Fairfax County

No More Curbside Pickup for Glass

Residents will have to take their glass bottles and jars to a purple bin.

> By Mercia Hobson The Connection

n Oct. 1, Fairfax County announced it will no longer accept glass bottles and jars in curbside recycling bins. The county decided to make the announcement after consulting with private recycling sorting centers and Covanta Fairfax, Inc., which operates the waste-to-energy plant. With the elimination of glass jars and containers from its single-stream curbside program, the county provided options for glass containers.

"Residents should reuse glass containers or bring them to purple, glass-only recycling containers located throughout the region. If this is not possible, glass should be placed in the trash," said Fairfax County in its post.

Glass items not accepted included lamps, light bulbs, ceramics, porcelain, mirrors, windows and sheet glass.

Glass collected from the purple containers will be delivered to the only glass processing plant in the area, the I-95 landfill complex in Lorton.

When residents deliver used glass containers to purple, glass-only recycling containers, that glass is crushed and reused in county projects. Glass processed in Lorton is pulverized. It has been tested and reused in place of quarried gravel as bedding and fill construction projects.

For years, most glass has passed through the recycling process as residue, or waste. Some of the glass is applied as landfill cover, an approved use by the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality, but most of it is simply landfilled with other unrecyclable waste. Broken glass should be packaged into a rigid container, labeled and set out with trash for disposal. Intact glass windows, sliding doors, glass sheets and mirrors can be taken to the I-66 Transfer Station and I-95 Landfill Complex for disposal.

The county forewarned Feb. 15, 2019 that it was encountering many problems with glass in its singlestream recycling. When glass comingled with other materials in the County's single-stream recycling program, it often broke during truck collection and transport to material recovery centers. The broken glass mixed with other more valuable recycled items such as cardboard and metals and contaminated them, lowering their scrap value and making them more challenging to sell in the marketplace.

Compounding the problem, approximately two years ago, China, the largest consumer for recycled materials, imposed stricter import standards on the quality of recycled content it accepted. Also, the additional heavy weight of broken glass when intermixed with other recyclables presented extra costs when transporting the mixed materials. The broken, abrasive glass also damaged machinery.

Ten other states have created container deposit laws or so-called "bottle bills." Under a bottle bill system, when you purchase a beverage container, you pay an additional deposit amount (usually 5 or 10 cents per container), which is added to the cost of the product. Once the product has been consumed, you take the empty container to a redemption center where you receive your deposit back.

More than Half Deer-Vehicle Crashes Occur October to December

Fall is breeding season for deer and you can expect to see more of them on our roads. Please be aware that deer are unpredictable and crashes with them are a safety concern.

From 2015 through 2018, there have been 244 deer involved car accidents in Fairfax County. Over half of those crashes occurred during the months of October, November and December. Deer are most active before sunrise to mid-morning, as well as dusk to early evening. This is also the time when many of us are headed to and from work or school.

Motorists should pay attention, drive carefully and remember these safety tips:

✤ Always wear your seat belt

Drive the posted speed limit.
Do not text and drive. Avoid distractions!

• Watch for eyes shine along roadsides. If you see one deer, it is likely that there are others nearby.

♦ Use high beams as traffic allows to spot deer further away. Be careful not to disrupt oncoming cars.

If a deer is stopped in the roadway, slow down and flash

Fall is breeding season for deeryour headlights. Deer can becomend you can expect to see more ofmesmerized or blinded by brightnem on our roads. Please besteady lights.

Slow down or stop if necessary to avoid hitting a deer but you should never swerve out of the lane to miss one. A crash with another car or anything along the roadside is likely to be more serious.

Take your foot off the brake at the time of a crash. This reduces the chance of a deer crashing through a windshield or windows when hit.

If you get into a crash with a deer, try to move your car off the road and out of traffic.

If your car is immobilized in the roadway, turn on your flashers and immediately call police. Wait at a safe spot off the road.

Rely on your own senses. Never depend on hood whistles, car horns or other devices to scare deer out of your path.

Pay attention to deer crossing signs and be careful in areas where deer are known to travel.

If a deer is injured or killed, immediately report the crash to us on our non-emergency line at 703-691-2131.

ore than 700 people turned out for the 4th Annual Walk to Bust Cancer on Oct. 6 at Fort Hunt Park to raise awareness and funds for the National Breast Cancer Foundation.

Money raised by this event goes directly to help needy women and their families in the metropolitan area to get screenings, genetic testing, and breast cancer services. This helps women who have no insurance or are under-insured and don't have the financial means to get the screening or care they require.

According to the Breast Center Foundation women in this region have a high rate of late stage breast cancer.

few of the area's top interior designers were tapped to transform a grand home into a showcase house to raise money for charity. Designers Quintece Hill-Mattauszek of Studio Q Designs, Rhonald Angelo of Rhonald Angelo Interiors and Sheryl McLean of McLean and Tircuit Designs will unleash their collective creative talent to create a library, a teenage girl's bedroom and a lounge space for a family of six.

"I envision this to be a sophisticated ... entertaining space, but not necessarily a man-cave," said Alexandria-based Hill-Mattauszek, who used vintage finds to bring-to life 'The Boys' Club," the space she was tasked with transforming. "I envision poker nights [and] Oscar parties."

"I designed the library for how a family of six will actually function within it," said Angelo. "New walnut flooring and paint changed the look. The room felt unbalanced beforehand, which I corrected in the final design."

Sheryl McLean of Bethesda, Md. added bold artwork and vibrant colors to the home's sitting room.

OPINION Capstone to Four-Years of Police Reform

By Phil Niedzielski-Eichner and Adrian L. Steel Jr.

ust in time for the Oct. 8 fourth anniversary of the 2015 release of the Fairfax County Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission Final Report, the Board of Supervisors approved full implementation of body worn cameras (BWC) by the Fairfax County Police Department (FCPD). This is one of the Commission's most significant and consequential recommendations. While a potential aid to criminal prosecution, the body worn camera's equally important contribution is to foster greater transparency and accountability of all parties during the interactions of the police with the public. Full implementation will begin in May 2020 and take three years to phase in countywide.

The Board's decision followed the completion of a 2018 pilot study chartered by Police Chief Edwin C. Roessler Jr. and conducted by the American University, which found that there was "... overwhelming support among community members for the widespread adoption of body worn cameras...." and "...consensus among the officers involved in the pilot that body worn cameras will increase the gathering of evidence and help settle complaints against officers."

The Board's decision is a fitting capstone to a four-year successful effort by the Board to oversee the transformation of the Police Department from one that was excellent to now being on a clear path to becoming "best in class."

The Commission's formation by the Board of Supervisors followed a few high-profile police use of force incidents, with the ultimate catalyst being the August 2013 shooting death of unarmed Springfield resident John Geer in his doorway.

Board Chair Bulova formed the Ad Hoc Commission and her office closely oversaw the Commission's work over an intensive fivemonth period in 2015. Charged with "...assessing the (Fairfax County) Police Department's performance against national best practices," the Commission made more than 200 recommendations for strengthening the public's trust and confidence in the Department.

Public Safety Committee Chair Supervisor John Cook combined forces with Board Chair Bulova and Chief Roessler to drive the Board and Police Department to embrace the Ad Hoc Commission's recommendations. As they complete their many years of service to our community, Bulova's and Cook's police-reform efforts will certainly be a key legacy.

The significant reforms for which all can be proud will increase police accountability, divert those who suffer from mental illness into treatment rather than incarceration, reduce use-of-force injuries and deaths, open public access to incident information, and engender public confidence.

Body worn cameras will now complement the dashboard cameras mounted in each FCPD patrol vehicle. The Department's policy enshrines sanctity of human life as an organizing principle, with de-escalation as the strategy of first resort when confronted with a threat rather than the use of force. Constraints and strengthened supervisory oversight are now in place on police use of vehicle pursuit. "Diversion First" offers alternatives to incarceration for people with mental illness or developmental disabilities.

An Independent Police Auditor (IPA) automatically reviews investigations of death or serious injury cases as well as uses of force when a citizen complaint is filed. A Civilian Review Panel reviews investigations of civilian complaints regarding "abuse of authority" or "serious misconduct" by an FCPD officer and holds public forums to hear from the community. Policies regarding release of information provide for increased public visibility into the Department's daily activities and performance, with a predisposition to disclose information, regardless of incident controversy. Intense efforts are underway to recruit talented personnel that better reflect Fairfax County's population diversity.

Sustained effort and energy are still required to move decades-old engrained practices into a "new normal." Further, those who are "bestin-class" constantly seek to improve.

Tough questions still need to be asked as the County implements body worn cameras. Should an agency other than the Department, for example, control access to the massive amount of data to be collected? Should the IPA or an independent third party audit the program? Heightened expectations alone should give our policymakers pause, particularly when we know that no technology deployment is mistake and error free. Not collecting video data during a controversial use of force inci-erate drought, including Fairfax County, while some areas west and south of Richmond are now in a severe drought. The good news is that the folks that manage our water here in Fairfax have painstakingly planned ahead for current and future drought episodes, so don't be afraid to continue using your water as needed, especially to drip onto those parched plants and trees.

Last week, I had the opportunity to visit and tour the Griffith Water Treatment Plant in Lorton where I learned just how much hard work and planning goes into collecting, treating, and distributing the water that comes out of our faucets.

Fairfax Water pumps water from numerous different reservoirs in the Potomac and Occoquan watersheds, which stretch across Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, DC, and

6 * Mount Vernon Gazette * October 10-16, 2019

Pennsylvania. The raw water is pumped up to the treatment plant where it undergoes multiple levels of above-ground cleansing and filtration. Wires stretched across the filtered water deter birds like geese from landing in the water. Once inside, there are three machines at the Griffith plant that produce ozone gas in a contained environment. Ozone is an unstable, short-lived gas that degrades in as quickly as a few seconds to 30 minutes. As a purification method, ozone has greater disinfectant effectiveness against bacteria, viruses, and protozoans and has stronger germicidal properties than chlorination. In addition, the oxidizing properties of ozone can also be used to reduce the concentration of iron, manganese, sulfur and reduce or eliminate any taste and odor problems. The water is constantly monitored for sodium levels (which can be a challenge due to the use of salt during ice and snowstorms in the winter), both for health and taste issues, as well as turbidity (the clarity of the water) levels as it heads to distribution throughout the county. Fairfax Water not only has state of the art equipment, methods, and standards, but their staff are also well trained to operate the facilities. They can even do so manually, without computers, if the need ever arises, and that is something they practice in case of emergency.

Fairfax Water does extensive research and projected demands forecasting based on the historical data of maximum daily usage trends, with current forecasting stretching as far ahead as the year 2050. Fairfax Water has grandfathered water rights to both the Occoquan and Potomac Rivers and has acquired the rights to the Vulcan Quarry, which sits behind the Griffith plant. After the quarry has been mined out over the next 70 years, Fairfax Water will begin using the quarry to create a new reservoir, capable of holding 17 billion gallons of water. This extra storage will help prevent future water shortages in cases of extreme droughts.

Fairfax Water was formed in September of 1957 when the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors proposed the creation of the Fairfax County Water Authority. Before 1957, there were 24 separate water systems throughout Fairfax County. Today there are only three: Fairfax Water, and Herndon and Vienna, of which the latter two are wholesale customers

OPINION

Re-imagining the High School Experience in Fairfax County

By: Karen Corbett Sanders, Chair and Mount Vernon Representative Fairfax County School Board

s I walked into Mount Vernon High School's recent PTSA meeting, I had the pleasure of meeting two seniors who were returning to school after their internship at IntelSat. The young man and woman were enthusiastic about the skills they were learning and the opportunity to have a workplace experience while in high school through Genesys Works a program that began in 2016 in Fairfax County with a grant from AT&T. Genesys Works is an innovative organization that changes the life trajectory of underprivileged high school students by providing extensive training and year-long internships at major corporations during their senior year in high school. The conversation with these high school students reflects the changes happening in Fairfax County Public Schools as we strive to create more opportunities for students to explore career options that can lead to high demand high wage professions either directly out of high school or continuing on to a 2 or 4 year college degree. It is essential that we empower today's young people with the skills and work experiences to develop a mindset that they can succeed.

Since my time as the PTSA President of West Potomac High School and during my time on the School Board, I have focused on creating these opportunities for the students in Mount Vernon. It is with focus in mind that I worked with the administration of WPHS to establish the Governor's Health Sciences Academy and the relationship with Inova Health System; expanded our relationship with Fort Belvoir for work experiences on base and am working with the leadership of Northern Virginia Community College and Supervisors Dan Storck and Jeff McKay to bring an early college and workforce development center to the original Mount Vernon High School on Richmond Highway.

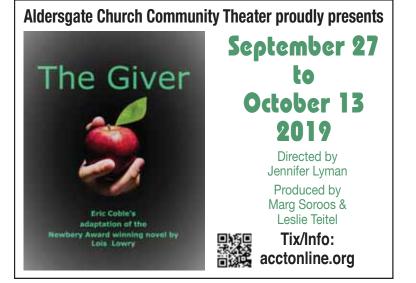

In parallel, I have facilitated discussions between the Foundation for Applied Technical Education leadership, the regional housing authority and local and national labor organizations to expand work experiences in the skilled trades for students in FCPS. This past summer the School Board allocated funds to establish a coordinator for "trades for tomorrow" to develop additional opportunities for students in the skilled trades area. Conversations about CTE opportunities need to begin earlier than high school with our students. Recently, I joined Governor Northam, NOVA Community College Interim President Schiavelli, and Superintendent Brabrand when the Pathways to IT Initiative was launched. This pathways initiative begins engaging students in middle school about career opportunities in the IT and technology sector. I believe and have advocated that these discussions with students and their families need to be expanded to include discussions about opportunities in other fields. It is important to have these discussions so that these elective courses can be planned for in the student's four-year plan.

On Sept. 20, the Governor announced the expansion of the Community College Cloud Computing Degree Programs with Amazon Web Services to include a high school component for high school STEM and early college programs such as the one being developed for the Original Mount Vernon High School.

CTE and dual enrollment courses allow students to obtain skills, industry recognized credentials and hands on experience in fields that are in demand and pay well. These opportunities include career and technical education courses in our academies, pursue professional certifications in a range of fields and obtain real work experiences with companies or in the skilled trades. Students pursue coursework in automotive, business, consumer science, health and medical sciences, nursing, and emergency medicine, technology and the skilled trades. They build houses and restore cars. By enrolling in these courses, students are able to learn from career professionals while preparing for a two or four year college or entry level employment. This year we expanded the teach for tomorrow program to all of our high schools. Graduates committing to pursuing a teaching degree receive a signing letter for future employment with FCPS.

In addition to the classroom experience, students work with community and business partners in their areas of study.vThese partners provide internships, clinical observations, job shadowing, and mentoring. Additionally, community members are able to use the services offered by our students through these programs. These services include automotive oil changes, auto detailing and repairs, dental cleanings, haircuts,

ROTARY CLUB OF ALEXANDRIA Contributes to the Community

The Alexandria Rotary (Club) Foundation together with its affiliate, the Alexandria Day Nursery & Children's Home, Inc., continued its decade-long tradition of awarding grants to local Alexandria Nonprofit organizations at their Annual Contributions Day luncheon at Belle Haven Country Club this past June. On that occasion, checks were presented to 50 nonprofit organizations serving the Alexandria community for a total of $132,000. The Rotary contributions proudly support programs such as the Alexandria Police Foundation which serves local law enforcement, Bridges to Independence which helps families secure affordable permanent Housing and Operation Warm, Inc. that provides winter coats to children in Alexandria.

In addition to honoring the contributions that these nonprofits make to the local community, the annual Rotary luncheon provides a time for the leadership of these organizations meet, talk and find opportunities to collaborate.

reinforce Alexandria's brand and positioning as a port city through this daylong festival that shines a light on our maritime history," said Visit Alexandria President and CEO Patricia Washington. "And we're so excited to be partnering with the Seaport Foundation" as well as the Office of Historic Alexandria, the parks and recreation department, and more, she added.

The activities for participants of all ages are plentiful. From knot-tying taught by the tall ship Providence team to old-fashioned lawn games, from helping to paint a Seaport Foundation boat to rope-making, plenty of free activities are there for the asking. Several other activities – model boat-making, splash golf and a 2:30 p.m. "Anything That Floats Race" – support the Seaport Foundation's programs with a nominal fee.

And the festival's location at the newly opened Waterfront Park at the foot of King Street brings with it its own showcase, too.

"That's been an opportunity to shine a light on the new things that are happening on the waterfront and in Old Town," Washington said.

Washington said the summertime rendition of the Portside in Old Town Festival brought in 12,000 guests over the course of the day. Between the activities and the music, food and drink, she expects similar numbers this weekend.

Guests won't have to spend the day hungry – or thirsty. Riverside Taco, the Italian Place and Dolci Gelati will be offering up food and sweets for purchase, and Port City Brewing will be on hand pouring beer. Wine, dent is bad, missing video data under the Department's control is worse.

Capstone to Four-Years of Police Reform

As to the revised vehicular pursuit and stopping policies, it will be important for the FCPD to provide a detailed report to the Board and the public in early 2020 as to the effects of the revised policies, details of 2019 pursuits and vehicle stops, and whether any further changes are needed. It will also be important for the Board to monitor and take any appropriate action with respect to the racial disparity study underway by the Independent Police Auditor.

On this fourth anniversary of the Ad Hoc Commission Report, Fairfax County and its Police Department have achieved many reforms of which to be proud. The temptation will be to declare the mission accomplished. This would be a mistake. The new Board of Supervisors come January must provide vigilant monitoring through performance expectations and progress reports. Not because enough has not been accomplished, though more improvements are needed, but because that's the norm for best-inclass police departments.

Niedzielski-Eichner and Steel were chair and vicechair of the Ad Hoc Commission's Use of Force Subcommittee and spent many hours with a small, loosely configured group of former Commission members dedicated to implementing Commission recommendations, working with FCPD leadership. Steel oversaw as chair the formation of the Civilian Review Panel.

Staying Current with Fairfax Water of the former. Fairfax Water issues revenue bonds to pay for the water system and maintains a AAA bond rating from all three rating agencies.

Fairfax Water now serves over 2 million Northern Virginia residents, which accounts for 1 out of every 4 Virginians served by public water. Fairfax Water maintains the two largest water treatment facilities in the Commonwealth, which produce over 170 million gallons of water per day.

You will be very happy to know that compared with other companies in the water industry, Fairfax Water is more affordable, with service costing 0.22% of real median household income. The industry median is 0.74% of real median household income. On average, Fairfax Water also has some of the lowest basic water service charges of any water service in the region, lower than DC, Prince William, Manassas Park, Leesburg, Loudoun, and Arlington, among others.

We should recognize that Fairfax Water is a respected industry leader that upholds their customers' trust by providing water of exceptional quality and reliability, at a reasonable price, while supporting the high quality of life and economic vitality of our region.

color and other services, catering, dog grooming, and recharging of refrigerator/freezer compressors. The health science academies hold health fairs for families annually. I encourage community members to support these programs and services.

I encourage families to begin conversations about the opportunities available to FCPS students in the academies, career certification programs and workplace learning experiences. As your representatives, Supervisor Storck and I are committed to bringing more of these opportunities to the students of Mount Vernon. We encourage businesses to partner with FCPS in providing these experiences to our students so that they can gain the skills necessary to ensure continued economic growth and prosperity for the County and region.

Martha McCutcheon Merkli, loving wife and mother of 5, passed away unexpectedly Monday September 30, 2019.

Martha was born in Webster Springs, WV, March 13, 1937 to Mr. William R. and Mrs. Helen J. McCutcheon, and was a fun loving sister to her 4 siblings. Growing up Martha loved to sing with her sisters, play at the river, attand 4H camp, play basketball and most notably, was elated to twirl baton as a majorette.

At the age of 20 she met and married Edward A. Merkli, her biggest supporter. In their 61 years of marriage they raised five children while also mastering careers as real estate brokers. They supported their children in all their sports and activities, including motocross and family paper routes. They were singlehand-

Martha was in management at Hechinger for over 25 years, providing a brand of tough love and mothering both at home and at work. Starting out as the PBX operator, then rising to management, her mentorship and impact on countless lives is still treasured today.

She and Eddie were ruthless bridge players, with sharp minds and a brand of cooperation unmatched. The Mexican Train games were epic, Phase 10 marathons a joy, puzzles and crosswords ever present. Her pastime of a long hot drawn bath with a good book was classic Morn.

Martha stayed home with their five children, teaching them to read and appreciate a good book, to swim, and to get along well with each other as well as others. These lessons continue to remain in our hearts as a perfect example.

Martha is survived by her husband Edward A. Merkli, her children Robert E. Merkli (Blair), John A. Merkli, Mary L. Merkli-Velasco (David), Nancy M. Tracy (Mark), Susan M. Obituary

Christopher J. Connelly

ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA— Christopher James Connelly, loving husband, father, son, grandson, brother, and uncle, passed away peacefully, surrounded by his family, on September 26, 2019 after a long and heroic battle with brain cancer. Christopher was 39 years old.

Christopher was born on December 5, 1979 in Frederick, Maryland, one minute after his twin brother, Shawn. He attended Valley Elementary, Brunswick Middle, and Brunswick High School where he developed a fondness for math and history, played football and ran track, and formed lifelong friendships. He studied economics at Towson University (2003) where he was an active member of Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity, and went on to pursue his MBA at the University of Maryland Robert H. Smith School of Business (2012). Christopher worked for the Audit practice at Deloitte, and had an exciting career in business in a variety of industries, from healthcare to professional services. More importantly, he was the kindest, funniest, and most genuine man; an eternal optimist, a child at heart, and a formidable fantasy football team manager. Christopher met his wife Kristen in 2011, and moved to Northern Virginia shortly thereafter. Christopher was so confident when he proposed, he planned a surprise party of all their family and friends to celebrate, just moments after he asked Kristen to marry him. Kristen and Christopher were married five years ago on September 13, 2014. Together they built a beautiful life and partnership full of love and laughter, focused on family and friends, the beach, and good food - especially tacos, crab cakes, and ice cream. They traveled the world together, with memorable adventures in Italy, Paris, South America, Hawaii, Las Vegas, and Miami - but his favorite vacations were family traditions, especially beach weeks in Ocean City, MD and Long Beach Island, NJ. Christopher was famously always the last person on the beach at the end of the day.

In November 2016, Christopher and his wife welcomed Jack Christopher, who has inherited his father's beautiful blue eyes and love of cooking. Christopher said that raising Jack was more rewarding than he could have ever imagined, and he loved introducing Jack to the Redskins, UMD Terps, Guns N' Roses, and the Harvard Business Review. Christopher's greatest source of joy came from his family, and he was a thoughtful and attentive husband, father, son, grandson, brother, and uncle. He always put others ahead of himself. He was an inspiration to all that knew him and he will be dearly missed.

Survivors include wife Kristen and son Jack of Alexandria, VA; father James Connelly, Jr. and mother Linda Connelly of Jefferson, MD; mother-In-law Angela Stephan and father-in-law Michael O'Neill of Alexandria, VA; grandparents Ruth Connelly of Portage, PA and James and Joanne Cunningham of Greensburg, PA; brother Shawn (and Whitney) Connelly of Ashburn, VA; sister Elizabeth (and Ryan) Defibaugh of Frederick, MD; and four nephews.

A funeral service was held at Aldersgate United Methodist Church (1301 Collingwood Road, Alexandria), on Thursday, October 3.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to support the college fund of Jack Christopher Connelly, to help Jack realize his parent's dreams of their son becoming an attorney or a doctor at www.gofundme.com/f/connelly-family-fund.

Apparently, Not a Stable Genius

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Let me get this out of my system because until I do, I won't be able to write about anything else. Not to worry. This is not a cancer column. I am fine until they tell me otherwise which occurs every eight weeks after my bi-monthly CT scan tells the tale of the tape.

No, this column is about my lack of understanding and business acumen which twice has led me down the garden path only to be asked to leave before I got to smell any of the pretty flowers. Once (twice, actually) had to do with attempts at refinancing this old house (carbon dated to approximately 1750, according to a plaque the previous owner hung to the right of the front door), and most recently (also twice) to do with reverse-mortgage financing this same now older house.

With respect to the attempts at refinancing, I will make this short and not particularly sweet. Without getting into the lead paint, bathrooms, roof, door and window issues, it always perplexed me that if I could afford to pay $1800 per month at 6.75% interest, I could probably afford to pay $1400 per month at 3.75% interest. However, and this is where my lack of common banking sense manifests itself; my presumptive inability to pay $400 less per month was problematic for the lenders to be. And an over 800 credit rating did nothing to dissuade the lender's notion that whatever financial wherewithal I had exhibited over the previous 30-plus years was irrelevant borrowing forward.

As concerns the current issue: the reverse mortgage. To say my financial life depends on its approval might be a bit of an exaggeration, but not if you're in my shoes, even occasionally. I can understand the need for the installation of safety rails on the left and right side of the staircase going down to the basement. And grudgingly, I can understand the need for the structural integrity fix relating to the five wooden pillars sitting atop the cracked concrete slab which floors our front porch and apparently prevents the house from falling forward. But I can't understand why the old stable matters so much to the appraiser/underwriter.

It is not used or functional in any way other than as a repository for junk and as a landing spot/vantage point for the Turkey Vultures who nest there. This building is approximately 50 yards from our house and 10 to 15 yards from our neighbor's house. If it fell, like our barn did years ago, it would land on part of our two acres. Given its age, likely over 100 years, it was not, nor has it ever been covered by our home owner's insurance. "Too old," they said. The structural engineer who submitted the report about our house did a-walk-around the stable with me and made note of its peculiar structural fixes which included cinder blocks and some rocks. However, in response to my "What do I do?" question; his answer: "We don't certify the structural integrity of 100 year-old buildings." Now I'm being told by my reverse-mortgage banker that I have to fix/secure the foundation of the stable or else the deal is likely dead. Dead over an out-building that nobody uses and was likely built before two century's turned?

The whole point of this application was to spend nothing and get something. It was not to spend something and get nothing. This stable, either structurally sound or not provides me nothing as a living benefit. We're not moving into it. Nor are we selling the property. We're here for the duration. The stable, if it matters at all, will matter to whomever sifts through our financial remains, and since we have no children, those 'remains' are not really our concern. Yet according to the most recent email I received, either I make it my concern or stew in my ow juices and slowly wither away.

When I began this process, I had hoped there would be an end in sight. I didn't realize it would be my own.

Civil War Shelters;
