SERVING ALEXANDRIA FOR OVER 200 YEARS • A CONNECTION NEWSPAPER

APRIL 11, 2019

State Sen. Barbara Favola (D-31), Bill Euille, Senica Lee, Alexandria City Council member Amy Jackson, Arlington County Board member Libby Garvey, Alexandria Sheriff Dana Lawhorne, state Sen. Adam Ebbin (D-30) and OAR executive director Elizabeth Jones Valderrama gather for a photo at the OAR Second Chances breakfast April 9 at the Crystal Gateway Marriott.

Second Chances Event highlights OAR services.

Hundreds of attendees turned out as Offender Aid and Restoration of Arlington, Falls Church and Alexandria held its 11th annual Second Chance Fundraising Breakfast April 9 at the Crystal Gateway Marriott. The event featured the journeys of reentry into the community by several formerly incarcerated clients.

OAR assisted 2,014 participants in their program in 2018 including 635 men and women who received reentry assistance, both pre- and post-release and 1,432 men, women, boys and girls who were enrolled in the Community Service program, which is an alternative form of sentencing.

In addition, this was the third year of a new Intensive Reentry Program, which focuses on individuals still in incarceration to provide classes in essential life skills as well as case management and employment coaching. Individuals in this program have a recidivism rate of 14 percent compared to 54 percent for a comparable population nationally. See www.oaronline.org.

Tiana Woods tells her story of desperation facing eviction with a young child and a husband in prison: "I'd never experienced something like this." Now after assistance from OAR, her husband has been helped with getting a job after release from jail, her rent is caught up, and she is working as well. "Things have gotten better." She says OAR treated her with respect and helped "when we had no place else to turn."

School Board approves swing space plan over community objections.

BY DAN BRENDEN
GAZETTE PACKET

Over community pushback, the School Board approved a contentious plan to use the old Patrick Henry K-8 School building as interim "swing space."

The vote, held Thursday, April 4, was 8-1 with School Board member Heather Thornton dissenting.

The school system originally planned to raze the old Patrick Henry building shortly after the new one opened in January. But the administration then thought to repurpose the old building as an interim facility — "swing space" — to educate students from Douglas MacArthur Elementary while it undergoes reconstruction. The School Board had slated the Douglas MacArthur rebuild to finish in FY 2025, subsequent to constructing an entirely new school elsewhere. That new school would have served as swing space before converting to its permanent use, perhaps as a new middle school. By patching up the old Patrick Henry building instead, staff think

After long discussion about high school expansion strategy, the School Board will consider initial site options at its April 25 meeting.

The city government's FY 2020-2029 capital improvement budget, currently under consideration, would allocate $119 million for capacity expansions — the second single largest capital investment on Alexandria's horizon.

In response to ballooning enrollment, the School Board last year launched the "High School Project," an initiative to add capacity and modernize programming. The schools' options for more Regional representatives and employees of Beyer Subaru gather in the Alexandria dealership showroom April 3 to present a check for $24,874 to the nonprofit Together We Bake. Founded in 2012, the organization is a job training program for women transitioning back into society.

Teresa Ross, Lisbeth Delcid and Colida Johnson celebrate the donation of more than $24,000 to Together We Bake from Alexandria's Beyer Subaru. The trio are graduates of the nonprofit's job training program and are now employees of the organization.

Recipe for Success

Beyer Subaru raises $24k for Together We Bake.

BY JEANNE THEISMANN
GAZETTE PACKET

Regional representatives of Subaru of America joined with employees of Alexandria's Beyer Subaru April 3 to present a check for $24,874 to local nonprofit Together We Bake as part of the automotive company's annual Share the Love campaign. "This year's campaign was a huge success," said Beyer Subaru Vice President Stephane Beyer-Kirby. "It really speaks to our customers' values."

This year's Share the Love campaign ran Nov. 15, 2018, through Jan. 2, 2019. During that time, Subaru donated $250 to Share the Love organizations for each new car that was purchased or leased. Customers were able to designate if the donation went to one of four national organizations — the ASPCA, Make-A-Wish, Meals on Wheels or the National Park Foundation — or a hometown charity. Beyer Subaru selected Together We Bake as this year's local charity. "In the past we have raised between $7,000-8,000," Beyer-Kirby said. "But Together We Bake has had a tremendous impact on the local community and that resonated with our customers." Founded in 2012, Together We Bake is a job training and personal development program to help women transitioning back into society from the corrections system, facing long-term unemployment and/or experiencing homelessness. "Together We Bake gave me a solid foundation to start over," said Colida Johnson, a 2014 program graduate now working for the organization. "It gave me a place to feel safe — it felt like home." Together We Bake teaches four, 8-week sessions per year. The program is centered around a small baking business through which women learn and participate in food production, food safety education and business administration. "This program has been great," said 2018 graduate Teresa Ross, who now works as a Together We Bake kitchen helper. "It gave me a chance to feel more comfortable, to learn how to open up and to feel safe." The annual Together We Bake Empowerment Breakfast will be held June 5 and is open to the public. The Countdown Begins

Spring2ACTION sets $2 million goal for online giving.

BY JEANNE THEISMANN
GAZETTE PACKET

At the stroke of midnight April 10, Spring2ACTION formally kicked off as more than 150 local nonprofits began fundraising efforts in the city's annual 24-hour online giving campaign. Hosted by ACT for Alexandria, Spring2ACTION connects donors to grassroots charitable causes. The virtual fundraising effort offers local nonprofits the opportunity to raise thousands of dollars through direct donations as well as prizes and incentives for leaders in various categories throughout the day. Last year, 9,438 donors raised

$1,812,851 for 156 nonprofits serving Alexandria. ACT has set a goal of raising $2 million in this year's campaign. According to the Spring2ACTION website, its primary goals are to grow philanthropy, revenue and supporters and to educate the community on the impact of Alexandria's nonprofit organizations. New this year was a two-week period of early giving, which began March 27. Several organizations hosted events to encourage early donations with more than $500,000 being raised in the first few hours of the official kick off. Full results of the 2019 Spring2ACTION campaign were not available at press time but are available at www.Spring2ACTION.org.

Where I Connect with Life's Purpose'

BY SHIRLEY RUHE
GAZETTE PACKET

Randy Gore spent the morning reconciling invoices and receipts as part of his fiduciary obligation. But last weekend, "We had our annual spring production. This year it was 'Aladdin Junior,' and I was working backstage giving vocal lessons, helping kids learn their lines and directing the show." This afternoon he will be meeting on the Campagna Kids summer camp program to finalize the details of the field trips. "We have three field trips a week like Port Discovery in Baltimore, Imagination Stage in Bethesda, and Six Flags." As senior director of the Campagna Center's Out of School Time Programs, "I get to do a bit of it all."

"But the joy of my job is going out to the sites to see our children. They know me by name. I'm not just a voice in an ivory tower." Campagna Kids has sites for before and after school programs in 11 schools across Alexandria.

"Our program is one of Alexandria's jewels," he said. It provided before and after school programs to more than 900 children in the City of Alexandria this year. He says the enrichment programs range from musical theatre to sports like basketball and soccer, to sign language, 3-D printing, visual arts and chess. "Our chess team won eight consecutive titles in a national championship."

Randy Gore, senior director, Campagna Center's Out of School Time Programs

He said, "We get more detailed about their interests and kids this year are interested in technology so we're working to refine that. We design enrichment to get what they want."

For instance, he points out they have a robotic team which builds robots that compete to perform a mission within a specified time period.

Gore started at Campagna Center in 2006 as a part time job when he was in school. "I didn't think I would be here that long but I fell in love with the work. I came in as an entry-level assistant group leader. I still remember the first kindergarten class at Douglas MacArthur, how excited they were to be there."

Gore says he was a latch key kid and "I went home and waited for my parents." He wishes he could have had a program like this when he was growing up.

Gore advanced to assistant site director, site director, director of operations and now senior director of Out of School Time Programs where he has been for two years. He said, "I have a passion for the arts and was a vocal major. I found I could use my skill set and bring it to the job here."

The Campagna Kids program "is not school, not home. It's unique. We don't have children in front of a video game." Gore says adults used to come up with everything but now they have very detailed programs geared to the interests of the children.

"I like to call myself a program designer. I drive a lot of what happens with the highest level of quality so that children can enjoy coming here every day." He wants to give them a positive experience in life.

He says he remembers when he did his first play with the kids. It was a play they wrote for Black History month about helping a Black child understand how he got where he is today by going back in a time machine. "That's when I knew I was here to stay. When kids aren't interested, they aren't interested" but his job is to find out what excites them and do it. "Now we're licensing our junior shows. We have costume designers."

Gore comments that Campagna Kids levels the playing field for the diversity of their students to assure that all children have access to the same quality of programs. Parents are charged on a sliding scale from $23 up to $425 a month. The program is funded through the City of Alexandria and the Alexandria City Public Schools.

"This is where I'm supposed to be, where I connect with life's purpose," Gore said.

Examining Confluence of Religion and Journalism

Local author produces "A Spiral into Marvelous Light."

BY ASHLEY CLAIRE SIMPSON
GAZETTE PACKET

Michael Gryboski has a few things in common with Scott Addison, the main character he created for his latest novel, "A Spiral into Marvelous Light" — the story of a writer tackling an article with a heated subject.

Like Addison, Gryboski — an Alexandria native — is an experienced journalist with ties to the D.C. area. They both cover political issues of national impact and confront controversial topics.

"I put a lot of my own personal experience into Addison," said Gryboski, who writes for The Christian Post. "His experience mirrors mine with how he interviews people, transcribes those interviews, and then how he writes about those day-to-day issues. Also, my home state of Virginia provides the main setting.

The book features Alexandria and Richmond, which are places I have strong personal ties to."

There is, however, one significant difference between the two. While Addison is downright apathetic with regard to religion, Gryboski's Christian faith has always fueled his professional journey.

"I began to write in my free time back in 2001, when I was in ninth grade at Minnie Howard, largely in response to the September 11 terrorist attacks," Gryboski said. "After the tragedy, it was inspiring to see people come together, to see the rise in church attendance, to see more of my classmates saying the Pledge of Allegiance. Then it was a cynical downer to see these trends reverse course as the weeks went by. The whole cycle instilled in me a need to make the world a better place — to serve God and man through literature. The September 11 terrorist attacks always reminded me that even if I kept my ideas to myself, someone out there would still hate my guts."

Released to the public on Tuesday, March 26, Gryboski approached "A Spiral into Marvelous Light" as a way for him to serve both God and fellow man.

"In 2016, Dean Baquet, [executive editor of The New York Times] did an interview with NPR, explaining how major new media sources often don't really 'get' religion," said Gryboski, who is speaking as an individual and not as a representative of the news publication he works for. "I was really impressed with that observation and how he wanted to learn more. They say journalism is one of the most secular fields, that individual journalists are disproportionately unreligious. I thought I could help a little by shedding some light through fiction."

According to a 2008 Pew Research Center study that Gryboski encountered during his research, only eight percent of journalists for national publications — and 14 percent of journalists for local publications — regularly attended worship services.

Gryboski figured the best way for him to analyze this phenomenon was to tell a relevant story from the perspective of a journalist who distances himself from religion.

In "A Spiral into Marvelous Light," Addison chronicles the life and death of a recently deceased public religious figure, the fictional Reverend Sammy Milton — a character that may have started to bubble in Gryboski's brain more than 10 years ago.

"The first event to ultimately inspire me was in 2007, when [the famous Baptist pastor and television evangelist] Jerry Falwell died," he said. "Originally, I didn't have a very high opinion of Falwell, but then I read more about him. I was impressed with his philanthropy. He had a reputation for having a lot of friends and acquaintances. There was a thought that he was loud, outspoken and polarizing, but he was so much more. As it turns out, a lot of these qualities went into the character of Reverend Sammy Milton."

While not his first novel, "A Spiral into Marvelous Light" is a little something different for Gryboski.

"My other novels tend to be more action-packed," Gryboski said. "This is technically novel number eight, and I wanted something more centered on drama and emotion — something more focused on the spiritual, the historical, and the intellectual. Another difference is the personal aspect. I put a lot of my experiences as a journalist and as an observer as well as a participant in the ideological conflicts of modern America into this story."

Despite that the novel fleshes out some touchy topics, Gryboski wrote it as a book

'Where the Past Is Your Present'

The Old Town Shop celebrates second anniversary.

BY JEANNE THEISMANN
GAZETTE PACKET

The Old Town Shop, a gift boutique highlighting the historic heritage of Alexandria, celebrated its second anniversary with a weekend of special events culminating March 31.

Located at 105 South Union St., the retail store opened in March of 2017 as the vision of longtime resident Valerie Ianieri, who sought to feature local artisan products and celebrate the city's maritime heritage.

"We are excited to have a shop that is dedicated to promoting and celebrating the charm and uniqueness of Old Town Alexandria," said Ianieri, whose slogan for the shop is "Where the past is your present."

Port is the section of the store that promotes the history of Alexandria, known as The Port City, with a representation of 12 state mile markers to depict the historic importance of the area.

The store also features regular events that spotlight local vendors, writers and artisans.

"My focus is to preserve and promote the history, creativity and culture of Alexandria locals and the Commonwealth of Virginia," Ianieri added.

Offers available in AR, CT, DC, FL, GA, MD, MS, NC, NJ, NY, SC, TX and VA. Portfolio by Wells Fargo® customers are eligible to receive an additional bonus interest rate on these accounts.³

1. To qualify for this offer, you must have a new or existing Platinum Savings account and enroll the account in this offer between 03/25/2019 and 05/31/2019. This offer is subject to change at any time, without notice. This offer is available only to Platinum Savings customers in the following states: AR, CT, DC, FL, GA, MD, MS, NC, NJ, NY, SC, TX and VA. In order to earn the Special Interest Rate of 2.08% (Special Rate), you must deposit $25,000 in new money (from sources outside of Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., or its affiliates) to the enrolled savings account and maintain a minimum daily account balance of $25,000 throughout the term of this offer. The corresponding Annual Percentage Yield (APY) for this offer is 2.10%. The Special Rate will be applied to the enrolled savings account for a period of 12 months, starting on the date the account is enrolled in the offer. However, for any day during that 12 month period that the daily account balance is less than the $25,000 minimum, the Special Rate will not apply, and the interest rate will revert to the standard interest rate applicable to your Platinum Savings account. As of 02/15/2019, the standard interest rate and APY for a Platinum Savings account in AR, CT, DC, FL, GA, MD, MS, NC, NJ, NY, SC, TX and VA with an account balance of $0.01 and above is 0.05% (0.05% APY). Each tier shown reflects the current minimum daily collected balance required to obtain the applicable APY. Interest is compounded daily and paid monthly. The amount of interest earned is based on the daily collected balances in the account. Upon the expiration of the 12 month promotional period, standard interest rates apply. Minimum to open a Platinum Savings account is $25. A monthly service fee of $12 applies in any month the account falls below a $3,500 minimum daily balance. Fees may reduce earnings. Interest rates are variable and subject to change without notice. Wells Fargo may limit the amount you deposit to a Platinum Savings account to an aggregate of $1 million. Offer not available to Private Banking or Wealth customers. 2. Annual Percentage Yield (APY) is effective for accounts opened between 03/25/2019 to 05/31/2019. The 11-month New Dollar CD special requires a minimum of $25,000 brought to Wells Fargo from sources outside of Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., or its affiliates to earn the advertised APY. Public Funds and Wholesale accounts are not eligible for this offer. APY assumes interest remains on deposit until maturity. Interest is compounded daily. Payment of interest on CDs is based on term. For terms less than 12 months (365 days), interest may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or at maturity (the end of the term). For terms of 12 months or more, interest may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually. A fee for early withdrawal will be imposed and could reduce earnings on this account. Special Rates are applicable to the initial term of the CD only. At maturity, the Special Rate CD will automatically renew for a term of 6 months, at the interest rate and APY in effect for CDs on renewal date not subject to a Special Rate, unless the Bank has notified you otherwise. 1, 2. Due to the new money requirement, accounts may only be opened at your local branch. Wells Fargo reserves the right to modify or discontinue the offer at any time without notice. Minimum new money deposit requirement of at least $25,000 is for this offer only and cannot be transferred to another account to qualify for any other consumer deposit offer. If you wish to take advantage of another consumer deposit offer requiring a minimum new money deposit, you will be required to do so with another new money deposit as stated in the offer requirements and qualifications. Offer cannot be combined with any other consumer deposit offer, except the Portfolio by Wells Fargo $500 offer, available from March 25, 2019 until May 31, 2019. Offer cannot be reproduced, purchased, sold, transferred, or traded. 3. The Portfolio by Wells Fargo program has a $30 monthly service fee, which can be avoided when you have one of the following qualifying balances: $25,000 or more in qualifying linked bank deposit accounts (checking, savings, CDs, FDIC-insured IRAs) or $50,000 or more in any combination of qualifying linked banking, brokerage (available through Wells Fargo Advisors, LLC) and credit balances (including 10% of mortgage balances, certain mortgages not eligible). If the Portfolio by Wells Fargo relationship is terminated, the bonus interest rate on all eligible savings accounts, and discounts or fee waivers on other products and services, will discontinue and revert to the Bank's then-current applicable rate or fee. For bonus interest rates on time accounts, this change will occur upon renewal. If the Portfolio by Wells Fargo relationship is terminated, the remaining unlinked Wells Fargo Portfolio Checking or Wells Fargo Prime Checking account will be converted to another checking product or closed. © 2019 Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Preservation of Hugo Black House

To the Editor:

In 1949 I moved with my family to Old Town Alexandria and knew most of its residents from my days delivering the Alexandria Gazette as a youngster. As I recall, that is how I came to know Justice Hugo Black who lived at a historic home with an unusually large garden at 619 South Lee St.

Growing up in Old Town, from my earliest youth I have been devoted to the cause of historic preservation. In 1961, I was the first recipient of a Bachelor of Architectural History, awarded by the School of Architecture at the University of Virginia. I went on to work at the U.S. Department of the Interior where I co-authored The Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Historic Preservation Projects, which are employed throughout the country for the preservation and treatment of historic properties.

The current owners of the Hugo Black House have proposed an extensive development project on the property. Those plans will be considered by the City Council on Saturday, April 13.

Having reviewed the plans, I would like to clearly state that, in my view, the proposed construction project at the Hugo Black House property does not reflect or support the goals and intent of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation as expressed by me and Gary L. Hume as co-authors of the original version of the Standards. Nor do I believe the plans are compatible with either the Hugo Black House and setting, nor the Old Town neighborhood.

The house is a site of national importance because Justice Black was instrumental in desegregating American schools and extending the protections of the Bill of Rights to all Americans. In 1969 the Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission certified the property as an Historic Landmark. It is one of the most important historic sites in the City of Alexandria.

I therefore wish to add my voice to those of the Historic Alexandria Resources Commission, Historic Alexandria Foundation, the Alexandria Association, the Old Town Civic Association, the Northern Virginia Conservation Council, Preservation Virginia, and others who have called on the City Council to reject the current development plan for the Hugo Black House and property.

Spend Taxes Wisely

To the Editor:

With regard to the proposed FY 2020 budget for the City of Alexandria, I am very much against the announced policy of converting consultant positions in the IT department to full-time positions. Full-time salary positions bring with them reduced flexibility in staffing decisions and an undefined obligation for retirement and medical benefits. It behooves the City of Alexandria to spend its taxpayer dollars very carefully. IT skills decay rapidly and outsourcing provides protection for the city in terms of ability to bring new skills into the department at short notice when technology changes, which it does and very quickly.

A similar argument can be made with respect to janitorial/custodial positions in ACPS. The fact that ACPS has not managed to implement this outsourcing does not mean that it is not desirable. Please do not allow inertia to determine policy on this issue.

I also urge the City Council to use plain English when discussing budget issues. In particular, the term "affordable" housing is a euphemism for taxpayer-subsidized housing. Please call it what it is.

I am very much opposed to such taxpayer subsidies whether direct or indirect, because it distorts the wages that are/should be paid to workers in the city.

When workers are subsidized, it is the employer that benefits, not the employee. The employer gets to pay less for workers, thus increasing his profit margin and squeezing the worker.

The City of Alexandria should not be in the business of picking and choosing winners and losers in this way. I urge you to call a halt to subsidized housing.

OPINION

Thoughtless Bureaucracy?

To the Editor:

The city is putting up new parking direction signs in Old Town. Have you seen the new one on Queen Street? If not, that is possibly because they put it behind a tree. Not behind the leaves, but behind a 4-foot tree trunk. Well it's only behind a tree if you are stopped at the stop sign. If you are midway down the block and at the elevation of a London double decker bus, it's OK.

Of course I was surprised to find the 3x5 foot sign towering 15 feet above street level in front of my house on a 100 percent residential block. So were my neighbors. To date no neighbor ever recalls being told of this billboard's arrival by the city's bureaucrats. Is this sign going to help direct people to parking? No. I would be in favor of that, but literally you will not notice this sign unless you live on the block. I notice it, because it partially obscures the views from the windows in my house. This billboard reduces the value of every house on the block.

The sign on one side give directions. On the other? It's blank. Yep, a blank billboard. Just what Old Town needed. I can't decide whether to convert this monument to thoughtless bureaucracy to a basketball hoop or post my own ideas of signs for where the city can go.

And on the other side

The council needs to exercise meaningful oversight on careless city bureaucrats.

Another Bad Decision

To The Editor:

The March 28 article on zoning and the halal slaughter house shows we have a really gutless, spineless City Council, that was completely suckered on this issue. Councilors Pepper and Seifeldein are particularly deserving of contempt. If Pepper did not like this particular land-use, she should have voted against, it is that simple.

Councilor Seifeldein reasoning is false and legally very weak. He seems to not comprehend it is a slaughterhouse. It is not a mosque, church, temple, synagogue, seminary or basilica. It is a privately owned, for profit slaughter house with a particular business model. That is far from the intent of the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act of 2000. The Act deals with the religious rights of prisoners and allows religious institutions a way to avoid zoning and landmark laws. It will serve customers not prisoners. So now a slaughter house in an industrial park is a landmark.

Many years back, there was a similar zoning case with a privately owned, for profit Christian day school in Fairfax County. The school was located in an industrial park and contended they were not subject to various zoning and safety regulations because it was a school based on Christian theology. Ultimately they lost. This situation is not distinctly different. Both are privately owned, for profit businesses. Thus, the council was suckered. Only two members showed any spine. Also, where was our city attorney on this issue? Where is the religious freedom question Seifeldein was hiding behind? This another example in a long line of very poor council decisions.

The bottom line is the slaughter house is simply a poor idea that should have never been permitted.

Decisions, Decisions ...

To the Editor:

This latest fiasco over the location of the slaughter house pinpoints one vital point: We are the victims of our decisions at the voting booths. What makes this issue so important is that with a slight change to the way we cast our ballots in November, we could have a much better outcome at adjudicating issues before the City Council.

In my opinion, eliminating the "At Large" system of City Council representation would greatly improve the fairness of the process. Replacing it with the Ward system would offer every voting citizen in Alexandria an ability to vote for someone who understands and represents the issues within their own neighborhood, and would be working to solve them, rather than being beholden to no one, which is the present situation.

GOP Members Take Stand on Seminary Road Proposals

The Alexandria Republican City Committee's (ARCC's) April meeting focused on the city's proposals for reducing the number of driving lanes on Seminary Road, a busy east-west route in Alexandria, in order to add bicycle lanes. Though the road is already considered safe by the local residents, ARCC Chairman Sean Lenehan expressed concern that significant changes could be made in spite of overwhelming community opposition, as with the recent City Council approval of the poultry slaughterhouse.

Linda App, ARCC member who had attended a recent city-sponsored Open House event on the project, gave a presentation on the alternatives being proposed by the city, and explained the city's decision process and deadline for comments. Other members expressed concern for the impact of lane reduction on: emergency vehicles' response times, traffic flow, and the increased dangers of mixing vehicles and bicycles. Members also criticized aggressive bicyclist behavior and the perceived new city preference for bicycles over cars in this densely-populated area.

Lenehan said, "This is not a Republican or Democrat issue. This is a community issue. Most of us don't or can't ride bikes to get to work and run errands. Families can't travel by bicycle. We need practical solutions, not social-engineering to end the use of cars."

Michael Clinkscale, a recent candidate for Alexandria City Council, announced his candidacy for the Virginia House of Delegates, District 45. He spoke of his message of independence for every individual, and that "the only limits we have are those we put on ourselves."

ARCC (at www.alexgop.org) is the local branch of the national Republican Party. The Commonwealth

Republican Women's Club (CRWC) is the Alexandria chapter of the National Federation of Republican Women. More information is available at www.alexandriacrwc.org. Alexandria Area Young Republicans (AAYR) can be found at www.alexys.org.

ARCC members and guests show their support for keeping Seminary Road's four lanes for car traffic. Kneeling: Linda App and Bill Cleveland. Standing: Susie Miller, Eileen Brackens (CRWC president), Michaelm Clinkscale, Linda Greenberg, Pete Benavage, Kevin Dunne, Patrick Benitez, Andrew Lund (AAYR chairman), George Croft, Sean Lenehan (ARCC chairman), Gregory Fanning, Lou Miller, Ron Kirby, and Laurie Kirby.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC OF AN APPLICATION BY VIRGINIA ELECTRIC AND POWER COMPANY FOR APPROVAL AND CERTIFICATION OF POTOMAC YARDS UNDERGROUNDING AND GLEBE GIS CONVERSION
PURSUANT TO TITLE 56 OF THE CODE OF VIRGINIA
CASE NO. PUR-2019-00040

On March 7, 2019, pursuant to Virginia Code § 56-46.1 and the Utility Facilities Act, Code § 56-265.1 et seq., Virginia Electric and Power Company ("Dominion" or "Company") filed an application and supporting documents for approval and certification of electric facilities ("Application") with the Virginia State Corporation Commission ("Commission").

Specifically, Dominion seeks to convert the overhead portion of 230 kilovolt ("kV") Glebe-Ox Line #248 and 230 kV Glebe-North Alexandria Line #2023 between Glebe Substation (located in Arlington, Virginia), and Potomac Yards North Terminal Station ("Potomac Yards Station") (located in the City of Alexandria, Virginia) to underground lines and to tie the converted lines into Glebe Substation. This conversion would include the removal and replacement of related underground lines comprising a total installation of approximately 2,100 feet of new underground cable from existing manhole #110 to new manhole #111 to Glebe Substation ("Potomac Yards Undergrounding"). Of the 2,100 feet of underground line Dominion proposes to install, 1,100 feet would be installed using microtunneling and 1,000 feet would be installed using existing underground right-of-way. Dominion also proposes to remove 550 feet of underground cable and pipe from Potomac Yards Station to new manhole #111 and to remove 1,000 feet of cable only from new manhole #111 to existing manhole #110. Dominion also seeks to convert and rebuild the Company's existing Glebe Substation to a Gas Insulated Substation (collectively, all the work described above comprises the "Project").

Dominion asserts that the proposed Project is necessary to comply with the expiration of an existing Special Use Permit issued by the City of Alexandria. The Special Use Permit is expected to expire January 1, 2021. According to Dominion, the proposed Project is necessary to permit the Company's remaining transmission facilities in the area to provide adequate service to the Company's existing customers located in the City of Alexandria and Arlington County, consistent with North American Electric Reliability Corporation Reliability Criteria. Dominion further asserts that the proposed Project would improve operational performance, maintain critical energy infrastructure needed to provide continued reliable electric service to facilities depended upon to provide critical services, and to maximize available land use to accommodate necessary transmission terminations.

The proposed Project would require new right-of-way across Four Mile Run. Dominion explains that no feasible alternatives have been submitted to the PJM Interconnection, L.L.C. specifically limited to this proposed Project because the key driver for the Project is the undergrounding requirement in the City of Alexandria's Special Use Permit.

Dominion anticipates an in-service date of May 2022 for the proposed Project, subject to Commission approval and outage scheduling. Dominion estimates the conceptual cost of the proposed Project to be $122.8 million, including approximately $59.3 million for transmission-related work and approximately $63.5 million for substation-related work (2019 dollars).

Description of the Proposed Project

For the existing line relocation under the Potomac Yards Undergrounding, the entire Potomac Yards Station, including three double-circuit 230 kV structures, two single circuit structures and conductors would be removed. Also, approximately 550 feet of two existing double circuit underground lines, currently entering Potomac Yards Substation would be removed and the connection relocated directly into Glebe Substation. Each line consists of two sets of three conductor bundles, with one three-conductor bundle per line. At the tie-in point 550 feet from the existing Potomac Yards Station, four new steel pipes would be installed turning northwest, crossing U.S. Route 1, going under Four Mile Run, and proceeding north into Glebe Substation. Four three-conductor bundles, high-pressure fluid-filled ("HPFF") cables will be removed from the Potomac Yards Station to existing manhole #110, where cables could be removed to facilitate this undergrounding project. This is approximately 1,550 feet, the distance of this line relocation is approximately 1,100 feet.

After the four HPFF cable pipes are installed into Glebe Substation, approximately 2,100 feet of new cable for each pipe would be installed in each pipe from existing manhole #110 to Glebe Substation.

Because the Potomac Yards Undergrounding would be constructed underground, no structure heights are provided.

All distances and directions are approximate. A sketch map of the proposed route accompanies this notice. A more detailed map of the proposed route may be viewed on the Commission's website: <http://www.scc.virginia.gov/pur/elec/transline.aspx>.

The Commission may consider a route not significantly different from the route described in this notice without additional notice to the public.

A more complete description of the proposed Project may be found in the Company's Application.

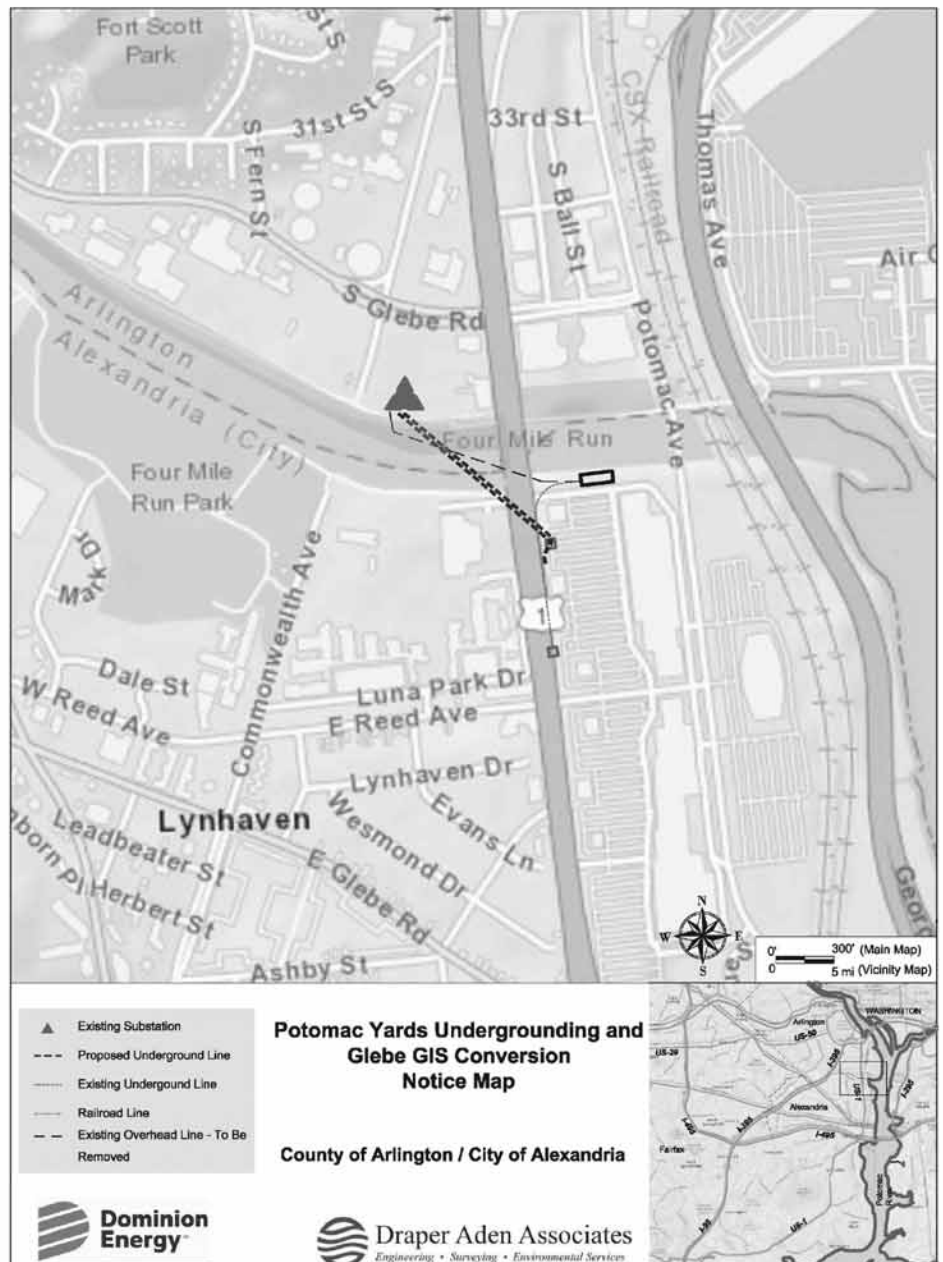

The Commission entered an Order for Notice and Hearing in this proceeding that, among other things, scheduled a public evidentiary hearing to be held on July 23, 2019, at 10 a.m., in the Commission's second floor courtroom located in the Tyler Building, 1300 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219, to receive testimony from members of the public and evidence related to the Application from the Company, any respondents, and the Commission's Staff. Any person desiring to testify as a public witness at this hearing should appear fifteen (15) minutes prior to the starting time of the hearing and contact the Commission's Bailiff.

Copies of the public version of the Application and documents filed in this case also are available for interested persons to review in the Commission's Document Control Center, located on the first floor of the Tyler Building, 1300 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219, between the hours of 8:15 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, excluding holidays. TC Women's Frosh Eight Place Second

The T.C. Williams frosh women's eight took second at the Walter Mess Regatta on Saturday, April 6, its women's second eight took third, and a women's varsity double won gold at the Occoquan Reserve.

Turtles sunned on branches and a light breeze was blowing as dozens of boats swept by in the Virginia Scholastic Rowing Association's first regatta of the season. Parking was at overflow as usual as hundreds of people arrived to cheer on the rowers.

T.C. Williams fielded 14 boats, a sign of the depth of the T.C. team.

The women's frosh eight's second place finish came with a time of 5:50.20. Wakefield had a time of 5:41.9; Washington & Lee was third, with a time of 5:52.13. The frosh eight was coming off a win at the Noxontown Regatta at St. Andrews School, where the number of contenders was smaller and neither Wakefield nor Washington & Lee had competed.

"We were really nervous about facing them," said coxswain Maddy Glanz. "But we were strong all the way through and all the rowers tried their best, even with Lake Braddock crawling up on us at the end."

"I'm excited to see if we can crawl up on Wakefield and give them a run for their money," she added.

The T.C. Williams women's frosh eight placed second at the Walter Mess Regatta on Saturday, April 6. The lineup in the women's frosh eight includes: Maddie Glanz (cox), Shevlin Jaffe, Zoe Lutzker, Nikki Harris, Taylor Motsinger, Ella Scontras, Violet Knott, Maile Organek, and Sofia Landivar.

Women's lightweight eight came in fourth, with a time of 5:50.67.

A women's varsity double with Maggie Coombs and Grace Wilmore took first with a time of 5:58.10, topping doubles from Mount Vernon and Forest Park. It was the first race for the team.

"Going into the race, man, I was scared of a lot," said Coombs. "We didn't really know what our competition was like, but when we saw them, they didn't look too menacing."

The T.C. Williams 2 eight took third with a time of 5:46.26, behind McLean with a time of 5:39.47. Whitman was first with a time of 5:33.40.

The T.C. Williams men's 4th eight took fourth, and the men's first four came in sixth in their races, respectively. T.C. Williams fielded two women's novice boats. The men's novice boat was fifth in a field of 15.

Next week, the rowers return to Occoquan for the Darrell Winslow Regatta.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Unfortunately, this solution is just not in the cards, as it faces too many political hurdles, none of which are easily overcome.

Therefore, the impetus for all issues before our City Council rests exclusively upon the votes of our six council members and mayor. Unfortunately, the four new faces on City Council have had little to no experience in advocating for the critical issues facing them each month. That means that we must therefore live with decision making that is not informed by experience, a case in point being the recent slaughterhouse decision. If citizens are upset with this decision, they only have themselves to blame, and must live with their voting choices. Those citizens who are upset about poor City Council decisions must express this concern to them. If the council chooses to remain unresponsive, citizens have several choices, one of which is to run for City Council themselves, and another is to vote the incumbents out of office.

Still another choice is more draconian — they can move to a community with a more responsive and representative form of government.

Your decisions have consequences, Alexandria!

Pleads Guilty to Heroin Distribution

A West Virginia man and an Alexandria man pleaded guilty Tuesday, April 2, to conspiracy to distribute heroin in and around Northern Virginia.

According to court documents, Rodney Malcolm Livengood, 57, of Martinsburg, and Nicholas George March, 28, of Alexandria, conspired to obtain heroin from sources of supply in Baltimore and bring it back to Sterling for distribution to users. After the narcotics were packaged for individual sale, Livengood and March delivered the heroin to users in Loudoun and Fairfax counties.

Livengood and March each pleaded guilty to conspiracy to distribute 100 grams or more of heroin and distribution of a controlled drug and face a mandatory minimum of five years in prison and a maximum penalty of 60 years in prison when sentenced on June 28.

Actual sentences for federal crimes are typically less than the maximum penalties. A federal district court judge will determine any sentence after taking into account the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines and other statutory factors.

Fatal House Fire

The Alexandria Fire Department responded to a structure fire in the 300 block of S Pitt Street on Wednesday, April 10, 12:34 a.m. Upon arrival units saw fire showing on the second floor of a two-story townhouse, according to an Alexandria Fire-EMS tweet. Units extinguished the fire and rescued a male occupant. A second occupant was found dead in a second floor bedroom.

Regional Integration, by Commuting (BLUE = higher percent with longer commutes)

MAP SOURCES: U.S. CENSUS BUREAU; ACS 2013-2017 5-YEAR ESTIMATES, TABLE B08303; ESRI; CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, GIS OPEN DATA HUB.

A Metropolitan Division is a subset of a Metropolitan Statistical Area, which federal agencies use for statistical purposes. An area and its divisions comprise a highly populated urban area “having a high degree of social and economic integration with the [urban] core as measured through commuting ties,” according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

No City an Island?

Council says regional interests sometimes outweigh local interests.

BY DAN BRENDEN
GAZETTE PACKET

City Council adopted a resolution affirming its “commitment to regionalism,” the first such for malized local pledge from within the metropolitan area, but with little in the way of specifics.

The resolution says the region’s myriad municipalities weave into a common economic, social and ecological tapestry. They share “interconnected and often interdependent networks of streets, roads, bridges, sidewalks, bicycle paths, and transit systems, as well as sanitary sewer, stormwater and water infrastructure.”

It follows that the city “recognizes the interests for the good of the region are often paramount compared to the interests of an individual jurisdiction. ... The city ... pledges its best efforts and faithful cooperation in working with other jurisdictions and regional bodies ... in addressing regional issues, and designing and implementing regional policies and plans.”

“Regionalism is more a concept [and ‘a guiding principle’] than a formal program,” said City Manager Mark Jinks in a memo. “Regionalism means considering and adopting the best policies for the region, and not just those policies that may be best for one’s own locality.”

“We have to realize we’re a piece of a bigger puzzle,” said Councilman Canek Aguirre, who’s championed regionalism since his term began. “We might be a small jurisdiction, but we have a lot of influence, and this is a clear example of ... [our] helping to lead.”

Aguirre says that, even though local politicians ultimately answer to local constituents, regional issues need attention too. He sees the resolution as helping to induce a more regionally collaborative culture in Alexandria, as well as “sending a signal to other jurisdictions.”

For example, he wants localities to pitch in on shared advertising campaign along inter-jurisdictional transportation routes, urging people to participate in the upcoming decennial census. He also sees cut-through traffic in Alexandria neighborhoods, a common complaint from residents, stemming largely from passing-through regional commuters, the volume of which Alexandria ultimately exercises little control.

Chuck Bean, executive director of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, says his organization “supports efforts like this by its members that emphasize the need to collaborate on regional issues.” The Council of Governments, a non-

Your Investment in Healthier Waterways for Alexandria

Proposed AlexRenew Rate Increases

In April 2017, the Commonwealth of Virginia passed a law that requires Alexandria to remediate all four of its combined sewer outfalls by July 1, 2025. In response, Alexandria Renew Enterprises (AlexRenew) is implementing the RiverRenew program, a deep underground tunnel system to prevent sewage mixed with rainwater from entering our waterways in Alexandria.

To pay for this significant investment in the health of our community’s waterways and ongoing wastewater operations and maintenance, AlexRenew has proposed rate increases starting on July 1, 2019, and July 1, 2020, respectively. Our residential customers will see an increase of approximately $55 each year in their bills, or about $5 per month.

INCREASES WILL PAY FOR:

A cleaner community for future generations

A safer environment for wildlife

Updated and new infrastructure to create and continue healthier waterways for our community

School Board Approves Swing Space Plan

they can advance Douglas MacArthur by two years. They also reckon the re-use plan avoids the need for a new campus entirely — at least over the next decade — saving $60 million earmarked for that project. They’d divert that money to meet rising costs for other capital projects, especially high school capacity expansion slated for FY 2020-2021.

With its retooled swing space plan, staff foresee delaying the old Patrick Henry demolition by four years. They say they only need swing space for MacArthur, not for subsequent school rebuilds.

But many in the surrounding West End community feel railroaded by the relatively sudden change of plans. They’ve expressed concerns about what they see as rushed and superficial community engagement; lack of trust in reassurances that the new four-year timeframe won’t extend again in the future; exacerbation of traffic congestion and poor mitigation and enforcement by the city government; exacerbation of parking unavailability, including from additional teachers, buses and parents driving to and from the doubled-up school site.

More than 550 people signed a petition opposing re-use of the old Patrick Henry building, said Mary Brazier, president of the Patrick Henry PTA. According to the petition: “Patrick Henry School and the surrounding neighborhood have already endured a difficult construction process [over the past few years] which put stress on the entire community and limited students’ outdoor play opportunities.”

“It seems like this was presented as a fait accompli [an already done deal],” said Joel Finkelstein, a nearby homeowner, at a March 20 town hall with school officials. “How were you not thinking about [reusing the old building] for multiple years? It is shocking and it is not what we want from municipal management.”

“I don’t see a whole lot of time to do a proper feasibility study. ... I know how government runs around here, it’s slow and inefficient,” said homeowner Kellen Patterson. “This would have been a brilliant idea if it was thought about ahead of time and had the foresight and the proper communication and proper planning. Now it just feels rushed and ... ad hoc.”

“We’ve always been concerned that the city and [school system] have been short-sighted. ... Why not take the time and invest that $60 million in a swing space school which will also add capacity?” said homeowner Keith Kruse. “Our concern is [that] this is going to become the permanent swing space [for multiple school reconstructions]. ... I know you’ve told us that that’s not the plan, and I appreciate that, but it’s not you, it’s the city, we don’t trust them.”

“We realize it’s a really big deal and it’s a huge inconvenience,” said Superintendent Dr. Gregory Hutchings. “We would not take advantage of saying, well, now this is our swing space forever. ... [But] we have to make a decision, ... is it worth still moving forward, even if the community said no?”

“I’m just as frustrated as you are, in terms of why it wasn’t thought of earlier,” said Mignon Anthony, the schools’ COO.

Hutchings defended repurposing funds that would’ve gone to building new swing space elsewhere, saying last Thursday: “We are going to have to ask the city for more money in the future [to address rising capital costs].

But ... the city is not a bottomless pit ... to just keep building all of these schools and swing spaces when we call”

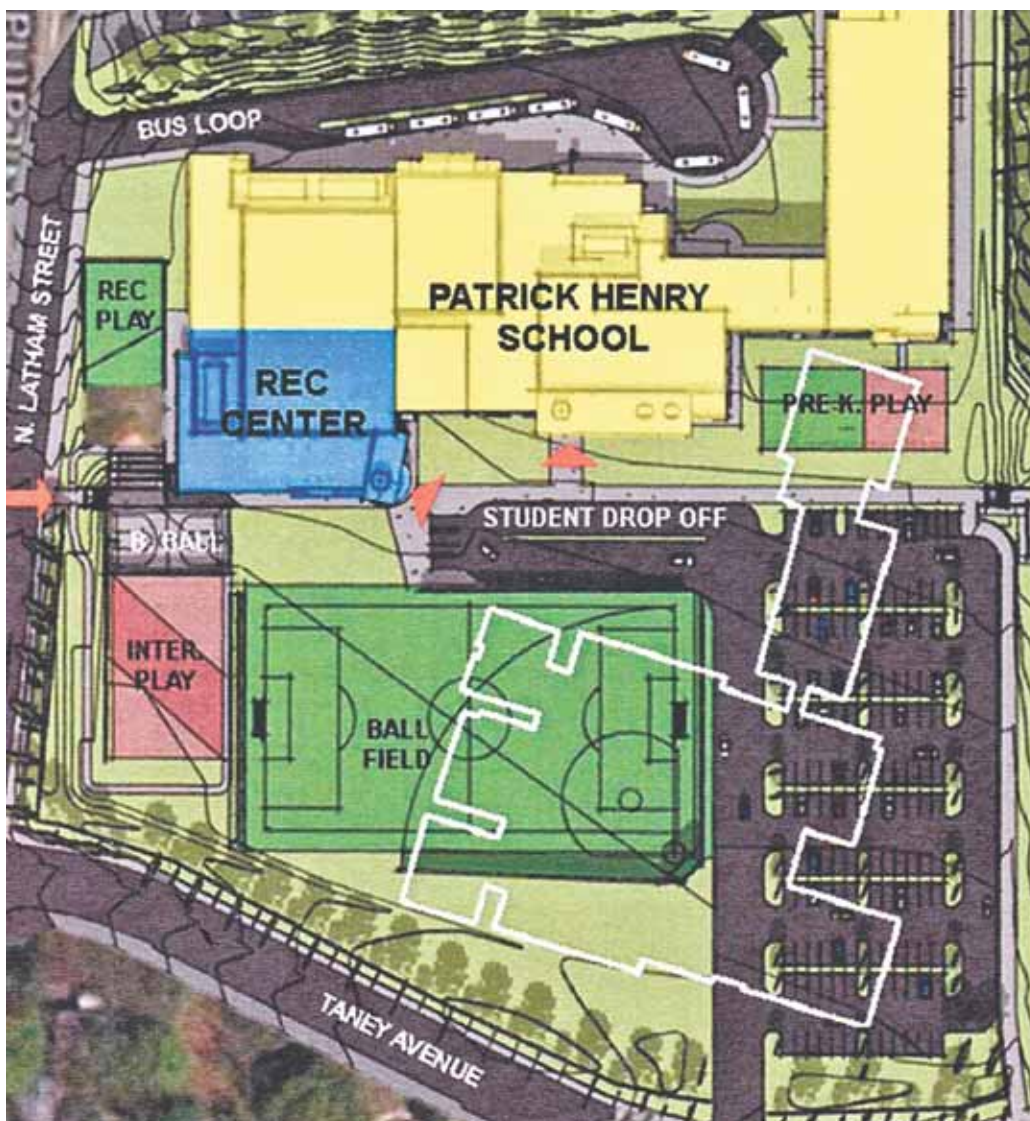

IMAGE CONTRIBUTED BY ACPS

The School Board decided to repurpose the old Patrick Henry building (white outline) as a temporary “swing space,” in order to accelerate the rebuilding of Douglas MacArthur Elementary School. Delaying the old building’s demolition until MacArthur completes will also delay the construction of new athletic fields and parking for the new Patrick Henry School, which opened in January.

ACPS To Release Potential Site Options for High School Expansion

space essentially boil down to three: (1) expand the current T.C. Williams High School, a disfavored option thus far; (2) build another stand-alone high school; or (3) create a network of smaller sites, but kept under one T.C. Williams banner.

Superintendent Dr. Gregory Hutchings recommended the third, dubbed the “Connected High School Network,” which would have precluded the second, at least for the foreseeable future. In a January vote, the School Board half-stepped in his direction, authorizing new construction at T.C.’s Minnie Howard ninth grade campus; expansion of the existing high school satellite program at the administration’s central office building; and implementation of an early college program, which would have students attend classes at Northern Virginia Community College.

But some School Board members weren’t entirely convinced that constituents clearly understood the choices, or that Hutchings had exhausted the possibility of a second comprehensive high school. In a split 5-4 vote, they explicitly left that option on the table, pending more detailed “comparative cost-benefit analysis.”

While that analysis isn’t due for School Board consideration until September, the administration will publish initial High School Project programming and site options on Friday, April 19. The School Board will discuss those initial options the following Thursday, April 25.

Land availability and cost depend in large part on building size requirements. The current T.C. Williams facility totals 460,000 square feet — the largest high school in Virginia. Hutchings reckons a second stand-alone campus would require a facility nearly as large — nearly 410,000 square feet — for 2,100 students. That would cost an estimated $216 million, 82 percent over the city’s current budgeted amount. He expects multiple smaller campuses would be easier to find land for, and also cheaper to buy or lease.

In December, the city government suggested some 15 sites or areas large enough to warrant study, according to Mignon Anthony, the schools’ COO. Those included, according to city spokesperson Craig Fifer in January: Landmark Mall, currently under redevelopment planning; Eisenhower East; the parking lot adjacent to Regal Cinemas Theater in Potomac Yard; a recreation field and wooded area near Francis Hammond Middle School; soccer fields at Simpson Stadium Park; a dog park near Beatley Library; and a commercial warehouse near the Van Dorn Station Shopping Center.

Specific programming the new high school solution would offer is also still under development. The schools administration is launching an outreach campaign for TC students to give input to the process, including through social media. The campaign, called “Titans Connected,” will last the next two months and intends to build on student-centered focus groups that took place last fall.

“It’s still important to acknowledge that there are a lot of students who don’t know about what’s going on,” said Ewan Thompson, a student representative to the School Board.

Hamstrung Local Tax Authority?

City government says state restrictions on city tax authority outdated.

BY DAN BRENDEN
GAZETTE PACKET

The city government would like the state General Assembly to modernize and expand local governments' taxing authority, but doubts sufficient political will exists to support such an expansion.

During the annual budget process, city staff publicly answer questions posed by City Council, in order to help the council make informed budget decisions. Recently, Councilman Canek Aguirre asked: "What are the possibilities of advocating for more local authority in regards to city revenue generation? What are our options in terms of a potential progressive tax, income tax or other revenue generation?"

City staff responded: "Increased local taxing authority is highly desirable to bolster the long-term fiscal viability of the City and other Virginia municipalities. Virginia local tax authority is based on a 19th and early 20th century property based farming and industrial economy and not a 21st century service economy. For example, Virginia localities should have access to the State income tax as do Maryland localities. Also, the State sales tax does not tax the service economy which now represents a far larger segment of consumer purchases

"... The Dillon Rule, which the Virginia Supreme Court adopted in 1896, is a legal principle that local governments have limited authority and can pass ordinances only in areas where the General Assembly has granted clear authority. ...

"Any proposals that advocate for local taxing authority that is specific to Alexandria would be considered 'special legislation' and requires a supermajority two-thirds vote of each house of the General Assembly to pass. As a result, even if the General Assembly majority parties change in 2019 and a less anti-tax political atmosphere occurs, any expansion of local taxing authority would likely need to be applicable to all Virginia cities and/or counties In order for that to occur, there would need to be a state-wide coalition/interest

"Any additional local taxing, such as a progressive or income tax, authority might come with the requirement of a local referendum, as was the case in the 1980s when a local income tax for transportation and education was authorized, but by local referendum only. No locality initiated the regional referendum as it was assumed that such referendum would result in a 'no' vote. ..."

Individual income taxes comprise the largest single major revenue sources for both the Commonwealth of Virginia and the federal government. Virginia has four income tax brackets, ranging from 2 percent for taxable income less than $3,000 to 5.75 percent for taxable income over $17,000. The federal government has 7 tax brackets, ranging from 10 percent for income less than $9,500 to 37 percent for income over $500,000 (filing single). Alexandria, for which residential real property comprises largest single major revenue source, taxes that property at a flat (regressive) rate on assessed value, as required by state law.

But rather than taxing more valuable property at progressively higher rates, Alexandria provides progressive tax exemptions to lower-income seniors and persons with disabilities, also as allowed by state law. There are three brackets of exemption, ranging from 25 percent when the annual gross income from all sources is between $55,000 and $72,000 to 100 percent when gross income does not exceed $40,000.

profit, serves as a kind of clearing-house for local governments to share information and maintain relationships.

However, Alexandria's resolution doesn't create or recommend any new specific regional policies or mechanisms.

While no comprehensive legislature exists between the state and local levels of government, a variety of subject-specific regional governance bodies already exist — especially related to transportation. Their governing boards generally comprise representatives from amongst local legislatures, or their appointees. Though limited in purview, they variously exercise policymaking, spending/borrowing or regulatory authority, and/or control public assets. Examples include the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (appointments via the Northern Virginia Transportation Commission); the National Capital Regional Transportation Planning Board; the Northern Virginia Transportation Authority; the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority; and the Northern Virginia Juvenile Detention Center.

Even in cooler months, guests can find a warm spot outdoors — whether it's soaking in the sunken hot tub or cozying up to the wood burning fireplace flanked by gas torches.

Stylish Outdoor Living Wins 'Contractor of the Year'

Dreaming of making the most of outdoor living? Look at this.

BY JOHN BYRD

An outdoor living addition to Chateau-style residence in Oakton has won a "Contractor of the Year" grand award for Sun Design Remodeling Specialists.

The comprehensive design — which combines a screened porch, an outdoor kitchen and dining area, a hot tub and a stone fireplace in a cleverly integrated, multi-level layout— completes the rear elevation of the 9,500 square foot custom home the owners had built in 2001. The remodel to the home of Larry and Lisa Rice was named best "Residential Design/Outdoor Living Solution for $60,000 and over" by the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI) metro DC chapter.

"We wanted an indoor/outdoor gathering place that would bring the whole family together," says Lisa, 56, a retired mother of teenage twins. "The rear of the house was originally conceived as a walk-out, but I realized later that I didn't want high decks. Once I saw the design problem more clearly, I was simply looking for a better set of options — albeit, ones I couldn't fully envision." Rice credits Craig Durosko, chairman and founder of Sun Design, with re-awakening her enthusiasm for the project by identifying and prioritizing its primary components.

"Craig got our vision" Lisa says. "It was his attention to our goals that revived my interest in moving forward."

In the end, the plan appreciably responds to the Rice family's passion for indoor-outdoor living.

❖ A 437-square-foot screened porch linked to the kitchen via a folding glass window provides a cozy, insect-free gathering spot. An eight-foot counter abutting the "pass-thru" inside the porch facilitates service and dining. With a gas fireplace clad in stone and a flat screen TV, the porch can be fully used as an entertainment mecca nine months of the year;

❖ A formal dining area situated under a cedar pergola incorporates retractable awnings for shade;

❖ The 21-by-21-foot outdoor kitchen includes a built-in Wolf gas grill, a beverage center with refrigerator, an ice maker, a sink, and a stainless oval grill;

❖ Three steps down, the open air deck (22-by-28 feet) features a wood-burning hearth and a hot tub set-off by planters and gas torches — an inviting spot to deeply relax, even in cooler weather.

❖ A ground-level patio (16-by-19-feet) just outside the fully-appointed lower level family room offers a fire pit, and a quiet perch for stargazing.

"I always thought of the lower patio as a place where the kids could get away from the adults if they wanted," Lisa says. "On the other hand, Larry and I like it too."

As It Has So Happened

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

So far, four bi-weekly immunotherapy-infusions into my initial non-chemotherapy experience, per the encouraging results from my CT scan in mid March, I remain optimistic but cautiously neutral as I prepare to infuse three more times before my next scan in mid May.

However I feel, and however I've felt, ultimately the CT scan – and to a lesser degree – my lab results, will do the talking, so to speak. What it will say will be interpreted by my oncologist who in turn will explain/summarize it to us in person a week or so after the scan.

That's when I'll know how I'm doing. And how I'm doing of course means how much longer I'll be living. A more stressful appointment you can't imagine.

What I'm sure you can imagine is how high my blood pressure will be as we sit in the examining room waiting for my oncologist to knock on the door asking if it's OK to come in.

And when he comes in, he usually smiles and shakes our hands and then immediately sits behind the computer where he proceeds to ask the standard health- and fitness-type questions. Then he might even examine me (not all the time – as he has said, the scan tells him most of what he needs to know) before he addresses the elephant in the room (metaphorically speaking, although I have gained a few pounds).

Dina and I don't exactly hold hands but we are holding our collective breath as we prepare to hang on his every syllable. This exchange of pleasantries happens every eight weeks or so. In the interim, I am encouraged to email my oncologist with any questions or concerns, particularly if new symptoms develop and persist for two to three weeks.

Well, I did have something happening to me the other Saturday, the day after my last immunotherapy infusion which, treatment-to-date, had not happened.

When I awoke that morning, I was unable to summon up the strength/energy to get out of bed. It felt similar to my early days of heavy-duty chemotherapy, when due to the destruction of your red blood cells (and white cells, too), you can barely move. There was no pain, but neither was there any energy.

Simply put: the tank was empty. I could barely roll over in bed, let alone get up, walk downstairs and feed the cats. This kind of extreme post-immunotherapy fatigue was a first. All previous post-immunotherapy Saturdays were not the least bit similar or different than any other day.

I did not, nor have I since, emailed my oncologist with any of these details. At this juncture, I consider it an aberration and not worthy of an overreaction.

For all I know, to invoke an old punchline, my underwear was too tight.

As such, I will wait until my next infusions and see if the following morning follows an old or new pattern. If it's new, I will email my oncologist.

It's ironic that this situation occurred a few days after last week's column "It's Not As If My Life Depends On It" published. The content of which was my anxiety concerning emailing my oncologist about new symptoms/side effects for fear that in so doing, my oncologist would be for stopping my treatment. And in stopping my treatment, there is then nothing stopping the cancer.

This is some of what I've heard over the years; it's not so much the cancer that gets you as it is the side effects which cause the treatment to have to stop which then enables the cancer to then do what it most horrifyingly does (you'll note I didn't say inevitably).

But I'm not an alarmist, nor an "overreactionist," (to make up a word as I so often do). I've survived 10+ years by being neither.

I try to go about my cancer business as any other and live life as normally – for me – as possible. I am not gloom and doom and for me, the glass is always half full. And even though I'm in the middle of a big negative, I'm still positive.

After all, I'm a member of Red Sox Nation; hope forever springs eternal.

for everyone to enjoy — and for every reader to glean something from.

"I try my utmost to really get toward different points of view," he said. "Different groups are represented. That was a goal with my book, to build bridges. We are a time when it's not the worst for political civility, but it's not great."

Available to readers through all major retailers, "A Spiral into Marvelous Light" was a novel that the publishers at Emerald House Group were eager to get behind.

"I believe this story is a fundamental foundational tool that everyone should consider using today," said Elizabeth Burgdorf, publicity director for Emerald House. "The message is: 'Give others who are different from you a chance. Don't buy into a package deal of believing a certain way, or that people who think differently are enemies you need to shut down ... If you do, you may be missing out on a life-changing conversation, preventing yourself from learning a different perspective, or depriving yourself of so much more.'"

Gryboski has been following politics, and the way it intertwines with religion, for as long as he remembers.

"They say journalism is one of the most secular fields, that individual journalists are disproportionately unreligious. I thought I could help a little by shedding some light through fiction."

"For most of my life, I lived in Alexandria, across the street from the epicenter of American politics," Gryboski said. "While in high school, I used to regularly watch prime time cable news and watch the pundits and activists debate each other. From there, I would look up the groups that were represented and read their websites. I debated with non-like minded friends, usually in a civil manner. Actually, for teenagers and adolescents, I think we sometimes did a better job of being civil in our disagreements than many adults do today."

As for the kind of job he did with "A Spiral into Marvelous Light," Gryboski insists that only time will tell.

"People who have read my manuscript as of now have given me great feedback, but I really won't know whether or not I fulfilled my goal until the book has been out for awhile," he said. "I'm cautiously optimistic that I'm getting an important message across."
