When they were in the minority, Democrats were mostly united in their views about everything from gun control and reproductive rights to the Equal Rights Amendment. Now that they've seized power, though, members of the newly minted majority are hearing from opposite sides on everything from gerrymandering and labor rights. That push and pull was evident during a legislative hearing of the Fairfax delegation, the largest in Virginia and home of the new speaker of the House and the Senate majority leader. The hearing was dominated by dozens of firearms enthusiasts sporting orange "guns save lives" stickers from the Virginia Citizens Defense League.

"It's important that our board be given the authority to keep guns out of our rec centers and government centers," said Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Jeff McKay, the first to testify, drawing jeers from the heavily armed crowd.

McKay went through a number of gun control measures Democrats campaigned on last year: universal background checks and limitation on how many firearms an individual can purchase a month as well as a ban on assault weapons to include suppressors, bump stocks and high-capacity magazines. That prompted loud and extensive heckling from the crowd, who responded by yelling loudly that he was a "traitor" and a "communist." Later in the hearing, when gun advocates took the microphone, they warned of "a civil war" if Virginia took action to limit what they view as their Second Amendment rights.

"It's a lot like looking at modern art," said Vincent Dory, who described himself as a rank-and-file member of the Virginia Citizens Defense League. "Modern art and gun control are both extremely confusing to look at, extremely pretentious and extremely ridiculous."

THE DEBATE OVER GERRYMANDERING is one of the thorniest questions before lawmakers, an issue that divides Democrats as they prepare to take control for the first time in a generation. On one side of the debate is supporters of a group called Virginia 2021, which struck a compromise last year between Democrats and Republicans to craft a constitutional amendment that would take the power to draw legislative districts out of the hands of lawmakers and give it to a bipartisan commission. One volunteer with Virginia 2021 even broke into song, crooning to the tune of "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen."

"All rest ye merry gentle folk, let nothing you dismay. Remember gerrymandering will let us get our way," sang

SEIU Virginia 512 president David Broder asks lawmakers to raise the minimum wage, allowing collective bargaining for public employees and pass a homecare workers bill of rights.

Michael Martin. "And save us from all others hopes. They do not have a say. Oh, tidings of corruption and joy."

The proposed amendment passed last year, and because of the amendment process in Virginia it has to pass again this year and then go to voters. But now that Democrats have control of the General Assembly, they would be the ones drawing the maps. Many Democrats say they would be squandering their newfound power by yielding that power to a commission, especially because the maps would likely end up before the Republican-dominated Supreme Court of Virginia. Advocates of the amendment say that can be fixed by enabling legislation that would require a special master draw the districts. But many people associated with Indivisible groups in Northern Virginia are urging lawmakers to vote no on the amendment.

"If I could rid myself of the concerns that I have with respect to that amendment and some of the backdoor was this could work against Democrats, in particular, I would support it," said Luke Levasseur of McLean. "I cannot support it, and I believe that the amendment that we have is not a step forward. It's a step in the wrong direction, sideways, potentially off a cliff."

LABOR ISSUES have long been a

Northern Virginia Democrats wrestle with power now that they have it.

sticking point in Richmond, where the Republican majority and their allies in the business world have resisted the agenda of labor leaders. Now things have changed, and labor unions across Virginia are pressing lawmakers on a lengthy list of agenda items. SEIU Virginia 512 president David Broder asked members of the Fairfax delegation to raise the minimum wage, allowing collective bargaining for public employees and pass a homecare workers bill of rights — slate of bills to make sure homecare workers under the state's Medicaid program get a living wage, benefits and health care.

"Many of us are working longer hours for less pay with fewer benefits than ever before with virtually no rights on the job."

— David Broder,
president of SEIU Virginia 512

"Many of us are working longer hours for less pay with fewer benefits than ever before with virtually no rights on the job," said Broder. "Many of us have two or three jobs just to put together the income that one job used to provide, and so it's no surprise that under the previous Republican majorities OXFAM America ranked Virginia as the worst state for working people two years in a row."

Notably absent from the SEIU's list of priorities was repealing Virginia's infamous right-to-work law, a 1940s era restriction on employers from compelling employees to pay union dues. Broder says his organization has always been in favor of repealing the law, which he says hurts working families. But, he adds, it's not a priority because it wouldn't help as many people as raising the minimum wage or allowing collective bargaining for public employees. Representatives of the American Federation of Teachers and the Fairfax Education Association, however, both outlined repealing the right-to-work law as a top priority.

"They would be more appropriately named right-to fire-laws or right-to-work for less laws," said David Walrod of the Fairfax County Federation of Teachers. "By stripping employees of the right to collectively organize and have a collective voice, the power is returned to CEOs rather than employees."

OPINION

BY U.S. REP. GERALD E. CONNOLLY (D-VA)

In 2018, Democrats reclaimed our majority in the House of Representatives with a promise to deliver on bold, progressive solutions to the most pressing issues we face as a nation. Now, one year into the 116th Congress, that promise has been kept.

The House approved more than 400 pieces of legislation last year alone, more than 275 of which are bipartisan. Each of these bills is important and many are even life-changing, but there are several that are particularly worth highlighting.^o

I cannot go anywhere in our community without hearing how access to healthcare is affecting people's lives. While the Affordable Care Act and Medicaid expansion have increased access, Virginians are still struggling with skyrocketing prescription drug prices. That is why I am so proud the House passed the Elijah E. Cummings Lower Drug Costs Now Act, legislation that will lower prescription drug costs by increasing competition and would allow Medicare to renegotiate lower prices for more than 250 prescription drugs.

Conversations about our gun violence crisis are equally unavoidable. Like far too many communities across America, Northern Virginia is no stranger to the pain and loss wrought by mass shootings. I was Chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors during the Virginia Tech massacre. I, like so many of our neighbors, will never forget the six young people we buried in the wake of that horrific day.

We need to pass gun control that makes our

None of us came to Congress to impeach a president, but each of us took an oath to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States.

communities safer. That is why I was so proud the House passed the Bipartisan Background Checks Act and the Enhanced Background Checks Act. These long overdue bills would close dangerous loopholes and ensure that no American can purchase a gun without first clearing a federal background check. We are in the middle of a national crisis, and this legislation is the least we can do to address it.

We have also had important successes for our region — particularly for federal employees. Thanks to Democratic efforts, we finally secured 12 weeks of paid parental leave and a 3.1 percent pay raise for federal employees. As Chairman of the Subcommittee on Government Operations, I successfully led the fight to stop the Trump administration's disastrous proposal to abolish the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). We secured back pay for federal employees following the President's damaging 35-day shutdown, and I held a hearing on the need to provide equal protections for federal contract workers.

Of course, despite our achievements, the last several months of 2019 were not easy for the Congress or the country. None of us came to Congress to impeach a president, but each of us took an oath to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. That oath demanded we take action in the face of unprecedented wrongdoing by an out-of-control executive. To extort a foreign country to investigate your political opponent is an unconstitutional abuse of power. To solicit foreign interference in an American election is an unconstitutional abuse of power. And the delicate balance of power that underpins our democracy is threatened when a President disregards the Constitution by obstructing Congress to cover up these unconstitutional abuses of power.^o

Impeachment is a uniquely serious issue, but it isn't the only issue. Through even the most difficult moments, our legislative work never stopped. Last month, the House voted on a bipartisan basis to replace NAFTA with the United States - Mexico - Canada Agreement (USMCA). After months of tough negotiating, Democrats secured a deal that includes the strongest enforcement mechanisms of any U.S. trade agreement, as well as critical victories for workers, lower prescription drug costs, and much-needed environmental protections. We also adopted a bipartisan appropriations agreement to fully fund the government for fiscal year 2020.

These successes are a reminder of the incredible progress our country can make. But they also bring into focus the stark reality that the House of Representatives cannot make laws on its own. Leader McConnell has unilaterally blocked the Senate from debating and voting on 80 percent of the bills that we in the House have sent to his desk — most of them bipartisan, and all of them worthy of consideration. His failure of leadership, however, will not deter us from doing the business of the American people.^{oo}

As we say goodbye to 2019, you can rest assured that we will build upon the progress we've made and continue to hold the Trump administration accountable in the New Year.

2019 By the Numbers

BY PAT HERRITY
SPRINGFIELD DISTRICT SUPERVISOR

The past year was a great year here, and as a numbers guy, here are a few of the many highlights I would like to share with you:

❖ In 2019, Fairfax County recycled over 3 million pounds of clean glass with the new Purple Bin Program with plans in place to start true glass to glass recycling in 2020.

❖ We started a pilot program with two non-profit partners modeled after the "There's a Better Way" program to provide the dignity of work for people who are unemployed and between housing to clean up our streams.

❖ Our police department collected over 4,694 pounds of unused prescription drugs in the fight to prevent and end opioid addiction, with many police stations participating in two Drug Take Back Days.

❖ We had over 1,500 students engage with over 100 businesses to find their first job at our annual Fairfax County Teen Job and Opportunity Fairs.

❖ In the summer, over 2,500 people enjoyed the Free Concert in the Park Series at one of the state's premiere parks, Burke Lake Park, with shows by local artists and opening acts by local high school students.

❖ Members of the West Springfield community celebrated the completed renovation of West Springfield High School with over 2,000 students benefiting from better lighting, improved science classrooms, learning labs, and better gymnasium space.

❖ The Board adopted the plan for the SHAPE the Future of Aging plan which will update the award winning 50+ Community Action Plan to address the challenges of growing older adult population that now makes up over 25% of the County including initiatives to address isolation, dementia and mobility.

❖ We are moving forward on over $460M worth of transportation improvement projects in Springfield District, including:

❖ Fairfax County Parkway Widening Project including a grade separated interchange at the Popes Head intersection,

❖ Widening Route 29 between Union Mill Road & Buckleys Gate

❖ Widening Route 28 between Prince William County & Lee Highway

❖ Widening Rolling Road between Old Keene Mill Road & Hunter Village Dr.

❖ Eliminating the dangerous curve on Burke Road

❖ Numerous bicycle and pedestrian projects

❖ I was honored to be reelected as Springfield District Supervisor and to be named Sun Gazette's Best Public Servant in Fairfax County for the third year in a row.

As we welcome in 2020, we have a lot to be proud of, a lot of challenges to address and a lot of work to be done to make Fairfax County a better place for all our residents. I look forward to working with you in the new year. Please don't hesitate to contact my office at 703-451-8873 or Springfield@fairfaxcounty.gov if I can be of service to you.

LETTER

Making Our Voices Heard

To the Editor:

With the New Year, Virginia kicks off its whirlwind legislative session, beginning on Jan. 8 and concluding on March 7. In this short time, legislators consider hundreds of bills on issues that affect our daily lives in ways great and small. Issues that are particularly important to me, as a pet and nature lover, include animal welfare issues.

This year will see numerous bills on animal welfare introduced, debated, and perhaps enacted into law, including bills that affect puppy mills.

Readers may remember two stories about two different pet stores in northern Virginia this year, one in Fairfax City and one in Manassas City, being investigated for and charged with multiple counts of animal cruelty. Since then, Fairfax City has passed an ordinance requiring that pet stores be licensed and inspected to ensure that they are in compliance with laws in Virginia requiring humane treatment of animals.

The Commonwealth will have an opportunity to address this issue in counties and cities across Virginia through legislation being introduced at the state level.

Other bills under consideration address tethering of dogs in extreme weather, penalties for cruelty that results in serious bodily injury or death of an animal, protections for Virginia consumers that purchase pets from sellers that have misrepresented the animal's health or background, and testing of cosmetics on animals.

I and many of my fellow Virginians that care about animal welfare will be heading to Richmond on Jan. 23, Humane Lobby Day, to ask our representatives to vote in support of or opposition to these and other bills.

Whatever our issues may be, we are very fortunate to have this chance to make our voices heard and to exercise our rights in a democratic society to influence how we are governed. It is an exhilarating experience and I encourage all to consider a visit to the state capitol or writing or calling our representatives. They do care and truly appreciate hearing from constituents.

Biking in Fairfax County Gets a New Face for Advocacy

Matt Roberts now behind the wheel for FABB

BY MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

It was the combination of non-profit experience and the love of bicycle riding that landed Matt Roberts in the position of the new executive director for the Fairfax Alliance for Better Bicycling. He hasn't owned a car for years, and previously worked at the Energy Storage Association, so this was a good fit for Roberts and the biking community in Northern Virginia.

Roberts was hired by the FABB Board of Directors in late October, and looks at it as "a great opportunity," he said. That attitude was reiterated by FABB President Sonya Breehey, who liked his experience. "We look forward to working with him to achieve FABB's vision of making bicycling safe and accessible for everyone in Fairfax County," she said in their blog.

Roberts grew up in Michigan, and lived in the Netherlands a few years ago where the use of bicycles and trains was a major part of the transportation picture. "I don't think I was in a car once the whole time I lived there," he said.

In the warmer months ahead, Roberts is looking to get more county residents involved with biking, whether it be commuting or getting to school. Bike to Work Day in May and Bike to School Day are on his agenda to get riders involved this coming year. "These are great opportunities," he said.

For children getting to school, there may be some more tweaking the current trails to make it safer. "Some of the biking facili-

Giving up alcohol during “Dry January” can have positive health benefits.

Dry January?

The benefits of and strategies for taking a month-long booze break.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

After a season filled with Champagne, Whiskey Sours, Gingerbread Martinis and other libations, some might need a break from booze. Dry January, a public health campaign that encourages giving up alcohol until the first of February – can help with that effort. The health benefits of staying dry for a month range from thinner thighs to a fatter wallet.

“It’s very common for people to come home after a stressful day and unwind with a glass of wine or two,” said Alexandria-based substance abuse counselor Sarah Brewer, Ph.D. “But the reality is that while alcohol does seem to make you more relaxed at first, it can lead to anxiety or a depressed mood.”

Weight loss can be a pleasant side effect of abstaining from an evening pour, says nutritionist Kathryn Armstrong, who cites a report by the National Institutes of Health that showed a strong link between weight gain and alcohol. “Basically, the cocktail or wine that you’re drinking has empty calories,” she said. “Also, many people tend to eat, especially junk food when they drink.”

“Another benefit of being alcohol-free for a month is that people often find that they don’t need that glass of wine to relax and unwind from a stressful day,” added Brewer. “Giving up alcohol for a month might give you an opportunity to find explore other relaxation methods like meditation or going for a walk or some other type of exercise.”

“By not drinking you might find that you’ve been using alcohol to help deal with other issues like depression, PTSD or anxiety. In those cases you should get help from a medical or mental health professional.”

— Sarah Brewer, Ph.D.

For those who regularly attend happy hours with friends or have a glass of wine to relax, abstaining during one of the longest months of the year might seem unpleasant or unappealing, says Bethesda-based therapist Carol Barnaby, LCSW. “You might find things to distract you,” she said. “If you’re used to having a drink or going to a happy hour at the same time every day, you can schedule something else during that time so you’re mind isn’t on alcohol. People who enjoy the taste of alcohol might try eating fruit or drinking a fruit flavored sparkling water.”

“If you’re used to having a drink or going to a happy hour at the same time every day, you can schedule something else during that time so you’re mind isn’t on alcohol.”

— Carol Barnaby, LCSW

Attempting to take a break from alcohol might unmask deeper issues, suggests Brewer.

“If you find that you can’t stop drinking, it could mean that you have a problem with alcohol consumption,” she said. “By not drinking you might find that you’ve been using alcohol to help deal with other issues like depression, PTSD or anxiety. In those cases you should get help from a medical or mental health professional.”

Alonzo King LINES Ballet

Saturday/Jan. 25, 8 p.m. At GMU Center for the Arts, 4373 Mason Pond Drive, Fairfax. Since 1982, visionary choreographer Alonzo King has been redefining contemporary ballet by creating daring new works that marry the science of artistic movement with the beauty of other art forms. In his latest collaboration, Figures of Speech, King addresses the fact that languages of the world are vanishing at an alarming rate, and draws on the research of poet and activist Bob Holman, pioneer in the slam poetry movement and co-founder of the Endangered Language Alliance. His expressive choreography takes inspiration from a soundtrack of poetry recited by native speakers of languages nearing extinction and music played on traditional instruments. Cost is $48, $41, $29. Visit the website: <https://cfa.gmu.edu/>

School Time Allotted for Civic Engagement

School Board allows excuse absence for activism.

BY MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

During the school year in 2018, there was a planned walkout to protest gun violence after the shooting in Parkland, Florida, and students from several schools in the Fairfax County Public Schools took part, although this was not part of the county curriculum. Starting Tuesday, Jan. 21, activities like this will be part of the curriculum, now that the school system recently enacted a “Student Civic Engagement Activity,” option for students.

Lee High School sophomore Oranus Yaqubi did participate in the anti-gun rally when she was a middle school student at Key Middle School and gained some real-life experience from the event.

“I like making a stand for what I believe in,” she said.

Noshin Hassan is a 2018 alum from Lake Braddock that took part in the same walkout, and looked at it as “a great opportunity for us to voice our opinion,” she said.

Lee junior Leah Kareem likes the new policy the school system adopted, and if it was part of the curriculum a few years ago, “I would have gone to the women’s march,” she said.

It’s these kind of activities the school system is open to, feeling that it has a place in education. “Civic engagement is something that is emphasized in our government classes and the new regulation recognizes that our students are offered multiple opportunities to participate because of our location,” said FCPS School Board Chair Karen Corbett Sanders.

This may seem like a day off with an excuse but in the wording, it’s only a partial absence, and the student is expected to attend school for some portion of the day. But according to school spokesperson Lucy Caldwell, “there has not been a specific number of hours assigned to the term,” she said. The school system has built in a parental approval angle. According to Caldwell, “students will have addressed ideas with their parent(s) and parents/guardians will have approved and signed off on prearranged absence forms in advance of the request,” she said. “These conversations provide another opportunity for families to discuss issues that are of importance to them and the education of their children.”

This will only stop some of the abuse, said West Springfield alumni Alex Cronin. “There’s a lot of people that are interested in politics so they would use it, but there’s others who would just use it as an excuse to get the day off,” he said. Cronin did participate in some of the recent event discussions in class, but he noticed the teachers tried to stay clear of siding with one party or the other.

Whether it’s a school shooting activity like Parkland, and an uproar against guns, or a pro-National Rifle Association rally, the reason for the absence has to be approved by the parents so this takes the judgment out of school hands.

“As there is a pre-arranged absence form that parents must submit, school administration will not apply a personal lens to the activity,” Caldwell added.

This civic engagement policy was the result of a School Board initiative, largely driven by a rise in student involvement following incidents around the nation that impacted students and their communities, such as the shooting in Parkland, Caldwell said.

FABB Continues to support the Tour de Mount Vernon and other similar local rides.

Better Bicycling

ties we’ve built is a little dicey for kids,” he said.

It will take more than just the local governments to complete the bike trail and bike parking facilities in the county, and Roberts is looking at getting all parties working toward the same goal. “How do we get all these people participating in the dialogue?” he asked.

In the coming months, all eyes are on the arrival of Amazon to Arlington, and that includes Roberts. While he doesn’t support more parking lot construction to handle the cars that Amazon will attract, he did note the socially conscious aura that seems to surround Amazon. Does this equate to more biking and public transportation use? “On paper, they have very good intentions,” he said.

Roberts is currently a resident of Washington, D.C. and used to bike about seven miles to work in Old Town, Alexandria. He now telecommutes, uses public transportation or uses a ride sharing service if he has to. He plans on moving to Fairfax County in the future.

FABB’s Outlook

In 2019, FABB celebrated several successes supporting their message in Fairfax County including the support of the Richmond Highway widening project, Merrifield Bicycle and Pedestrian Planning effort, the Seminary Road traffic calming plan, the Mount Vernon Trail safety improvements, and the Huntley Meadows Trail Plan, which was scrapped by the county for now. They still support it nonetheless.

In 2020, FABB has a full list to concentrate on, and that includes:

- ❖ Leverage the new majority in the Virginia House and Senate to pass long laws to improve road safety and increase multi-modal investments;
- ❖ Support development of the County’s Active Transportation Plan;
- ❖ Monitor ongoing progress of the 66 Parallel Trail;
- ❖ Continue advocating for safer biking as part of the Route 1 widening and Bus Rapid Transit project;
- ❖ Remain at the forefront of planning for the I-495 parallel trail and pedestrian/bicycle connections across a future American Legion Bridge expansion;
- ❖ Promote bicycling and tourism by co-sponsoring the 5th annual Tour de Mt Vernon on Oct. 3.

Fairfax Symphony Orchestra. 8 p.m. At GMU Center for the Arts, 4373 Mason Pond Drive, Fairfax. Violinist Simone Porter is the virtuoso soloist in Vivaldi's dazzlingly imaginative evocation of the sights, sounds and sensations of the Italian seasons. The Four Seasons violin concertos are so richly detailed you can feel the sirocco of summer, hear the dancing villagers of Autumn and slip on the ice of a Venetian winter. The master of the New Tango, Astor Piazzolla, brought the wild dance of Buenos Aires into the concert hall. There's an apt nod to Vivaldi in Leonid Desyatnikov's sensational string arrangements of the Estaciones Portenas, but they have an atmosphere that's unique to Buenos Aires – fiercely sensual in summer, hazy and melancholic in winter, all moving to the heartbeat of the tango. Vivaldi's seasons enfold Piazzolla's in this dance around the year. Prices begin at $25; $15 for students. Visit the website: <https://cfa.gmu.edu/> three weeks. The story differs somewhat from the classic fairytale: there is no fairy godmother, magic pumpkin, or even a glass slipper! Even so, this enchanting tale delivers with all of the glimmering splendor, the comic characters, and the happy ending, of course. Best of all, it includes Rossini's effervescent score with the epic orchestral storm before the Prince finally finds Cenerentola, and the arias "Miei rampolli femminini," and "Nacqui all' affanno...Non piu mesta." GROW AND PLANT UNDERWATER GRASSES

Volunteers are needed across Virginia to restore native underwater grasses by growing them at home, school, or work through the Chesapeake Bay Foundation's Grasses for the Masses program. These wild celery grasses grow underwater in Virginia's tidal rivers and offer many benefits for both wildlife and clean water. While submerged grasses in Virginia have been seriously depleted by pollution, they are beginning to make a comeback. To participate, volunteers must attend one of several upcoming workshops in the area. Volunteers then grow grasses from seed in trays submerged in the provided tubs. They nurture these grass sprouts until late spring, when they will transplant their grasses to restoration sites in the James, Rappahannock, Chickahominy, and Potomac rivers. Advance registration is required. Participants will receive a self-contained indoor growing kit, seeds, and instructions at any of the following workshops:

- ❖ In Northern Virginia, on Jan. 22 at Daniels Run Elementary School in Fairfax and on Feb. 2 and Feb. 8 at Alexandria ReNew Enterprises; there is a $40 fee per grass growing kit. Visit www.cbf.org/grassesworkshops.

BRITEPATHS SEEKING VOLUNTEERS

Fairfax-based nonprofit Britepaths is seeking volunteers to sponsor families in need who live throughout the Fairfax County area. Sponsors are matched with families who have demonstrated need, and may opt to provide a December holiday meal and/or gifts for children under 18. Britepaths also has a great need for cash donations and gift cards to grocery stores or Target/Walmart to assist those who are not sponsored. A wonderful family, company or group holiday service project. Register and learn more at: britepaths.org. Contact 703-273-8829 or sryan@britepaths.org.

SUPPORT GROUPS

Parent Support Partners, a service of the Healthy Minds Fairfax initiative, are all parents who have received training and are qualified to offer education, support and assistance at no cost to families or caregivers. They provide reliable information that families can use in decision-making and are familiar with services and resources that can help families in distress. Visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/healthymindsfairfax or www.nami-northernvirginia.org/parent-peer-support.html. Shepherd's Center of Fairfax-Burke sponsors a monthly meeting on the 2nd Tuesday of each month, noon-1:30 p.m., for caregivers to learn and to share with others experiencing similar challenges. Before attending, contact the facilitator, Eileen Thompson at 703-451-8626 or eileen.thompson1@gmail.com.

Haven of Northern Virginia provides support, compassion, information and resources to the bereaved and seriously ill. To become a Haven volunteer, please call 703-941-7000 to request an orientation. Volunteers must complete a 30-hour training and commit to one year of service answering Haven phones (2.5 hours weekly). Next training is scheduled for fall 2017.

OMG

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Are you sitting down? I wasn't when I got the call from my oncologist after hours this past Thursday. He was calling me with the results from the previous week's biopsy. He said he had "exciting news." He said the biopsy was not only "typed" (genetic mutation/biomarker) but, as he continued to bury the lead using medical jargon about the slide and stain, finally got around to it: I may not have (or have had, still to be discussed/possibly determined) non-small cell lung cancer, stage IV. Instead, I may have (always had) thyroid cancer, specifically, papillary thyroid cancer, referred to as "the friendly cancer," by my oncology nurse the following infusion when I shared with her these preliminary findings. 'Friendly' referring to one's survival/life expectancy after diagnosis.

Moving forward to begin/confirm this new working diagnosis, I had an ultrasound of my thyroid the next day and Friday the following week, Team Lourie will be meeting with an endocrinologist. She (I saw her picture on the wall outside her office) presumably will have had a discussion, or at the very least, received an email/referral from my oncologist citing chapter and a few verses about who I am, how I've been treated, what scan/results I've had and of course, the news of this most recent biopsy, explaining why he reached out. I really don't expect, given my oncologist's excitement, and the fact that he called me (only the second time in nearly 11 years) that the endocrinologist will be likewise informed and possibly even excited to share a similar diagnosis with a previously-characterized as "terminal" patient who (yours truly) might not be "terminal" after all. 'Might not' being the operative phrase I'm still having difficulty grasping.

Somehow, I have to slow my roll and pull back on the reins. We're still early days here. Right now, I don't know anything definitive, so I'm not quite ready to call this a "Festivus miracle." Though at present it all sounds fairly promising, it's not exactly cast in stone. and neither has a revised Thyroid-cancer-treatment plan been put in place. I'm still a lung cancer "diagnossee" and one still waiting for the other shoe to drop. Therefore, until I'm told otherwise, as of now, I'm scheduled for my bi-weekly opdivo immunotherapy infusion on Jan. 3, 2020.

Now, why all of this is worth writing about, prematurely as it is, is that oncologists, almost by definition, are typically not the bearer of "exciting news." Generally speaking, they are giving bad news and saying it very directly at that. As was said to me in late February 2009: "Why not take that vacation you've always dreamed of while you're still feeling good?" The implication being quite clear that it's likely to get worse from here. To receive a call like I did Thursday from my oncologist now implying that it might get better from here is completely out of the ordinary. Moreover, if he initiated such a communication, I should probably take him at his words and take him very seriously.

Right now, I am possibly elated to be over the moon. However, it's not as if I've been given a clean bill of health. Cleaner, yes, but one still with a significant balance. And until I look the endocrinologist in her stethoscope and hear some magic words, I am keeping my powder dry and not shouting off my mouth - too much.

Cancer is a funny business. There are twists and turns and unexpected results, much of it not controlled by the doctors. And though I may be on the precipice of being blessed with some amazing, life-altering news, this time for the unbelievably good, I am still a week, maybe even weeks away from knowing with any certainty. In the interim, however, I am certain of one thing. If this change in my status does occur and I'm given back my life expectancy, somehow, I will try and return the favor.
