The Middle Eastern Food Festival in McLean on Labor Day weekend has been traditionally hosted by Holy Transfiguration Melkite Greek-Catholic Church. This festival has been on for 26 years. Every year, more and more people come here to enjoy Mediterranean food, music, and dances. Once you come here, you will be taken in by the charm of this place.

"We make the food, we sell the food, and our volunteers serve the food," Protodeacon David Baroody explained. "The food is a nice thing, but that's not the reason we do it. We do it to introduce ourselves and welcome visitors from the community. We want people to learn about us."

The origins of the Melkite Greek Catholic Church go back to the traditions of the Ancient Near East. The Church was serving delicious Eastern Mediterranean food such as Beef Shawarma, Beef and Chicken Kebabs, and Falafel. Along with the tours organized by the Church, it was a fascinating way to learn more about the culture and traditions of the Melkite Greek Catholic Church.

The Festival's special is a Roast Lamb Dinner. The waiting line for this dish stretches to the entrance. It hasn't been without the Dabke, a traditional Arab folk dance performed at the wedding or joyous celebrations, and festivals. Catchy rhythms quickly captivated everyone. Traditional desserts like baklava, maamoul, namoura, or ghraybeh were some of the mouthwatering pastries available throughout the weekend.

You can't imagine how many kinds of baklava there are — stuffed with walnuts, pistachios, or pecans; small and large, squares or round shapes. The traditional desserts were accompanied by cookies, brownies and fudge.

Jennette Tahhan Leiva, a volunteer at the Food Festival, shared that the Church takes a special place in her life. She has been attending this church since she was a child. Her grandparents helped to start this church. Her parents, her sister, she herself was married here.

"My parents and other families ran the outside grilling section of the festival," she said. "As my parents are getting older, they passed down the tradition to us. For the last 6 years, my husband and I have been taken over this tradition. My husband is in charge of meat and grilling. I am responsible for making sure we have everything we need for the process."

For the families with kids, the festival offered a playground with a moon bounce, face painting, and pony rides. Nearby, there was a market section that sells olive oil, books, and icons, oriental jewelry, traditional dresses, and scarfs.

Washington D.C. to Tokyo in Under Five Hours

BY EVA WILLIAMS-SIGUENZA

Not exactly, but this summer I felt as if I spent two weeks in Japan without even leaving the East coast.

This opportunity was High School Diplomats (HSD), which is a program hosted at Princeton University for 40 US and 40 Japanese students to exchange cultural knowledge and ideas. Using games, diplomatic discussions, activities, and even food, I gained a deeper understanding of not only another culture but also of myself and my place in the world. It's a chance to meet someone on the other side of the world that you would have never met otherwise.

My High School Diplomats experience began when my family and I hosted two Japanese students, Honatsu and Rina, for three days. We went shopping at Tysons Corner Mall, bought all the American snacks they could possibly fit in their luggage, and took a painting class. I immediately formed a tight bond with both of them and we learned about each other's cultures along the way. I highly recommend anyone in Northern Virginia who applies to participate in Homestay Weekend, as it gave me a taste of what the rest of my summer would be like.

Two weeks later, we reunited at Princeton for the upcoming ten-day program. In those ten days, my mindset shifted to a more globally understanding one and I began to see both cultures in a new light. I am so grateful that I was able to have an international experience without leaving the country. In this sense, High School Diplomats is truly unique. I met so many interesting people with whom I shared more similarities than differences. The High School Diplomats staff led us through several activities, such as a Bunka No Hi Culture and Earth Day festivals. I will never forget all the impromptu dance parties we had, the insightful diplomatic talks or the Japanese language classes.

High School Diplomats is one of the most rewarding things I have ever done. It's also one of the most challenging, which is why it's important to go in with an open mindset ready to absorb anything and everything. I can't thank HSD enough for helping me figure out who I am and for teaching me about true friendship even if it is 6000 miles away.

Sophomore and Junior students from all over the United States can apply starting Sept. 15 until Jan. 8 at www.highschooldiplomats.com and clicking the Application Information button at the bottom of the article. After the application deadline, selected students will be contacted for an interview as the second portion of the process. Contact the program director, Celine Zapolski, with any questions about the program at celinezapolski@highschooldiplomats.com.

Start planning today your opportunity to expand your horizons, have the experience of a lifetime, and make long-lasting friends.

Eva Williams-Siguenza lives in Chantilly and attends St. Paul VI Catholic High School in Fairfax City.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Letter to Friends and Neighbors

To te Editor:

I've written to you before and I didn't think I could do it again. You see, after fighting so hard, my sister lost her battle with ovarian cancer last year. I feel her loss every day. As hard as it is to talk about, I keep remembering something she said to me after she was diagnosed. She was shocked that two educated women (she was a physician) were so unaware of the risk of ovarian cancer. As we shared her story with friends and colleagues, we discovered that we weren't the only ones unaware of this killer. She kept telling me that we had to warn everyone. While we fought to keep her alive, we worked hard to raise awareness and to make people comfortable talking about reproductive health and ovaries.

To honor a beautiful warrior who wanted to spare anyone else's family from the pain we have endured, I would like to share our story again as September is ovarian cancer awareness month.

Denise was one of the 85 percent of women who are diagnosed after the cancer has metastasized because the symptoms are so vague. There is no accurate screening or early detection test for ovarian cancer. Nothing done during our annual trips to the gynecologist is checking us for ovarian cancer. By the time Denise was diagnosed, the cancer had spread well beyond her abdomen. My sister was an athletic, very active person until she was told she had stage IV ovarian cancer. Most people don't realize that ovarian cancer is only the 11th most common cancer among women, but is the fifth leading cause of cancer death among women.

I am calling on all of you to help me honor Denise. Pay attention to your own bodies and be aware of changes. Don't do what most of us do and ignore them as we rush about our busy lives. If you feel any of the following: bloating that is persistent; eating less and feeling fuller; abdominal pain; urinary symptoms; please be proactive, see your gynecologist, ask for a transvaginal ultrasound; a pelvic/rectal exam; and a CA-125 blood test.

Help me spread the word during September by telling all the women in your lives about the risk of ovarian cancer.

Preserving Area's Equestrian Culture

To the Editor:

The Northwest suburbs of Washington DC hugging the Potomac River have always been known for being horse friendly. For many years, horses, horse properties and equestrian events were commonplace. Over the past decade, this equestrian culture has come under pressure as the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors continues to increase property taxes and approve higher density real estate development.

As new homeowners join the community, they are increasingly less informed of this equestrian heritage and may question the need to have horse friendly parks, trails and road crossings. By no means have horses left Great Falls and boarding opportunities are in high demand. All the more reason to protect Turner Farm as an equestrian park and be thankful for events such as the one that took place this past weekend – the Summer Horse Trials, Combined Test, and Dressage Show. Not only does it represent one of the many horse shows at Turner Farm over the course of any given year, it brings the equestrian community together and raises needed money for park maintenance. It also provides a wonderful opportunity for beginner and novice riders to participate in an organized event in a friendly and supportive environment. Now in its fifth year, riders and spectators alike look forward to the event that draws hundreds to Turner Farm from surrounding communities. This all volunteer event runs smoothly, including wonderful support from Great Falls Volunteer Fire and Rescue who are present maintaining a watchful eye on horse and rider safety. Thank you to Kristin Parisot and Wendy Masemer for your vision and leadership. The equestrian community needs more passionate leaders such as yourself to ensure that our community never forgets why Turner Farm is here, that the park is well utilized by the equestrian community and why this community invests so greatly to ensure it is maintained and preserved for future generations.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Take a quick scan of most yoga classes at East Meets West Yoga Studio in Vienna, Virginia and you're likely to see the mats being occupied primarily by women. That is changing, says studio owner Dawn Curtis. A recent Harris study shows that while women make up more than 70% of yoga practitioners, the number of men has increased from 4 million to ten million over the last 7 years. Practitioners are working to raise that number even higher this September - which is National Yoga Month - by emphasizing the health benefits for men. "We've seen an increase of men in yoga classes, but also an increase in the number of male yoga teachers and men who are coming into our yoga teacher training program," said Curtis. "We've had a lot of older men of the Boomer age taking classes because they're realizing that the exercise routine that they've been doing hasn't increased their flexibility." Because yoga classes often begin with an inward focus, those who practice it might be more inclined to develop body mindfulness off-the-mat. Exercising bodily-awareness during activities such as weight lifting can help prevent injury. "Breathing and body awareness can both be gateways to better self-awareness....," said Christian Elliot, owner, TRUE Whole Human. "Everything about modern convenience is geared toward making it easier for you to meet your basic needs without moving," continued Elliot. "As we age, often what happens is we move less, thus becoming stiff." "Yoga makes you more flexible and your muscles and joints are more lubricated, you're less prone to injury," added Curtis. The practice's reputation as stress reliever is credited with the uptick in male students. "I've seen men use yoga as a stress management tool," said Curtis. "Men don't always realize how stressed they until they start talking yoga classes. Anytime you're doing yoga you're going to have stress management and relief. "Just one yoga class has proven to lower cortisol [stress] levels," added Luann Fulbright, Director, Dream Yoga Studio & Wellness Center in McLean. "I also have worked privately with many students on anxiety and panic disorders with success. This is a dominant reason folks come to yoga." Improvement in sleep is another asset to be gained from adding a yoga practice to one's life, says Curtis. "Yoga can lead to better sleep patterns because the mental stress that we have is held within the body," said Curtis. "Once that's released you can relax, fall asleep and stay asleep." An overall sense of well-being is subtle, but definite benefit of yoga, advises Curtis. "Yoga provides more balance, men typically musical their way through things which means over-activity," she said. "Yoga teaches them to slow down and not push their way through. I often hear people say, 'Yoga makes me a better person'. That's because they're less reactive because they aren't feeling stressed. You have to do it on a regular basis though to benefit from it."

McLean Teens Create Their Own Job Market

Three McLean High School students start a business helping teens to find a job around the community. Now they have more than 200 teens available to work.

BY NADEZHDA SHULGA
THE CONNECTION

It is very common for teens to get a job to pay for expenses like clothes and entertainment. Traditionally, the neighbors offer jobs for kids such as babysitting, dog walking, mowing lawns, shoveling snow or weeding. To get an odd job, you have to go around your neighborhood and knock on doors asking, "Is there anything I can help you with?" Not all teens are brave enough to do this. To help teens earn some cash, McLean High School students Ben Jeannot, Jack Lannin, and Quin Frew started a business that connects local teenagers with homeowners who are looking for yard work done.

"When we were sixth graders we were walking around the neighborhood and asking people who need their driveway shoveled or lawn mowed," Quin Frew shares their story. "I hated asking about that because I wouldn't know if they were going to pay me or not. There were several times when people gave me hot chocolate or something like that. It was a guessing game. Now, with TeenServ, kids know they're getting paid a certain amount to go do some work. Instead of knocking on the neighbor's door and receiving - or not - $10, now they could make $30."

Ben Jeannot explains how his friends and he decided to start the business.

"Every year, all three of us coach kids to swim at our local pool. We wanted to find another way to earn money. We were thinking about how to make money and, at the same time, how to benefit people who just like us are unable to get a full-time job because of constantly changing schedules. We came up with the idea of outdoor work. That's what teenagers have been known to do in the past. A lot of people actually do enjoy hiring teenagers because they feel like they're giving back to the community."

"We set up a website where we connect local teenagers with homeowners who need mowing lawns, shoveling snow, weeding, mulching, or planting," Jack Lannin joins the conversation.

"We are very passionate about computers. At school, we all take a computer science class. In addition, this summer Ben taught himself how to code because he has been working on TeenServ app," Jack said. "In the future, we are going to make it similar to an Uber concept. Teens are considered independent contractors. They get notified of a new job posting and can choose to accept a job."

Once the job is done, customers are billed through PayPal. TeenServ keeps 20 percent of the price and the rest goes to the person who did the job.

Currently, the owners don't consider any company profit to be their salary. They reinvest the profits back into the business to improve service and expand operations.

McLean and neighboring towns are the first TeenServ currently operate in. They plan to expand to Vienna, Fairfax, and Springfield. The plan is to create a network of local branches throughout the country.

For now, TeenServ accepts only outdoor jobs to take away the potential dangers of going inside a customer's house. The team is working hard on making the service absolutely safe and secure. With time, the range of services will be extended to cover indoor jobs, such as tutoring, dog sitting, and babysitting.

Next year Ben and Quin are going to college to study business. They will run the company remotely. "That's the beauty of it being an online service and us not having to physically be here to do the job," said Ben. They both believe that experience gained in TeenServ will ultimately pay off in future endeavors.

Something or Nothing

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As you can imagine – or read every week in this space, my health, especially considering that my stage IV non-small lung cancer is incurable/"terminal," is top of mind. (If truth be told, it's middle of mind, bottom of mind and every other mind in between and all around.)

That being said – repeatedly, I am prone to exaggerate the significance of seemingly unrelated peculiarities and draw them into my cancer "centricity" without any facts to support them. Though I feel fine-ish, mostly, (the previous weeks' columns "Barbasoul" and "Side Splitting But Not Very Funny" notwithstanding), there are a number of things in my life which aren't doing as fine and have given me pause for this column.

First and foremost is Chino, one of our two diabetic cats ("The Diabetic Duo" as I call him and his brother, Biscuit) is now up to 14 units of insulin per day and is a shell of his former self, literally. His appetite remains good but he's confined in the kitchen because he doesn't seem particularly interested or aware of his litter box. His co-diagnosee Biscuit, has had the complete opposite reaction to his medicine. He's down to two units a day and appears quite himself. He's free to roam around and seems quite clear about the reason for the multiple litter boxes located throughout the house.

Unfortunately, Chino is slowly getting worse and despite following doctor's orders and feeding him prescription food, nothing really seems to be stemming the tide.

The rest of the examples I'm about to give pale in comparison to Chino's situation but in the aggregate, they represent a pattern that's making me nervous.

My inherited model-year-2000 Honda Accord is most definitely showing its age and may very well be nearing the end of its useful life. I have given up trying to make the necessary repairs suggested by the multiple idiot lights illuminating my dashboard. As determined as I am to ignore them, the different sizes, shapes and colors of the various lights/symbols are drawing me ever closer to the wear and tear they represent. I fear the worst, as with Chino.

Now into a more mundane world, a world in which technology has ensnared us. What would we do without the various hand-held devices with which most of us are all too familiar? I'm getting regular messages that unless I act accordingly, I'm about to find out.

My museum-piece flip phone is dying. It won't hold a battery charge for nearly as long as it used to. Either I'm speaking into it or I'm speaking at it because I only have one bar and I need to charge it. As a result, it's become unreliable and a bit of a bother. If it had any legs, it would be on its last ones.

The battery-operated key fob for my car has recently advised me that it too is dying and, unless I make the necessary battery replacement, it will no longer start my car. Do I really need my key fob communicating with me? A metal key never bothered me with such trivialities and so long as I was inserting it into the car to which it was mated, I was usually able to reach my intended target – without any backtalk.

Finally, I've been receiving messages on my television that the remote control is unhappy and also needs a battery replacement and unless I respond, it too will fade into nothingness and I'll be staring at a blank screen. I don't mind a smart TV but I do object to one that persists in its demands.

All these elements, crucial in their own way, intersecting with my cancer life at the same time and all seemingly headed in the same direction: south.

I can ignore and compartmentalize some things, but I can't ignore and compartmentalize all things. After all, as the old joke "punchlines:" I gave you lots of warnings.
