Celebrating Culture and Faith

Church holds 25th annual Middle Eastern Food Festival.

BY CARLYN KRANKING
THE CONNECTION

When Falls Church resident Donna Haseley's son was young, they used to go to a Greek festival at a local Greek Orthodox church. So when she heard about last weekend's Middle Eastern Food Festival, she thought it was a good idea.

"My son just went to college a couple days ago, and I was a little sad," said Haseley, who attended the festival with her friend. "My friend said she was coming, so I said, 'What a wonderful way to spend a day.'"

Cars filled the parking lot at Holy Transfiguration Melkite Greek-Catholic Church and spread up and down nearby neighborhood streets as thousands of people gathered to enjoy the church's 25th annual Middle Eastern Food Festival. The festival offered authentic Middle Eastern food including kibbeh, falafel, fattoush, hummus and roasted lamb, and had kids activities, church tours and dabke dancing.

Church volunteers worked tirelessly throughout the summer to make the food sold at the festival, including about 25,000 sweets like baklava, maamoul, namoura, ghraybeh and more.

"It is really about showing hospitality to our neighbors, to our friends and to people who just want to learn a little bit about who we are," Protodeacon David Barooty said. "We pride ourselves on this love of Christ and love of one another that we then want to share with everyone that comes in."

Attendees of the festival feel this hospitality from members of the church. Barooty said that guests will often comment on how welcoming the parish is, and festival attendee Hindy Mokhiber of Great Falls noticed it as well.

"We just love to come, because there's a lot of love in this church and at this festival," Mokhiber said. "The food is fantastic, and the people are wonderful."

Eight-year-old Evie Hayes enjoyed the balloons.

Dabke dancers at the Middle Eastern Food Festival.

Four-year-old Rafay Saleem, seven-year-old Jahanara Saleem, and three-year-old Zara Hasan at the food festival.

The festival is a yearly tradition that members of the parish take great pride in.

"To me, it is just so heartwarming to see it all come together and to see the pride of all the parishioners who are here to welcome our guests," said Sonia McCormick, festival publicity chair. "It's a sense of accomplishment that we've all done something really amazing together that's going to benefit the church, but that's also going to introduce our parish to the greater Washington community."

Lebanese Nonprofit Spreads Awareness About Diabetes

Jackie Maalouf, Ph.D., traveled to the United States from Beirut, Lebanon to attend the Middle Eastern Food Festival and talk about the nonprofit she founded, which is in the process of being registered in the United States. Dr. Maalouf founded the organization DiaLeb with her daughter, Sylvie, after she was diagnosed with diabetes.

"Sylvie got diagnosed at an unconventional age. She was 24 when she got diagnosed," Dr. Maalouf said. "It was definitely a shock."

DiaLeb spreads awareness of diabetes and helps support people who have been recently diagnosed through summer camps, support groups and educational sessions.

At the food festival, Dr. Maalouf sought to spread information to attendees about diabetes and DiaLeb, whether or not they were of Lebanese background.

"Diabetes does not recognize a nationality or a religion or anything," Dr. Maalouf said. "I think overall it was very productive and positive for us, being here, and I think I would definitely do it another time."

Do Something

BY WENDY GRADISON
CEO PRS

The news of Anthony Bourdain and Kate Spade as well as a number of our own community members whose lives were stopped short due to suicide underscores the challenges that exist in preventing suicide. These stories created considerable grief, and in fact, we saw a significant increase in calls and texts to our PRS CrisisLink hotline.

When losses like these occur, we have an opportunity to change the conversation about suicide from one of loss to one of empowerment and hope. To keep people talking, we are launching the #CallTextLive Campaign during September, Suicide Prevention Month.

Suicide is a serious issue locally and nationally, claiming the lives of nearly 45,000 people annually and is the 10th leading cause of death nationwide and the second leading cause of death for young people aged 15-24. But for every death, 278 people manage to move past thoughts of suicide and survive.

At PRS, a nonprofit running PRS CrisisLink, Northern Virginia's crisis hotline and textline, we know there is more we can do to bring awareness and tools to prevent future suicides. We are inviting the community to get involved in our 4th annual #CallTextLive Campaign.

Using the hashtag #CallTextLive, the campaign works to educate members of the community about resources available and actions they can take to bring awareness to suicide prevention and intervention. Campaign highlights include: an easy to use web-based interactive event calendar; great tips and resources to share via social media; a Facebook Live Q&A with experts; community training and tour of the PRS CrisisLink call center; a Selfie Day; a crowdsourcing fundraiser; t-shirts for purchase; and walk events. We will also explore special suicide prevention topics related to gun safety, veterans, older adults, LGBTQ, youth, and survivors.

It's time to challenge the stigma around issuues contributing to suicide and provide each other the tools to get help. #CallTextLive uses social media, activities and events to drive community conversation. We want people to visit our website—www.prsinc.org—to find simple ways to spark change through the #CallTextLive Campaign. Do one or do them all...but we definitely want everyone to do something.

If we are successful, even more people will find their way to community resources, including the PRS CrisisLink program, which handled nearly 80,000 crisis calls and text messages from the Northern Virginia region last year. In fact, a simple call or text to the crisis hotline or textline — (800) 273-TALK [8255] and text "CONNECT" to 85511 — provides the empathetic, trained voice that someone in crisis needs to reduce their pain and provide connections to care. Most of these voices are volunteers from our community — neighbors and friends — who share the gift of listening to those who hope to be heard.

Help us make it okay for more people to seek help. Join the #CallTextLive Campaign to broaden the conversation. Small or big ... do something ... we are listening and others will too.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Working with Better Angels

To the Editor:

Wow, I just read Mary Donaldson's inflammatory and incorrect letter ("Wake-up Election," Connection, Aug. 29-Sept. 4, 2018) referencing Secretary Kissinger's remarks made in a Dec. 18, 2016 appearance on Face the Nation. One can find a link to the actual video of the program. In this interview, that took place before Trump took office, Kissinger does say, "Trump is a phenomenon that foreign countries haven't seen," and hypothesizes that he could become "a very considerable president." He does not say, as Ms. Donaldson asserts, "He is the one true leader. After eight years of tyranny, we finally see a difference."

I might add that the word "tyranny" describes egregious actions of leaders with no ethical base and, regardless of one's politics, does not apply to any of our past presidents.

Please, could we check our sources before ramping up invective? Better yet, could we eliminate invective and stick with facts, wherever they may lead us. As voting citizens, it is our duty to pay attention. That means comparing information from quality news sources with different leanings; recognizing opinions as different from facts; assessing the expertise and stature of the declarant; and logically analyzing what is presented.

Bias is too easy. Here's a test. State our complaints about an office holder or candidate; then redirect them at someone from the opposite party and see how judgments shift. Let's start working with our better angels. We have a great and blessed commonality to share: we are Americans.

Fact-checking a Letter

To the Editor:

While I understand that you are not responsible for ensuring the accuracy of letters from readers, I felt compelled to offer a fact-check to Mary Donaldson's letter ("Wake-Up Election," published in the August 29-September 4 Connection). In it, she quotes Henry Kissinger - referring to President Trump - as "the one true leader. After eight years of tyranny, we finally see a difference."

Henry Kissinger did not say that, ever. That quote was an editorial statement by the author of an article published in The Patriot Post and Liberty One News, two right-leaning websites. Discovering this was as simple as typing "Kissinger" + "one true leader" into a search engine: multiple sites popped up labeling the quote as false.

Spreading fake news drags down civil discourse, and in an age of electronic communication, avoiding it is one of the responsibilities of good citizenship. The News Literacy Project has excellent tools to make all of us better, more discerning consumers of news. I urge Ms Donaldson - and passionate partisans of every stripe - to visit www.newslit.org to learn more.

Misguided Decision

To the Editor:

Congresswoman Barbara Comstock (R-10) parrots President Trump's Iran deal posturing and follows him down the rat-hole of know-nothingism. Despite her lack of expertise in foreign policy, she states in her May 8, 2018 press release that the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA) is "misguided," ostensibly because it doesn't solve all Middle East problems in one fell swoop. The JCPOA is an historical nuclear nonproliferation agreement, nothing more, nothing less.

After forty years of distrust, the JCPOA was a first-step confidence builder between Iran and the rest of the world. With JCPOA as the cornerstone, professional diplomats could have worked with reform-minded Iranians to reduce their missile program and find peaceful solutions in Gaza, Syria and Yemen.

Congresswoman Comstock claims to be bipartisan, however she didn't consult with Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11), a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. In his June 13, 2018 statement, Congressman Connolly stated that Trump's abrogation of the JCPOA increases the probability of a nuclear Iran with the Saudis soon joining the club.

BACK TO SCHOOL

What's New, Exciting In Area Schools

Principal's Back-to-School Report

In the first week of the new school year, The Connection has asked the area school principals to respond to three questions:

- 1 - What are the most exciting developments in your school in the new school year?
- 2 - What would be your, one-sentence, message to parents, community?
- 3 - Any upcoming events, activities?

Here are their responses.

Yusef Azimi, Principal, Thoreau Middle School:

1 - We have welcomed 250+ additional students to Thoreau this year as a result of a boundary change designed to relieve Luther Jackson's overcrowded student population. I am thrilled to have all of our new students join the Thoreau community. This comes on the heels of the completion of a multi-year renovation and expansion which has left us with a beautiful new school for our 1,200+ students now.

2 - There is not a day that does not go by where either a student, employee, parent, or community member tells me the positive experience and sentiments he/she feels about Thoreau and that is a direct result of our staff, students and parents working together to create this remarkable environment.

3 - I encourage our parents/guardians to please come meet our wonderful teachers and staff at Back-to-School Night on Wednesday, Sept. 5 from 5:30 - 7:30 p.m. I am looking forward to our supportive parents meeting our dedicated teachers.

Yusef Azimi

Ron James, Principal, Kilmer Middle School

1 - We are integrating more intentional technology use into our everyday activities. For example, teachers are using Flipgrid to introduce a little about themselves to their students.

We have an added focus on student recognition and reinforcement of positive behavior. As a school we are taking a proactive approach to reach students to help them become successful here at school through our P2 program.

We are growing our teams and community by adding in more team based activities.

2 - The development of an additional outdoor learning space to maximize learning while meeting the needs of all students

3 - Kilmer Middle School is pleased to announce its sixth Annual Kilmer Community Night to be held on Monday, Sept. 17, from 4-6 p.m. This exciting event is open to KMS students and their families. The Kilmer After School Program is hosting an activities open house with learning opportunities for both students and parents. Information booths and presentations are hosted by Fairfax County Neighborhood & Community Services as well as local program vendors. The goal is to develop relationships and foster connections through engagement by sharing a number of resources and activities available not only at Kilmer Middle but within the community. This event is a part of the Afterschool Alliance's Lights on Afterschool initiative to shine light on the importance and impact of purposeful, targeted and engaging after school programming. During the 2017-18 school year an estimated 1,130 students stayed after school at least once at Kilmer alone. Aligned with FCPS' Portrait of a Graduate, KMS activities also seek to address needs identified in the Fairfax County Youth Survey.

Ron James

John Carmichael, Principal, Vienna Elementary:

1 - We are looking forward to implementing classroom yoga and mindfulness into each day to help relieve stress and anxiety.

2 - Encourage the students to be curious, love learning, and display kindness everyday.

3 - Back to School Night is on Wednesday, Sept. 12, at 6 p.m.

WELLBEING

Aiming for Long-Term Fitness

Study shows physical declines can be detected as early as age 50.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

"I've been doing it since before I retired," said Rich White, a former accountant who lives in Alexandria. "It's easier to get up and get it out of the way so I don't miss it. Both of my parents died prematurely of heart attacks. That's when I decided to start running to get in shape. Eventually that turned into a habit of daily strength and aerobic exercise."

White's assumptions about preserving his physical health are underscored by a report from the Center for the Study of Aging and Human Development at Duke University School of Medicine which found that physical decline begins when people are in their 50s, much earlier than people might notice or expect.

The study looked at 775 adults ranging in age from 30 to 90 to assess changes in fitness abilities like endurance, balance, speed and strength. Researchers found that exercise efforts must begin before the age of 50 in order to help halt the decline and maintain mobility and independence longer in life.

"Our research reinforces a life-span approach to maintaining physical ability — don't wait until you are 80 years old and cannot get out of a chair," said lead author Katherine S. Hall, Ph.D. in releasing the study.

By having participants stand on one leg for 60 seconds to measure balance and sit and rise from a chair for 30 seconds to measure lower body strength, researchers were able to detect a decline beginning in Emma Warner, 72, meets her trainer at a Montgomery County Recreation Center gym twice a week. Together they perform a combination of exercises aimed at improving her strength, balance, endurance and flexibility.

"We stretch and do yoga poses, sometimes we speed walk outside and I also do exercises with two or three pound dumbbells," she said. "But my mother is 98 and is in pretty good health, so I figure I have good genes. I just need to work on fitness to maintain."

As people age, change and decline is inevitable, but the rate and severity can vary based on genetics and the level of activity in one's lifestyle. Regular exercise can have a profound effect on the way in which one ages.

"People have their actual age, which they can't do anything about, and their biological age," said Martin.

"Someone could be 40 years old, live a very inactive lifestyle and not eat very well, which may cause them to be closer to 60 in terms of their biological age. And vice versa, someone who is 60 could be very active and eat a healthy diet and feel like they are much younger, perhaps a biological age closer to mid-40s."

Fitness instructor Amy Traum has clients who run the age gamut from college students to retirees, but her overarching advice to getting in shape is similar. "Everyone needs a well-rounded exercise program that includes stretching, balance exercises, strength and cardio," she said. "I always begin and end classes with stretching and I try to add strength and balance elements like a weighted deadlift."

Those new or newly returning to exercise should start slowly and gradually, says Traum. "It sounds like common sense, but I can't tell you the number of people who come to my classes with no experience and try to work way above their fitness level one's 50s. The findings show the need to understand and preserve muscle strength.

"Most tissues in the body respond to stress placed on them by becoming stronger or adapting to handle the stimulus you place on them," said Joel Martin, Ph.D., assistant professor of Kinesiology at George Mason University. "If you lift weights, your muscles get bigger and stronger. If you don't do any sort of physical activity to stimulate your muscles then they get smaller and become weaker. Use it or lose it."

and either get injured or discouraged," she said. "There's nothing wrong with starting out slow, sticking with it and making gradual progress. Also make it fun, like walk or jog with a friends or take a dance or Zumba classes."

"Eating a healthy and nutritious diet is also important," added Martin. "The antioxidants in foods, especially fruits and vegetables, can help to preserve and protect tissues from damage that occurs as part of the natural aging process."

New Look at Parking for 55-and-up Communities

Seniors need their cars.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

The Board of Supervisors, on July 31, reduced the minimum age requirement at The Woodlands Retirement Community in Fairfax. The case, discussed by the Planning Commission earlier in July, led to a discussion about impervious surface, parking spaces and seniors who wish to keep their cars. “As we’ve seen in other cases, senior living often needs more cars because people who live there are keeping their cars longer,” said Braddock District Planning Commissioner Ellen Hurley.

Vice Chairman and at-large commissioner James Hart asked, “Do we have a formula or other criteria for evaluating how many parking spaces are needed for senior housing generally?”

Hurley said, “I believe that the current formula is one parking space for four units which is found to be way under.”

“Is the formula obsolete,” said Hart? “Do we have a formula that needs to be revisited?” he asked.

Lynne Strobel, land use attorney, represented Woodlands Retirement Community, in the specific case before the Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors. “So what has happened, and I think this is not just on this property, I’ve seen this at other locations that I’ve worked on, if someone who is older does not use their car, they want to have a car, because it’s a symbol of independence. They know it’s something they could use it if they wanted to,” said Strobel.

“Parking is such a quality of life issue, it makes people so angry that there aren’t enough parking spaces and we have enough apartments or town houses where people are fighting about that sort of thing. If the formula is stale, maybe it’s a suggestion to put it on the work program to reevaluate,” said Hart.

More parking will affect environmental issues too, said Hurley. “When you’re building more parking you now have to balance the trees versus the storm wa-

Residents of retirement communities have more than the one-car-per-four-apartment formula, leading to planners to consider increasing parking.

“If it’s 55 year olds living in apartments, they’re all going to have cars. 85 year olds in apartments are probably going to have cars, too.”

“To your point that we’re going to have to consider this more and more, I think it is a good work plan item,” at-large commissioner Timothy Sargeant said. “If it’s 55 year olds living in apartments, they’re all going to have cars. 85 year olds in apartments are probably going to have cars, too,” said Hart.

Dranesville Commissioner John Ulfelder said, “One of my favorite questions. We’re dropping the minimum age from 62 to 55. So for a married couple, can or do both have to be 55 to move in?”

“One has to be 55,” said Zachary Fountain, county planning staff.

“So the other partner can be younger,” said Ulfelder. “The point here being at age 55 somebody who wishes to maximize their social security in the current plan would be working for 15 more years. So they would be going and coming at least on a weekly basis, or a daily basis, to go to work.

“Does that potential have impact on the transportation issues, traffic issues?” said Ulfelder.

Ensuring Affordable Produce

County Farmers Markets receive $50,000 grant.

BY CARLYN KRANKING
THE CONNECTION

With a grant of $50,000 over three years, the Fairfax County Farmers Markets will ensure SNAP (previously called food stamps) recipients can access fresh local produce. The farmers markets received this money because they partner with Local Environmental Agriculture Project (LEAP), which received $1.8 million from the USDA through the Food Insecurity Nutrition Incentive (FINI).

This money will make a difference for SNAP recipients in Fairfax County, allowing them better access to the produce at farmers markets.

"Most people on SNAP, because they're so strapped for cash, they only buy processed foods because they're very cheap, and healthy food is expensive," Farmers Market Coordinator Chelsea Roseberry said. "We're trying to bridge that gap so that little-income families don't feel like this is inaccessible to them."

At participating farmers markets, the value of SNAP dollars is doubled by the Virginia Fresh Match nutrition incentive program – for example, if a person spends $20 in SNAP benefits at a farmers market, they will receive $20 more to spend on fruits and vegetables.

With the grant money, this dollar-matching program will provide up to $100,000 in added revenue to local farms as SNAP recipients purchase their prod-

MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

The Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board's Merrifield Center offers a new stand-up information kiosk. Part of a pilot project, the new feature aims to improve the customer service experience and decrease wait times for individuals who are seeking mental (behavioral) health services. To check in, individuals respond to five simple questions, then the CSB's Patient Track software alerts staff. Based on clinicians' schedules and availability, as well as the needs of the client, individuals are triaged and seen by the next available staff member. For more information on available services, call the CSB at 703-383-8500 (Monday-Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.). In an emergency 24/7, call CSB Emergency Services at 703-573-5679 or the Fairfax Detox Center at 703-502-7000 (TTY 703-322-9080).

Poise Under Pressure – Or Not

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I don't want to self-indulge too much, but given the potentially life-changing seriousness of my upcoming Sept. 26 CT scan, I'm having a little trouble getting myself started in the morning – and throughout the day also, if you must know the truth? (I realize you all have your own lives to lead so that last sentence-ending question was more rhetorical than actual.)

Nevertheless, if you're still reading, you're still interested so I'll try to string together some "insightful commentary and thoughtful humor," (an original characterization of my columns) to keep you on the page. Although, given the subject of this week's column, it might be hard to tiptoe through the tulips.

The difficulty I'm having is being unable to ignore, "totally," (my mother loved to mimic the generation that popularized that word) the reality of my situation.

Typically, I've been able to maintain a relative calm and detached disposition as I go from one cancer-related thing to another. None of the tasks I must perform or the responsibilities I've assimilated into a routine (24-hour urine collection, pre-chemotherapy lab work, chemotherapy, quarterly CT scans, annual brain MRI, quarterly appointments with my oncologist, have changed who I like to think I am compared to who I was pre-cancer diagnosis, 2/27/09; despite having the weight of a "terminal" diagnosis/original "13 month to two year" prognosis on my shoulders/literally in my lungs.

To quote Popeye the Sailor Man: "I y'am who I y'am." (And I still don't like spinach, certainly not out of a can.)

And though I've done a pretty good job of flicking these flakes of pressure and anxiety off my shoulders like unwanted dandruff, the fact is – as with dandruff shampoo or any other personal hygiene product for that matter – unless one is diligent, vigilant and cognizant of its likely recurrence, nothing will change.

Unfortunately, cancer doesn't quite react that way. It will change and it can overwhelm even your best efforts and can cause harm not only internally but externally as well (emotionally). Fending off these emotional pressures is challenging and dare I say, presents as many problems as the growth and movement of one's tumors and the side effects of one's treatment does.

What makes my present situation feel different and a bit off-putting is that what has happened has happened after nearly five years of relative peace and quiet (I was never characterized as in "remission," by the way). It seems the possibility of having to go back, so to speak, and return to the scene of the crime – against my body/life expectancy; and moreover, having to restart the process, ratchets up the stress to previously unknown heights.

And part of me is wondering (worrying actually) if I'm up to the challenge again, emotionally and of course, physically as well; whether my body can sustain the damage its likely to experience if we have to reload.

I use the word 'reload' for a reason. Without invoking too many war metaphors, being diagnosed with cancer is like being drafted into the Army, except you have little training for the battles you're about to fight. And as much as fighting against cancer is a battle, it's more a war against attrition in which the bad guys (cancer) regularly defeat the good guys (people diagnosed with cancer). In general, the cancer experience is no picnic.

It reminds me of a long-ago M*A*S*H episode in which the doctors operated through a particularly difficult surgical session after which Henry (Lt. Col. Blake) and "Hawkeye" (Capt. Pierce) went outside the operating room/tent for some relief. "Hawkeye" clearly agitated over a patient he couldn't save; Henry tried to offer him some comfort with the following words: "There are certain rules about war. And rule number one is young men die. And rule number two is, doctors can't change rule number one."

What scares me about cancer is, it follows no rules and like war, leaves devastation in its wake. I just hope I'm not about to be another casualty.

Helping Fill the Boot in Oakton

Fairfax County firefighter Joel Kobersteen and a motorist show how a dollar bill stuffed into one boot can yield positive results for people with muscular dystrophy. High school senior Joshua Jurack — whose bright smile shines in the sideview mirror — looks forward to a cure within his lifetime. The 17-year-old has lived with Duchenne muscular dystrophy since age 5. Labor Day weekend 2018 marks Jurack's 10th consecutive campaign as Goodwill Ambassador for the annual Fairfax County Fill the Boot fundraiser. He made his rounds throughout the county Saturday, including this stop by Oakton Fire Station 34 at 10511 Rosehaven St. in Fairfax.

Kobersteen, a master technician at Fire Station 40 in Fairfax Center, has coordinated this effort for 11 straight years and enjoys working with Jurack. His goal is to raise $575,000 for Reston-based non-profit MDA Greater Washington, D.C.

Father – Son Team Up To Support 'Fill The Boot' in Vienna

Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department personnel around the county have been spending the last couple of days in the heat, humidity, and rain collecting money by "Filling the Boot" for Muscular Dystrophy. It is important that firefighters and paramedics stay hydrated on these hot and sunny days with temperatures reaching the 90s with the added humidity. On Saturday, Vienna Volunteer Fire Department (VVFD) Firefighter/EMT Matt Jones asked his son if he wanted to have some fun for the day. Future firefighter Chris Jones said yes to his dad and they too hit the streets of Fairfax County to lend a hand. They hopped in the VVFD Canteen Unit and traveled through different battalions in the county providing refreshments of cold drinks and snacks to the fire and rescue department personnel on the streets. This was a great opportunity to see the collaborative efforts of all personnel within the Fire and Rescue Department combination system and to teach the next generation about the importance of serving the community.

In addition, dedicated volunteer members from the Annandale Volunteer Fire Department, Centreville Volunteer Fire Department and Greater Springfield Volunteer Fire Department utilized their canteen units to also help keep firefighters and paramedics hydrated and fed.

Vienna Family Raising Puppy for Canine Companions for Independence

Mary Savitsky and P. David Falkenstein of Vienna recently began raising an assistance dog in-training for Canine Companions for Independence – a national non-profit organization providing highly trained assistance dogs for children, adults and veterans with disabilities.

Puppy Lewis III is black Labrador retriever who will one-day know more than 40 advanced commands and be matched with a person with disabilities.

Volunteer Puppy Raisers are critically important to the work of Canine Companions for Independence. Puppy Raisers take the pups into their home at eight weeks of age, teaching them basic commands and socialization skills. The socialization is perhaps most important, because the dogs need to be exposed to any and all types of surroundings. With the special yellow capes they wear, these dogs are permitted to go to many public areas that family pets aren't allowed. When the dogs reach about a year and a half old, they are returned to the Canine Companions for Independence regional headquarters in New York. They begin 6 months of advanced training with the organization's nationally renowned instructors, before they are matched with a child, adult or veteran with disabilities.

For more information about becoming a Puppy Raiser, visit cci.org or call 1-800-572-BARK.

Madison Band to Hold Tag Day

The James Madison High School Band, the "Pride of Vienna," offers one of the finest high school band programs in the U.S. On Saturday, Sept. 8, from 9:30 a.m. - 4:15 p.m., the band students will have their annual Tag Day where they canvass door-to-door in their uniforms across all the neighborhoods in the Madison school district (Vienna and Oakton).

They will be soliciting contributions in support of its excellent music programs. Fairfax County does not fully fund high school music programs, so the band students must raise money to pay for travel and entry fees to competitions, instruments and equipment, musical instructors, and student leadership training. Cash or checks (made out to JMHS Band Parents) will be gratefully accepted. If the band students do not make it to your street, and you would like to make a tax-deductible donation, you may mail one in to James Madison High School, ATTN: Band Parents - TAGDAY 2500 James Madison Drive Vienna, VA 22181 or you can go to the band's website at www.jmhsband.org. The band students hope you will come out to see their halftime show at Friday night home football games, or attend one of their concerts during the year. The performance schedule is on the tag students hand out door-to-door and also at www.jmhsband.org.
