Education Issues Take Center Stage

Constituents tell lawmakers to increase teacher pay; pass ERA, $15 minimum wage and more.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

Teachers deserve a pay raise, and Virginia desperately needs to hire more school counselors. These were two of the most prevalent concerns voiced by constituents to members of the Fairfax County legislative delegation, the largest in the Virginia General Assembly.

During a marathon public hearing at the Fairfax County Government Center last weekend, lawmakers heard about everything from raising the minimum wage to reducing restrictions on solar power. But it was the coordinated push for education funding that remained a common theme, as one speaker after the next called on members of the House of Delegates and state Senate to invest an expected windfall of new revenue into the classroom.

“K-12 funding is again our top priority for this legislative session,” said Fairfax Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova, speaking at her last public hearing before stepping down at the end of 2019 from a position she’s held since 2009. “We have over 55,000 students receiving free or reduced price lunch, over 36,000 students learning English as a second language and over 26,000 students receiving special education services. We need adequate funding to provide services for these higher need students.”

Gov. Ralph Northam has signaled that education funding will be one of his top priorities this year too, a move largely prompted by a $300 million windfall of new revenue from the Trump tax cuts. Because changes at the federal level create new incentives for high-income earners to take a standard deduction rather than itemizing, that means more state tax filers will be taking a standard deduction rather than itemizing — creating a new pot of money for lawmakers to spend. At the top of the agenda is a 5 percent raise for Virginia teachers.

“Obviously the governor’s budget seeks to retain the best educator workforce,” said Melanie Meren, a candidate for the Hunter Mill District on the Fairfax County School Board. “And that means pay increases for teachers.”

AFTER THE PARKLAND shooting last year, Republican leaders in the House created a select committee on school safety to come up with recommendations to increase school safety. The group did not consider any new firearm restrictions, choosing instead to look at hardening school facilities and creating a new tip line allowing students to alert authorities about potential problems. One of the key recommendations of the committee is reducing administrative duties of school counselors, freeing them up from duties like administering standardized tests. The committee did not recommend hiring any new school counselors though, even though Virginia falls far short of the recommended ratio of one counselor for every 250 students. That would cost about $86 million, and Northam has a three-year plan to start moving toward that goal by spending $36 million this year.

“Governor Northam recently said that our school counselors are the ears of the education system,” said Laura Jane Cohn, a candidate for the Springfield District of the Fairfax County School Board. “They are indeed the ears that hear about bullying and trouble at home.”

Specifics of one of the governor’s budget proposal that is troubling school officials here is to increase funding for a pool of money known as the “at-risk add-on,” a way to increase funding for school divisions with a high percentage of students who live in poverty. Although Fairfax County has 55,000 students who qualify for free or reduced price lunch, that’s only 29 percent of the student population — far below the statewide average of 41 percent. So the governor’s plan to add $35 million to the at-risk add-on would not benefit Fairfax County.

“Because the at-risk add-on is based on division-wide percentages of poverty rather than our actual numbers of eligible students, Fairfax is disadvantaged by its overall size,” said School Board Chairwoman Karen Corbett Sanders.

HELPING LOW-WAGE workers was another theme to emerge from the five-hour hearing. Several speakers from the Service Employees International Union 512 spoke about raising the minimum wage to $15 an hour, ensuring workers have access to paid family leave and removing what they see as unnecessary restrictions on workers who want to unionize. They also spoke in favor of making the Earned Income Tax fully refundable. Virginia is one of the few states that does not make its earned income tax credit refundable, which harms families earning less than $50,000 a year.

“The truth is that many working people across our community are struggling,” said David Broder, president of SEIU512. “The fastest growing jobs are often low-wage and lack basic benefits such as health care, paid leave and retirement plans.”

Carpenter Jose Frias appeared before lawmakers to urge them to take action against wage theft. Virginia is one of the few states that does not allow workers who are victims of wage theft to receive lawyers fees, which harms low-wage workers who would otherwise have no way to pay for a lawyer. Maryland allows for triple damages, and D.C. allows quadruple damages plus legal fees. But in Virginia, people who have not received all the money coming to them have a hard time finding a lawyer willing to work for free.

“Pass laws that give us the right to private cause of action,” said Frias. “We need these tools to defend our jobs and provide for our families.”

SEVERAL SPEAKERS urged lawmakers to scale back recently passed restrictions on homeowners who rent out their houses short term through services like Airbnb.

Other speakers called for instituting universal background checks for people who purchase weapons at gun shows.

A handful of people arrived at the government center to ask lawmakers to “close the puppy mill loophole,” a legislative effort to create new restrictions on businesses that sell animals.

One speaker urged lawmakers to reject efforts to fork over up to $1.1 billion worth of incentives to Amazon.

“This deal was conducted without any public input, and so this deal has no mandate,” said Helen Li, a Fairfax County resident who is part of a group known as For Us Not Amazon. “Please fight for a fair process instead of rubber-stamping a secret business deal that was made without Virginia residents in mind.”

Lawmakers also heard from several speakers on both sides of the Equal Rights Amendment. After Illinois became the 37th state to pass the ERA last year, advocates for and against started targeting Virginia as the potential 38th state — the magic number needed to put the ERA over the top and add it to the Constitution.

Arthur Purves of the Fairfax County Taxpayers Alliance raised concerns that the ERA might “make men’s and women’s bathrooms unconstitutional.” Many more speakers, though, said it was long past time for Virginia to join the other states that have approved the amendment.

“We have a historic opportunity this year to ratify the ERA and get it passed and include women in the Constitution of the United States as equal,” said Shyamali Hauth, a veteran who is active in Democratic politics. “I ask you to do the right thing and ensure equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex — those are the exact words of the Equal Rights Amendment.”

Wish List

Things this session of the General Assembly, beginning Jan. 9., could/should accomplish.

Before this session, every year for the better part of a decade, the most profound wish for the Virginia General Assembly session was the expansion of Medicaid under the Affordable Care Act, which could provide healthcare to as many as 400,000 poor Virginians who otherwise were living without coverage. Partisan obstruction prevented those people from gaining coverage for many years.

But coverage began this month for 200,000 new enrollees after Medicaid expansion came to Virginia in the last session. It arrived with the November 2017 election and Democrats taking 15 additional seats in Virginia's House of Delegates. The prospect for more awaits in this November's election with all seats in the General Assembly, both the House of Delegates and the Senate, on the ballot.

So we'll begin this year's wish list with gratitude that the entire Commonwealth, including the economy, will be healthier for providing healthcare to the previously uninsured. And a wish that we not complicate the coverage with work reporting requirements. Please.

So in the new era of new hope for action in the General Assembly, here are some (not so modest) wishes for this session, acknowledging that some may wait another year for serious consideration.

- ❖ Establish a nonpartisan redistricting commission. This is urgent, as the General Assembly would have to act in this session to get a constitutional amendment on the ballot in time for a commission to be ready for redistricting after the 2020 census.

- ❖ Greater transparency everywhere. Move to allow fewer, not more, FOIA exemptions. Require that a reason be given for any FOIA denial.

- ❖ End suspension of driver's licenses for non-payment of court costs and fines.

- ❖ Pass the Equal Rights Amendment.

- ❖ Equal rights for LGBT Virginians.

- ❖ Fund Community Services Board budgets. Expand Medicaid waivers; clear the waiting list.

- ❖ Fund education fairly, Northern Virginia needs more help.

- ❖ Restrict predatory lending.

- ❖ Think about reform and civil rights when considering votes on law enforcement.

- ❖ Involve local officials in fixing proffer regulation.

- ❖ Implement no-excuse absentee voting.

- ❖ Limit large campaign contributions.

- ❖ Prohibit personal use of campaign funds.

- ❖ Require reporting on solitary confinement.

- ❖ Push jails and prisons to adopt best practices for prisoners with mental health issues.

- ❖ Provide a tax credit for family caregivers, with income limits if needed.

It's Time for Virginia to Ratify ERA

By JOHN C. COOK
SUPERVISOR, BRADDOCK DISTRICT

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State on account of sex." Those few and powerful words are from the Equal Rights Amendment, proposed by Congress in 1972, which seeks to make all people, regardless of gender, equal under the law.

Thirty-seven states have ratified the Equal Rights Amendment. Many hope Virginia will be the 38th to join the movement, which could officially ratify the amendment and meet the two-thirds threshold outlined in the Constitution. (Yes, there are issues as to whether ratification now is too late, but that is a legal issue beyond this article.) I urge you to join many community leaders in this bipartisan effort to have Virginia ratify the ERA in 2019.

The road to gender equality in America has been a long and winding route. Women were not even allowed to cast a ballot until 1923, when the 19th Amendment was ratified. Bright, capable women were turned away from fields of study and careers that were deemed masculine by our society. If a woman wanted to be anything other than a nurse or teacher, she often had to have connections, money, and a lot of luck. The Constitution already protects people in the United States from being discriminated against by the government based on their race, religion, and national origin through the 14th Amendment. The ERA would add gender to those protected categories.

Some opposed to the ERA have raised a parade of horrors, asserting that passage would mean the end of unisex bathrooms, expanding the draft to women, and other things. I see no reason to assume the ratification of ERA would result in such outcomes. Nor would it affect private employment or interactions, as Constitutional rights only restrict the government, not private citizens. I also do not believe the ERA will, by itself, revolutionize the role of women in society. That is a more complex process that has been ongoing for some time, and will certainly continue. But what the ERA would do is add to our great Constitution a clear, simple, unambiguous statement that men and women are equal under the law. It is that simple, yet that fundamental.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors has unanimously endorsed a resolution calling on the General Assembly to ratify the ERA in 2019. Many other jurisdictions have done the same. A bipartisan team of legislators in Richmond has promised to file such a resolution.

Please join me in encouraging the entire General Assembly to ratify the ERA and bring full equality for women into our federal Constitution.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Appalled by the Road Disrepair

To the Editor:

After reading Andrea Worker's article on Richmond Priorities, I wanted to express my frustration of watching our roads decline in spite of being one of the wealthiest counties in Virginia pouring tax dollars into State coffers. Again and again, Worker noted that NoVA is not receiving its rightful share of state funds for transportation and education.

I've lived in Burke for 38 years and I can't remember a time when the roads were worse. When I turn on Burke Centre Parkway (west of Roberts Road), Prosperity Road, and Braddock (east of Burke Lake Road), I am appalled at the disrepair. Those three heavily trafficked roads are just a few examples of the state of our asphalt-crumbling road system. I don't care where you live in the Commonwealth, the roads with the most cars/trucks should be given the most state dollars. How hard is that to figure out? Traffic counter boxes abound!

Time to End Gerrymandering

To the Editor:

2019 is a critical year for Virginia. The actions — or inactions — of our legislators during the next few months will likely determine how our voting district lines are updated in 2021 in response to 2020 census data. Unless Virginians demand a better process for updating voting districts, we'll probably be stuck with even more partisan and racial gerrymandering than we've got now. Virginia's constitution allows legislators to draw their own voting districts. But today's politicians use big data and mapping software to capture just the voters they want in their districts and gerrymander around those they don't want. It's not hard to get re-elected when you've rigged the voting districts this way, so politicians have less reason to represent us or do effective constituency work (Akey et al., 2018).

To improve this bleak situation, the organization OneVirginia2021 has formed a bipartisan committee of distinguished constitutional experts.

Hundreds Attend Meeting on Widening Fairfax Parkway

Cut-through traffic becomes the issue for the Burke Centre attendees.

BY MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

As the Virginia Department of Transportation discussed the plan for widening a five-mile section of the Fairfax County Parkway, a majority of the meeting attendees were concerned about the potential cut-through traffic, specifically on Roberts Road. When they alter the configuration at the Burke Centre Parkway intersection, drivers could adjust their route to Roberts Road, which would lead to congestion on the side streets and neighborhood roads, they said.

The Burke Centre intersection plan will cause “a horrible ripple effect,” said Nancy Morrison, a Burke Centre resident that attended an earlier community meeting at Burke Centre where this was discussed.

Jay Johnson and Renee Mumford were also at the Burke Centre meeting, which was held before Christmas. “There was such an outrage at that proposal to do away with that light,” Johnson said.

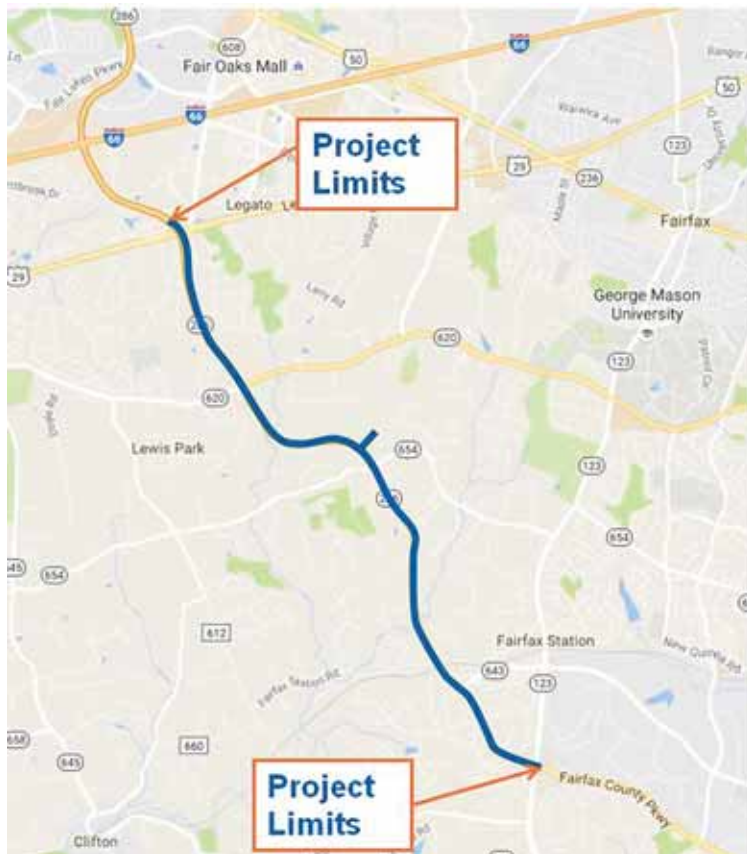

Johnson, Mumford and Morrison were among the packed house Jan. 7 at Robinson Secondary School as officials honed the plan, listening to suggestions and laying out data supporting their design. According to VDOT, the $195 million project with interchanges at the Popes Head Road intersection, the future Shirley Gate Road Extension, and other intersections along the route “aims to relieve congestion and improve safety.”

Nick Roper, VDOT’s assistant district administrator for project development, led the discussion with a slide show that showed the changes VDOT made since the last meeting on this project in October 2018, and some new data concerning noise, shared use paths, the overall footprint of the project, and interchanges at Shirley Gate Road, Popes Head Road and Burke Centre.

THE CROWD AT ROBINSON was larger than expected, and when they set out 220 seats, more were added as people filed in the doors.

At one point, John Maddox, a VDOT consultant, took over on the slides, starting out with the $47 million that the Popes Head Road interchange plan would entail. That number could come down depending on the ramps that would or would not be included, and there is space on the comment sheets for the attendees to add their preference. There were comments that the complicated crash data and another called it a “shell game,” as Maddox continued.

Then when he got to the Burke Centre Parkway interchange, he acknowledged the input they’ve gotten. “After the last meeting, we did hear from the Burke Centre Conservancy,” he said. A flyover would be one solution, but the cost would be $20-30 million, and “we don’t feel we could do this under the conditions we have now,” he said. He did acknowledge spot improvements along Roberts Parkway could be made with the project to handle the additional traffic, but nothing is on paper yet.

When it came time for questions, there were comments about the current state of the roads and pot-holes, timing the traffic signals, the merchants on Burke Centre Parkway, and one about the flyover and

Beyond The Resolution

Keeping a home
in order all year long.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

For those who resolved to keep a neater, cleaner home in the new year, the issue of how to keep it that way through December can be challenging. After the excitement of the fresh start that January offers, the reality of one's day-to-day life emerges. How to keep that newly purged closet neat when rushing to get to a meeting on time? By February, that cleaned-out sports bin might look a bomb went off at Modell's. From shredding or recycling unwanted mail each day to loading the dishwasher after each meal, adopting a few daily cleaning tips can help maintain that tidy home all year long.

"In general, I recommend keeping up with household duties on a daily basis so none of them become a bigger project," said professional organizer Susan Unger of Clutter SOS.

One of the most basic tasks is making one's bed first thing in the morning. "I think that kick starts you into cleaning and organizing mode and sets the tone for the day," said Preston Taylor of From Chaos to Order. "I also recommend keeping a dust cloth nearby so that you can give your dresser and nightstand a quick dust off so dust accumulation would be one less thing you have to worry about."

Piles of clothing, whether clean or dirty can accumulate quickly and send a home in into disarray. Dedicating five to 10 minutes every evening to rehang clothes and separating items that need to be dry cleaned can help prevent a backlog. "Be sure to put all clothes away on a daily basis rather than leaving in a chair or floor," said Unger. "Clean clothes should be hung up or put in drawers and dirty clothes in the laundry basket."

"If you start a load when you first arrive home from work, you will have time to dry and even fold it before you go to bed, so you're not faced with a mountain of dirty clothes at the end of week."

Taylor recommends tackling laundry every evening if necessary. "If you start a load when you first arrive home from work, you will have time to dry and even fold it before you go to bed, so you're not faced with a mountain of dirty clothes at the end of week," said Taylor.

When it comes to the bathroom, brief, daily attention to detail can keep dirt from spiraling out of control. Rehang towels, and then wiping it down one's shower each time you take a shower are suggestions from Carmen Garcia of CG Green Clean. "Keep a container of disinfecting wipes in your bathroom and wipe down your counters and sink before going to bed each evening," she said. "Also each night, add a squirt of toilet cleaner to your toilet bowl, wipe down the seat and then flush the toilet. It takes less than five minutes to do all of this but you'd be amazed at the difference it makes at the end of the week, especially in children's bathrooms."

After Holiday Visits, Some Questions

Recognizing signs, early detection empowers families to plan for the future.

Holiday visits with family members or friends not seen as frequently during the year may raise questions about their cognitive health. Although some change in cognitive ability can occur with age, serious memory problems are not a part of normal aging. The Alzheimer's Association encourages anyone who has a question or concern about the state of an aging family member or friend to call its free 24-hour Helpline, 800-272-3900. Recognizing the difference can help identify when it may be time for a loved one to see a doctor. The Alzheimer's Association has a check list of warning signs, along with examples of normal aging. Every individual may experience one or more of the warning signs in different degrees.

- ❖ Memory loss that disrupts daily life.
- ❖ Challenges in planning or solving problems. \

❖ Difficulty completing familiar tasks at home, at work or at leisure.

❖ Confusion with time or place.

❖ Trouble understanding visual images and spatial relationships.

❖ New problems with words in speaking or writing.

❖ Misplacing things and losing the ability to retrace steps.

❖ Decreased or poor judgment.

❖ Withdrawal from work or social activities.

❖ Changes in mood and personality.

Although the onset of Alzheimer's disease cannot yet be stopped or reversed, an early diagnosis is an important step in getting appropriate treatment, care and support services allows people with dementia and their families. For more information, visit the Alzheimer's Association web site at alz.org or call their toll-free 24/7 Helpline at 800-272-3900.

the crash data.

"The flyover is going to cost too much money how much is a life worth?"

One woman complained about pulling out on Route 123 now, and thought it would be worse when the parkway gets widened. "I expect to have a heart attack one day trying to get out," she said.

Others were concerned about rumors that there will be toll lanes on the parkway. "There's no plans on this project at this time," said Roper.

Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) spoke up from the audience against the idea of toll lanes.

Not all were unhappy about the plans. Eric Frady and Ryan Conner live in Colchester Meadows, close to the Popes Head Road interchange.

"They're giving us our own service road," said Frady.

"I think they've done a pretty good job with the circumstances," added Connor.

Burke Gems & Beads in a Business of Beauty

After seven years, local bead artists have found a niche.

BY MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

Years ago, Olya Yampolsky's pearl necklace broke, so the accountant from the former Soviet Union researched and fixed it herself. She found she had the knack for that kind of work, and opened Burke Gems & Beads, which just celebrated their seventh year in business.

"My pearl necklace broke and I decided to learn how to fix them," she said. After that, word got out around her workplace. "I'm fixing for everybody in my office," she said.

Now she has one of the few bead shops in the area, and it's the place to go for jewelry of that type where beads and trinkets are needed. Springfield resident Jen Lu found herself in the shop when she was making a "mala," for meditating. The mala is a tool to help count mantras, and acts as a tactile guide as the meditator sits in silence, according to the Mala Collective.

"It helps you stay grounded," said Lu, who started with yoga that evolved into her meditation practice. The mala beads needed a tassel and charms, all of which Yampolsky helped her find on their shelves.

The small shop is in Old Town Burke near the intersection of Burke Road and Old Burke Lake Road, across from the fire station. Inside, there are strings of all sorts of beads hanging on the wall, cups of beads in several racks, tools for making necklaces and a work table in the middle of the room. Up on the wall is a U.S. Army Airborne clock, which isn't exactly in tune with the bead theme, but Yampolsky's son was Airborne, fighting in Afghanistan and Iraq in the past. He was a West Point graduate. "Best of the best," said Yampolsky. She has a daughter also.

Tysons resident Doris Chin was at the shop to connect with her bead family who helped her through a recent surgery. "The bead family is my family," she said. Chin comes in for classes frequently and the Sunday pot luck supper. She brought her wire wrap to finish. "She's super talented," Chin said of Yampolsky.

The wire wrap was a specialty of Alecia Cardell, another customer that also teaches classes. She has an upcoming class in late March that deals with wire wraps. Cardell comes in from her home in Manassas because "there aren't many bead stores left," she said. Cardell was working on a "kumihimo," which is a Japanese bead string used on Samurai sashes.

Yampolsky started as a civil engineer in the Soviet Union before it split up, and then went into accounting before taking on the bead shop. She bought the space from a consignment shop owner that was there 17 years, so Yampolsky thought this was a good sign. "Little did I know I'd be working 24/7," she said.

Selling beads at the shop is accented by the international teachers she brings in to share their expertise. "In April I have a woman coming from England," she said. Yampolsky meets many of these bead experts at the annual bead convention in Milwaukee, which she's been to five times over the years. "I go to meet people, see if they want to come teach," she said.

Three Decades of Strengthening US, Pakistan Business Relations

At the recent Pakistan American Business Association (www.pabausa.org) meeting, many Virginia dignitaries, including former and current government leaders, met at the Sapphire Restaurant in Tysons Corner to celebrate awards for those who have contributed to goodwill and business development between Pakistan and the United States. PABA is more than 30 years old and its founder and chair, M. Siddique Sheikh, a former member of the Rotary Club of Springfield, and well-known Northern Virginia businessman, led the evening's event.

Virginia State Senators Dave Marsden, Richard Black, and George Barker, and several Virginia Assembly members were joined by local government supervisors from Prince William and Fairfax Counties. Chef of Police Ed Rossner was also in attendance, as were former Virginia Governor and US Senator George Allen and his daughter Brooke. Former US House of Representative member Tom Davis was there. Debbie Jones, President of the Prince William County Chamber of Commerce joined the function, too. Gary and Ann Baise, a famous American business couple now living in West Virginia came to the event.

Many well-known Pakistan-American Businessmen were in attendance, as well.

Public Safety Drones? Public Input Wanted

The Fairfax County Unmanned Aircraft Systems program will provide an enhanced level of operational capability, safety and situational awareness for first responders, other approved participating agencies, and decision-makers with high quality imagery, data, and customized geospatial solutions using unmanned aircraft while continuing to maintain the public trust.

Fairfax County is developing a comprehensive Public Safety Unmanned Aircraft Systems (UAS) program and would like to hear from residents on what they think. We are hosting six public information meetings located throughout Fairfax County.

The draft program is designed to support a variety of government mission types including:

- ❖ Search and rescue
- ❖ Flooding assessments
- ❖ Pre- and post-disaster damage assessments
- ❖ Crash reconstruction
- ❖ Fire incident/scene management and investigations
- ❖ Hazardous materials responses
- ❖ Wildlife estimation

The draft UAS program would not be used:

- ❖ To conduct random surveillance activities
- ❖ To target a person based solely on individual characteristics, such as, but not limited to race, ethnicity, gender, national origin, religion or disability
- ❖ To harass, intimidate or discriminate against any individual or group
- ❖ To conduct personal business or any other unauthorized use

Each public information meeting will include a static display of unmanned aircraft followed by a presentation outlining the program. After the presentation, there will be an opportunity to ask questions from representatives of the Office of Emergency Management, County Attorney's Office, Police and Fire and Rescue Department. The formal presentation will begin at 7 p.m.

To find out more about the UAS program go to www.fairfaxcounty.gov/uas. The draft public safety UAS program manual is located there along with a link to the email account.

Please send your feedback or questions to uas@fairfaxcounty.gov or through the link located on the UAS webpage. Written comments on the draft program must be received by the close of business Feb. 8, 2019 to be included in the official public record.

The committee members have proposed a Virginia constitutional amendment built on the experience of other states where redistricting commissions update voting districts more fairly. The amendment proposed for Virginia would create a bipartisan commission that would be required to work transparently and to prioritize community boundaries.

This is the critical part: the proposed amendment must be passed by the Virginia legislature in 2019 to be in place before the 2021 redistricting process. There are other steps to activating the amendment, but we must start now to clean up our gerrymandering.

Now Virginians need to contact their state representatives and demand a transparent, bipartisan redistricting commission that allows citizens to vote together as communities. Otherwise, Virginians could be in for more big data and less democracy running our state until 2031.

The Road Very Much Traveled

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Not that I haven't been down this road before, random though its occurrence may have been, but when schedules collide: 24-hour urine collection, pre-chemotherapy lab work, every-three-week infusion, quarterly CT scan and semi annual brain MRI; and of course the follow-up appointment with my oncologist a week or so later to finish the fortnight-long festivities.

The daze leading up to that final Friday are hardly the stuff with which dreams are made. More like nightmares, actually; certainly sleepless nights.

But as you regular readers know from previous columns, there's no real point fretting about it. I mean, what's done is done (what's scanned is scanned) and though I may not want the chips to fall, for the moment, they've already fallen.

Not to be fatalistic, but sometimes, as a cancer patient, ceding control to the realities (you'll note I didn't say "inevitable realities") is part of the process; "going with the flow," as my wife, Dina would say.

At this point, all I can do is wait and hope. I can't do one thing about any of it. I'll know soon enough and if the news is discouraging, I'll deal with it then. I see no advantage in being miserable a week earlier than necessary.

Still, all of these diagnostic demands occurring simultaneously is a bit much. Unfortunately, there's nothing to be done other than to grin (a wry smile, really) and bear it. The calendar/schedule with which my life has become all too familiar (I'm also not saying "consumed"), can hardly be adjusted simply because I don't feel like it.

My life is at stake here. I can't treat it like a household chore. It needs to be adhered to. Wanting circumstances to be different serves no purpose. Accepting reality and integrating the cancer-patient responsibilities into your routine seems a more reasonable course of action.

A few years into my cancer treatment, I remember meeting some of the staff at an off-site cancer-centric function. After exchanging pleasantries, one staff member commended me as being a "very compliant patient."

Not being completely sure what she meant, I asked her to clarify. She said I made all my appointments inferring that some cancer patients don't. Incredulous, I asked further. She sort of half-smickered and said I'd be surprised, which of course I was.

She offered no statistics or anything empirical, but from her reaction, it was not an unusual occurrence. I remember thinking, how do you not be compliant when doctors are working to save your life? Seemed counter intuitive, almost.

So yes, I've been compliant. Extremely so, I'm proud to say.

After my initial diagnosis, I felt I had been given an assignment, so to speak; to save (at least extend) my own life, and I was going to follow doctor's orders accordingly. And even though over the years, I've integrated many non-Western alternatives into my routine, so far as my primary care team (internal medicine doctor and oncologist) was concerned, I've supplemented rather than replaced.

All of which leads me to where I am today: waiting to hear from my oncologist about last week's scans, while swallowing 60-odd pills a day, drinking alkaline water, standing in front of an infrared bulb, and trying to detoxify whenever possible in the hope that together, conventional and non-conventional pursuits will make my immune system stronger and create an environment less hospitable to the growth and movement of the cancer cells that have already been triggered somehow.

The only persistent problem I have is compartmentalizing the presumptive fact that since I was given a "terminal" diagnosis in late February 2009, how is it that I just keep on keepin' on?

Life goes on, generally, I realize, but that's not what I was told would happen. After nearly 10 years, I suppose I'm just a little road weary.
