First National Suffragist Memorial Breaks Ground

Site in Lorton to mark women's struggle for right to vote.

BY MERCIA HOBSON

Construction for the first national suffragist memorial, the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial located in Lorton, in Fairfax County, is set to begin following its Thursday, Nov. 14, groundbreaking ceremony. "With the stroke of a pen, 25 million women entered the Constitution and secured the right to vote," wrote Patricia Depew Wirth, Executive Director/CEO of the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial Association. "Few Americans know about the suffrage movement or its historical significance as it rarely makes it into the history textbooks."

Fairfax County kicked off support for the needed $2 million memorial construction costs when it issued a $200,000 grant to the cause. During program remarks before the groundbreaking at Occoquan Regional Park, Sharon Bulova, Chairman, Fairfax County Board of Supervisors said, "Our contribution in Fairfax County that was put into our budget was a turning point, so to speak, for fundraising. And it was clear that Fairfax County had skin in the game." According to "The Sentinel, the Newsletter of the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial," Board Chairman Bulova and Supervisor John W. Foust drafted the motion to support the project. "They cited its importance to the county's tourism and hospitality industries and said the memorial will only enhance the interest among residents and tourists to visit a famous historical and cultural area of Fairfax County." The Fairfax County Board unanimously approved the motion of Supervisors.

Sargeant described the suffragist movement as the 'Best Kept Secret in American History.' While the seven-decade campaign sought women's economic, social and political gender equality, the effort was not for the faint hearted. In the early years, women organized and built a movement. Then at the turn of the century, they changed tactics for the new generation with a new battle cry.

Women paraded, petitioned and picketed. Few women who began the campaign saw it to fruition. Material distributed at the groundbreaking titled, "SHALL NOT BE DENIED, Women Fight for the Vote," by Library of Congress, stated: "Their story is one of courage, perseverance, savvy, creativity and hope that inspires women today."

According to Wirth, the groundbreaking date coincided precisely one hundred and two years after the infamous Nov. 14, 1917 "Night of Terror." On that evening scores of suffragists ages, 19-73 were illegally imprisoned and tortured at the nearby historic D.C. prison grounds (what is known as the former Occoquan Workhouse) after peacefully picketing outside the Woodrow Wilson White House for the right to vote. "There, they were humiliated, kept in inhumane conditions, tortured, locked in solitary confinement, and brutalized."

Doris Stevens wrote 'Jailed for Freedom' in 1920. In it, she stated, "When all suffrage controversy has died away, it will be the little army of women with their purple, white and gold banners, going to prison for their political freedom that will be remembered. The challenge of the picket line roused the government out of its half-century sleep of indifference ... (On the Night of Terror) I saw Dorothy Day brought in. She is a frail girl. The two men handling her were twisting her arms above her head. Then suddenly, they lifted her up and banged her down over the arm of an iron bench twice."

Wirth said when word leaked out about the unconscionable treatment; it became a "turning point" in forcing President Wilson to ask Congress to consider a Constitutional Amendment. The site for the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial is located within Occoquan Regional Park and the National Register-listed D.C. Workhouse and Reformatory Historic District, where the Night of Terror occurred.

CONSTRUCTION of the national suffragist memorial is anticipated to take nine months, culminating in the Aug. 26, 2020 dedication ceremony, which is the centennial anniversary certification of the 19th Amendment, Wirth announced in a statement. Designed by R.E. Beach Architects of Falls Church, the memorial, Wirth said would be the cornerstone of a planned park redevelopment. It would commemorate the five million women who fought for seven decades to win ratification of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution - the right for American women to vote. Wirth said Turning Point Suffragist Memorial would tell a critical part of history about American women through the construction of the memorial and "establishment of the Turning Point Institute and development of a 'Constitution Trail' in collaboration with numerous historical sites germane to our ever-evolving Constitution."

Share of McLean celebrates 50 years of community service.

On Nov. 15 supporters, volunteers and community officials gathered in the McLean Community Center to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Share, an all-volunteer organization helping people in need in the local community.

Since 1969 Share has operated in space provided by McLean Baptist Church. Share depends entirely upon donations from private citizens, faith-based groups, school organizations, civic clubs, local businesses and corporations, and has no paid staff.

Share provides assistance to its neighbors in need with food, furniture, clothing, laptop computers, back-to-school supplies, holiday programs, and emergency family assistance.^o

Every Wednesday and Saturday Nicki Watts and other volunteers come to McLean Baptist Church to help run Share’s food and clothing programs. Watts is a volunteer office manager, pantry co-chair, and board member at Share. Such involvement consumes a great deal of her time, but she is happy and proud to be part of the non-profit program.

“I’m retired military and I need something to do, I need a mission,” Watts said. “This volunteer position is just perfect for me. I love it! It’s exactly what I like to do.”

Watts is part of a group of about 85 core volunteers who run various Share programs. About 200 people participate periodically throughout the year, donating more than a thousand volunteer hours each month to make a difference for clients in the McLean, Great Falls and Pimmit Hills neighborhoods.

“I am doing this to help other people. I just like to give back to my community. At the same time volunteering is a selfish thing because it makes you feel so good,” said Michelle Shaw, co-chair of Share’s family assistance program.

“Most of our clients are the victims of spousal abuse, the working poor, people who just can’t make ends meet, and seniors living on limited budgets, or with health problems function,” said Vic Kimm, vice-president of Share.^o

During the Nov. 15 celebration of 50 years, Dranesville Supervisor John Foust presented Share President, Don Frickel, with a resolution of congratulations from the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors recognizing Share “for providing extraordinary service to residents of Fairfax County.”

“We have a group that I’m particularly proud of that rebuilds computers. This was an idea dreamed up by some of our high school kids,” said Frickel. “They came to the board and told us if they had a place to work, they could refurbish computers.”

According to Frickel, Share helps people with rent, utilities, medical bills. Working with local middle schools and high schools, Share assists students with fees and the cost of field trips. Additionally, In the past year Share has spent $150,000 providing support to families in crisis.

McLean's Three-sports Star to Play for Navy

The Madeira School recently recognized three outstanding student-athletes on their commitment to further both their academic and athletic careers. Sofie Davis will attend the University of Kentucky, Annie Newton will attend the United States Naval Academy, and Molly Watts will attend Drexel University. "Over the last four years all three athletes have been an integral part of the culture shift, success and enthusiasm for Madeira athletics," reflects Head Athletic Director, Katie LaRue. "They will leave a lasting mark on the program and be sorely missed."

Annie Newton, a resident of McLean, will join the Women's Lacrosse team for the United States Naval Academy. Throughout Annie's time at Madeira she's had the opportunity to become a three-season varsity athlete. In the Fall Annie is an outstanding goalie for the varsity soccer team; in the Winter Annie is a key contributor to the varsity basketball team; and in the Spring, Annie is lethal on the lacrosse field. "Annie epitomizes what it means to be a Madeira athlete", says Assistant Athletic Director and Head Lacrosse coach, Kelly Chandler. "She is a three-sport athlete and captain, is a strong, vocal leader, and sets the standard for what it means to work hard and be a great teammate. Annie performs no matter what, and will have a very successful career at Navy, both on her team and for her country. We are so proud of Annie and look forward to watching her continue to serve and lead at Navy and beyond."

During her junior year, Newton interned on Capitol Hill with Senator Patrick Leahy of Vermont. Looking ahead to the last five weeks of Newton's Madeira career, she plans to intern with an organization focused on marketing, communications or athletics. Newton credits the outstanding Madeira community for molding her into the best version of herself and will miss her driven peers and the faculty that invest countless time and energy into their students.

Give Locally

For tens of thousands of families in our area, uncertainty and need are distant from the celebrations and plenty that so many of us associate with this holiday period.

The holidays are about giving, and giving thanks. The holidays are about children and family. The holidays are about sharing, about joy. The holidays are about being thankful and about faith and appreciation. The holidays are about alleviating suffering for others.

Northern Virginia is among the wealthiest areas in the country. Many if not most of us go through our daily and seasonal routines without encountering evidence of the needy families among us.

In Fairfax County Public Schools, more than 54,000 students (29 percent) are poor enough to receive subsidized meals.

Many are children living in families who may be on the brink of homelessness, families who must choose between medical bills, car repair, heat and food. Some of these are children who may not be sure that they will have a meal between the meals they get in school.

School holidays can bring uncertainty and hunger, a far cry from the celebrations, gifts and plenty that we associate with Christmas and the holiday season.

Hundreds of homeless students attend the public schools, and their needs are greater.

Many nonprofits in the region need your help to provide holiday meals around Christmas, to provide children with gifts.

There are literally hundreds, probably thousands, of ways to give locally this season, for humans in need, for animals in need, for an environment in need. Here are a few ideas. Please let us know what we have missed.

Helping Families Struggling to Make Ends Meet

Ensure a living wage and meaningful tax relief for working families to address affordable housing crisis.

BY KERRIE WILSON AND
LISA WHETZEL

Rent or childcare? Food or gas for the car? A doctor's visit or the electric bill? Those are impossible – often daily – decisions faced by too many families and individuals struggling to live and work in Northern Virginia.

At Cornerstones and Britepaths, we serve individuals and families throughout Fairfax County who are struggling to make ends meet and live in constant uncertainty about their future. With nearly 85 years collectively of serving the community, our nonprofits work with our most vulnerable neighbors to help them manage their limited income. But while our region rapidly attracts major industry, we're finding a punishing domino effect is forcing our clients to save less and less just to cover basic needs – with affordable housing as the greatest barrier to everyone thriving in our community.^o

Addressing the affordable housing crisis in Virginia is possible today if we offer meaningful tax relief for working families and ensure a living wage for families in the Commonwealth. This was the strong recommendation of local and national affordable housing experts convened recently in Northern Virginia.

Of course, meaningful, permanent investment in the Virginia Housing Trust Fund (such as the proposed $35 million increase) is critical. Practically speaking; however, the long runway for housing production means we must look at near-term solutions to help struggling families today.

That's why we support tax policy proposals that offer a promising path forward.

Legislation has been proposed at the federal and state levels that would strengthen the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) and the Child Tax Credit (CTC).

At the federal level, lawmakers have proposed to build on the success of the federal version of the EITC and the federal Child Tax Credit. This proposal, known as the Working Families Tax Relief Act, would strengthen both credits, enabling working people to keep more of their hard-earned pay and help millions of more kids in families with low and moderate incomes get a stronger start in life.

At the state level, restrictions around Virginia's state EITC means families are missing out on the full value of the credit. Making the state EITC refundable would allow these families to keep more of the income they earn.

We work with clients every day like "Denise," who explained to us what the EITC has meant to her and her family...

"I was a 21-year old single mother to a three-year-old. I worked full time, earning about $12,000 a year. I paid $75/week in daycare. I had no health care. A constant challenge was not having enough money to pay unexpected bills. A trip to the emergency room cost hundreds of dollars that I didn't have. My old Honda needed a significant repair before passing inspection, which I couldn't afford. Without my car, I couldn't get to work. Thankfully, every year, I received about $1500 of EITC. The first year I qualified for EITC, I felt like I'd won the lottery. I paid off some bills, bought a new stroller for my son, and a blue futon from IKEA, which meant I no longer slept on the floor next to my son's crib.

The tax credit didn't allow me to work any less hard. It didn't pay the rent, or the tax bill, or fill my tank with gas. But it allowed me to make purchases that I could never have afforded and it improved my quality of life. It also did something less tangible – it gave me hope. I counted on that check and planned and re-planned throughout the year how to best use it."

That hope kept Denise moving forward as she eventually earned a college degree and worked her way into higher-paying jobs. She is now financially comfortable, and her son works as an engineer.

She explained, "My experiences as a young single mother have forever impacted the way I see the economic injustices. We fail as a society if we don't recognize where we can remove obstacles and create opportunities for people to build a good life for themselves and their children. Conversations about social support programs are not hypothetical political statements; they are decisions that impact real people."

It's time to prioritize working Virginians and their families. We urge Virginia's congressional delegation to support improvements to the federal EITC and CTC, and we urge the governor and state lawmakers to strengthen the state EITC by making it refundable. We hope all lawmakers will join them in sponsoring these proposals.

Cooking with Children this Thanksgiving

Holiday meal prep can help create life-long memories.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Mashing sweet potatoes for a soufflé and drizzling spoonfuls of olive oil over carrots for roasting are Sarah Pardo's earliest memories of cooking with her mother and younger sister during the holidays.

"Some of the things I made then became a family tradition," said Pardo, who is now a nutritionist in Falls Church. "I still make sweet potato soufflé every Thanksgiving."

From establishing tradition and making memories to building confidence and expanding one's palate, the holidays are a perfect time to include children in holiday meal preparation, says Pardo and other culinary aficionados. Bringing children into the kitchen using kid-friendly tools and recipes gets little ones excited about the feast, creates a sense of independence and offers an opportunity to learn about nutrition.

"Thanksgiving is all about tradition and family," said culinary instructor Terri Carr of Terri's Table in Potomac. "I started cooking with my son Nick when he was four or five. I bought him a Cookie Monster apron and we would bake and decorate cookies and give them to friends. We created a lot of special memories."

Allowing children to help with meal planning helps them to feel invested, especially if their favorite fare is included. Enticing children into trying new dishes that they claim to dislike might be made easier if they had a hand in the preparation. "You can also encourage them to try something new or introduce the food groups that make up a balanced meal," said Pardo. "Take them shopping with you and let them help you find the ingredients."

Advanced planning might be necessary for parents who tend to find preparing for a holiday meal stressful. "When you're in a frenzy to get the meal cooked before guests arrive, it might seem easier to do it yourself than have your kids trying to help," said Jessica Bernard, a personal chef in Alexandria. "You can include them in the prep work, even the day before. They can wash vegetables or measure ingredients

"Kids particularly would love making mashed potatoes," added Carr. "When parents do the prep work, kids can put the dish together."

Cooking is not the only task involved in a holiday meal. Creating a centerpiece or the table or choosing decorative items to display will help them to feel included in the festivities. "Kids can set the table so that they realize that it's a special day," said Carr. "Get them involved in decorating. You can set the table a day or two in advance and kids can make crafts to incorporate in the table setting. Decorating the house ahead of time gets everyone in the mood for the holiday."

Ground Broken for Suffragist Memorial

Preceding the program guests spoke out. Nancy Tate, a board member of Turning Point and Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellow, shared her thoughts about the brave and brilliant suffragists. "I joined the board when I was Executive Director of League of Women Voters, which was founded by Carrie Chapman Catt, leader of the major suffrage movement and who ensured the passage of the Nineteenth Amendment which the memorial is here to honor."

Lois Elizabeth Bingham, Executive Director of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., said: "I think at long last women are being recognized. As an African American woman, I am doubly proud because we face the double jeopardy of being black and being women."

Mary Ellen Brock, International President, General Federation of Women's Club, spoke about how dedicated the suffragists were and that they "suffered so much."

Patricia Harrison, Fairfax County representative to NOVA Parks Board, said she was there to support and celebrate the achievements of women. "And to recognize the importance of the women's suffrage movement in creating opportunities for all women who come after us."

Significant donors, national partners and others spoke during the program, among them Tara Hogan Charles, Global Government Relations and Public Policy, Proctor and Gamble. She explained P&G had an aspiration, "to create a world free of bias, with equal voice and equal representation for all individuals, which is why we are humbled to support the construction of the memorial to recognize the decades-long fight for the women's right to vote here in the United States."

Colleen Shogan, Assistant Deputy Librarian for Collections and Services at the Library of Congress, Vice Chair of the Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission shared how different states had already celebrated the 100th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment. "They have honored those occasions with commemorative proclamations and resolutions, lighting up state capitals and landmarks in purple and gold and holding celebrations and educational programs throughout the states."

OCOQUAN REGIONAL PARK is part of NOVA Parks. In a Memorandum of Understanding, NOVA Parks provided the land and perpetual maintenance of the memorial. "NOVA Parks is proud to share its role in the route for this important addition to Occoquan Regional Park," said Michael Nardolilli, Board member, Chairman, NOVA Parks. "As engaged citizens today, we need to understand the low points, and there were low points suffered by these women that are driven by fear and hatred but at the same time aspire to the high point of unity and love where all of us can strive to be our best. Let this site point to a better future for all Americans with liberty, and justice for all."

Langley High and JMU Orchestras Share the Spotlight

Side by Side concert presented at Langley auditorium.

BY ELENA STODDARD
LANGLEY SENIOR

The Langley High School Orchestra was joined by the James Madison University Orchestra during their performance on Wednesday, Nov. 13 in the Langley auditorium. The Side by Side concert presented music that was played by the JMU Orchestra, the Langley High Orchestra, and pieces that were performed by combinations of both orchestras. The students were directed by the JMU Director of Orchestras, Foster Beyers, the Langley Orchestra Director, Dr. Scott McCormick, the Langley High Assistant Director, Adam Willett, and a JMU graduate assistant, Colton Henry.

"I really enjoyed my experience here at Langley; it was really great to play with them and be more involved in the Fairfax County Schools" said JMU senior violinist Abby Bolcansek.

The concert opened with the JMU Orchestra performing the "Rákóczi March" by Hector Berlioz. This was followed by Rebecca Clarke's "Sonata for Viola and Orchestra," which is Clarke's best-known work. Dr. Diane Phoenix-Neal from JMU was featured as the viola soloist.

"I really enjoyed listening to the James Madison Orchestra - they were really put together and it encouraged me to continue with my musical career," said Langley High senior violinist Briton Boiardi.

Foster Beyers, JMU Director of Orchestras, was astounded by the hospitality of the Langley Orchestra and commented that it was like family.

Next, the Langley Concert Orchestra combined with JMU string musicians played "The Speckled Hen Overture" by William Hofeldt. Unlike most musical compositions about birds, Richard Meyer conveyed images of birds at flight and at rest in his "Of Glorious Plumage" which was performed by the Langley Symphonic Orchestra joined by JMU students. Camille Saint-Saëns' famous "Carnival of the Animals" was played by the Langley Philharmonic Orchestra, displaying three movements including "Fossiles." In "Fossiles," the distinctive rhythms of the xylophone represented the movement of fossils.

For the finale, the JMU Orchestra and Langley Philharmonic Orchestra shared the stage as they played Hector Berlioz's Symphonie Fantastique ("An Episode in the Life of an Artist"), Opus 14. This dynamic piece describes a dream that Berlioz had which involved love and death. The combined orchestras performed movement two, "A Ball," and movement four, "March to the Scaffold," together. Movement five, "Dream of a Witches' Sabbath," was played by the JMU Orchestra only.

Addressing the audience, the JMU Director of Orchestras articulated how impressed he was regarding his involvement with the Langley High School Orchestra and was grateful for the opportunity to be able to perform a side by side concert. The JMU Orchestra was on tour in Virginia, but Langley was the only location where high school students had the opportunity to rehearse and perform with the JMU students.

"I really enjoyed working with the Langley High Philharmonic," said JMU sophomore Timone Immes, "they were really impressive."

B.GOOD Opens First Restaurant In Northern Virginia

Farmer-to-table restaurant chain, B.GOOD, held a grand opening at its first location in Northern Virginia on Thursday, Nov. 14 in Tysons Corner. The celebration included a ribbon-cutting ceremony attended by members of the Tysons Chamber of Commerce and executives. B.GOOD gave away samples and prizes, and even free entree cards to the first 50 customers. It is the third to open in Virginia and the 65th restaurant in the U.S.

Tysons Corner was selected as a market where the restaurant can thrive, according to B.GOOD. "There are a number of factors that make the DMV, and Tysons in particular, an attractive place to plant our roots. There is a diverse population of savvy diners who know what good food is all about, and there is ongoing demand for fast, healthier food options. We're excited to bring a differentiated menu to the local food scene," said Chris Fuqua, Chief Executive Officer.

B.GOOD prides itself in using fresh ingredients while also adhering to standards of animal welfare. The chain sources as often as possible with local farmers and suppliers, while cultivating relationships with them. A diverse menu of healthy food options can be found including "responsibly sourced" burgers, bowls, salads, sandwiches and smoothies.

"The Tysons Regional Chamber of Commerce is proud and excited to have B.Good be a member of the Chamber and a part of the Tysons community. We look forward to partnering with B.Good to support Tysons," said Mariam Tadros, on the Tysons Regional Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber helps to promote businesses through various means in the Tysons area and is the largest chamber in Virginia.

B.GOOD executives were overall pleased with the restaurant chain's grand opening. "It's going to be the first of many stores to come," said Kevin Lias, store manager at the Tysons location. For more information, visit www.bgood.com

OBITUARY

Archimandrite Joseph Francavilla

Archimandrite Joseph Francavilla, a faithful shepherd and spiritual father to many, fell asleep in the Lord Nov. 13, 2019, surrounded by fellow priests and parishioners who loved him. He was 76 years old.

Fr. Joseph served as pastor at Holy Transfiguration Greek Catholic Church in McLean since 1971, just two years after his ordination as priest of the Melkite Eparchy of New-ton.

Since then, he fully poured out himself in selfless service to his congregation setting an example of genuine Christian love. He has baptized many Christians, crowned hundreds of couples in Holy Matrimony and inspired numerous ordinations.

Fr. Joseph perfected the gift of hospitality believing in the importance of relationships. Holy Transfiguration is known in community for its annual Middle Eastern Food Festival. Which was important to Fr. Joseph in sharing the beauty of the Eastern Church with the community.

and are committed to follow his example in all that their beloved priest taught them.

Born Jan. 16, 1943, he grew up in Buffalo, N.Y. and is survived by three brothers: Thomas, 80, Charles, 77, and Paul Francavilla, 65. He joins his father, Joseph Vincent Francavilla, and mother, Mary Boncore Francavilla in eternal rest.

After battling pancreatic cancer for two years, he faced death with unshakable courage and deep faith and with the kind of humility, grace and class that characterized his whole life.

He will be remembered as a holy priest, a loyal friend and a spiritual father to many. "That is about as successful a life as anyone can have," said his brother Charles Francavilla.

Services were held at Holy Transfiguration Greek Melkite Church, 8501 Lewinsville Rd., McLean on Monday, Nov. 18, with burial on Tuesday, Nov. 19 at Andrew Chapel Cemetery in Vienna.

Memorial contributions may be mailed to Holy Transfiguration Church in McLean.

'Romeo & Juliet' at Langley High

Langley's modern twist on a classical masterpiece.

By VALERIE KARASEK

Saxon Stage presents "Romeo & Juliet," William Shakespeare's classic tale of romance and rivalry set in Washington, D.C. in the late summer of 2020 amidst the heated political climate of an upcoming election. Lady Montague, a single mom and Democratic Congresswoman, matches wits against a well-established Republican Senator Capulet as they attempt to become the next President of the United States. As they strategize how to achieve their partisan goals, their campaign supporters stand passionately behind them, ready to fight against any challenger or opposing viewpoint. However, their teenage children, Romeo and Juliet, have grown weary of the polarized campaign frenzy. They long for the love and attention of their parents, as well as a soulmate willing to make them the center of their universe.

Shakespeare's poetic text reveals an uncanny relevance to the tribal nature of today's political environment. Word-for-word, the text rings true and the narrative is as powerful today as it was more than 400 years ago. In Saxon Stage's production, the title roles will be played by Cole Sitalides, 2019 Cappie winner for Best Actor in Biloxi Blues, and Hannah Cadenazzi, Sophie in last spring's Mamma Mia. Samuel Buroker as Mercutio, Leland Hao as Benvolio, Chris Morgan as Tybalt, Peter Fox as Friar Lawrence, Samantha Brunjes as the Nurse, Lily Spiller as Lady Montague, and Gunnar Peacock and Hannah Toronto as the Capulets, along with an active ensemble of 35, round out the stellar cast. The technical design team will further support our artistic vision of the show with the use of projections and music to help set the location and mood.

"Romeo & Juliet" opens on Thursday, Dec. 5 and will run through Sunday, Dec. 8. All performances will begin at 7 p.m. except for the Sunday matinee at 2 p.m. Cappies performance is on Friday, Dec.

Hannah Cameron-Cadenazzi (Juliet) and Cole Sitalides (Romeo). Romeo and Juliet's first meeting in the middle of the dance at the Get Out the Youth Vote Party.

Hannah Toronto (Lady Capulet) and Gus Hamburg (Makeup crew). Gus is getting Hannah ready for her big campaign debut shots.

6. This is the date when all the theatre critics will be invited. Additional information, including how to purchase tickets, is available on Saxon Stage website: saxon-stage.com.

An Idiot

Servant No More

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Given the extremely sad experience I shared with you all in last week's column: "Chino Lourie, Rest in Peace," this column will be an attempt to bounce back to my usual and customary reality, one oddly enough that has nothing to do with cancer (well, much, anyway). Instead it has to do with unexpected joy.

The joy to which I refer has to do with a subject which typically provides me little joy: I refer to our two automobiles, a 2000 Honda Accord and a 2018 Audi A4. The former inherited from my parents, payment-free but rarely hassle-free, the latter not free of payments, unfortunately, but free of hassle since its maintenance is covered by the warranty.

Nevertheless, for the past few years, off and mostly on, both cars have had an indication that all was not right. Each had illuminated dashboard warning lights (aka "idiot lights") constantly reminding the driver that attention to some detail was required. For the Honda, it was twofold, a "Main't Req" light and a "Brake" light "were dashing." For the Audi, it was "onefold," an icon which looks like an upside down horseshoe, sort of, which I learned, after thumbing through the owner's manual, meant low tire pressure, appeared directly under the speedometer. Since I felt no give or take with the Honda and saw no evidence of low tire anything with the Audi, I learned to take their reminders in stride and figured I'd wait until their respective next service calls to respond to them.

Those service calls have now occurred. And I am extremely glad - and relieved to say, that their necessary/underlying repairs have been made. Glad/relieved not so much because the repairs/obvious safety issues have been addressed. Rather, glad/relieved that in making those repairs, the dashboard warning lights are no longer illuminating their disdain with the idiot behind the wheel: me, neglecting them.

No more, after starting either car, will my initial focus be on the dashboard to see if miraculously the warning lights have disappeared and finally stopped their incessant, non-verbal badgering. No more will I be forced to ignore their illumination and attempt to compartmentalize their visual reminders that all is not well under the hood (so to speak). And finally, no more will I have to worry that one day - or night, the other mechanical shoe will drop and I or my wife, will be left stranded on the road somewhere waiting for a tow truck to drag us to our car-repair maker.

And though this dashboard-warning-light-turn-off is really a turn-on, I am still able to keep its effect in perspective. It's not a cure for cancer and neither it is a cure for my "stable" issue as written about multiple times recently ("Please Relief Me" and "Apparently, Not a Stable Genius"). However, as we say in sales: "I'll take a yes;" as they say on the high seas: "Any port in a storm;" and has been said for the last century: "Don't look a gift horse in the mouth." For the official record, I am not horsing around in the least when I say how thrilled I am now that everytime I start our cars, I see no lights reminding me what an idiot I've been. As a cancer patient I don't need that kind (or any other kind, quite frankly) of negativity in my life, or in my car either. Eliminating it from my activities of daily living adds a bounce to my step and a joie to my vivre.

I realize I may be over stating the significance of this momentous occasion, but when cancer takes over your life, it does so emotionally before it does so physically. As such, finding relief is HUGE. Moreover, solving a problem however insignificant in the scheme of things it appears to be, provides the building blocks of success that, as a cancer patient, help strengthen your foundation as you navigate your daily routine. A routine which is already filled with enough challenges. So yes, I am going to make a mountain out of a molehill. And I am going to fill myself up with as much positivity, nonsensical or otherwise, as possible.

I need to be pulled forward, not dragged backward.
