Police PFC Brian Carter Is Honored

Chosen as Sully District Police
Station's Officer

PFC Brian Carter is honored as Officer of the Quarter.

squads on the proper procedures for obtaining, serving and clearing warrants," wrote Burgess.

He also said that Carter readily volunteers for tasks and assignments and leads his squad in serving warrants. "In 2018, he attempted the service of 56 warrants, made 14 arrests and assisted on five other arrests," wrote Burgess. "In 2019, he has already made seven misdemeanor and seven felony arrests. He has also made a huge impact on clearing out the warrant files at the Sully District Station, ensuring wanted persons are contacted, service is attempted, and those warrants that cannot be served are processed and transferred to the appropriate location."

PFC Brian D. Carter was selected as the Sully District Police Station's Officer of the Quarter for the second quarter of 2019. And as such, he was honored at a recent meeting of the station's Citizens Advisory Committee. Police Lt. Tim Burgess nominated him, explaining why he's deserving of this award. He began by saying Carter has "consistently exhibited a strong work ethic and passion for engaging the needs of the Sully District."

While noting that Carter is meticulous about the details of his assignments and has become "extremely competent within the subject of warrants," Burgess said the officer's efforts go "above and beyond what is required of him and define the attributes of an employee who is extremely conscientious toward policing and relationships."

Describing him as highly reliable, Burgess said Carter possesses "a refreshing mental attitude and consistently arrives to work happy and upbeat. He is well-liked, always prepared for a laugh, and contributes to a positive and pleasant work environment."

According to Burgess, Carter spends hours searching for wanted offenders while continuing to handle calls for service in his assigned patrol area. "His proficiency in warrant services keeps building, and he has recently taken on the additional duty of training

Furthermore, wrote Burgess, "Carter is a valued team member who takes minimal leave and rarely asks for accommodation. He exemplifies teamwork and communication while continuing to produce a high volume of work with a high level of accuracy. Carter leads his squad in arrests for 2019 and has served the Fairfax County Police Department with distinction, over the past three-and-a-half years. He also ranks in the top half of his squad for citation activity and second overall for incident activity."

"These commendable traits document fragments of Carter's work and his positive attitude," continued Burgess. "But he is, without a doubt, a producer, and his commanders, supervisors and the citizens of Fairfax County alike have benefited from the fruit of his labor. He has enjoyed a fantastic career thus far and has the potential to experience more highlights while serving with this Police Department. For this reason, PFC Brian Carter is Sully District Station's Officer of the Second Quarter for 2019."

Centreville Man Charged in I-66 Work-zone Crash

At 12:29 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 5, Virginia State Police responded to a crash within a Highway Work Zone in the westbound lanes of I-66 at Quincy Street near Exit 72 in Arlington County.

A GMC Yukon traveling west on I-66 swerved into the active work zone and struck six highway construction workers. The vehicle continued off the right side of the I-66 and crashed into a light pole.

There were three occupants in the GMC. The driver and a passenger in the GMC fled the scene on foot. State police and Arlington Police apprehended the two near the scene.

Arlington County Fire transported a total of eight individuals. Four of the highway workers are still being treated at Fairfax Inova for serious, but non-life threatening, injuries. Two other highway workers and the two male GMC passengers were transported to George Washington University Hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

The driver of the Yukon, Kevin L. Blyther, 44, of Centreville, has been charged with driving while intoxicated, one felony count for failure to stop at the scene of a crash involving an injury and one count of driving on a suspended/revoked license. Blyther is being held at the Arlington County Adult Detention Center.

There was a Virginia State Police vehicle positioned in the work zone with its blue lights flashing and the work zone was equipped with additional safety equipment and amber flashing lights to alert motorists of the active Highway Work Zone.

The crash remains under investigation.

'It's Important to Remember the Past'

Honoring Richard Bland Lee at Sully Historic Site.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Born in 1761, Richard Bland Lee owned the former Sully Plantation on land that's now the Sully Historic Site in Chantilly. He also built the late-18th-century house that's there and was Northern Virginia's first congressman.

And now, thanks to the Daughters of American Colonists (DAC), visitors to the Sully Historic Site will also be able to learn about him and what happened on that land. On Oct. 30, they dedicated a marker to him outside the visitors' center there.

The DAC is a genealogical society that focuses on people who lived in the 13 colonies and helps people understand what happened at historic sites. And the Richard Bland Lee Chapter of the National Society, Daughters of American Colonists, developed the new, interpretive sign in partnership with the Fairfax County Park Authority.

Attendees at the ceremony included county dignitaries, representatives from the Sully Historic Site and DAC officials. County Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova quoted author Michael Crichton, who said, "If you don't know history, then you don't know anything. You are a leaf that doesn't know it is part of a tree."

"The roots of history run deep in Fairfax County, from the earliest Native Americans, through times of external and internal wars, and through much social change," said Bulova. "It's important for all of us to remember that past – the victories and the mistakes – as we chart our path forward."

Lee and his wife and children lived on the plantation from 1794-1811, and they had slave labor. Bulova said, "Charles Darwin wrote, 'A moral being is capable of reflecting on his past actions and their motives, approving some and disapproving others.'"

So, she said, "Sully Historic Site helps us in our understanding of so much of that past – from farming and slave labor to our early efforts at building a nation and to our battles to preserve that nation. It teaches us how far we've come as a nation and remembers those who have put us on our current path."

FROM THE MANOR HOUSE to the various other buildings on the property, said Bulova, "We get a glimpse of the lives led by those who came to what's now Fairfax County, more than 200 years ago. Walking these grounds, touring the house and experiencing the historical demonstrations at Sully brings that history to life. Documenting this passage of time through interpretive signage allows all of us to better understand this history and the consequences of the actions we take today. Thank you for keeping the stories alive and for this beautiful marker."

Also speaking was Supervisor Kathy Smith (D-Sully), who was pleased, as well, to be at the unveiling ceremony. "The sign we are about to unveil commemorates Richard Bland Lee's legacy of service to Virginia and our budding nation," she said. "It bridges the years and brings Fairfax County's history closer to its visitors and residents."

She said historic facts must take into consideration the time period during which events occurred, the political realities and ultimately, the human impact. Therefore, said Smith, "We honor Richard Bland Lee today and acknowledge his significant contributions to this nation and to history within that rubric." She also thanked the DAC for "preserving our nation's heritage, serving as a living bridge to our past and recording our history for future generations."

NEXT, Park Authority Director Kirk Kincannon noted that, although Lee was born into wealth, he dedicated his life to serving others. After serving in Virginia's General Assembly, he was elected to Congress.

"Lee cast a crucial vote for the Compromise of 1790 that settled the nation's Revolutionary War debts and moved the capital to the banks of the Potomac River," said

'Fridays for Future' Protests Continue

Great Falls youth join the strike.

Outside of the Library of Congress, strikers and a golden retriever sit in playing protest music. Their colorful signs read "School Strike For Climate" and "Fridays For Future." It is a scene that repeats itself every Friday. The group was of many ages and were from Maryland, DC, and some from our Great Falls community. Some have come after a day in school, some have skipped school to be present.

They are striking, as they do every Friday, with the DC branch of Fridays For Future, an international organization founded by Greta Thunberg. They are there to demand action on the climate crisis as demanded by science, and they have vowed to come back every Friday until they see it.

It is a cold December day, but that doesn't deter them. As the light fades over Washington, two strikers take their shoes off and dance on the sidewalk to Billy Joel's "We Didn't Start The Fire."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Supporting 'Less-fortunate Others'

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the opinion piece titled "Commentary: Helping Families Struggling to Make Ends Meet in Fairfax County" (Connection, November 20-26, 2019).

As this county is known for its high rank among the richest in the nation, it was pleasing to see awareness brought to the issue of wealth disparity and struggling families in Fairfax.

The rapid growth of industries generates peril for the working-class as individuals view their financial shortcomings as a personal problem rather than a public issue of a sick society. Responsively, the efforts of Cornerstones and Britepaths seemingly work to combat the negative consequences of inequality and economic instability that our capitalist system produces.

The reflecting words of client "Denise" brought an insight into the new feeling of hope provided by the extra allowance from EITC. This hope effectively propelled her and other recipients alike toward more rewarding opportunities and, eventually, upward mobility. Her comment that "conversations about social support programs are not hypothetical political statements; they are decisions that impact real people", really weighed on me. My wish for fellow readers is that they think back on how they might've undermined the experiences of "less-fortunate others" in the past.

Time for Community to Come Together

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article titled "Opinion: Editorial: Give Locally" (Connection, November 20-26, 2019).

In NOVA, and especially in the area where I live, the disparity between household incomes can be staggering. It becomes especially salient during Christmas time, when you see people posting pictures of the piles and piles of Christmas presents stacked underneath their tree, and boasting of their "haul" on Christmas morning, when there are families just a few blocks away struggling to even buy their children one or two gifts. So many people are so far removed from their neighbors and their communities that they don't realize or refuse to acknowledge the issue.

It is incredibly sad to me that there are so many underprivileged students in an area filled with so much wealth, as well as the elitism of certain areas in our community. I hope that our community can come together and provide for those who are in need this holiday season, take some of the burden off of these struggling families, and facilitate a more inclusive and interconnected community for the years to come.

To the Editor:

Virginia Republicans should now consider what they've done to folks like John & Renee Thoburn and Lt. Col Oliver North, (Ret) when thinking about this lost elections. Maybe they should make the song by Tim McGraw, "Humble and Kind" an integral aspect of their character. You were responsible for destroying the lives of John & Renee, and you chose to vote for Marshall Coleman, a throw away vote, rather than a decorated Marine/Vietnam Veteran/and your own Republican nominee - Ollie. Now you get to sit in your much deserved time out chair and watch as the Orchestra of the Democratic Party enjoy their well deserved victory. I doubt you learned your lesson about arrogance, but at least now you'll be on the sidelines of change while those much more deserving as you now take the lead in Virginia.

Kincannon. “[Later], President Madison appointed him to help supervise the reconstruction of buildings damaged by the British during the War of 1812.”

“At the Park Authority, we’re fortunate to be able to share history with those visiting Sully each year,” continued Kincannon. “Visitors can walk through Lee’s historic home, learn about the lives of Lee and his family and tour the original outbuildings. This new sign commemorating him has been placed close to a Civil War Trails sign that further interprets the history of this land.

And today, I invite you to make your own discoveries here at Sully.”

Carol McDonnell, Sully Historic Site manager, told attendees that President Eisenhower preserved Sully as a historic property. And, she added, “As stewards of this unique site, we’ll continue to take good care of it.”

The marker to Lee was the last project of Noreen McCann before she retired as Sully’s historian and visitor services manager. “This sign further highlights another story Sully has to tell and puts it in perspective in today’s world,” she said. “We’re grateful for the Richard Bland Lee DAC chapter for sharing in this.”

Off we go — or not — into the wild blue yonder. It seems that my most recent CT scan’s results, described as “a little worse” by my oncologist are indeed cause for some reflection and change. (I’m not quite able to say “cause for concern,” yet.) As such, to make the most effective change, per my oncologist’s orders, I am scheduled for a needle biopsy on the Wednesday this column publishes. This procedure will determine, if there is a match, to the specific type of cancer tumor that I have. (Without boring you with too many details, the short version is that all cancer tumors are not alike. Biomarkers/genetic mutations such as ALK, BRAF, EGFR, NTRK, PD-L1 and ROS1 are the most common, and certain medicines work better against certain tumor types. Variation in the tumor types, such as the ones I’ve described, is a relatively recent discovery in lung cancer research.)

What this research has led to is another new kind of cancer treatment known as “targeted therapy.” This means than rather than “flying blind,” to use one of my brother, Richard’s, favorite expressions, and employing a one-size-fits-all kind of approach to treatment, oncologists now have specific medicines to infuse when the tumor’s genetic mutation is confirmed. Wednesday hopefully, will confirm something. However, researchers have not discovered all the tumor types so it’s possible that this biopsy will reveal nothing useful for me and in effect, I’ll be back to square one-ish.

As for what ‘square-one-ish’ means? It means that I’ll likely be infusing medicines that previously worked for a time but whose infusions were stopped after they all ran their successful course years ago. As I’ve been told whenever this change became necessary, cancer cells eventually figure out what’s happening to them and then the tumors begin growing. Once this growth is indicated on the CT scan, a new medicine is usually started, and on and on it goes until, apparently now, for me anyhow. “Targeted therapy” offers lots of new medicines. I just need a match. Unfortunately, there’s no guarantee the biopsy will provide just such a match. There’s only one way to find out. On Wednesday, we will begin to find out. To say I have a lot riding on this determination is the understatement of the year; at least for Team Lourie, it is. If I’m forced to repeat infusions from medicines that stopped working years ago, it’ll be “Katie, bar the door,” as we say in Boston which means, “Look out!”

I’m trying not to ‘look out’ though. I’m trying not to look anywhere, except straight ahead. Just because my life may be at stake, is no time to deviate from the norm that has been my modus operandi over the past 11 years. I’m not quite ready to consider that my stage IV lung cancer survival is coming to an end. Maybe it’s just staggering and within a week or so, I’ll get my bearings again. New medical information getting me new medical treatment is sure to put a bounce back in my step. For the first time in 11 years, to quote George Costanza from Seinfeld: “I’m back, baby.” This could be the jolt my body needs to get me through to the next research level. The Team Lourie strategy has always been for me to try and live long enough to reach the next medical breakthrough. So far, I’ve benefited from a few: tarceva, avastin and alimta; all miracle drugs according to my oncologist, and here I am, living proof that it has all worked.

Until I hear, post procedure, from my oncologist, in the interim, I am re-experiencing many what-happens-if-and-when emotions that I’ve not wrestled with for years. Unfortunately, this hospital visit is taking me back to the visit/biopsy I had in Feb. 2009 which confirmed the malignancy in my lungs in the first place. And here I am, hopefully not in the last place, waiting for the results of a biopsy yet again. It didn’t work out so good in 2009. I just hope I have better luck in 2019.
