“Hey, Macarena!” The “Motion is Lotion” Dance Troupe opens the Vinson Hall Talent Show – part of the 50th anniversary of the retirement community. Led by resident Midge Holmes, the dancers kicked things off with flair and had audience members dancing in the aisles.

Vinson Hall Retirement Community residents and staff add talent show to the facility’s 50th anniversary celebration.

How to celebrate 50 years of making a home for retired military officers and their families?

That was the question that leadership at Vinson Hall Retirement Community in McLean were asking themselves as that milestone approached. The answer? A Talent Show to showcase the lively spirit and joie de vivre contained within the complex on Old Dominion Road that offers independent and assisted living, as well as services for long-term, memory and rehabilitative care and wounded warrior transitional housing.

On Friday, April 5, more than 200 audience members packed the facility’s Kathy Martin Community Building Ballroom to enjoy the singing, dancing, musical performances and the comic antics of residents and Vinson Hall staff. The modest admission price of $10 helped support the Navy Marine Coast Guard Resident Foundation’s Innovation and Enhancement Fund.

“There really is a lot of talent on display here tonight,” said Vinson Hall CEO Libby Bush, just before it was “lights down and curtains up!” and the senior staffer had to prepare for her own moment in the spotlight.

Director of Facilities and Environmental Services Bob Polite served with aplomb as the evening’s emcee, introducing each act, sometimes taking part in the action, and always successfully coaxing the audience to let loose and join in, as well. Polite had them dancing in the aisles or their seats, as they were able, and singing along to a musical selection as varied as show tunes from “Annie Get Your Gun” or “The Pajama Game” to modern pop numbers.

The Vinson Voices sang several selections, including the “Vinson Hall Song.” Emcee Bob Polite stirs things up as he joins in on the top row.

VINSON HALL resident Midge Holmes and her “Motion is Lotion” dance troupe opened the show with an elegantly-costumed take on the “Macarena.”

Staffer Dante Stevenson was up next and did a well-received rendition of the Righteous Brothers “Unchained Melody,” followed by an accordion solo by resident Teri Gardenier, who explained that she had learned the music she would be playing as a child “oh, about 75 or 80 years ago!” on the mandolin, but was ready to give the medley of familiar tunes a try a la accordion. Not a bad decision, since the audience recognized each musical choice and either sang or hummed along.

At this point in the program, the senior directors of Vinson Hall wanted to prove that they could “bring it!” just like the residents, so they burst into the ballroom – running down the side and center aisles to take the stage and do their best to dance to Justin Timberlake’s “Can’t Stop the Feeling!”

It’s probably for the best that they chose retirement living administration as their careers, but their efforts still won lots of applause along with some hearty laughter.

More laughter greeted the next act – Midge Holmes, again, this time with her husband Chris Holmes, although he was unrecognizable in his cow costume while Midge performed a riotous yodelling number.

Director of Development Devon Meier and Stephanie Lawrence showed off their acting chops in a humorous skit about feuding friends, then it was a full stage once again for an enthusiastic dance to the “Electric Slide.”

The night’s biggest laughs were reserved, however, for the “Somewhat Synchronized Swimmers” – Chris Holmes (sans cow costume), Glenn Bratcher, Dick Holm, Jack Hannon, Peter Linn and Ron Musselwhite – performing a water ballet complete with an appearance by a shark who arrived on stage to the theme from “Jaws” to terrorize the swimmers.

THE SHOW TUNES were next, and the audience members didn’t hesitate to join in, singing “Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better,” and “Hernando’s Hideaway.” The principal singers were accompanied by the Vinson Voices choral group, who ended the show with the Vinson Hall Song, written by resident Beverly Moe who passed away, and sung by the chorus and all of the audience to the tune of the 1920s standard “Side by Side.”

When the applause had died down, it was time for the stars to greet their fans at a dessert and coffee bar and to accept their well-deserved accolades.

Although the residents of Vinson Hall often participate in creative events, this was the first major “Talent Show” production. “Who knows what we may have started here and what will be next,” wondered CEO Bush.

Vinson Hall was established in 1969, originally intended as a senior living community for Navy widows. With the support of the nonprofit Navy Marine Coast Guard Residence Foundation, the facility has grown over those 50 years to include all retired individuals and their families from all branches of military service and several government agencies, as well.

Exploring World War II Artifacts with Operation Footlocker

Students of BASIS Independent McLean's (BIM) advanced placement (AP) US history class got a hands-on lesson with the National World War II Museum traveling history exhibit called Operation Footlocker, which provides schools across the country a real-time opportunity to explore the history and lessons of World War II by studying the authentic artifacts contained within World War II footlocker. For more information on BASIS Independent McLean, visit

The AP US history class is led by Megan Floyd, BIM US history teacher, who is using the traveling exhibit to help supplement her World War II curriculum.

"Operation Footlocker gives students a chance to become more immersed in the World War II era. This hands-on learning solidifies all of our in-class discussion," said Floyd.

Footlocker

Each footlocker contains 15 actual artifacts from World War II, not reproductions. The footlocker that BIM received contained a vial of beach sand, war ration book and tokens, a Coca-Cola advertisement, 1944 high school yearbook, wartime license plate, wooden toy, U.S. Army garrison cap, U.S. Army field manual, "Yank" magazine, U.S. Army first aid packet, identification tags, a 1943 steel penny, U.S. Army German manual, U.S. Army-issued underwear and a cloth map. Footlockers also come with white cotton gloves for handling the artifacts and a teacher's manual that describes each object and includes directions for conducting artifact "reading" sessions. The footlocker program is recommended for grades 5 through 12 due to the fragile nature of some artifacts.

"We're grateful to the National World War II Museum for this fantastic learning opportunity that allows our students to touch, feel and see this moment in history with genuine artifacts," said Tiffany Conroy, head of school for BASIS Independent McLean of McLean.

Empowering Victims of Sexual Assault

Sexual assault awareness and prevention in Fairfax County.

BY SUPERVISOR JOHN C. COOK
BRADDOCK DISTRICT

April is sexual assault awareness month. This awareness month is especially relevant with the recent high-profile cases of sexual assault. These stories have taught us that anyone can be a victim of sexual assault. The crime does not discriminate against race, education, status, age or gender. This has started an important conversation among all of us about sexual assault and listening to victims. Fairfax County seeks to empower victims of sexual assault, prevent sexual assault through education, and provide comprehensive services to survivors.

Statistics vary, but many studies show as many as 1 in 4 women and 1 in 6 men will experience sexual violence in their lifetime. Sadly, only one third of these crimes are reported to law enforcement according to the Bureau of Justice Statistics. While Fairfax County is the safest jurisdiction of its size in the country, sexual violence is still an issue we face. The Fairfax County Police Department received 289 reports of sexual assault in 2017. Aside from prevention, Fairfax County is dedicated to encouraging victims to report the crimes committed against them so justice can be served.

The Department of Family Services' Domestic and Sexual Violence Services (DSVS) 24/7 Hotline (703-360-7273) is one of the resources that provides a safe place for victims of sexual assault. The confidential hotline connects victims or concerned bystanders with trained volunteers. The callers can speak openly to the volunteers who can give them crisis support and point them to the next best step. DSVS also provides counseling services, hospital accompaniment, advocacy services, housing and financial assistance. The hotline is separate from the police department, but they may encourage the victims to contact the police department and guide them through the process of reporting the crime.

The Fairfax County Police Department is highly trained to carefully interview victims and investigate the crime as thoroughly as possible to help them get justice. In fact, the department is co-hosting the second annual Northern Virginia Sex Crimes Investigators Conference this year to offer additional specialized training in sexual assault cases to local officers. Victims services are also provided by department staff to give "immediate and direct support and assistance to crime victims, their families and witnesses suffering emotionally, financially and physically."

There are several programs geared toward education, awareness, and sexual assault prevention. The County's Community and Engagement Services team offers several different informational courses and presentations on sexual assault awareness and prevention. One of these classes, called the HYPE (Healthy Youth Prevention Education) Project, teaches teens about intimate partner violence, sexual assault prevention, and healthy relationship skills through hands-on activities, multimedia, role-play exercises and facilitated discussions. Through programs like these we can comprehensively address the issue of sexual assault and come closer to ridding it from our society for good.

Need for Affordable Housing: 'Raging Five-alarm Fire'

BY KOFI ANNAN
PRESIDENT, FAIRFAX COUNTY NAACP

Transcript of planned testimony before the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Tuesday, April 9, 2019 at budget hearings.

Fairfax County is one of the most attractive places to live and work, not only in Northern Virginia, but throughout the region, and a big reason for that is our rich diversity. However, that diversity is being increasingly threatened by rising home prices and the lack of affordable housing in the region. The situation will be exacerbated by the arrival of Amazon, which is projected to bring an additional 25,000 employees — most of whom will make six-figure salaries. Demand is already increasing dramatically, which is pushing the almost 70,000 poor and working class people out of Fairfax County. According to the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors, the number of homes under contract rose by 70 percent over the last year. This means that fewer and fewer of our teachers, county staff, hospitality industry workers, nurses, and public safety officials will be able to live in the communities they serve. This means that the fewer and fewer of our young people will be able to leave the nest once they graduate high school or college. That means that fewer and fewer of our elderly population will be able to age in place without having to make unconscionable choices of paying to keep a roof over their heads or paying to put food on the table or purchasing medication. Up to 20,000 senior households and 10,000 disabled households are making these choices everyday as we speak. And this means that many people of color will also be forced to abandon their homes as our communities experience gentrification. Fifty percent of the county's African American community are currently categorized as housing insecure; and 50% of the County's homeless population are African American.

While the NAACP voted in favor of the Housing Commission's recommendation to add a minimum of 5,000 units over the next fifteen years, this problem cannot wait fifteen years, and 5,000 units would not come close to addressing the actual current need which is 30,000 units, much less the projected need fifteen years from now. The problem of affordable housing is becoming similar to a raging five-alarm fire, but unfortunately the county's approach has been to tackle it with a garden hose instead of giving it the priority attention it truly deserves.

Therefore, we strongly urges the Board of Supervisors to increase funding for the Housing Trust Fund in the 2020 Budget by exploring inefficiencies in other programs and/or include an additional half-penny real estate tax in this year's budget. These funds should be used to stimulate new investment in new market affordable units, and preserve existing ones. Also, beginning in FY2021, approve an annual appropriation of $50 million for the County's Housing Trust Fund. The argument that there is already unused money in the Trust Fund is also unacceptable, and the county should address this immediately to encourage more private investment.

In a related matter, we applaud the county for funding efforts to investigate real estate steering and discrimination. The 2017 Office of Human Rights and Equity Programs report found that because of past discriminatory practices in housing, Fairfax County does not have the racial distribution in housing that would be present in a free housing market. These studies should begin to address this issue.

Next we would like to revisit the issue of early childhood education. There are more than 17,000 children from low-income families eligible for county-subsidized pre-K education who are not receiving it with over 4,000 currently wait-listed. Last year the county only provided funding for an additional 36 children; but in response to our requests to do more, the county claimed it would conduct a study to learn the full scope of the problem and cost to implement universal pre-K. Unfortunately, as of today the county has neither followed-through with the promised study nor funded a meaningful increase for the known children. This year the county is funding the exact same increase as it did last year - 36. Therefore we are reiterating our call for the county to commit necessary resources to enroll at least 300 low-income children in pre-K in 2020 and to devise a long-term plan to provide for at least 2,000 children over the next five years.

We applaud and support the plan to fund the purchase and implementation of police body worn cameras using the funds that were set aside to implement the recommendations of the Ad-Hoc Police Practices and Review Commission. This would be a significant step towards bringing the Fairfax County Police Department on par with other local and regional departments. As one of the largest in the country, it's important that our department remains a leader in innovation, transparency, and public accountability.

Sixth Graders Participate on Ethics Day

The Safe Community Coalition recently welcomed more than 700 sixth graders from seven area schools at its annual Sixth-Grade Ethics Days. The symposium covered challenging situations faced by many pre-teens – scenarios involving issues like cheating, bullying, and stealing – and taught students how to resolve these moral dilemmas ethically using a Could, Should, Would model. This year the SCC is partnered with the Anti-Defamation League to present a special section on being an ally in a bullying situation.

“The goal of the program is to help young people understand the meaning of ethics and ethical decision making,” said SCC President Elect Elizabeth Hale. “We are proud to partner with our local elementary schools, local sponsors, and with the Anti-Defamation League to plant the seeds of making good choices and being kind to all.”

The program was held at Holy Trinity Church and took place on half-days each Friday in March. Sixth graders from every elementary school that feeds into McLean and Langley High Schools, along with sixth graders from private schools in the same service area, are invited to participate in Ethics Day.

Dr. Melissa Sporn guides sixth graders from Churchill Road and Timber Lane elementary schools in making ethical decisions.

Local financial sponsors of Ethics Day include the McLean Rotary Club, the McLean Community Foundation, and the Zavela Foundation.

The mission of the Safe Community Coalition (SCC) is to provide programs and resources to reduce stress, foster mental wellness, and empower youth to thrive and make responsible choices about their health and safety. Visit the SCC’s website at mcleanscc.org.

Stylish Outdoor Living Wins 'Contractor of the Year'

Dreaming of making the most of outdoor living? Look at this.

BY JOHN BYRD

An outdoor living addition to Chateau-style residence in Oakton has won a "Contractor of the Year" grand award for Sun Design Remodeling Specialists.

The comprehensive design — which combines a screened porch, an outdoor kitchen and dining area, a hot tub and a stone fireplace in a cleverly integrated, multi-level layout— completes the rear elevation of the 9,500 square foot custom home the owners had built in 2001. The remodel to the home of Larry and Lisa Rice was named best "Residential Design/Outdoor Living Solution for $60,000 and over" by the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI) metro DC chapter.

"We wanted an indoor/outdoor gathering place that would bring the whole family together," says Lisa, 56, a retired mother of teenage twins. "The rear of the house was originally conceived as a walk-out, but I realized later that I didn't want high decks. Once I saw the design problem more clearly, I was simply looking for a better set of options — albeit, ones I couldn't fully envision." Rice credits Craig Durosko, chairman and founder of Sun Design, with re-awakening her enthusiasm for the project by identifying and prioritizing its primary components.

"Craig got our vision" Lisa says. "It was his attention to our goals that revived my interest in moving forward."

In the end, the plan appreciably responds to the Rice family's passion for indoor-outdoor living.

Jesse Christian, 85, smacks a deep fly ball during an NVSS game.

Still in the Game

‘Super seniors’ head out to softball fields across the county for a dose of the best anti-aging remedy around.

BY KAREN NAPPI

Have you ever dreamt of finding a magic potion to slow down the aging process? Well, there are more than 80 seniors who are 80+ years old in Fairfax County that seem to have done just that. But for them, the potion doesn’t come in a bottle. Instead, it comes from a diamond — a softball diamond.

TWICE A WEEK from April to November, many of these “super seniors” head out to softball fields across the county for a dose of the best anti-aging remedy around. The 81 men and women are members of the Northern Virginia Senior Softball (NVSS) league, a 500-member, all-volunteer organization that has been around since 1980 and whose goal is to promote good health, sportsmanship, fellowship and fun. NVSS players range in age from 40 (women) or 50 (men) to 94, but it’s the super seniors who seem to really benefit.

Tony Giannini, 82, lives in Ashburn and started playing NVSS softball 23 years ago. Today, he’s still going strong. He and Springfield resident Larry Scarlata, who’s 80, play in the league’s toughest division, alongside several teammates who are young enough to be their kids. Both Tony, an outfielder-turned-pitcher, and Larry, a third baseman, credit softball for keeping them healthy and strong. Larry says softball plus a stretching program have helped him avoid surgery for a back problem that began nearly 40 years ago. Keeping active is the key, they both say, and the research backs them up. According to the Centers for Disease Control, regular physical activity can reduce a host of risks: falling and fractures, coronary heart disease, colon cancer, diabetes, anxiety and depression, and joint swelling and pain associated with arthritis. Studies also suggest a lower risk of dementia in physically active individuals.

Because softball involves throwing, catching, bending and running, it’s really a whole-body workout, covering the four key types of exercise recommended by health professionals: balance, flexibility, strength and endurance.

Since not every senior is in the same shape, NVSS divides players into three leagues based on an initial assessment. That way, players are grouped with others of similar ability, regardless of age. “We all have issues — none of us can run as fast or throw as hard as we used to,” says Jesse Christian, an 85-year-old outfielder from Arlington. “But we love being active — that’s the main thing.”

That sentiment is echoed by George and Beth Hersey, 81 and 83 respectively.

The couple, who live in Great Falls, rarely miss a game. “Playing softball keeps you young,” says George.

Beth Hersey, who has managed an NVSS team for the last 20 years, said, “I don’t think we have had anything more serious than a strain or sprain in all the years we’ve been playing. We know that every Tuesday and Thursday morning, Spring ‘til Fall, we’ll be outside with friends, playing and having a great time.” The Herses don’t stop playing when the season ends; they conduct indoor softball training sessions for other NVSS members at the Dulles SportsPlex from December through March.

NVSS also offers several indoor training sessions at the Fairfax SportsPlex in Springfield during the off-season. One of those weekly sessions is run by 86-year-old Dave Scheele, a long-time shortstop who joined the league at age 53. “I started playing softball as a way to relieve stress,” he says. “My wife was battling breast cancer at the time and softball gave me something else to focus on for a few hours a week.” Scheele, who lives in Springfield, has made many, many friends through the sport and says NVSS has been “a wonderful part of my retirement. I can’t imagine how I would’ve handled it without softball.”

Scheele and the others know firsthand that participation in a team sport like softball can combat the feelings of isolation and low self-worth that may crop up as we age.

According to the Jan/Feb AARP Bulletin, an analysis of data collected from 1.2 million adults found that team sports offered the most mental health benefits from exercise. Sports increase self-esteem; seeing positive results from playing as part of a team can improve morale and foster a greater sense of purpose.

THAT’S A BIG PART of why Alexandria resident Harvey Wenick, 82, still plays. He calls the camaraderie the best part. “Meeting other seniors and having teammates is just great,” says the lefty third-baseman. “I played golf and tennis as an adult, but I didn’t enjoy them all that much. A friend suggested I try NVSS and I was hooked immediately. It’s so much fun — playing softball makes me feel like a kid again.”

For Harvey, and for the other 80 NVSS members who are over 80, that feeling is as close to a magic potion as they’re likely to ever find.

Allstate Volunteers, Assistance League Join Forces to Provide Food for Kids

PHOTO CONTRIBUTED

Allstate Insurance Company recently held its first Capital Regional Advisory Board meeting of 2019. Assistance League of Northern Virginia was pleased that its Weekend Food for Kids program was once again featured as Allstate's volunteer service activity.

Lynn Barron and Karen Amster, board members from the Assistance League, an all-volunteer nonprofit, were invited to speak about Assistance League's program that decreases childhood hunger and other philanthropic programs that benefit low-income children in Northern Virginia. Sharee Merenov, Allstate Capital Region division manager, corporate relations, coordinated the resources and purchased the nonperishable food items to support The Allstate Foundation Helping Hands in the Community group activity.

A team of 40 Allstate volunteers and seven Assistance League volunteers packed nearly 500 bags of food for children who might otherwise go hungry on weekends.

Partnering with Allstate allowed Assistance League to satisfy an immediate need for food assistance at two Title I elementary schools not currently supported by the food program.

Thanks go to Shaundra Turner Jones, Allstate Capital Region senior corporate relations manager, Robert Becker, Allstate Capital Region field senior vice

As It Has So Happened

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

So far, four bi-weekly immunotherapy-infusions into my initial non-chemotherapy experience, per the encouraging results from my CT scan in mid March, I remain optimistic but cautiously neutral as I prepare to infuse three more times before my next scan in mid May.

However I feel, and however I've felt, ultimately the CT scan – and to a lesser degree – my lab results, will do the talking, so to speak. What it will say will be interpreted by my oncologist who in turn will explain/summarize it to us in person a week or so after the scan.

That's when I'll know how I'm doing. And how I'm doing of course means how much longer I'll be living. A more stressful appointment you can't imagine.

What I'm sure you can imagine is how high my blood pressure will be as we sit in the examining room waiting for my oncologist to knock on the door asking if it's OK to come in.

And when he comes in, he usually smiles and shakes our hands and then immediately sits behind the computer where he proceeds to ask the standard health- and fitness-type questions. Then he might even examine me (not all the time – as he has said, the scan tells him most of what he needs to know) before he addresses the elephant in the room (metaphorically speaking, although I have gained a few pounds).

Dina and I don't exactly hold hands but we are holding our collective breath as we prepare to hang on his every syllable. This exchange of pleasantries happens every eight weeks or so. In the interim, I am encouraged to email my oncologist with any questions or concerns, particularly if new symptoms develop and persist for two to three weeks.

Well, I did have something happening to me the other Saturday, the day after my last immunotherapy infusion which, treatment-to-date, had not happened.

When I awoke that morning, I was unable to summon up the strength/energy to get out of bed. It felt similar to my early days of heavy-duty chemotherapy, when due to the destruction of your red blood cells (and white cells, too), you can barely move. There was no pain, but neither was there any energy.

Simply put: the tank was empty.

I could barely roll over in bed, let alone get up, walk downstairs and feed the cats. This kind of extreme post-immunotherapy fatigue was a first. All previous post-immunotherapy Saturdays were not the least bit similar or different than any other day.

I did not, nor have I since, emailed my oncologist with any of these details. At this juncture, I consider it an aberration and not worthy of an overreaction.

For all I know, to invoke an old punchline, my underwear was too tight.

As such, I will wait until my next infusions and see if the following morning follows an old or new pattern. If it's new, I will email my oncologist.

It's ironic that this situation occurred a few days after last week's column "It's Not As If My Life Depends On It" published. The content of which was my anxiety concerning emailing my oncologist about new symptoms/side effects for fear that in so doing, my oncologist would be for stopping my treatment. And in stopping my treatment, there is then nothing stopping the cancer.

This is some of what I've heard over the years; it's not so much the cancer that gets you as it is the side effects which cause the treatment to have to stop which then enables the cancer to then do what it most horrifyingly does (you'll note I didn't say inevitably).

But I'm not an alarmist, nor an "overreactionist," (to make up a word as I so often do), I've survived 10+ years by being neither.

I try to go about my cancer business as any other and live life as normally – for me – as possible. I am not gloom and doom and for me, the glass is always half full. And even though I'm in the middle of a big negative, I'm still positive.

After all, I'm a member of Red Sox Nation; hope forever springs eternal.
