashioned from a folded multi-purpose extension ladder.

As soon as Hotto sets up her snow cone stand, a few boys become her first customers and a 12-year-old gives her the business:

"Can we get two flavors," he asks.

Hotto is just kidding around as she replies, "It's $10 per flavor."

THIS IS WHAT National Night Out looks like in the Franconia Police District: A team from area restaurant chain Mission BBQ serves pulled-chicken slider sandwiches from one of their military trucks converted into a mobile barbeque smoker they affectionately call "Bam Bam."

Although it's eat and run for the crew of a visiting fire truck that received a 911 call, at least half a dozen police officers chat with Bren Mar residents and throw a football in a game of catch with neighborhood youth.

Best of all for the parents: a moon bounce in which their little kids had fun wearing themselves out before bedtime. Although Hotto barely saw her toddler grandson at this year's block party, she knew he could be found safe and sound jumping around inside this ginormous inflatable playground wonderland.

National Night Out got its start in 1984, when the National Association of Town Watch distributed funds from the U.S. Department of Justice to 400 communities nationwide for block parties held the first Tuesday night in August with their local law enforcement as honored guests. Elsewhere in the country, Americans simply turned on their porch lights in support

The spirit of this year's National Night Out block party is captured on the front porch of Bren Mar resident Sue Hotto, seated far right. of police.

Each year as the movement grew, residents not only shed light on this particular night, they came out of their houses to sit on their front porches or join their neighbors at block parties. Together, they made their communities safer.

FOR 35 YEARS, National Night Out has helped neighbors meet each other and their local first responders in non-emergency situations. This critical component to community policing helps build safer communities and prevent crime.

Hotto and Franconia's crime prevention leader Master Police Officer A. E. Eggers said Bren Mar had problems recently with car break-ins and vehicle tampering, for which the remedy was simple:

"Lock your doors," Eggers says.

Based in Wynnewood, Pa., NATW is a non-profit neighborhood watch association with at least 16,000 communities nationwide registered for the 35th National Night Out celebration. Eggers reported 48 block parties in Franconia, which had three more than last year.

Eggers also offered residents a personal safety workshop at her station Aug. 15 that included three basic rules:

- ❖ Stay alert and be aware of your surroundings.
- ❖ Give the impression you are calm, confident and know where you are going.

Supervisors approved a Hampton Inn Suites on Backlick Road, which will be the last impression motorists have of Springfield.

Last Impression, Stay in Springfield

Board approves hotel on Backlick Road that had been long-time environmental and visual challenge.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

A newly permitted hotel will change the final impression of Springfield.

"If you're familiar with Springfield this is literally the last thing you see before you get on the Interstate," said Lee District Supervisor Jeff McKay.

The Board of Supervisors granted Springfield Gateway's request to rezone three parcels of land at 6509-19 Backlick Road, totalling 1.54 acres, to permit construction of a six-floor Hampton Inn Suites, 80 feet in height. The approved zoning also allows for an adjacent three-story, 27-foot-high parking structure with 156 parking spaces.

"What this does is take a property that is essentially three older retail properties built in the mid 1950s and an automobile dealership, no stormwater management, paved from end to end — really unsightly — and replace it completely with a brand new Hampton Inn Suites," said Mark Viani, attorney for the applicant, at the Board of Supervisors meeting on July 31.

"This is an application we're very excited about in Springfield mostly because of what it's getting rid of, but also because of the strategic location of this property," said McKay. "And this is much more consistent with the robust revitalization success that we are experiencing in Springfield."

Getting this corner cleaned up, I know, will lead to other revitalizations in that immediate area."

"I am familiar with the area you're describing and this will be a big improvement," said Chairman Sharon Bulova.

The Planning Commission had recommended approval of the plan earlier in July.

The Planning Commission requested a proffer, adding a wayfinding station because of its proximity to the the Mixing Bowl. "We thought that was a good idea," said Viani.

"This has been a long time coming for this part of Springfield," said Lee District Planning Commissioner James Migliaccio, on July 12. "So, we are looking to get it going, using this as a catalyst for this part of Backlick Road, just south of Old Keene Mill Road. We haven't had anything going right there."

"We're not in Tysons. Hopefully this will be a catalyst that will do it. And, I'm happy to support this," he said.

Nonprofits Initiate 5k Home Run for the Homeless

Combined effort to raise funds.

BY SHIRLEY RUHE
THE CONNECTION

Three non-profit organizations have banded together to sponsor the first Home Run for the Homeless 5k run on Saturday, Sept.15. Community Lodgings, Homestretch and Bridges to Independence are all organizations which provide housing, employment, youth education and outreach and child care to parents and children as they move toward self sufficiency in the City of Alexandria, and Arlington and Fairfax counties.

Mark Riley, volunteer coordinator of the event, says this is rare if not unprecedented, that nonprofits come together in this kind of effort.

In an area known for its wealth, the 2018 Point in Time survey identified 1,434 individuals as homeless in Northern Virginia. "The Home Run is a great opportunity for people to support not just one, but three organizations working to help Northern Virginia families overcome homelessness," according to Sam Kelly, chief executive officer, Bridges to Independence.

Lynn Thomas, executive director of Community Lodgings, said, "The primary goal of the race is to inform community members about homelessness and encourage them to become involved."

Riley said, "It would be nice to net, say, ten grand but this isn't about the money; it's about the visibility for the good work of these organizations." Riley said their goal is to get 250 participants, the maximum allowed. "But it is difficult to go to 250
the first year from scratch."

Riley says the race is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. at Bluemoont Park shelter on Manchester

Street in Arlington. It will follow the W&OD trail almost to Falls Church and end back at Bluemoont Park.

Riley says he has organized other races such as the Thanksgiving Day Turkey Trot. His role for this race is to be the coordinator go-to guy. He says this race involves getting three permits: for the trail, the shelter and the overall special events permit. "You have to make sure it is on the county calendar."

"Then you get your people lined up" — the host beneficiaries and leadership group and the sponsors. "I help with the parking, the food and the music. It sets a mood." Two other essential pieces are the race management company to help time the race and provide the cones and barrels and other necessary equipment. And, of course, the T-shirts for people and this year "really nifty medals. The children love the medals more."

Riley says County Board member John Vihstadt probably inspired the impetus for this event. "Two years ago he contacted me to find out about Homestretch because they were doing a fundraiser for their childcare." One thing led to another and these three groups got together.

Register for the race at <https://goo.gl/GtrFqe>.
Registration fees are $40 for 18-years and older and $25 for 6-17 years. Online registration ends Sept. 13 unless it has already sold out. Packet pick up will be Friday, Sept. 14 at Christ Church in Arlington from 5-7p.m. And on Saturday before the race starting at 7 a.m.

Is Riley running the 5k? "Those days are over,
but I did sign up."

VOLUNTEERS WANTED

AARP Foundation Tax-Aide is looking to expand its team of volunteers for the upcoming tax season. Tax-Aide, now in its 51st year, offers free in-person preparation and assistance to anyone, especially those 50 and older, who can't afford a tax preparation service. Volunteers make a difference in their communities by assisting many older, lower-income taxpayers, and their families, who might otherwise miss out on the tax credits and deductions they've earned. To learn about volunteer opportunities, visit aarpfoundation.org/taxaide or call 1-888-OUR-AARP (1-888-687-2277).

Docents Needed. Sundays 1-4 p.m. at the Fairfax Station Railroad Museum, 11200 Fairfax Station Road in Fairfax Station. Greet museum visitors and tell them about the exhibits, the museum and the its railroad and Civil War history. Ideal for those interested in railroads, the Civil War and Northern Virginia history. Training and orientation provided. Other volunteer opportunities are gardening, publicity and exhibit planning. Call 703-945-7483.

MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

The Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board's Merrifield Center offers a new stand-up information kiosk. Part of a pilot project, the new feature aims to improve the customer service experience and decrease wait times for individuals who are seeking mental (behavioral) health services. To check in, individuals respond to five simple questions, then the CSB's Patient Track software alerts staff. Based on clinicians' schedules and availability, as well as the needs of the client, individuals are triaged and seen by the next available staff member. For more information on available services, call the CSB at 703-383-8500 (Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.). In an emergency 24/7, call CSB Emergency Services at 703-573-5679 or the Fairfax Detox Center at 703-502-7000 (TTY 703-322-9080).

THURSDAY/AUG. 16

Macy's Hiring Event. 11 a.m.- 7 p.m. Job candidates may visit the following Macy's stores to be considered for full- or part-time positions: Macy's Fair Oaks, Macy's Tysons Corner Center, Macy's Westfield Montgomery, Macy's Tysons Galleria and Macy's Fashion Center At Pentagon City. Candidates should apply in advance at macysJOBS.com.

Clean Energy Rally. 4:30-5 p.m. at Merten Hall Lawn at 4441 George Mason Blvd., Fairfax. Clean energy supporters will gather to show support for transitioning to clean renewable energy sources like wind and solar in Virginia. Visit www.sierraclub.org/virginia for more.

nity, coupled with this very low amount of insurance, can leave those insured with devastating medical bills. To make matters worse, Fairfax County will require anyone settling a claim to agree to keep the settlement confidential, thus ensuring that parents who are putting their children on busses each morning, never discover the risk involved.

If Fairfax Country really cares about children it should bring its school bus insurance policy up to date with coverage to $1 million per claimant, at a minimum, and waive its immunity up to that amount.

Progressing, But So Am I

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

"Slow progression" does not mean we are now progressing slowly. Quite the opposite in fact. During this past Monday's "Phoning It In" appointment when the three semi-amigos – me, my wife Dina, and my oncologist – discussed/assessed my most recent CT scan results, a decision was made to fight potential cancer fire with treatment fire.

In effect, we are doubling down, decreasing my present every-seven-week infusion schedule back down to every three weeks and likewise reducing my three-month CT scan interval to two months. All of which changes my "manageable" life to one more cancer centric. Not all appealing but as the South Korean woman driving the white Cadillac told "Hawkeye" in a long-ago M*A*S*H episode: "That's where the water is."

And so we are returning to the scene of the crime (three week intervals) so to speak, and hoping we can nip this tumor growth in the bud thereby enabling yours truly to live longer and hopefully prosper (and live long enough as well to see the new Star Trek series with Patrick Stewart returning as Jean Luc Picard).

I don't want to be totally naive and presume that since the same medication has worked for five years, there's no reason to think, with a little tweaking, it can't continue to work for another five years. However, my oncologist did say he's had patients where a similar approach worked to slow/stop the growth (after an unspecified period of stability like me) so to quote my late father: "The idea has merit."

Ergo, the honeymoon is over. Now the hard part begins, again. One week not feeling well, two weeks feeling pretty well. Then waiting for scan results as if my life depended on it (duh!).

It's nothing my family and I haven't experienced off and on going on nine and half years since my diagnosis/prognosis. Still, after the last five years of relative calm (since I was hospitalized and began the "miracle" drug alimta), life has been normal-ish with infusion intervals widening and scan results indicating some initial shrinkage ("like a frightened turtle"), followed by nearly five years of "stable" CT scans.

But so what else is new in the cancer-patient world? (That's a rhetorical question.)

Cancer returning with or without a vengeance to patients who perhaps had expected otherwise. Cancer is not exactly a disease you forget you had or one that you presume you'll never see or worry about again. Nothing could be further from the truth. The truth being: you are scarred for life – sort of. You become a life-long member of the biggest club in the world. A club, as Groucho Marx might joke, you'd rather not join, especially if they'd have you as a member.

"Cancer Sucks" as a meme is the most insincere form of flattery – for a reason: people die. Cancer leaves a wake and in its path devastation and destruction. Its swath cuts across generations, cultures, demographics, ethnic backgrounds and gender identifications.

If there's any fear we share collectively it is a diagnosis of cancer. Living with it and trying not to die from it has been the bane of my existence – and millions more, many of whom have already succumbed to its ravages. Continuing research into the cause and effect has given me years my oncologist told me I probably didn't have. ("13 months to two years" was my original prognosis.)

How lucky am I. (Not a rhetorical question.)

Now I face another hurdle. Or rather, more of the same hurdle I've managed to jump over for nine-plus years. Whether the 10 percent-ish tumor growth is the real deal or merely just a blip on the cancer radar, only time and treatment will tell. This is the uncertainty all of us cancer patients endure. It's not ideal, but ideal left the building on Feb. 27, 2009.
