Generation Gap Millennials and Gen X now outnumber older voters, but Baby Boomers continue to dominate.

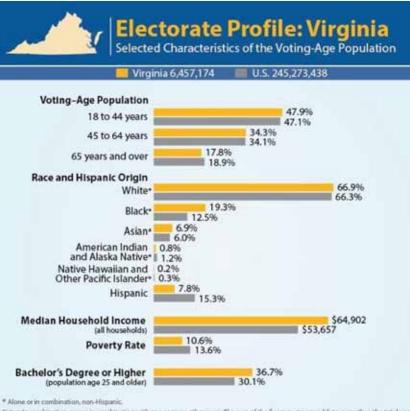

By Michael Lee Pope The Gazette

illennials and Gen Xers now out number Baby Boomers and older voters in Virginia, according to data from the Census Bureau. But that doesn't mean they have as much influence. Census numbers also show another trend: People over the age of 45 vote at much higher rates. That means Baby Boomers are expected to once again exert outsized influence in next week's election despite the fact that they are now outnumbered by ranks of younger voters.

"We talk about the Baby Boomers so much because they were a phenomenon unto themselves in some ways," says Quentin Kidd, director of the Wason Center for Public Policy at Christopher Newport University. "As they aged, they participated at high levels, and those participation levels stayed pretty high."

Voters across Virginia will be heading to the polls next week in a high-stakes election that will determine which party controls the House of Delegates and state Senate. All 140 seats in the House and Senate will be on the ballot this year. Election officials expect turnout to be about 30 percent, much lower than the 60 percent of registered voters that show up to presidential elections. That means voters who show up to the polls will be older, whiter and much more likely to be Republican.

"Virginia has a lot of immigrants. Immigrants tend to be younger and tend to have more kids, and those voters with that profile tend to lean Democratic," says Jeremy Mayer, associate professor in the Schar School of Policy and Government at George Mason University. "So why are the Baby Boomers still dominating? Because that demographic votes, and tends to vote with extraordinary reliability."

Mayer says he sees a similarity between the victory of Donald Trump in 2016 with a victory of Brexit that same year, two elections where the interest of older voters overwhelmed the interest of younger voters, a phenomenon he calls a "revolution of the elderly." This election is also expected to be dominated by Baby Boom voters, although eventually millennials and Gen X voters will catch up and become the dominant force in Virginia politics.

ment are indeed the 18 to 29 year olds," says Bob Denton, chairman of the Department of Communications at Virginia Tech. "There is going to be a political sea change, not so much on demographics per se but on political beliefs, attitudes and values of the Millennials and Generation Z."

Four years ago, when Virginia had no statewide races and every member of the General Assembly was up for election, about 30 percent of registered voters showed up to the polls and cast a ballot. Turnout statistics were pretty much the same for the election four years before that as well as the election four years before that. Democrats are expected to do well if they can push the turnout numbers above 30 percent, even if it's only a little bit.

"The early voting numbers suggest a significantly higher trajectory," says Stephen Farnsworth, director of the Center for Leadership and Media Studies at the University of Mary Washington. "Based on the number of candidates running in the Virginia mid-term this year as well as polls, including the Mary Washington statewide survey that shows a high level of voter interest in 2019, all indications are that this Virginia midterm will have much higher turnout than four years ago."

Free Training Class For Community Emergency Response Team

ommunity Emergency Response Team (CERT) training is a challenging fun and free program brought to you by Fairfax County Fire and Rescue and sponsored by the Department of Homeland Security.

Push your personal boundaries. Learn to save lives with duct tape and rags; pull a person from under an 800-pound beam; and use a fire extinguisher.

No cost Community Emergency Response Team basic training follows the FEMA curriculum, and is tailored to address potential local disasters and hazards. The training prepares residents to help themselves, their families, and their neighbors in the event of a disaster in their community. Through CERT, residents can learn about disaster preparedness and receive training in basic disaster response skills such as fire safety, light search and rescue, and disaster medical operations.

Students are also provided with basic personal protective equipment for the training that they may retain upon completion of the course. This training does not require any physical strength or agility.

Who can take the CERT Training? Anyone who lives, works or plays in Fairfax County is eligible to take CERT training, all ages 16 and up, and all physical abilities are welcome.

Sign up now, next class starts on Nov. 7.

Supervisor Storck's Expo Highlights Global Warming

Second annual event features a variety of workshops.

By Mike Salmon The Connection

upervisor Dan Storck invites residents to join the 2nd Annual Mount Vernon District Environment Expo focusing on "How YOU Can Act on Climate Change," on Saturday, Nov. 16, 2019, from 8 a.m. - noon at Walt Whitman Middle School.

This event will educate and inform local residents on environmental challenges that are faced on a daily basis, including ones that are particular to the Mount Vernon area, given the proximity to water and the many industrial facilities nearby.

Attendees will leave the Expo knowing how to engage in simple actions to make an impact on climate change.

The morning workshop sessions will highlight things to LEARN, ENGAGE and ACT to help the environment.

Topics include: "Drawdown: The Most Comprehensive Plan Ever Proposed to Reverse Global Warming," presented by Beck Modini, Pachamama Alliance, who will look at efforts to reverse global warming and stop climate change, and what can be done to help.

That will be followed by "Small Choices, Big Impact," presented by Zach Huntington of Clean Fairfax.

Next up will be Elenor Hodges, EcoAction Arlington, talking about "Reducing Your he six-alarm fire that swept through portions of the Belle View shopping center in the early hours of Monday October 21st will have a profound effect on the community, businesses and employees.

As with most disasters, there will be financial impacts not covered by insurance. Mount Vernon Lee Chamber of Commerce, working with the Belle View Merchants Association and community members, has initiated a Fundly site to assist businesses and employees. Those interested in donating to the fire relief effort may visit https:// fundly.com/belle-view-shopping-centerfire-relief to make a contribution.

vide their quality services and products to the community.

The Belle View Shopping Center has served as the "town square" of the community since its founding 70 years ago. Residents from all over the Mount Vernon area frequent its shops and restaurants. Small businesses are the heart of our community. Some businesses are already getting back on their feet.

Those most affected include Alexandria Music Company, Belleview Cleaners and Launderers, Bread & Water, Dishes of India, GolfTec, Roy Rogers Restaurant, Spokes Etc., Taekwondo Masters, Wine and Design, and Yido Ramen.

2018 Report: Nearly 7,000 Absentee Ballots Mailed Too Late son and 6,760 were mailed late. The Department of Elections lists 2018 official absentee ballot counts as 287,763.

The VDE said in the same report that they would "work with general registrars in an attempt to determine if there are patterns that exist preventing the timely return of ballots."

Ballots must be returned by 7 p.m. on Election Day, or Nov. 5, in order to count. The only exception, according to Andrea Gaines, VDE director of community relations and compliance support, is if voters are overseas or in the military.

The return date is listed on the absentee ballot application, but not the ballot itself, according to Gaines.

"There is no return date on the ballot itself," she said. "When a voter receives an absentee ballot. they also receive instructions on how to properly cast that ballot in a manner in which it will be counted."

When asked how the Department of Elections worked with registrars to determine patterns preventing the timely return of ballots, per the 2018 report, Gaines said: "Our mission is to provide voters with the information and resources necessary to successfully cast their votes."

Zareen Farhad, a 19-year-old student at Virginia Commonwealth University, said she is voting absentee this upcoming election because she can't make it back to Northern Virginia. Farhad said she has voted absentee three times and that the instructions on the ballot are sufficient, but that the Department of Elections website could clarify when the ballot is due.

"I think that the Virginia elections website could be a bit more clear about exactly how to vote absentee and when early in-person voting is," Farhad said. Grant Fox, press secretary for the Democratic Party of Virginia, said the organization recently hired a full-time voter protection director to make sure every vote counts and voters are aware of their rights.

Republican and Democratic candidates have highlighted the option to vote absentee. John Findlay, executive director of the Republican Party of Virginia said "we're encouraged by the absentee numbers."

As of Monday, the unofficial return count for absentee ballots is 73,903, out of 123,459 absentee ballot applications, according to VDE.

"Using absentee voting is a good indicator of potential turnout, and if you look at previous elections and compare it to today there has been an increase in this election and overall," said Virginia Department of Elections commissioner Christopher Piper, in a previous CNS interview.

Stakes are high with all 140 legislative seats up for grabs for this first time since 2015, but also since Donald Trump was elected president. Several Senate districts held by Republicans have leaned blue in recent elections since then, and voters pushed Democrats into the House en masse in 2017. Republicans currently hold a slim majority in both chambers of the legislature.

According to an analysis posted by the Virginia Public Access Project, 54 House districts have already surpassed the number of absentee ballots returned in 2015. Of those, 22 are also key House races determined by a CNS analysis of competitive races, redistricting changes and recent voting trends on Virginia Public Access Project.

Twenty-one Senate districts have also had a higher return in absentee ballots than in 2015.

The deadline to return absentee ballots to registration officers is Election Day at 7 p.m.

Lorton's History Comes Alive at Night

The trail takes place on what used to be the Lorton Reformatory.

> By Jennifer Albarracin Moya The Connection

ne at a time, packs of people creep into the trail that leads them through what used to be the 55acre D.C. Department of Corrections Lorton Reformatory 18 years ago. Along the trail, creepy clad teens pop out of the highly crafted haunted scenes created to frighten their victims. Painted clown faces and crazed inmates are just some characters that make an appearance throughout the night. Presented by the Workhouse Arts Center, 2019 Haunted Trail - Breakout! naturally has a new addition this year, guests will be able to go inside the prison cells as part of the 25-minute haunted trail and see where prisoners were sleeping and eating years ago. On a lighter note, besides the trail there is also a field full of attractions from an outdoor movie screen playing Halloweenthemed films along with sofas to sit and watch, a Ghost Bar, a cardboard made jail cell to take selfies of yourself, and a game of cornhole. Along with the entertainment, snacks are available to buy from cotton candy, popcorn, and hot cider. There's even a food truck by the Peruvians Brothers to fill those late-night hungers.

There are only three days left of Breakout Haunted Trail: Halloween day, Nov. 1 and 2, from 7- 10 p.m. Its popularity among teens, young adults, and families this past weekend has proven it is worth a scare.

This is a station where you can buy snacks like cotton candy and popcorn.

Investigation Continues in Burke Shooting

Detectives from Major Crimes Bureau continue to investigate the Oct. 21 shooting in the 6100 block of Wicklow Drive in Burke. As of Thursday afternoon, Oct. 24, Crime Scene and Forensic detectives have completed their work at the residence and have cleared the scene. The Office of the Chief Medical Examiner has completed autopsies of the two victims and suspect. Homicide detectives are awaiting receipt of the final autopsy report from the Medical Examiner. As police initially shared, an officer returned fire on the suspect. Second Lieutenant Edward Rediske, a 25-year veteran of the department and currently assigned to the West Springfield District Station, returned fire after being shot upon by the suspect while nearing the rear of the residence with a reaction team in an effort to rescue the lives of the victims in the home.

In addition to the active Major Crimes Bureau investigation, Chief Edwin C. Roessler Jr. has directed Internal Affairs Bureau to conduct an administrative investigation in accordance with policy, along with an independent review by the Independent Police Auditor. OPINION for public office on the upcoming election and reading online campaign content, I found the contrast between, Karen L. Corbett Sanders supported by Democrats and Steven D. Mosley supported by Republicans significant.

Our democracy must remain the highest and best expression of our collective humanity and our nation's diversity is our promise, not our problem. ... Mount Vernon citizens know that society must foster basic decency: good parenting, respect for law, and tolerance for all. The contempt and animosity of virtue politics aimed at groups through campaign rhetoric focuses on school boundaries and underperforming schools as proxies for issues of class and race. Dividing citizens only undermines the social cohesion necessary for the universal social provision of our schools.

I believe candidate Sanders message is one of unity. Candidate Sanders is firmly universalist and oriented toward social conditions rather than individual attributes. She unites citizens as advocates for social equity by looking to expand the rights and opportunities of students, parents and educators and to overcome biases that harm our students, schools and communities. Equity in education is the cornerstone of her efforts on behalf of our youth and schools. Her opponent favors introducing charter schools to Fairfax County. Who is to say the charter schools will be better than the existing schools in the area? Charter schools [often] do not provide teachers with the aving recently heard different candidates same benefits as public schools, ... and they lack the oversight public schools have.

> A study on Charter Schools by the National Education Association in 2017 issued a report card on such schools in all 50 states. The 63 Virginia based charter schools received a grade of D and a mediocre rating.

> Fairfax County is a top school system in Virginia. How does bringing a caliber of schools with only a D grade and mediocre rating improve an already highly ranked school system? ...

> For youth to succeed in today's scientifically sophisticated world, students need a sound education in science. Today's fast-growing and high-paying jobs require a familiarity with the core concepts, applications, and implications of science. To make informed decisions about public policies, people need to know how scientific evidence supports those policies and whether that evidence was gathered using well-established scientific practice and principles.

> Candidate Sanders promotes the ideals and goals of our public schools that support high quality science education. She recognizes that our youth are sharing a common experience, a common fate, and common values all of which will strengthen our schools and communities into the future.

> Social equity politics is behind the New Deal, the abolition and civil rights movements, and equal rights for women....

Guns Play a Major Role in Domestic Abuse

By Del. Paul Krizek

ast week, our community here in Fairfax County was once again / impacted by gun violence: this time, a domestic violence incident in Burke that left three dead and two law enforcement officers injured.

This tragic event showcases the necessity to overcome the Republican-controlled General Assembly's unwillingness to pass common-sense gun violence prevention measures that would help keep guns out of the hands of domestic abusers.

Domestic violence and intimate partner violence are inextricably linked to gun violence. While perhaps not as frequently cited in the news as mass shooting events (although 54 percent of mass shootings can be tied to a domestic dispute), domestic gun violence incidents are widespread and pervasive in our society, affecting families from all walks of life.

lives. These numbers are even more elevated for the LGBTQ+ community and communities of color (especially Native Americans, where 55 percent have reported being the victim of intimate partner violence).

One in three been the vic-point in their have

Although both men and women are murdered by intimate partners, women are more likely than men to be murdered using firearms. While two-thirds of all victims murdered by a spouse or exspouse are killed with guns, the proportion of women is higher: approximately 70 percent. Women are also more likely to be murdered by someone they know, while men are more likely to be victims of violence by a stranger. The effects of firearms in the home include more than injuries and death, as over 4.5 million women report being threatened by intimate partners using firearms at some point in their lives, without their abusers pulling the trigger. These instances include holding a gun during arguments, constantly reminding the victim of the gun's existence, and even forcing the victim to load the gun themselves.

Approximately 1,300 people die each year in murder-suicides in the United States, and 65 percent of murder-suicide incidents involve an intimate partner. The simple presence of a gun in the home increases the likelihood that a woman will be shot and killed. Women who were killed by a spouse, intimate partner or a close relative were 7 times more likely to have lived in homes with guns.

Additionally, studies have shown that when there is a gun in a home with a history of domestic violence, there is a 500 percent higher chance that a woman will be murdered. Unfortunately, American women are unique in the fact that they are 16 times more likely to be killed by violence using a gun than women in other high-income countries.

So many of these deaths are preventable if we act to pass new laws and strengthen current laws. At the state level, we must pass universal background checks to prevent dangerous abusers from being able to access firearms. Other legislation was introduced during the July Special Session to prevent individuals who have permanent protective orders against them from purchasing, possessing, or transporting firearms. And Extreme Risk Protection Orders (ERPO) allow family members and law enforcement to petition a court for temporary removal of firearms from an individual who is a danger to themselves or others.

On the federal level, the updated version of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA), which passed the House of Representatives back in April, would close the "boyfriend" loophole. Current law only prohibits gun purchases by people who are "married to, lived with, or have a child with the victim" and who have been convicted of an abuse felony or have a restraining order against them. The new VAWA would extend the current law to include unmarried partners and misdemeanor convictions of domestic abuse and stalking behavior. Closing this gap will help to protect all victims of intimate partner violence.

If you or someone you know is experiencing any form of domestic violence, and you want to talk about options and resources available, call the 24-hour Domestic & Sexual Violence Hotline at 703-360-7273 or go to thehotline.org to chat online. To report a crime, call the Fairfax County Police Department at 703-691-2131 or, for emergencies, please call 911.

Republican Candidate for 44th District House

By Richard Hayden

t has been my pleasure over the past ten months to campaign as the Republican candidate for the Office of Delegate in the 44th House District for the Virginia General Assembly.

I have had the distinct honor of meeting many residents from all walks of life and from all across the political spectrum.

My reception has been remarkably positive with a very few exceptions.

I will look forward to doing this again in 2021 regardless of the outcome of this election.

The people in our little corner of Fairfax County are nothing if not passionate about their beliefs and views

Most were happy just to see a candidate knocking on their door, showing he cares about them and is willing to listen. Many were more than willing to share their experience, strength and hope with me in a mostly civil and courteous manner. I appreciate everyone who took time out of their busy day to visit with me as we try to find out what will work best for all of us.

I am new to politics and not beholden to special interests. I believe in a free market economy and our Right to Work laws which have worked to make Virginia No. 1 in business in the entire country.

10 & Mount Vernon Gazette & October 31 - November 6, 2019 and student achievement. Hayden As Delegate I will continue to support and value our teachers. I do not support changing school boundary lines, as proposed by the current School Board, to achieve "equity" by looking through the One Fairfax lens. I am pro-life. I believe in the sanctity of life at all stages, but I also understand people have different views on this sensitive topic.

Current Virginia law does not allow for abortions past the second trimester unless the mother's life is at risk.

This is a reasonable accommodation of differing viewpoints; not extreme like the proposed late term abortion bill brought forth in the last Assembly session. I also oppose the Equal Rights Amendment, which is really a vehicle for taxpayer funded abortion.

If you want someone who will be reasonable, work hard and act with care and common sense in the best interests of you, the voters, then choose me to be your new Delegate in Richmond this Nov. 5. Thank you and God bless.

Dancers from the O'Neill-James School of Irish Dancing perform on the dance stage.

Irish Folk Festival

he 24th Annual Comhaltas Ceoltóirí Éireann (CCÉ) Irish Folk Festival was held at the Sherwood Community Center in Fairfax on Oct. 5. The event was put on by the O'Neill-Malcolm Branch of the CCÉ with support from the City of Fairfax and the City of Fairfax Commission on the Arts. The festival featured four stages of live music and dance, Gaelic sports, workshops, vendors, and exhibits to celebrate Irish heritage and culture.

Eileen Gannon, one of the best Irish harp players in the world, plays the tent stage with Eimear Arkins.

Alina Albeik from Falls Church performs with dancers from the O'Neill-James School of Irish Dancing.

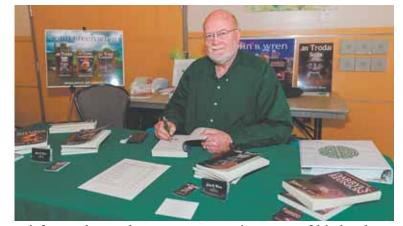

Jan McVey sells handmade Irish crafts at the Irish Folk Festival. She has been a festival vendor for the past 10 years.

The Seán Heely Celtic Trio is joined on the Galway Stage by a guest musician stage as they play melodies from Scotland and Ireland.

Fairfax author, John Breen Wren, signs one of his books. Wren is the author of thrillers, mysteries, and historical fiction. His seventh book, "Import Execute," is coming out soon.

the Charles Schawb outpost at 1920 Ballenger Avenue is hosting its own popup, complete with food from Sweet Fire Donna's, drinks from Lost Boy Cider and live music to keep the festivities going.

And lest diners think it's all calorie intake and no output, MacNair begs to differ.

If guests walk the full map and hit each restaurant, "it's a total of 2,000 steps, so they can get their steps in," he said.

But the food and drink is only a part of the point of the evening. Rock the Block supports the NCMEC's work in protecting children from exploitation and keeping them safe.

Along with working to locate missing children, MacNair says the Rock the Block evening helps fund the organization's programs centered on preventing child exploitation.

Millions of tips come in each year about Internet exploitation, for instance, and helping children safely navigate the Web is something the center is focused on.

Last year, Rock the Block hosted eight restaurants and about 500 participants; this year, MacNair is hoping for 700 to 800 participants to visit the dozen restaurants that dot the map.

The French Perspective. 7-9 p.m. At The Lyceum, 201 S. Washington Street, Alexandria. Cost is $10. Presented by The Alexandria-Caen Sister Cities Committee. The French Perspective of the Hundred Years War. Shakespeare's Henry V depicts the Battle of Agincourt (1415) during the Hundred Years War (1337-1453) as a heroic English victory against improbable odds. However, the battle made little difference and the war should actually be read as the story of Joan of Arc's resistance, a settled civil war and how the French state emerged from the challenge of foreign invasion stronger and more unified than ever before. undreds of future astronauts, scientists, mathematicians and engineers turned out Oct. 5 at The Watergate at Landmark for the third annual Spooky Mad Science Expo, an event to combine Halloween and science learning projects.

The Expo is the brainchild of Watergate resident Zohreh Khoshnamak, who founded the community's Science Club.

"I started the Science Club in our neighborhood with my son and his friend when I first moved here," Khoshnamak said. "A lot of kids wanted to join and now we meet twice a month and even have our own robotics team.'

The event was held with the participation of volunteers from the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum, National Science Foundation, National Society of Black Engineers, American Chemical Society, RESET, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, American Statistical Association, IDA, Kathy Wilson Foundation, and Patrick Henry and William Ramsay Recreation Centers.

Vice mayor Elizabeth Bennett-Parker attended the event and is excited to see community-driven STEAM activities.

"This is a purely volunteer-based event, without any financial support and backing, that has been growing in stature and attendance each year," Bennett-Parker said.

5 Foodie Dates To Circle in November

By Hope Nelson

h, November: Where the remnants of Halloween and Oktoberfest meet holiday beer, holiday baking and more. Whether you're ready to move on to Thanksgiving and Christmas or whether you want to hold onto fall for just a little while longer, there's something going on in November with your name on it. Here are some of the month's best bets.

Tidings Release Party at Port City Brewing, Nov. 1

Port City Brewing wastes no time getting into the holiday season with its release of the holiday-spiced Tidings Ale. The winter seasonal – a Belgian style ale brewed with Virginia wheat and local wildflower honey – is a perennial favorite each time it hits the shelves (and the kegs), and beer fans' wait is almost over. Beginning Friday, Tidings will be available on draft, in bottles, and to go from the brewery in crowlers and growlers. Pop by to lift a glass and celebrate the start of the holiday season. 3950 Wheeler Ave. 3-10 p.m.

Rustico Novemberfest 2019, Nov. 2

Rustico's annual post-Oktoberfest soiree keeps the beer festival going into November.

Forty of Virginia's breweries and cideries will be on hand to offer up an overwhelming 80 different brews for tasting. Breweries from the likes of Aslin to Crooked Run will be in attendance, and wine lovers won't be left out, either; Barboursville Vineyards will pour some of its best wines for the occasion. While you sip, munch on BBQ pork sandwiches, chili, sausages and more. 827 Slaters Lane. Noon-5 p.m. $25 for advance tickets, which includes 20 tasting tickets; $10 at the door with $1 tasting tickets.

orrential rains may have slowed him down, but they didn't stop local runner Michael Wardian as he crossed the finish line to win the inaugural Marine Corps Marathon 50K race Oct. 27 in Arlington. "To win your hometown event in such a great year, I couldn't ask for anything else," said Wardian, 45, who completed the distance (31 miles) with a time of 3:11:52.

The Marine Corps Marathon race was just a tune up for Wardian, who will run as the New York City Marathon virtual ambassador next weekend in Hong Kong.

"It's been a pretty epic year," said Wardian, who ran the entire 89.9 miles of the Washington D.C. Beltway in 17:54:59 in late June. "I ran across Israel earlier this year and set a fastest known time for that. I did about 1,000 kilometers in 10 days."

Wardian also completed a world record for 10 marathons in 10 days.

"Seven of those were on seven different continents," added Wardian, who ran his first marathon at the Marine Corps Marathon in 1996. "And to win the inaugural 50K today is pretty exciting for me."

More than 1,700 runners joined Wardian along the ultra distance 50K route, including Alexandria's Dustin Whitlow, 33, who finished second with a time of 3:21:36. Patrick Early, 40, of Montclair, Va., placed third in 3:40:50.

In total, 26,502 runners competed in the 44th annual Marine Corps Marathon events, including the traditional 26.2-mile marathon and the MCM 10K.

The top Marine Corps Marathon finisher was Jordan Tropf, 27, from Silver Spring, MD. "I love this race because of the landmarks and the crowd support," Tropf said. "The [wear] blue mile really reminded me why I was running and gave me the push I needed to finish."

Tropf completed the marathon with a time of 2:27:43 while Brittany Charboneau, 31, crossed the finish line as the first place MCM female with a time of 2:44.47.

Among the local runners was HomeGrown Restaurant Group's Director of Marketing Chelsea Anderson, who ran her first MCM 10K, finishing in 1:04:59.

"I've never seen so many energetic and chatty people on a Metro train at 6 a.m.," said Anderson, who boarded at Braddock Metro for the trip to the 10K start line on the National Mall. "But it was a great experience and pretty cool to see all the Marines cheering everyone on. There's seriously no better push of adrenaline than a high five from a Marine."

Alexandria Mayor Justin Wilson ran his eighth Marine Corps Marathon, finishing with a time of 3:47:21. Realtor Liz Lucchesi ran the race in 5:12:22 and Brooke Sydnor Curran finished in 4:28:24.

Other notable 44th MCM finishers include Gen. David H. Berger, 38th Commandant of the Marine Corps (5:29:38); Gen. (ret) Joseph F. Dunford, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staffs (4:45:00); U.S. Sen. Shelley Capito of West Virginia (6:45:56); U.S. Rep. Debra Haaland from New Mexico (6:06:01); and Medal of Honor recipient Dakota Meyer (5:20:40).

"Underwhere" and What

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Though I don't think I've broken any laws, other than the laws of consumerism. I may have gone over to the dark side. And by 'dark side,' I refer to two elements, one way more significant than the other, both of which I will get to in short order. In the interim, I refer to that most private of previously public purchases: underwear.

The last two times I bought underwear, I did not, as my father before me did so regularly for his two sons: buy from a local distributor. No. I didn't brick and mortar, I did not drive to and from. And neither did I engage with a living being (so far as I know, anyhow). Rather, I simply typed, mouse-clicked and purchased online from a national distributor. And since I wasn't able to touch and feel, my selection was a bit of a leap of faith. Would the fit, style and look satisfy in person much as is it had done so online? So far, after having introduced a dozen pairs to their new homes, their owner and his neighbors seem okay with the interlopers. I expect that with the passage of time, the familiarity of it all will wear down any anticipated objections. Still, I imagine there will be an adjustment period.

Those purchases being made, I do feel as if I've crossed a line of sorts. [And the editor is likely to agree and assert selective deletion.] At the very least, consumers and their underwear purchases - and processes, seemed sacrosank and immune to the lure of the internet. Granted, its presumptive privacy and seemingly endless choices/supply would presumably appeal to one's sense of curiosity. But not having the opportunity to physically pick and choose, and then grab and go to the cashier while glancing at the assorted inventory while you saunter through the department now seems like a lost art. An art that will never again be bid on, certainly not at Christie's anyway. I don't feel guilty exactly, about what I've done, but I do feel as if struck at the very foundation of the consumer's code of decency.

I mean, if one is going to buy underwear online then there really is no stopping the internet's intrusion into our daily lives. And if the artificial intelligence running the sites knows about our most personal preferences, then what's preventing a mass outing of mankind and womankind? To that possible end, I am now going to mention the second element of my recent purchase for which you likewise might have an opinion. This time I have literally gone over the dark side: colors; blue, black, green and gray. The tidy whities of my youth and nearly entire adulthood have had to give way to color. Another break with my underwear past which also seems unforgivable. My father always wore white underwear. How could I, as his son, break with such familial tradition? This is the weight I am now carrying. I'm not exactly leaving the faith but I do feel that I'm definitely disconnecting.

And since these online purchases of nonwhite underwear are not that recent (six months or so), recently, as in the last month, I have given consideration to yet another total break to how/where I've purchase these non-white "underwears," brand. I have heard multiple radio advertisements on my satellite radio concerning an upscale brand of underwear which has given me pause to rethink how I might further upgrade the neighborhood where my underwear has been residing.

It's been difficult enough changing how I buy my underwear, and then transitioning from whites to colors, but now possibly changing brands just for the sake of some creature omforts? I haven't heard any complaints from the neighbors so why bother? To be cool and comfortable? I thought I was. Apparently not. Dare I break yet another decades-old tradition? It may be too much.

07/30/19 - Mount Vernon Home Owner Sold a Single Family Home in 2019 in Alexandria, VA

Local Knowledge:  Process Expertise:  Responsiveness: Negotiation Skills: ***

"Chris White and team are exceptional. Selling your home can be a very stressful time, especially when there is still some work to be done to get the house market ready. This team not only made the process of selling my home guick and painless, but they were there to support every step of the way as work was completed pre-listing.

Chris, Mark, and Michael go above and beyond. Full-service is an understatement: they literally found a ladder and changed a blown light bulb in my foyer mid-meeting. When I mentioned I wanted to take a year off from home-ownership, they found me the perfect place to kick-up my heels until I am ready to buy again.

The icing on the cake: multiple offers immediately following the first and only open house. The house sold significantly above what I had originally planned. That would not have been possible without this team's knowledge and expertise to maximize my profit.

Selling and/or buying a house is a project. There are many moving parts and little room for error, as this is one of the biggest investments you will make financially. This is a team you can trust to deliver un-matched expertise in this area and a top-notch experience."
