Children reel in the trout at Snakeden Stream.

Reston Association hosted its annual Kids' Trout Fishing Day at Snakeden Stream off Soapstone Drive on Saturday morning March 23. Earlier in the week, Trout Unlimited stocked the cold-water stream with large adult rainbow trout, some measuring upwards of 17 inches to ensure favorable fishing for first-time anglers.

Bradley Wang, 6, of Reston arrived with brother Dan, 4, and his parents. Both boys were game for the adventure and willingly took the free rods out for a spin. Neither boy had ever fished before. "This is a free event, and the goal is to get children out in nature. Because of the high volunteer effort here, inexperienced anglers can learn how to fish. For many of the children, this is a first time experience to fishing," said William Peterson, Reston Association Watershed Management.

John Odenkirk of the Department of Game and Inland Fisheries, a partner group with Reston Association, agreed. "Our goal is to bring recreational fishing to the children in Reston. It's amazing the number of children that have shown up despite the weather," said Odenkirk.

Dylan Leygraaf, Regulatory Specialist at Wetland Studies and Solutions, Inc., waited near the stream. He explained how the recent stream restoration for Snakeden Branch reduced bank erosion, minimizing the down cutting of the streambed. "We built the stream bed back up to control the flow using boulders and soil mixes to reduce erosion and connect the stream to its flood plain," said Leygraaf.

Trout Unlimited members helped measure and clean the day's catch. Nico Ladenburg, 13, of Reston brought one of the most significant catches of the day up to the cleaning table. The trout measured 17 inches. Asked how he caught such a large fish, Ladenburg said, "I've been fishing since I was four. I cast the bait about four feet upstream, and then slowly retrieve. My favorite bait is a trout magnet. I plan on cooking my trout with butter and a wedge of lemon all wrapped in aluminum foil."

A few moments later angler Julia Cartwright, 15, of Reston showed off her hefty catch of three trout. "I used a spinner with gold bait. It's a yellow pasty mass you roll up, and it has sparkles in it," she said. "The real secret is to get here early because as more people come, the fish get scared."

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

South Lakes High School (SLHS) students swept the Fairfax County Art Region's 2019 Regional Scholastic Art Awards securing 24 honors. Twenty students earned a total of twenty-four awards, eight Gold Key, ten Silver Key and six Honorable Mentions.

According to Fairfax County, middle school and high school students by the thousands submitted their drawings, paintings, prints, photographs, ceramics, sculptures, digital art, architecture, jewelry, fashion, film and animation, mixed media artworks, and portfolios to the Regional Scholastic Art Awards program sponsored by the Alliance for Young Artists and Writers. The website for the Scholastic Awards states the young artists were free to explore any topic. No work would be disqualified because of content. As for judging criteria, three areas dominated: originality, technical skill and the emergence of a personal voice or vision.

Out of the thousands of regional submissions, Gold Key, Silver Key and Honorable Mention awards were bestowed for outstanding works. SLHS student artists James Bailey, 18, and Laela Huddleston, 17, both of Reston earned Gold Keys at the Regional level.

"I'm very thankful to have received this award," said

Bailey who submitted a photograph titled, "Shrub."

Huddleston who submitted a photograph titled, "Cold Hell" said, "Being in the art program at South Lakes High School has pushed me as a photographer to view things differently and capture what may not come easily to the eye."

Katia Pavlova, 16, was the only regional SLHS winner in the sculpture category who earned a Silver Key. She created "Becoming."

"I love art because I have the freedom to express my feelings and emotions without any judgment," Pavlova said.

Selina Boybeyi, 18, also earned a Silver Key for her work, "Gold and Garbage" at the regional level. Boybeyi expressed her joy at being part of something special. "I feel content that my work was able to live in the moment, alongside masterpieces and shining lights." All regional Gold Key award-winning entries, such as "Self-Portrait" by SLHS artist Gabriella Baughman were submitted to the National Scholastic Art Awards competition. Baughman earned a coveted Silver National Award for her painting. She could not be reached for comment.

"We appreciate all the support of our amazing art teachers... We are incredibly proud of our Seahawk artists and all their amazing work," said Kimberly Retzer, Principal, South Lakes High School.

OPINION

Every Year Is Election Year; in 2019 Twice

Primary Election Day, June 11, will determine the outcome of many races in Fairfax County.

First, go to vote.elections.virginia.gov/VoterInformation and check that you are registered at your current address. Deadline to register to vote, or update an existing registration, is Monday, May 20, 2019.

On Tuesday, June 11, 2019, Primary Election Day for party candidates in Virginia, there will be an astonishing array of candidates on the ballot in Fairfax County. One reason is that many incumbents in local offices are retiring, and that causes a domino effect because incumbents in other offices will step down to run for something different. Change is coming. Voters must pay attention in the primary, so much will be determined.

EDITORIAL

On the ballot: Chairman of the Board of Supervisors; Sharon Bulova is retiring and there are four candidates in the Democratic primary. (We will miss Bulova, but that is a discussion for another day.)

All nine members of the Board of Supervisors are on the ballot, and in addition to Bulova, Cathy Hudgins, John Cook and Linda Smyth will be stepping down, and Jeff McKay will give up his seat as he is running for chairman. That is guaranteed change for five of nine seats, and more is possible.

All 12 members of Fairfax County School Board are on the ballot, three at-large and nine District members. Several school board members will give up their seats to run for other offices. (4-year term)

All 40 seats in the Virginia Senate (4-year term) are on the ballot, nine in Fairfax County.

All 100 seats in the Virginia House of Delegates (2-year term) are on the ballot, 17 seats in Fairfax County.

There is a rare challenge to the Fairfax County Commonwealth's Attorney on the primary ballot. (4-year term)

Fairfax County Sheriff is also on the ballot. (4-year term)

Parties control information on primary candidates. See Fairfax County Republican Committee at <https://fairfaxgop.org/voter-toolkit/>; Fairfax County Democratic Committee at <https://fairfaxdemocrats.org/2019/01/14/candidates-running-for-office-in-2019/>.

Budget Equity

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

Increases in budget revenues as a result of federal tax changes and the ability to tax sales on goods purchased on the internet put Virginia in an unusual position to increase its budgeted funds mid-year of a biennial budget while at the same time providing many taxpayers with refunds.

As the fall elections approach the actions on the state budget will receive many different "spins." Certainly taxpayers like getting money refunded. At the same time they recognize when programs to meet needs are underfunded, they may over a period of time become even more underfunded. It is more than mathematics and accounting to approve a budget when revenues have increased—it is also very much an expression of values on the part of decision makers.

An example of values affecting budgetary decisions came during the Great Recession of 2008. State revenues dipped at the greatest rate in modern times just as many businesses faltered and failed. A great bail-out went to businesses from the federal government as did

Only now has the Virginia economy recovered such that the funding of education today is exceeding that of pre-2008 levels.

major funding to state government. The feds did not match the private losses, but they did provide relief for some greater cuts for programs like education. Only now has the Virginia economy recovered such that the funding of education today is exceeding that of pre-2008 levels.

Beyond simply funding programs and services with more money next year than last year are the equity issues involved in distributing money across programs. My trip to Prince Edward County as I described in my column last week reminded me just how inequitable funding can be. There was no pretense of equity among black and white schools. The whites went to a brick school that was modern for its time; the black children went to school in a tar-paper shanty. With many federal court decisions we have gotten beyond the inequities of segregated services and programs, but inequities still exist.

The budget presented to the General Assembly by Governor Ralph Northam represented the greatest attempt at resolving equity issues that I have seen. Funding for schools was increased but with those who had the greatest needs receiving the most money. Programs for students with special needs were enhanced as was funding for historically black institutions of higher education. The Governor found himself with a major problem pushing his agenda as he got himself in political hot water for his behavior many years ago. Whatever way that situation is resolved, it need not take attention from the basic problem of increasing equity among school divisions, mental health programs and criminal justice programs.

There is ample evidence gleaned from numerous studies that document inequities that exist in the state's budget. These facts will be manipulated among candidates this election season to gain advantage, but candidates need to acknowledge that inequities exist and must be dealt with fairly. I understand that most regions feel that they do not get a fair shake. There are metrics that can be used to find the inequities; once resolved the state will be stronger because of it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Our Founders' Wisdom

To the Editor:

Our Democracy is being tested. Will we be strong enough to stand up to protect it? Our Founders advised us:

At the close of the Constitutional Convention of 1787 a lady asked Benjamin Franklin, "Well, Doctor, what have we got—a Republic or a Monarchy?" Franklin responded, "A Republic, if you can keep it."

George Washington, in his 1796

farewell address, warned us about the dangers of animosity between political parties, despotism and foreign influence. He said: "The alternate domination of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge, natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism. But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism. The disorders and miseries which result gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and sooner or later the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortunate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purposes of his own elevation, on the ruins of public liberty." It serves always to distract the public councils and enfeeble the public administration.

It agitates the community with ill-founded jealousies and false alarms, kindles the animosity of one part against another, [and] foment occasionally riot and insurrection. It opens the door to foreign influence and corruption, which finds a facilitated access to the government itself through the channels of party passions."

In 1838 Abraham Lincoln counseled us that America will never be destroyed from the outside but if we lose our freedoms it will be because we destroyed ourselves. He said, "If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of free-men, we must live through all time or die by suicide."

If the Portfolio by Wells Fargo relationship is terminated, the bonus interest rate on all eligible savings accounts, and discounts or fee waivers on other products and services, will discontinue and revert to the Bank's then-current applicable rate or fee. Aldrin Elementary Robotics Team Second in State Competition

Students from Reston's Aldrin Elementary School's robotics team competed March 1 in the 2019 Virginia State VEX robotics championship in Doswell, Va. The action-packed day engaged 18 teams of elementary students from schools across Virginia in the 2018-2019 VEX IQ Next Level Challenge. Aldrin's BuzzBots had three of their four robotics teams qualify to compete on several levels including individual and teamwork driving skills, robot design, and all-around excellence. All three teams qualified for the finals matches and one team was awarded the second place Teamwork Challenge award.

In VEX robotics, students design, build, and program their own customized robots to score as many points as possible. This season, teams score points by making their robot collect and stack hubs in building zones, remove bonus hubs that are elevated on a structure more than 15 inches high, and park or hang on an elevated horizontal bar. Robotics teaches the children skills such as critical thinking, problem solving, teamwork, and communication.

Aldrin's Buzzbots has four teams, with students from third to sixth grade. The Buzzbots are: Anthony Starkov, Liam Hull, Alexander Abboud, Drew Hull, Youssef Bousaidi, Matthew Mudry, Daniel Murphy, Laurel Allison, and Alex Raye.

Weight For It ... Wait ...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I don't like interacting with artificial intelligence. Nor do I like interacting with artificially-intelligent emailers.

And I especially don't like when there's an attempt by these "a.i.s" to modify my behavior by suggesting a pre-programmed, presumptive course of action – or inaction on my part, based on some survey I may have completed or some list that I've recently been added to – without my consent, or most likely due to a purchase or service I likewise recently paid for.

To that end, which does not justify their means, today I received an email that goes above and beyond the "a.i.'s" purview. And how this particular email came my way is "curious," as Spock from the original "Star Trek" might say.

On March 1, moments before my last infusion, I stepped on a scale which registered my "overweight," which along with taking my blood pressure, pulse and oxygen levels are part of the usual and customary vitals I provide each and every time I go for treatment. Other than my "overweight," my vitals are completely normal.

Treatment start-date to date, 10-plus years now, my "overweight" has never been a problem (truth be told, I'm hardly obese, just pleasingly plump), just a factor in determining how much medicine is dripped by my IV.

The oncologist and medical staff has seemed more concerned with a patient losing weight – which I rarely have. Although during the early days of six-plus hours of heavy-duty chemotherapy, I did lose weight and it was a concern and can portend a serious complication.

Fortunately for me, whatever weight I did lose did not portend anything other than I wasn't eating. Eventually, that lost weight – and more – was definitely found.

A few days later, I received an email from my health care provider; not my doctor, not a nurse and not personalized by any medical professional, but rather sent from some artificially-intelligent thing offering me information on varying diets and their respective benefits. At first I laughed at its location – in my inbox, and then I began to question its legitimacy and then I got mad at its presumptive intent.

Was this a coincidence? Was this merely a continuing outreach to the HMO's patients like its colon-rectal screening program, sent to patients of a certain age, seems to be? Or was it something more insidious like "Hal" nearly became in the movie "2001: A Space Odyssey"?

The nerve. The bypassing of protocols. The attempt to circumvent the human element. Is this what medicine has become?

Not calls or personalized messages from your doctor/medical staff but instead an electronic missive emailed with the cold, insensitive precision of Pentium chips?

Putting aside the obvious fact that I do need to lose weight, even though as my brother Richard says so often when he sees me: "The weight looks good on you," I am not doing so because a computer told me to.

In fact, I may not do so at all just to spite that computer, and by association, the system that exists/was put in place (presumably by some human) that believes that communicating with its members electronically is the wave of the future rather than the bane of my present. I cannot, I will not be a pawn in this game of clones where the same messages get sent to millions of semi unsuspecting patients by uncensored non-professionals as a matter of some coarse level of routine.

If you want me to change my behavior, or at least consider changing my behavior, you have to try a little harder than by sending pre-programmed message to patients who meet/exceed a certain threshold.

And how did my personal information actually get known anyway? Is there a system in place that automatically reviews patient's private histories by cross-referencing who had appointments and what the new details were? Was the scale and blood pressure machine in on it? If so, is my medical care becoming more automated and less individualized?

I realize I'm just a number but I didn't think they'd take it literally.
