Packed house to celebrate Jennifer Wexton's win in the 10th Congressional District.

Former Gov. Terry McAuliffe tells the crowd assembled at Tim Kaine's victory party that voters in Virginia rejected President Donald Trump's campaign of "fear, hatred and division."

Democrats Seize Control of Northern Virginia

Region once had its own brand of Republicanism; now that seems almost extinct.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE THE CONNECTION

he loss of two-term incumbent U.S. Rep. Barbara Comstock (D-10) means Republicans are down to one lone elected official in Northern Virginia, Del. Tim Hugo (R-40). The blue wave that started last year unseating Republicans like Del. Jim LeMunyon (R-67) and Del. Bob Marshall (R-13) continued this year, when state Sen. Jennifer Wexton (D-10) was able to flip a seat that had been in Republican hands since a young military lawyer named Frank Wolf beat incumbent Democrat Joe Fisher back in 1980. For a region that once had Republican heavyweights like U.S. Rep. Tom Davis (R-11) and U.S. Sen John Warner, the prospects for Republicans in Northern Virginia now seem pretty bleak.

"It's going to be a tough road ahead for Republicans in Northern Virginia. Essentially, it's gone," said Republican consultant Dan Scandling, who served as Wolf's chief of staff. "Redistricting is not going to help. The seats now in Northern Virginia are going to be Democratically controlled for a generation."

Although the controversy surrounding the nomination of Brett Kavanaugh to the U.S. Supreme Court helped some Republican candidates for Senate in places like North Dakota and Missouri, it provided a huge burden for Comstock. Kavanaugh and Comstock had been friends since they served together as young Republican staffers trying to impeach Bill Clinton in the 1990s. This year, Wexton was able to use sexual assault allegations as wedge to charge Comstock was guilty of an "unacceptable failure of leadership." In the closing days of the campaign, television ads branded the incumbent "Barbara Trumpstock."

Incumbent Sen. Tim Kaine easily beat back a challenge from Republican Corey Stewart, whose message of an invading www.ConnectionNewspapers.com caravan of foreigners failed to resonate outside rural Virginia.

"Corey Stewart and Barbara Comstock followed President Trump's playbook. They stoked fear about immigrants. Both lost big," said Frank Sharry, founder and executive director of immigration-reform group America's Voice. "It seems evident the people of Virginia are just not interested in Trumpism, with or without Trump."

KAINE CELEBRATED an early victory Tuesday night, taking the stage at the Falls Church Marriott Fairview Park as one of the first Democrats to deliver a victory speech. He quoted scripture, thanked longtime supporters and cracked a few jokes about how the race was called one minute after the polls closed. The former fair-housing attorney got his start in Richmond politics before becoming lieutenant governor and governor. This year he faced a candidate who promised a "vicious" campaign and delivered by suggesting — without any evidence - that Kaine had somehow been charged with sexual misconduct. Kaine said voters rejected that approach.

"You rejected the politics of peddling lies to try to get ahead," said Kaine. "You rejected the politics and the economics of it's about a few and not about all."

Wexton celebrated victory at the Washington Dulles Airport Marriott, thanking supporters and volunteers most expensive congres-that helped her win in the sional race in Virginia.

Democrats targeted the race and pumped millions of dollars into an effort to knock on doors and appear on television screens.

Comstock ended up raising more money, $6 million in total from Northern Virginia business stalwarts like Northrop Grumman and Capital One. But national Democrats flooded the race with money, and Wexton tapped her experience as a Loudoun prosecutor to gain funding from law firms like Wilmer Hale and Jones Day. In the end, she said, suburban voters rejected the Trump playbook of racial division and economic nationalism.

"I have been saying from the beginning of this campaign that change is coming, and change came today," said Wexton. "That kind of change doesn't just happen, it happened because of you."

WITH DEMOCRATS seizing control of the House of Representatives, the Fairfax County delegation stands to gain a new sense of prominence on Capitol Hill. U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) is expected to take a key role on the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, which is expected to start investigating the president's political involvement with Russia and economic ties to foreign leaders.

"Tonight we get a mandate for oversight and accountability," said Connolly during Kaine's victory party, which was in his district. "And I just want to say to all my friends in the Trump administration: You better put on your rollerblades because you're going to be skating to Capitol Hill a lot."

U.S. Rep. Don Beyer (D-8) also stands to gain a new sense of prominence, possibly

With two other Democratic women challengers defeating incumbents in Virginia Congressional Districts, Virginia's Congressional delegation shifts from seven Republicans and four Democrats to seven Democrats and four Republicans.

WEXTON'S VICTORY opens a cascading series of special elections in Northern Virginia that are going to keep consultants and volunteers busy for the next few months. Del. Jennifer Boysko (D-86) announced her run for that seat. Her House seat in Herndon would open if she were successful, initiating a rapid-pace series of special elections to install new members of the General Assembly ahead of the January session. State Sen. Adam Ebbin (D-30) says Boysko is "the overwhelming and obvious choice."

"She's known in Fairfax and has been spending a lot of time in Loudoun County, and she's got a really strong fundraising ability," said Ebbin. "She's got a great legislative ability, and she does a lot of community events in the area. So I think she'd be pretty formidable, and I'd be surprised if she didn't win."

From left, Mary Lareau (DMV Sanctuary Congregation), Michelle LaRue, M.D. (CASA in Action) and Sookyung Oh (NAKASEC) speak on behalf of their Fairfax for All coalition. The group says that the county's One Fairfax Resolution fails to address the immediate issues being faced by immigrant residents.

Advocating for Immigrant Protection

Fairfax for All Coalition demands more immigrant protection from County supervisors.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

determined group of citizens advocating for immigrants' rights held a press conference outside the Fairfax County Government Center on Tuesday, Oct. 29, before heading inside where several members of the Fairfax for All Coalition provided testimony during the Board of Supervisors' meeting.

The coalition is demanding that the Board adopt their "Ordinance to Protect Equal Justice for All" which they drafted and presented to the Supervisors in February of this year

In a recent written response to the group, Board Chairman Sharon Bulova cited the joint passage of the One Fairfax Policy by the Board and by the Fairfax County Public Schools' Board in 2016, which pledges their commitment to "intentionally consider equity when making policies and delivering programs and services." One Fairfax outlines 17 areas of focus, including housing, health and human services, and public safety, as areas that "must be addressed to create an equitable community."

In the response, the Chairman wrote "As I have said in the past, I do not plan to pursue the Ordinance to Protect Equal Justice for All." Bulova's reasoning, beyond the existence of the One Fairfax resolution, is that the ordinance calls for the complete severance of the county's cooperation with ICE (Immigration and Customs Enforcement), something the county is not prepared to do since "we work with outside law enforcement agencies like ICE on criminal matters like gang prevention, human trafficking, and cyber crimes."

SPEAKING FOR FAIRFAX FOR ALL at the press conference, Michelle LaRue, M.D., Virginia State Director for CASA, fired back that One Fairfax without their ordinance "lacks teeth."

Sookyung Oh, a member of the coalition and the Area Director of the National Korean American Service and Education Consortium (NAKASEC) added that without the accountabilities and direction of the ordinance "One Fairfax is just an abstract," applied to nothing tangible and basically just another "checklist."

Both speakers acknowledged that the Fairfax County Sheriff's Office has terminated its "Intergovernmental Service Agreement" with ICE as of May 23, 2018. Under that agreement, the Sheriff's Office would hold detainees for ICE past their release dates. In a statement announcing the termination, Sheriff Stacey Kincaid said "We intend to comply with all federal obligations as they pertain to ICE É but the current contract is not necessary for us to do this É we found it expedient to no longer have an agreement that requires us to extend our resources beyond these obligations."

"But they are still collecting the personal information of people arrested and detained and sharing that information with ICE and others," said Oh. Even with the termination of the agreement between the Sheriff's Department and ICE, Oh says that 73 people were released to the Immigration authorities between August and September of this year alone.

"Of those 73 people, 50 of them were never even convicted of the charges they were arrested for," said Oh, adding that for many of these same charges, "others have been let off with warnings or fines, not sent to jail and then ripped from their families. That is not equality for all in Fairfax County."

The coalition thinks that without their ordinance, the county is basically leaving many of its most vulnerable residents open to discriminatory actions and adversely impacting thousands in the region. Accord-

Elizabeth Benson and Sharon Canner of Reston show their support for the Fairfax for All Ordinance to Protect Equal Justice for All. "We should do everything we can to protect and support all of our residents," said Canner. "Immigrants to our area are vital to our growth and success. It's a business issue as well as a human one."

ing to the coalition speakers, 1 in 4 families in Fairfax County have a parent or guardian born outside the county.

"And it's not just about collaborating with ICE," said LaRue, and Mary Lareau with the DMV Sanctuary Congregation.

Fear of family separation is keeping children from school, parents from work or from seeking needed medical attention, says Lareau. Lareau and her fellow advocates say that this same fear is hampering the safety of us all, as immigrants fail to report criminal activity or to come forward to cooperate in criminal investigation.

"Turning people over to ICE, that's the real crime. How is any of this helping us to make our communities safer places?" asks LaRue.

Reached for comment, Karla Bruce, the county's Chief Equity Officer charged with championing the One Fairfax Resolution, said she has met with members of the coalition, and other immigrant and civil rights advocate groups.

"I can't speak to the individual Board members' stance on the group's proposed ordinance, but I can say that since taking over this role in June, I have been meeting with as many parties as possible, internally and externally. I want to listen, to hear what the concerns are and see how our policies may be negatively affecting, even if inadvertently, our residents."

Bruce said the County is sincere in the desire to implement One Fairfax, but that it's not something that can be achieved overnight, even while she acknowledges the frustration of groups like Fairfax For All.

"We are trying to see where changes are needed in the entire system," she said. "Yes, there are individuals who are experiencing negative impacts today. We have to keep at it and I want to keep hearing from groups like this."

AFTER THE PRESS CONFERENCE, several of the coalition representatives gave testimony before the board, some recounting personal struggles as immigrants or family members of immigrants, including a young man named "William" who is fearful that his stepfather is about to be deported. "He has been everything to me. I need him. I still need him."

Others, like Ruth Maul of Herndon, spoke of how domestic violence victims refuse to come forward for treatment or protection because of their fears of being deported or separated from family members.

Marcella Levine told the Board that "you don't have to be a sanctuary county to adopt more non-compliance regulations."

Before the meeting was gavelled out of session, the members presented more than 500 signed petitions they had collected in support of their ordinance.

"They say we don't have support from the community," said Oh of NAKASEC, "but we do, and we are gathering more each day."

Fairfax for All vows to continue to advocate for immigrants in the region and to continue to "bring these friends, neighbors, co-workers, families, and congregants under our full protection."

The full text of the proposed ordinance is available on the website www.fairfaxforall.org.

WELLBEING

A Good Night's Sleep

The impact of sleep deprivation and how to avoid it.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

or those with seemingly endless todo lists, taking a nap or sleeping late might seem like a luxury they can't afford. Foregoing sleep in lieu of checking email, doing laundry or studying for an exam, could decrease the quality of those tasks.

"Two well-known effects of inadequate sleep are cognitive processing problems including attention, storing information and retrieving information from memory," said Dr. Linda Gulyn, professor of psychology at Marymount University. "That's why someone who is consistently sleepy has difficulty in classes, getting work done, and taking tests. This is problematic especially for high school and college students."

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends that school-aged children get nine to 12 hours of sleep each night, teenagers get eight to 10 hours, adults 18-65 get seven to eight and adults 65 and older get seven to eight hours. The CDC also reports that one in three people don't get enough sleep.

"This country is very achievement-oriented. It's go, go, go and we think that sleeping is for wimps," said Adam Winsler, Ph.D. professor of applied developmental psychology at George Mason University and lead author of an article published in the Journal of Youth and Adolescence called "Sleepless in Fairfax ..."

Avoiding activities like playing video games before bed can improve the quality of one's sleep, says researchers.

But in addition to a decrease in productivity, a lack of adequate sleep can have a negative impact on one's overall wellbeing. Winsler's study looked at 39,000 8th, 10th and 12th graders in Fairfax County. The researchers recorded the average number of hour of sleep the teens get each night and found that sleep deprivation can have a profound impact on mental health and certain behaviors. "We found that getting eight to nine hours of sleep each night lowers the risk of underage drinking, smoking and serious drug use in kids and adolescence. Each hour more of sleep a night adolescents get is associated with less depression, suicide, and drug use for teens," said Winsler. "But generally, the reality is that most kids and teens are considered deprived. A lack of sleep hurts them emotionally and can make them feel depressed and grumpy. Younger children who don't get adequate sleep can experience problems with self-control and behavior regulation."

"When we are tired, we are more likely to be agitated and this affects social relationships. [Someone who's sleep deprived] might have a tough time completing tasks," added Gulyn.

There are physical and mental health benefits to getting proper sleep, says Dr. Jerome Short, a clinical psychologist and associate professor of psychology at George Mason University who has also studied the effect of sleep patterns on overall health and wellness. "Sleep clears the brain of toxic proteins, repairs muscles, and restores the immune system. Adequate sleep is associated with less obesity, diabetes, heart disease, and cancer," he said. "In recent research with college students, I found that the combination of vigorous exercise and sleep satisfaction led to next day positive mood, he said. "The combination of moderate exercise and longer sleep led to reduced negative mood."

"During sleep, the body releases hormones that stimulate growth, increase muscle mass, and repair cells and tissues," said Julia Dorsey, RN, School Public Health Nurse – Fairfax County Health Department. "Hormones also help boost the immune system to better fight infection. Chronic sleep deficiency is linked to an increased risk of obesity and type II diabetes, as well as heart disease, high blood pressure, and stroke."

ADEQUATE SLEEP can be elusive in a social environment where social media and information on demand are prevalent. "It's critical to reduce screen time before bed and not allow video games and computers and phones use late at night," said Winsler. "Dimming the lights and doing calming activities also helps. One big ussie is that teens sleep with their phones next to them and the phones vibrate and wake them up."

"Daily exercise, reduced light, physical comfort, and a regular sleep routine of going to bed and getting up at the same time increase duration of, and satisfaction with, sleep," added Dr. Jerome Short.

To improve the quality of one's sleep, Gulyn advises that "if sleep problems are associated with excessive worry or depression, then it's important to seek professional airfax County Department of Transportation (FCDOT) continues to solicit feedback on how people get around in the Franconia-Springfield area on the local transit network. Input from transit riders and residents is a key component of making Fairfax Connector service more convenient, accessible and efficient. Fairfax Connector bus routes serving the Franconia/Springfield area include 231, 232, 301, 305, 310, 321, 322, 334, 335, 340, 341, 371, 372, 373, 393, 394, 395, 401, 402, and 494.

On the heels of an online survey which resulted in more than 750 responses, FCDOT is scheduled to host two open house events for residents to take part in interactive activities and to give input:

- ❖ Tuesday, Nov. 13, from 6-8 p.m. Key Middle School, 6402 Franconia Rd, Springfield. Transit access: Route 310
- ♦ Wednesday, Nov. 14, from 6-8 p.m. Edison High School, 5801 Franconia Road, Springfield. Transit access: Routes 109, 231/232, 310, 321/322

The outreach events include interactive exercises, facilitated by FCDOT staff, to explore attendees' individual travel needs, issues and ideas.

There will also be an opportunity at the meeting to give specific feedback on the future of Fairfax Connector service in the area.

Following the outreach events, FCDOT staff will compile the input received and will incorporate the information received into planning for future service improvements in the Franconia-Springfield area. FCDOT will come back to the community in the next few months to hold more community events to present and discuss a draft service plan and future improvements for the area.

Feedback is welcomed until Dec. 1, 2018. To give your input on service in the Franconia Springfield area:

BoatUS/GEICO Marine Insurance Comes to Springfield

After 40 years, Boat Owners Association of The United States (BoatUS), is returning to Springfield. The nation's largest advocacy, services and safety group for recreational boaters, 17^{th} largest employer in Alexandria and now a subsidiary of GEICO, will officially open its new 65,000-square-foot association and corporate headquarters at 5323 Port Royal Road, Springfield on Wednesday, Nov. 14 at 3:30 p.m.

The new BoatUS / GEICO Marine Insurance building is located just one block from where BoatUS was headquartered in the early 1970s. In addition to BoatUS operations, the new facility houses customer service and nationwide 24/7 on-water/on-road dispatch operations for recreational boat owners.

In attendance will be BoatUS CEO Kirk La and GEICO President and Chief Executive Officer Bill Roberts. Said La, "Some may say we are going back to our roots, because after our founder Richard Schwartz started BoatUS in 1966, he located one of the association's first offices just down the block at 5261 Port Royal Road. However, this is our first headquarters built for the express purpose of serving the more than half a million BoatUS members and GEICO Marine Insurance customers and helping us make boating better for the nation's nearly 12 million registered boat owners."

La said that employment opportunities continue with the growing company at its new location. "Our new headquarters make BoatUS and GEICO Marine Insurance a very appealing place to work." Enhancements that appeal to a millennial workforce include an open design that encourages collaboration, a fitness center with showers and lockers, a full cafeteria, ample parking with electric vehicle-charging stations, and better access to highways and public transportation.

Teen Star and Photography Buff Comes to Town

Keenan Allen displays his laid back, Hollywood side.

BY MIKE SALMON The Connection

ollywood actor, writer and photographer Keenan Allen talked about his favorite photo that is on the back cover of his new book "Hollywood: Photos and Stories From Foreverland," at a recent book signing at Springfield Town Center. He was taking a picture of a sunset in Hollywood, his hometown, but wasn't sure he had the settings right, so everything was out of focus except the sunset, which he was focused on in the first place. "I blocked out all the craziness of Hollywood and focused on the sunset," he said. "I wanted to highlight that in particular."

The crowd of about 100 teenage girls hinged on his every word, clutching books and flashing smiles at the star, who just finished his seventh season of "Pretty Little Liars," hit television series. When he's not in front of the camera, he practices his hobby of writing and photography. At age 11 he was inspired to write "Hollywood," and after six years of working on it, the finished product was the focus of his book tour.

The book has his impression of Hollywood, and contains a lot of the street performers and less famous people that are hoping for that big break. He wanted to show it as it is, without any point of view, and let people get their own impression. "There is a responsibility to portray your own point of view," he said, but admitted that he was "worried about my prospective getting in the way," he said. "I wanted to take people on a journey through Hollywood without telling them how to feel," he

His view from the street provides a certain perspective he was going after. "Everybody just wants to be appreciated, I took the time to look people in the eye," he said.

Sophie Runia, 14, liked that about him. "It's very cool, that's a good thing, everybody should be independent," she said. Runia is a freshman at West Springfield and related to the book.

Mount Vernon residents Rachelle Deleon, 14, and Lizbeth Ramirez, 16, clutched their signed copies as they came off the stage. "I like how he's an artist dedicated to his work," said Ramirez. Allen grew up in the social media era and worked it into this event as well. He posed for selfies with evervone and before the signings, got down with the crowd for some pictures and video. "We're on his Instagram," said one girl who came up from Fredericksburg to see him and had her Instagram on throughout the event. Allen has 6.4 million followers, she said. "I'm about to crv."

Allen had an arts background since he was a child, and his parents were immersed in the artist scene in California. At age 13, he

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY FOR THE ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT AND DRAFT FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT FOR THE PROPOSED CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF THE 911TH ENGINEER COMPANY COMPLEX FORT BELVOIR, VIRGINIA

The U.S. Army Garrison Fort Belvoir hereby gives Notice of the Availability (NOA) for the Environmental Assessment (EA) and Draft Finding of No Significant Impact (FNSI) for the proposed construction and operation of the 911th Engineer Company Complex (911th EC Complex). The proposed location of the 911th EC Complex is an approximately 10-acre site located north of Route 1 (Richmond Highway) between the Fairfax County Parkway and Accotink Village, on the North Post of Fort Belvoir in Fairfax County, Virginia. The proposed 911th EC Complex would allow for the consolidation of the currently geographically separated and inadequately sized facilities utilized by the 911th Engineer Company. The Proposed Action would involve the construction of a medium-sized Tactical Equipment Maintenance Facility, an organizational equipment storage building, organizational vehicle storage, petroleum/oil/lubricants storage buildings, a hazardous waste storage building, a company operations facility, and an outdoor organizational vehicle parking area. The Proposed Action would allow the 911th Engineer Company to properly train for and more rapidly respond to emergency events with efficiency of operations and proper in British Columbia is now set to expand to all of Canada. Washington State has on the ballot this November an initiative that would put a steadily rising fee on carbon pollution emitters. Bill Gates and Michael Bloomberg are in support, with Gates writing in an open letter, "You may be skeptical about this idea. I know I was. How can one state make a difference on a global problem like climate change? But I overcame

The signal, that pollution costs must be paid up front, will spur investment in the new energy economy both at the household and business scale. And while we might debate how much good can one state do, it also might be asked how much harm? That Virginians, as ratepayers beholden to Dominion Energy, will sink upwards of $2 billion in the Atlantic Coast

Pipeline is unconscionable. All efforts at "greening" Virginia by enacting the other items on your climate to-do list cannot make up for this pipeline tragedy. The combined ACP and MVP fracked gas pipelines will generate greenhouse gas emissions estimated equivalent to that produced by 45coal-fired power plants.

So it will take courage to act, to act without short-term gain, and against long-strategized opposition. You know what's at stake.

Sounds Not So Silent

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

With apologies to Simon and Garfunkel: burping, hiccuping, coughing, "expectorating," wheezing, sneezing, sniffling, nose running, nose bleeding, nose blowing, "gassing," gurgling and "nauseating."

If this were football, I'd likely receive a penalty for piling on: too much not of a good thing.

For me, it's just another day in cancer's side-effect paradise. For my wife, Dina, however, it's more difficult; caught in the crossfire, so to speak. Aside from how cancer makes you look and feel, there is also an element of how it makes you sound.

Not that I'm self-conscious or anything; I'm just more self-aware. But there's only so much one can do, or quite frankly, want to do to manage/control one's sights and sounds.

After all, side effects are sort of the cost of doing business in the medical/pharmaceutical world. And though every patient doesn't experience identical symptoms, we're all warned equally that there could be trouble in them "thar" pills. Part of that trouble is internal: what you feel, and part of that trouble is external: what you see and hear. And depending upon what medication you're receiving, you could be experiencing side effects that manifest more like main effects.

Generally speaking, unless I was really uncomfortable and/or insistent when speaking to my oncologist, he has refrained from treating side effects - too much. His thinking has been that too many pills treating too many side effects makes Kenny an extraordinarily dull and dependent boy, and likely makes matters worse. Granted, there have been exceptions.

But prescribing an ever-increasing number and variety of pills seems akin to chasing one's own tail. It may be amusing to look at (if you're a cat or dog owner), but it's a hell of a price to pay for a minimal amount of relief. You may not be any worse for the wear, but neither are you any better off than when you started.

Obviously, in the cancer-treatment world, there's going to be some discomfort, and I have been prescribed some side-effect medication accordingly: for a skin rash, for constipation, to boost my appetite, for pain and for neuropathy. But overall, to ease my worried brow, we've tried to stay away from letting side effects affect my primary care.

Unfortunately, the reality is, every medication, every treatment, every procedure produces side effects. Trying to keep your eye on the ball during multiple processes, can become challenging. And though it may not be rocket science, it is medicine/science which for a Humanities graduate like me is as unnatural as it can possibly be.

All I understand is trying not to make matters worse, but when you've been diagnosed as "terminal," which I was, things have already become worse. Ergo, knowing how to manage your situation so as not to exaggerate the challenge you already face itself becomes a side effect for which there's very little treatment.

Knowing when to add or subtract medications, knowing when to change one's infusion medicine, knowing when to schedule infusion intervals and knowing when to schedule diagnostic scans, are all wrenching emotional decisions which might have life-ending consequences so these decisions do carry the weight of the world. And though my father always told me that I had broad shoulders (meaning I could carry the weight), I have never been tested as I have these last nearly 10 years.

Having survived for as long as I have, presumably, I have made some correct decisions. evertheless. I still feel like I'm one wrong move from disaster. And it's never more clear to me then when I'm listening to what I'm
