After 19 swastikas spray-painted on building, community rallies behind Jewish Community Center of Northern Virginia

THE CONNECTION

On Saturday, Oct. 6 around 4:30 a.m., a vandal spray-painted 19 swastikas on the exterior walls of the Jewish Community Center of Northern Virginia in Fairfax — sending shock waves that reverberated throughout the tight-knit community and beyond. In the week that has passed, the graffiti has been removed from the building on Little River Turnpike, and the outpouring of support from neighbors, elected officials, clergy and people from around the country has been overwhelming.

Undaunted by the hatred, the incident caused the community to unite. On Sunday, Oct. 14, about 400 people packed the “J” (JCCNV) at a “comm-UNITY” gathering to affirm peace and unity. A dozen Federal, state and local elected officials as well as religious leaders offered messages of love; musicians sang inspirational songs, and the attendees collaborated on a group art project. It was a tree trunk and branches and people traced their hands, cut them out, and placed them on the tree.

“We felt violated,” said David Yaffe, president of the Board of JCCNV. “This was not the first time; the JCC had been violated before. This vandalism is a reminder that there are people in this area who share neither community values nor the American dream of opportunity and diversity and inclusion.”

As a result of the vandalism, for four days he said they received phone calls from all over the country; as well as Facebook and other social media posts, which were “overwhelmingly supportive.”

Also offering words of support at the service were Pastor Dan Roschke of Bethlehem Lutheran Church; Hurunnessa Fariad of the ADAMS Center; Rabbi Brett Isserow of Beth El Hebrew Congregation; and Gil Preuss of the Jewish Federation of Greater Washington. Gov. Ralph Northam and U.S. Sen. Mark Warner sent messages of support as well.

According to Sharon Bulova, chairman of the Board of Supervisors: “I love it that so many faiths are here to express support, and really that is what defines us in Fairfax County,” she said. “We are a community that supports each other. We are a community that appreciates and celebrates each other — our different faiths, our different cultures; and we come together when one of us has been hurt. When one of us has been hurt or damaged, you’re damaging all of us ... This only makes us stronger.”

Added U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11): “I’m proud of our community today because one hater is not going to divide this community,” he said. “In this community (hatred) will never prevail ... Today all of us say ‘I am a Jew’; all of us say ‘I am a Muslim. I am an immigrant.’ Because I will not let you divide us — your hatred, your bigotry, your fear must go back where they came from.”

He continued: “So, as we look with horror and disdain at the 19 swastikas that were painted on this building or the defilement at the United Church of Christ, we know that this community has risen up in its revulsion and in its desire to express communion with those who were affected — because we were all affected. So, fear won’t ever prevail in this community as long as we stand as one. Nobody will divide us. And ultimately, love and compassion and caring and community will overtake hatred and fear.”

“Today all of us say ‘I am a Jew’; all of us say ‘I am a Muslim. I am an immigrant.’ Because I will not let you divide us — your hatred, your bigotry, your fear must go back where they came from.”

City of Fairfax honors longtime Councilman Jeff Greenfield.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Jeff Greenfield served more than two decades on the Fairfax City Council. And family, friends, Council colleagues and City staff recently gave him a special sendoff to let him know how much his many years of service meant to them and to Fairfax.

They held a reception in his honor, Sept. 11, in the City Hall annex's atrium. Then came further recognition in Council chambers before that night's meeting. Mayor David Meyer noted that Greenfield is a hometown boy and an Eagle Scout who graduated from both Fairfax High and George Mason University.

Greenfield then worked for the federal government prior to becoming an independent businessman. But in Fairfax, he's most known as a Councilman. "Jeff has the longest tenure on our City Council – 24 years. We're proud of his service on the Council, and we express our appreciation to him and to his family for supporting him while he served our City."

Alex Robbins, on U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly's (D-11) staff, then presented a resolution to Greenfield. "A statement recognizing him on his retirement is entered into the Congressional Record," said Robbins. He also noted that, unlike most things in Congress, this resolution passed unanimously.

Exhibit Honoring Asian Pacific Americans at the Fairfax Museum

An innovative exhibit, considered a first of its kind, "I Want the Wide American Earth: An Asian Pacific Story," will be at the Fairfax Museum and Visitor Center through Dec. 31, 2018. Created in 2013 by the Smithsonian Asian Pacific American Center and the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES), the exhibit is on its 13-city national tour. The exhibit uses Filipino-American writer Carlos Bulosan's poem, "I Want the Wide American Earth" as the backdrop to share the complex story of Asian Pacific American history. It explains how Asian and Pacific Americans have influenced history in the United States. There are 30 banners presenting different cultures from various countries in Asia to the Pacific Islands and Polynesia. The exhibit also honors the lives of the first Asian immigrants and celebrates the successes of the present generation.

OPINION

Yes, America, Religious Freedom Began in Fairfax County

BY CHAP PETERSEN
STATE SENATOR (D-34)

The Vienna Metro station is the epicenter of suburban northern Virginia. Thousands of commuters come and go every morning, dropping off loved ones or catching the Orange Line into the urban core of the DMV. None of them are aware that just a few hundred yards away one of the most significant (and least known) Americans lived 250 years ago on a modest farm.

Jeremiah Moore was typical of English settlers who migrated to rural Fairfax County in the colonial era to clear fields and establish farms. Unlike most of his neighbors in Anglo-dominated Tidewater Virginia, he was a religious dissenter who found inspiration in the "Baptist" movement that spread through Great Britain in the mid-18th century.

The Baptists were not welcome in colonial Virginia. Its political and economic structure was based upon allegiance to the Church of England, which was the only permitted church. Indeed, a pastor could not open a church or preach without a license from the Church. Regardless, Moore in the early 1770s became an itinerant preacher fearlessly promoting the Gospel, without a license, to the farmers and tradesmen in northern Virginia.

When the Fairfax County Sheriff found out about Moore, he confined him in the County jail, then located at the County seat of Alexandria. According to family lore, Moore continued to preach through the cell bars, thereby undoubtedly driving his captors to distraction.

This incident would have been forgotten but for one remarkable fact – colonial Virginia in 1773 was changing rapidly and Moore's neighbors did not agree with his imprisonment. Indeed, when the case came to trial, a Fairfax County jury acquitted Moore and sent him back to farm and presumably his speaking engagements.

A movement was starting. Inspired by Moore's notorious case, another Fairfax County landowner and attorney, George Mason, added "freedom of religion" to his "Fairfax County Resolves" which was read to the Fairfax County militia when they mustered to join General Washington in May 1775. A member of the Virginia House of Burgesses, Mason added the same language to his Virginia Declaration of Rights, which later became part of the Virginia Constitution.

During the Revolutionary War, as the cause of liberty became national, Moore re-emerged as a spokesman for religious minorities. In 1779, he presented a petition signed by 10,000 Virginia freeholders – an impressive number in an era without mass media or big cities – to Gov. Thomas Jefferson asking Virginia to adopt Jefferson's Virginia Statute of Religious Freedom. In 1786, after years of Moore's lobbying, the Assembly finally did so.

Moore never backed off. In his senior years, he was still writing letters to now-President Jefferson decrying the "the most glaring violation of Rights that has ever disgraced a Free People," namely Virginia's requirement that eligible voters own at least 50 acres.

Moore died in 1814 at his farm. His grandson Thomas became a prominent attorney in the town of Fairfax and his great-grandson Walton Moore served in the U.S. Congress. Descendants continue to live in the area as attorneys, Virginia lawmakers and even as Anglican clergy.

Jeremiah Moore's real legacy, of course, has been the idea of religious freedom which has been enshrined in the U.S. Constitution since 1791, when Mason's "Fairfax County Resolves" found their home in the Federal Bill of Rights. Indeed, the "establishment of religion" prohibition in the First Amendment directly harkens back to Moore's imprisonment in 1773.

Today, the American ideal of freedom of religion is still a work in progress. Yet it also provides a beacon to billions around the globe who seek to practice their faith in peace. And it all begins in Fairfax County.

A Warning Too Dire to Ignore

BY KENNETH R.
"KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

For those who like to plan where will you be and what you will be doing in twenty years a complicating factor that has for too long been ignored must be considered: climate change. The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change brought together by the United Nations issued a report earlier this month, written and edited by 91 scientists from 40 countries and based on a review of more than 6,000 scientific reports, predicting much more dire consequences of climate change much earlier than previously had been expected.

Conditions that have been visibly happening with much more regularity in recent years of intense rains and hurricanes, droughts, excessive heat, flooding, and wildfires will be getting worse. Forget retirement to that beach of living may eat into our retirement savings yielding them inadequate.

What about life for our children and grandchildren? What will it be like? The evidence presented is too compelling to ignore. To sustain a future quality of life for our posterity we must take aggressive action now.

As reported in The New York Times, the authors found that if greenhouse gas emissions continue at the current rate, the atmosphere will warm up by as much as 2.7 degrees Fahrenheit above preindustrial levels by 2040 inundating coastlines and intensifying droughts and poverty. The house you have been fixing up; there is a high probability it may be under water as the beach disappears. Rising costs new report shows that many of the most serious changes will come much earlier than expected.

The report said to prevent 2.7 degrees of warming, greenhouse pollution must be reduced by 45 percent from 2010 levels by 2030 and 100 percent by 2050.

The use of coal as an electricity source would have to drop from nearly 40 percent today to less than 7 percent. Renewable energy such as wind and solar, which makes up about 20 percent of electricity generation, would have to increase to as much as 67 percent.

While the report talks about the science involved, the politics of the issue present the greatest challenge. With a federal administration filled with climate-change deniers and with a pledge to bring back coal for greater energy production, there seems to be a great likelihood that the United States will indeed withdraw from the Paris Climate Agreement. (Under the terms of the agreement, the U.S. wouldn't actually be able to withdraw until November 2020.)

The administration also may eliminate more regulations that were put in place to reduce climate change if those regulations stand in the way of greater business profits.

Until sanity returns at the national level, it is important that actions — as small as they may seem — be taken at state, local, community and family levels to preserve our climate and our planet. We have a responsibility to our children and others to live our lives in a way that recognizes the clear and present dangers our planet faces. The warning is too dire to ignore.

City Honors Greenfield

Former Fairfax Mayor John Mason said Greenfield was active in their neighborhood and helped him in all his election campaigns. Noting some of Greenfield's attributes, Mason said, "He has an absolutely incredible memory, and he does his homework and comes to Council meetings well-prepared. I was pleased to work with him and see that he's done so well over 24 years."

NEXT TO SPEAK was former City Councilman Steve Stombres. "When I was first elected to City Council, I was seeking out somebody that could help me understand the issues – somebody to be a mentor and a friend, and somebody to be a sounding board – and Jeff was always there to help his colleagues," explained Stombres. "He was a thoughtful, deliberative member of Council, and the City has benefited from his years of service."

He said personally, and as a community, Fairfax is grateful to Greenfield for all he's done, and it was a pleasure working with him. He also recalled how Greenfield's wife, Lisa, was often by his side on the campaign trail. Then, speaking directly to their 12-year-old daughter, Alexandra, Stombres thanked her for "sharing your father with our community. I know he's always been so busy; but now, you're going to have plenty of time to spend with him."

Former City Manager Bob Sisson said, "I was delighted to get to know him. All of the things that have been said about Jeff tonight are true." Sisson said he envied the relationship Greenfield and his father had. "Ray and Mary Greenfield are great parents, and [he told Greenfield], you're duplicating that with your own family. I have a lot of respect for you, Jeff. The City's been made better by your leadership, and we'll miss you."

Agreeing, Meyer said he was neighbors with Greenfield's parents, so working with him "was a good reminder of the friendship I had with his family. Many times, I've witnessed Jeff's helpfulness and quick humor."

Then, addressing him directly, Meyer said, "On behalf of all of the members of the City Council, past and current, we thank you for your service. You've made a difference in the lives of individuals and also in the corporate life of our community." He then presented Greenfield with a pair of sterling-silver cufflinks engraved with his name and the words, "City of

Fire Chief John O'Neal also took part in the ceremony, giving Greenfield framed shoulder patches from the City of Fairfax Fire Department, Volunteer Fire Department and Police Department. "We want to thank you for your personal and professional support," said O'Neal. "Your contributions while on City Council truly made the City a safer place, so we want to give you a small token of our appreciation."

GREENFIELD thanked everyone for being there and said how happy he is to now be able to spend more time with his wife and daughter. "They've been very patient as I've continued to serve, trying to make a difference in the community," he said. "To my colleagues, current and former, I'll watch [the Council meetings] from home, and you know how to reach me if you need me."

Expressing his gratitude to everyone in the City, Greenfield said, "It's really been a great ride. But it's all about you; it's not about those of us up here. We serve, but this is a community because of our public-safety folks who put their lives on the line every day, the staff that works here at City Hall and, certainly, our great residents."

Carving Made Easy

Creating a front porch worthy Halloween pumpkin.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

“It’s part of the process. You have to clean out the messy insides before you can start carving a beautiful design,” said Lisa Searby, who was offering an in-home lesson in carving Halloween pumpkins to a group of middle school students and their parents.

A drive around most neighborhoods during this, the spookiest season of the year, will likely reveal the efforts of many to carve a sophisticated pumpkin. From frightening to fanciful, the art of pumpkin carving is a skill that eludes many. So on a chilly Sunday afternoon, Searby, who lives in Bethesda, Md. trekked to the Fairfax home of Katie and Luke Gunther to offer a class in pumpkin carving. With a few tricks and the right tools, Searby says that almost anyone can create a front-porch worthy gourd.

After the parent-child duos have donned aprons and the pumpkins are placed atop tables covered with plastic and topped with newspaper, the instruction begins. A set of carving tools is something that Searby recommends to anyone who wants to create an impressive design.

“You don’t have to break the bank, but you need to get a set of tools that are sturdy enough to stand up the the heft of a thick-skinned pumpkin,” she said. “You can usually find them online pretty easily. Choose a set that has a tool for each step of the process, like a little serrated saw to cut a hole in the top and a scooper to clean out the flesh. It makes carving so much easier.”

It appears that parents agree. “I didn’t realize that there was such a thing, but these little tools are awesome,” said Luke Gunther, the father of 12-year-old twins. “We usually use a kitchen knife and it’s hard to cut through and the edges of the designs are always jagged, but the tools make a much smoother cut.”

Once the tops of the pumpkins are removed and the pulp, flesh and seeds area cleared, the artistry begins. “Use a dry-erase marker to to sketch the design that you want to carve on the front of your pumpkin,” said Searby. “Does anyone know why we’re using a dry-erase marker instead of a Sharpie? Because if you make a mistake or don’t like your drawing, you can wipe off a dry-erase marker and start over. Sharpies are permanent.”

Three hearts are what Theresa Holt and her 12-year-old son and 11-year-old daughter choose for the front of their pumpkin. “This is such a fun thing to do, even if you don’t care about the outcome, it’s a great way to spend time together as a family,” she said.

Those who choose to use one of Searby’s pre-designed templates are instructed to attach the template to the pumpkin and use the spike tool to trace the design onto the gourd, leaving tiny pinholes in its thick flesh. Next, the class uses one of the carving tools to cut out the facial features or other designs and, voila, in less than 30 minutes the group produces six pumpkins that are ready for Halloween.

“If you’re going to use candles illuminate your pumpkins at night, make sure you put the candles in a glass candle holder first,” said Searby. “Now the clean-up begins. It’s a messy process after all.”

Season Opening with Mozart and Beethoven

Virginia Chamber Orchestra features renowned soloist Brian Ganz.

THE CONNECTION

The all professional, Fairfax County-based Virginia Chamber Orchestra (VCO) opens its 47th season, with “Music of the Masters.” The evening showcases the distinguished pianist Brian Ganz as the featured soloist. The award-winning Ganz is regarded as a leading pianists of his generation. He has performed at The Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Led by music director David Grandis, the VCO performs not only at the Ernst Community Cultural Center at Northern Virginia Community College, but is an “Ensemble in Residence” at George Mason University. The VCO also regularly performs creative ensemble presentations at Tysons’ intimate 1st Stage theatre.

“We are excited and looking forward to having a pianist of the stature of Brian Ganz perform as our guest soloist at our ‘home’ concert hall in the center of Fairfax County,” said Doug Lovejoy, Virginia Chamber Orchestra Board President.

The VCO program will include Mozart: Piano Concerto in D minor, K. 466 which is full of dark storms, sunny romance and a jubilant finish. The Mozart concerto has also been played used as a pop accompaniment. A movement from the concerto was played in the Oscar winning film “Amadeus,” while another movement was heard in “Mr. Robot,” a recent television series.

The upcoming VCO program will also include a performance of Beethoven: Symphony No. 4 in B-flat major, Op. 60; a less often heard symphony.

In an interview, Ganz described the Mozart concerto as “a very beautiful work for many reasons, but one reason is that one can hear both Mozart and Beethoven within the same work. I look forward immensely to collaborating with the VCO and David Grandis on this masterpiece...my very favorite symphony.”

VCO music director, David Grandis, noted that the Beethoven: Symphony No. 4 “is a special universe of its own, one which resonates intimately with me.

“It is the only symphony which was commissioned. No draft survived, but we know Beethoven composed it in a few weeks,” added Grandis. “The fact that this symphony is probably the least loved and the least known of Beethoven’s output, makes it even more lovable to me ... But it is just as perfect as any other of Beethoven’s symphonies. It has always seemed strange to me that it is less performed than the others. It might very well be my favorite Beethoven symphony.”

Where and When

ArtsFairfax to Present Arts Awards

Event recognizes extraordinary contributions of artists and arts organization and those who support the arts.

BY DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

For the past seven years ARTSFAIRFAX has recognized both individuals and organizations that have made significant contributions to the creative economy in Fairfax County, the City of Fairfax, and the City of Falls Church. Beyond entertainment, cultural and educational activities for local residents, the arts strengthen the local economy with jobs and with taxes paid.

ARTSFAIRFAX is the organization that helps support the arts and provides a voice for the arts. A study developed by Americans for the Arts in collaboration with ARTSFAIRFAX indicated that more than $270 million is generated annually in economic activity from the arts and culture industry in Fairfax. Additionally, more than $9 million of local government revenue is generated as patrons at nonprofit arts events spend close to $25 per person, per event, beyond the cost of admission on items such as meals, parking, and even babysitters.

This year's ARTSFAIRFAX's honorees have exhibited "individual and collective dedication to the arts, helping grow the cultural and economic economy in Fairfax County," said Linda Sullivan, ARTSFAIRFAX president & CEO.

The 2018 award recipients include Claude Moore Charitable Foundation, American Youth Philharmonic Orchestras, Wolf Trap Foundation for the Performing Arts, and Virginia McGehee Friend. The awardees were selected by ARTSFAIRFAX and community representatives. Nominations were received from the public.

"We are delighted to honor our 2018 Arts Awards recipients for their extraordinary contributions to Fairfax County and beyond," said Sullivan. "Our honorees have enabled thousands of arts programs and services, benefiting millions of people."

Where and When

ARTSFAIRFAX presents annual Arts Awards, at the Fairview Park Marriott, 3111 Fairview Park Drive, Falls Church, Friday, Oct. 26, from 12 to 2 p.m. Additional information and details about the annual Arts Awards event is located at <https://artsfairfax.org/arts-awards-2/> or call 503-642-0862.

event is former U.S. Rep. Thomas M. Davis, currently director for Government Affairs at Deloitte in Washington. He is also an adjunct professor of Political Science at George Mason University, and also serving as rector (chairman, Board of Visitors).

"The arts awards recognize arts organizations that are county and national leaders in innovative and creative programs that educate and entertain all ages," said Davis. "A creative economy fuels innovation that provides jobs and creates a sense of place where people want to live, work and play."

Public Safety Career Fair to Be Held Oct. 20

"Movin' On Up"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Not "to the east side" and not "to a deluxe apartment in the sky," but if fictional New York City cleaning business icon George Jefferson had been diagnosed with lung cancer as I was, I would bet he'd be happy making progress: the feeling of moving forward. And that's exactly what I feel now. With the "news" of last week's column, progress/movement is at hand. With two CT scans in the last three months and some tumors "progressing" - and then not, while a previously insignificant tumor burst (not literally) onto the scene, I am happy now to be onward and hopefully upward as I infuse every three weeks during the next quarter ahead of an early January 2019 scan. The future is now and I'm grateful to have choices as I navigate the road ahead.

Having a plan matters. Though I am still waiting and seeing, and evaluating after that next scan, I do feel as if I'm back on track. I know what my next three months will be about (about three months) and I'm clear what my schedule will be (subject to change due to lab results, an altogether normal/expected blip): urine, lab, infusion, post-chemo week of difficulty eating and physical and psychological challenges, followed by two weeks of relative normalcy, then infusion again and rinse and repeat every three weeks until early January 2019. Twelve weeks in total. Through Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years. I won't say it will be pretty but it will be predictable and hopefully on a path to a positive result. (Remember, I'm life long member of Red Sox Nation so hope always springs eternal.)

This column is certainly not meant to minimize the possible discouraging results of my January scan but I see no advantage in anticipating and/or overreacting to unknown results and/or dire consequences months ahead of actual facts not yet in evidence. This is what being diagnosed with cancer is all about: a series of ups and downs and all-arounds; and the sooner the patient assimilates this unpredictable variability into their algorithm for living with the disease, the more manageable their lives will be. Moreover, "If you," to quote Rudyard Kipling, "can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs," it will likely contribute to the preferred calm that every cancer patient diagnosed as "terminal" needs to feel every second of every day (and night, too) as they struggle to deal with the internal demons brought about by this terrible affliction. As my friend Lynne, a cancer survivor herself, said to me when I was first diagnosed: "This will be the most difficult thing you'll ever have to do." Of course, she was right. It's been beyond my wildest nightmares.

Being stuck in a pattern with no clear direction does not help. For the past three months, I have been so entangled. Now I am not. Now I am on a path of less resistance and what resistance there is - to disappoint "The Borg," is not futile. It is all part of an agreed-upon pursuit of truth and hopefully justice - for me, anyhow. I haven't exactly abused the privilege of living (although while attending college in the seventies, occasionally there may have been the odd self-destructive-type behavior common to the times, none of which concerned my oncologist in the least by the way) and given my parents' long cancer-free lives, I would have expected better than a stage IV, non-small lung cancer diagnosis at age 54 and a half. But here I am, still, nearly 10 years post diagnosis. (There aren't that many of us, unfortunately.)

And though I am definitely not happy about my cancer circumstances, I can be positive about the negative. And what I am most positive about is that at least for the next quarter anyway, I know what I'm doing and why. I certainly can't say what I'll be feeling after my next scan; hopefully elation and relief, but in the interim, life will go on as per usual, and for a cancer patient/survivor, life going on is as good as it gets; almost as if I "finally got a piece of the pie."
