SPECIAL TO THE CONNECTION

Asha-Jyothi, a Chantilly-based nonprofit, is aiming to take public education to the next level by providing grants to local schools to build state-of-the-art learning environments designed to spur innovation and creative thinking.

“The idea behind this initiative is to bring together diverse communities and demonstrate the importance of giving back, early and often,” explained Asha-Jyothi founder Sekhar Puli. “Educators are the greatest influencers of the next generation. Through these grants and the opportunities they provide, our hope is that all children will be inspired to design, experiment, build and invent, while believing that anything is possible.”

Now in its second year, Asha-Jyothi’s Educate-Innovate initiative recently awarded nearly $90,000 in funding to 17 public schools in both Fairfax and Loudoun counties, including a $60,000 grant to the 2019 grand prize winner, Rocky Run Middle School.

Rocky Run’s winning proposal will allow the school, currently undergoing extensive renovations, to create a dedicated space for creative learning. It will feature a LEGO wall, podcasting/recording room and a workspace with dry-erase tabletops and flexible seating.

“We are thrilled to accept this grant to build an Inspiration Lab in our new library, which will open by Spring 2020,” said Rocky Run Principal Amy Goodloe. “Thank you, Asha-Jyothi, for your generosity and for inspiring our students to aim high and dream big.”

In addition, two other local schools received 2019 Educate-Innovate grants. Liberty Middle was awarded $2,950 to purchase a vinyl cutter, and Brookfield Elementary received $1,800 to buy Ozobots – small robots that teach students programming skills. Grants are awarded based on proposals from the schools to fund specific requests enabling students to engage in creative thinking and problem solving.

IN ITS FIRST YEAR, Asha-Jyothi’s Educate-Innovate initiative donated $106,000 to build the Innovation Lab at Chantilly High School. This lab offers students access to state-of-the-art 3D printing, audiovisual technology and recording, take-apart technology, writable walls, robotics and more.

To be eligible for funds, local schools were invited to participate in Asha-Jyothi’s annual 5K Run/Walk, held this fall in Fairfax Corner. Asha-Jyothi then donated each school’s registration money back to them to fund education projects.

At the 2019 Educate-Innovate awards ceremony, principals and faculty from 17 participating Loudoun and Fairfax County public schools received checks for their registration, along with a matching amount from the nonprofit. Participating schools included: Chantilly and Centreville high schools; Rocky Run, Liberty and Franklin middle schools; and Centreville, Lees Corner, Brookfield, Poplar Tree, Union Mill, Willow Springs, Oak Hill, and Greenbriar East and West elementary schools.

Overall, in 2019, Asha-Jyothi donated $110,000 to local communities and schools, here and in other states. And according to organization Director Kiran Vemuri, “Going forward, Asha-Jyothi looks forward to even greater community engagement and will continue to fund unique, educational opportunities for students, both locally and beyond.”

Update on road construction on Routes 28/29 and I-66 in Centreville.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

Anyone who's driven on Routes 28 or 29 in the vicinity of I-66, in the past several months, knows that this portion of Centreville has basically become a VDOT work zone. There are orange cones and heavy equipment everywhere, men in hard hats and, of course, the usual traffic – which is why improvements to the I-66/Route 28 Interchange became part of the Transform 66 Outside the Beltway Project, in the first place.

To keep local residents abreast of upcoming, long-term, traffic-pattern changes and detours at the Routes 28 and Route 29 interchanges, planned construction activities along the Route 28 corridor, plus the Route 29 partial bridge demolition, VDOT recently held an information meeting at Stone Middle School.

However, due to rain and other delays, not all of the anticipated time schedule went as planned. Dates changed and became moving targets. However, a great deal of work has now been accomplished and the project is progressing well.

This article will include information from the meeting, as well as the latest updates, as of Jan. 31.

Traffic engineer Rich Clifton, with the design-build contractor, FAM Construction LLC, gave a project overview, plus specific details, at the meeting. He began by noting that the E.C. Lawrence Park access from Route 28 has been moved up to 5000 Stonecroft Blvd., and all exiting traffic must leave the park there, too.

He then said the Poplar Tree Road extension "will come in, and Route 28 will be closed, a couple nights, from midnight-4 a.m., to set the beams." This work was done last week and involved closing Route 28 between Braddock Road and Westfields Boulevard.

Coleen Owens, of Centreville's Heritage Crossing community, speaks with Project Manager Charlie Warraich about the Route 28 north detour to Braddock Road.

ward so beams could be installed for the new Poplar Tree Road bridge over Route 28.

"The northbound Route 28 exit to the I-66 east ramp will be pushed up to the intersection," said Clifton. "Traffic will still be free-flowing but will merge into traffic coming south – and they have the right-of-way."

❖One of the biggest changes that will affect a significant number of people heading toward the Newgate, Sully Station, Sequoia Farms and London Towne communities from Route 28 will be the closure of the two left-turn lanes going from Route 28 north to Braddock Road. Instead, drivers will have to take a detour.

They'll continue on Route 28 north for about 1.5 miles to the traffic signal at the E.C. Lawrence Park athletic fields.

THE LEFT LANE on Route 28 north will become two, protected, U-turn-only lanes. At the traffic signal, drivers will make a U-turn onto Route 28 south, continue in that direction for about 1.5 miles and turn right onto Braddock.

However, drivers planning to turn onto Route 28 south from Braddock will still be able to do so. "The ramp from I-66 west into the Braddock turn lanes may be closed first, if possible," said Clifton. "Or [the changes] may all be implemented at once. Southbound traffic on Route 28 will still have a red light so it can turn right. But left-turn lanes won't have a traffic light stopping them [as they do now]."

As of Jan. 31, an exact date hadn't yet been set for the left-turn lane closures, but VDOT officials expect this action to happen in the next few months and remain in place, at least through November.

This work is necessary so VDOT may complete bridgework for the new overpass that will connect Braddock and Walney roads over Route 28. These roads used to be connected, many years ago; having them joined again will provide easier and more-direct access to the main part of Centreville for residents living in Cabell's Mill and other

❖Another big project that's part of the whole was the partial demolition of the I-66 bridge over Route 29 so it can be rebuilt and lengthened. The work started in December and finished Jan. 23. It took off the outside edges of the bridge so more could be added onto it.

Piers are also being added on Route 29 between the northbound and southbound lanes to support the additional width of the I-66 span over Route 29. Ultimately, when this part of the project is finished, I-66 over Route 29 in Centreville will be wider, longer and taller.

It's being widened to accommodate express and general-purpose lanes, plus shoulders, as well as the space for future mass transit there. Making it taller will create more clearance for trucks and other, over-size vehicles taking Route 29 under I-66.

It's being lengthened so that, when people are driving on Route 29 under the overpass,

Dazzling Pace of Change in Richmond

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

COMMENTARY

Dazzling is the only word I could think of to describe the amazing work that is going on in the Virginia General Assembly this legislative session. The annual meeting of the legislature is just approaching half-time of its annual session, but already significant policy changes are being debated and adopted. There is little new to the policies that are being adopted; many are in place in other states already. But in Richmond they seem revolutionary!

I have already written about the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in the early days of the session. The movement to ratify the ERA began in the early 1970s but was not successful in Virginia until nearly 50 years later! Since two ratification deadlines have already passed, the fate of the amendment with Virginia being the needed 38th state to ratify is uncertain. Virginia Attorney General Mark Herring is among the leaders seeking a judicial decision to validate the amendment's ratification.

Although the Nineteenth Amendment granting women the right to vote was ratified in 1920 and added to the Constitution, Virginia did not add its support to ratification until 1952!

While legislation must be passed by both houses of the legislature and signed by the governor to become law, here is a run-down on what has been approved so far by at least one house. By the time the legislature adjourns in early March this legislation is expected to be approved by both houses and sent to the governor. Numerous bills have been passed to ban discrimination against persons because of their sex; bills to protect LGBTQ+ persons would not have made it out of committee last year. Bills to ban discrimination in housing, public accommodations, employment and credit applications have passed as has a bill to ban conversion therapy.

Likewise, bills to protect public safety from the misuse of guns that would never have made it out of committee previously have passed in both houses of the Assembly. My bill to require universal background checks has passed as well as bills granting localities the right to ban guns in public spaces, increasing the penalties for leaving guns unsecured around children, and requiring people to report lost or stolen guns within 24 hours. A "red flag" law that allows authorities to remove guns from individuals who have shown themselves to be a danger to themselves and to others has passed.

This week action is expected on bills that will open up the state to more solar and wind power and that will establish standards for the increased use of renewables in generating electricity. Plastic bags may be eliminated or taxed to reduce plastic pollution. I am sponsoring the Governor's bill to advance the clean-up of the Chesapeake Bay that is getting some push-back from the farming community that would be affected by regulations to clean up stream runoff. Numerous bills have already passed to make it easier to register to vote and to vote on election day, including no-excuse absentee voting.

There is more to come. Tune in next week or follow the sessions on live-streaming at <https://viriniagenralassembly.gov/house/chamber/chamberstream.php> for more dazzling action!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Not a 'Siege'

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to Delegate Ken Plum's OpEd in the Jan. 22-28 issue of the Connection, titled "Siege of the Capital."

After reading this letter, all I can say is "Wow!" Delegate Plum certainly has very poor opinion of Virginia gun owners. Stating that a peaceful and lawful demonstration by a large number of Second Amendment supporters is a "Siege" is incredible. Clearly Delegate Plum knows nothing about the people he appears to fear. He should get out of his liberal bubble and learn about the people who feel strongly about having their constitutional rights oppressed. They are non-violent and are law abiding.

Delegate Plum should read Virginia's constitution. He states "A well regulated militia made up of state and local police will protect the Capitol building and its occupant legislators from those who would deny freedom to others through their misuse of firearms."

Article 1, Section 13 of Virginia's constitution states:

"That a well regulated militia, composed of the body of the people, trained to arms, is the proper, natural, and safe defense of a free state, therefore, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed; that standing armies, in time of peace, should be avoided as dangerous to liberty; and that in all cases the military should be under strict subordination to, and governed by, the civil power."

Note that our constitution specifically states that the "militia" is made up of the body of the people, meaning you and me. It is not made up of police officers. It sounds to me like Delegate Plum really wants to establish a standing army to protect him and his ilk from the people.

Our constitution cautions that such a thing is "dangerous to liberty".

Don't Abolish The Death Penalty

To the Editor:

It's become quite clear that the movement to abolish the death penalty has reached Virginia. Death penalty opponents have suggested replacing it with life without parole (LWOP). They advocate for it as a more humane alternative to execution. That it's "punishment enough." Except you shouldn't believe that death penalty opponents will keep LWOP.

Recent legislation in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and Vermont is seeking to end LWOP, using the exact same arguments that have been used against the death penalty. "Few civilized countries have LWOP, it's too harsh," et cetera. The movement to abolish the death penalty has become a moving of goalposts, as opponents (who have suggested LWOP) as an alternative, are using the very same arguments they used against the death penalty, to advocate for the removal of the very same alternative punishment that they suggested in the first place! Vox News and The Sentencing Project are now promoting the abolition of LWOP so you shouldn't think it's me fearmongering. The death penalty should stay in Virginia, not just because some crimes are just too heinous to be punished by life without parole, but because it also prevents the abolition of life without parole. If the death penalty is abolished on a Monday, the movement to abolish life without parole will begin the following day. And before you know it, murderers will be back on the streets.

Becoming a More Equal and Inclusive Community

To the Editor:

I am an American, but my origins lie in a country where you cannot exercise your rights as a human being, let alone as a woman. Women are forced into marriage at a young age, girls need permission from their fathers or brothers to leave their homes, and embracing your sexuality is unfathomable — and illegal at times.

It is for this reason that I write to you.

As a local newspaper serving the people of Northern Virginia, I ask that you write an article on the Jan. 15 ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in Virginia. It is crucial that we shed light on this recent event in Virginia that, while long overdue, must be celebrated.

On Jan. 15, 2020, Virginia voted on a resolution to ratify the ERA, making it the 38th state to pass this resolution. For decades feminists have been fighting to add a simple yet monumental phrase to the U.S. Constitution: "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

Shedding light on this century-long issue will give our daughters, mothers, and sisters not only the recognition they deserve, but it will pave the way for other states and even nations to recognize and embrace equal rights as well. If we—as residents of the state of Virginia—are one step closer to becoming a more equal and inclusive community, then we must hold a responsibility to report on these views and enlighten others along the way.

Predatory Student Lenders

Northern Virginia lawmakers hope to crack down on student-loan servicing companies.

By MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

As a high school student, Katlyn Weiser dreamed of attending George Mason University. She wanted to have a career in public service, being in the room where it happens on Capitol Hill. But instead she found herself under a mountain of debt, struggling to keep up with meeting minimum payments and ultimately being forced to make a difficult decision about her future. She says she'll never forget the day when an agent from loan-servicing company Navient told her that she should probably drop out of school to pay off her student debt. "I cried," says Weiser. "I cried a lot because I had come so far. I had become the first person in my family to go to college, one of the first people in my high school to go to college, and it was sad to hear that because I had come so far."

Weiser did not listen. She didn't drop out, and she's now a senior at George Mason University. She says she has determined that she can't afford a career in public service, so she plans on being a lobbyist instead. She's one of the student borrowers state Sen. Janet Howell (D-32) wants to help with a bill she calls the Borrowers Bill of Rights. It would use the power of the State Corporation Commission to crack down on what she calls the egregious practices of student loan servicing companies. "We can regulate these student loan servicers to ensure we're protecting our borrowers from shady practices, and believe me there are shady practices," says Howell. "Every other type of debt is regulated in Virginia except student loans debt. This lack of regulation is egregious given one million borrowers are collectively carrying more than $41 billion worth of student debt."

DEMOCRATS HAVE WANTED

to crack down on student-loan servicing companies for years, but the Republican-led House of Delegates has blocked the effort. Del. Marcus Simon (D-53) has introduced legislation to have the State Corporation Commission regulate student-loan servicing companies for years only to be blocked by the GOP majority over and over. Even when Howell was able to get similar legislation through the Senate, Simon found that the Republican-led House was not interested.

"It's interesting that a number of delegates who have been sympathetic but didn't think this was the student loan servicers engage in deceptive and predatory practices, borrowers can face insurmountable barriers to financial security."

THE BILL requires student loan servicing companies get a license to operate in Virginia from the State Corporation Commission, which would crack down on egregious practices like misrepresenting the amount of money due, recklessly applying loan payments to outstanding balances and failing to report payment history to consumer credit bureaus. Violators would be hit with a $2,500 fee.

"This bill is not about free college," said Seth Frotman, executive director of the Student Borrower Protection Center. "This bill is about making sure borrowers in the commonwealth who took on debt to chase the American dream aren't ripped off in the process."

All of the egregious practices outlined in the bill are already illegal. But borrowers would have to hire a lawyer and file a federal lawsuit to take action, which is not a workable solution for people who are already under a mountain of debt.

Instead, this bill makes these actions a violation of state law and empowers the State Corporation Commission to go after bad actors. That way borrowers who feel they've been wronged could file a complaint with the Bureau of Financial Regulation.

"Why are Virginia borrowers having to resort to lawsuits for their consumer protections?" asked Del. Cia Price (D-95). "It is past time for student loan borrowers in Virginia — like me — to have common-sense protections."

right solution voted for the bill in committee this year," said Simon. "So I think we're on a glider path here, although there are a few people who continue to believe that we shouldn't be helping out students for whatever reason."

This year, Democrats are in control of the General Assembly. That's opened the floodgates for a number of issues, and cracking down on student-loan servicing companies is one of them. Howell's bill cracking down on student loan servicing companies passed a Senate committee with a unanimous vote. And Simon has a similar bill that's already passed the House with an 84 to 15 vote.

"When student-loan servicers engage in deceptive and predatory practices, borrowers can face insurmountable barriers to financial security," says Anna Scholl, executive director of Progress Virginia. "When

Bakery Manager Charged With Sexual Assault

Fairfax County police have charged Alberto Figueiredo, 73, of Fairfax, with object sexual penetration against a developmentally disabled adult. "Detectives from the Major Crimes Bureau's Sex Crimes Squad began their investigation in late January when the victim disclosed the alleged assault to her parents.

Figueiredo

According to police, she was an employee at the Wildflour bakery in Chantilly, where Figueiredo is also employed as the general manager. The bakery routinely hires individuals with developmental disabilities, and Figueiredo has been employed there for more than a decade.

After a thorough investigation, detectives arrested Figueiredo last Thursday, Jan. 30. He was then held without bond in the Adult Detention Center. Meanwhile, victim specialists from the Police Department's Major Crimes Bureau's Victim Services Division are making sure the alleged victim is receiving the appropriate resources and assistance.

In addition, detectives are asking anyone who has information or may have had inappropriate contact with Figueiredo to call Major Crimes Bureau detectives at 703-246-7800, option 3.

Learn about Peer Support Service Dogs

The next meeting of the Sully District Police Station's Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) is Wednesday, Feb. 12, at 7 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. Lt. Chris Sharp and PFC Dustin Granofsky will bring their service dogs and discuss the Police Department's Peer Support Service Dogs program.

The dogs came from First Responder Canine Service Dogs (FRK9), and this is a pilot program to spread awareness of PTSD/TBI (traumatic brain injury), plus psychological and physical disabilities in the first-responder world. "These dogs are deployed to community events, traumatic/critical events and debriefs of major incidents.

Braddock, Old Lee Roads Meeting

VDOT will hold a public information meeting Thursday, Feb. 13, from 6:30-8:30 p.m., in the lecture hall at Westfield High, 4700 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. A formal presentation will begin at 7 p.m., as residents learn about a study assessing potential safety and operational improvements at the intersection of Braddock Road and Old Lee roads, and the S-curve on Braddock Road just west of Old Lee Road.

The concepts being studied include realignment of the S-curve, plus intersection enhancements at Braddock Road and Old Lee Road, such as turn lanes and innovative, intersection improvements. Residents will be able to view displays and ask questions of VDOT staff. (Inclement weather date: Feb. 20).

Road Construction Progress Discussed

there'll be room for a wider Route 29, with more lanes, under I-66 – also in the future. Widening Route 29 there is not part of the current project but will enable it to someday accommodate these additional lanes.

❖But that's not all. Yet another part of the I-66 project here that will greatly impact local motorists is the closure of the left-turn lane and ramp from Route 29 north to I-66 east in Centreville. It began Jan. 16 and will remain closed for approximately four months for demolition and construction of new, I-66 bridges over Route 29.

TO ACCESS I-66 EAST from Route 29 north, drivers must now stay to the left and continue north on Route 29 to the intersection with Trinity Parkway/Machen Road. At the traffic signal, they'll use the left-most turn lane only to make a U-turn onto Route 29 south. They'll then continue on that road until they reach the ramp for I-66 east. Or, alternatively, motorists may continue north on Route 29 to Route 28 north, stay to the right and follow the signs to I-66 east.

"We're asking a lot of drivers in this area," said VDOT's Regional Transportation Program Director Susan Shaw. "But the work at Routes 28/29 is very complicated. We estimate spending $300 million in that interchange. So we advise drivers to stay off their phones and be alert. We'll focus on safety first, traffic operations and reducing congestion, as much as possible."

At the meeting, a resident worried about making a U-turn at E.C. Lawrence Park to go southbound on Route 28 during the afternoon rush, "when 20 cars are backed up, trying to make a left onto Braddock."

"We can't do the U-turn until we have a 1,200-foot-long, right-turn lane," replied Clifton. "But there'll be more green time going southbound so there shouldn't be as much of a backup there. We believe we'll be able to make traffic flow reasonably well."

He also noted that "Northbound Route 28, north of I-66, won't have traffic signals once the Braddock Road signal is removed. On southbound Route 28, it'll be at least a year before that happens. Then we'll have free-flowing traffic and no traffic signals on Route 28, between Route 29 and Westfields Boulevard."

Another resident said, "For those of us who live in Cub Run and Sequoia Farms, it's taking us a half hour to get out of our neighborhood. And traffic backs up [on Route 28 south] for five or six lights before we can get through the Braddock Road/Route 28 intersection."

Hopefully, said Clifton, "Once the U-turn happens, we might be able to put in a triple, right turn there." For more information, go to outside.transform66.org.

Off Topic, Way Off

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

From cancer to toilet paper. Is that ‘off’ enough? My reason for writing this column might be because I need a diversion (see last week’s column), and because, as is so happened recently, I needed to replenish our toilet paper supply. (It had nothing to do with a winter advisory in the forecast.) As the consumer in the house, I am keen and motivated to spend our money wisely. I look for sales, I use paper coupons, I use digital coupons and of course, I peruse the advertising circulars, in print and online (if necessary) regularly. In addition, I have a number of plastic bonus cards hanging on my keychain. In short, I am prepared and ready for any retail or wholesale opportunity that might present itself.

With respect to toilet paper, I believe us regular users have been victimized by the toilet paper manufacturers. I refer specifically to the increase in the size of the actual roll itself; from single to double to triple to jumbo to mega and now super mega. Since the manufacturers can’t exactly increase demand, they’ve devised a strategy to increase supply - in our homes. And though using myself as an example is hardly empirical evidence, I will nonetheless continue to do so in an effort to justify my accusation.

If you’re like me, you probably like to have an ample supply of toilet paper in the house, just in case (it happened once in college; not good). And to that end, the toilet paper manufacturers have offered up multipacks equivalent to as high as 96 rolls, if I’m not mistaken, to address this potential shortage. However, my beef is not with the number of rolls in these multipacks, my beef, as I’ve said, is with the size of the rolls. In these cases, size does matter.

For years, we’ve been buying 4-, 6-, 9-, 12-, 24-, 36- and even 48-roll multipacks, some single and some double to stock the bathroom linen closets, so we’re used to having a specific number of rolls on hand/in inventory. Now the rolls are double or even triple the size we had grown accustomed to having as back-ups. But we’re still, in spite of the gargantuan size of the newer mega/super mega rolls, wanting to have the same number of rolls in the closet as we’ve always had (I do, anyway). Sort of a comfort level, you might say. The problem is that having the same number of super mega rolls in inventory as previously one had as single or double rolls gives one way more toilet paper in the house than you ever had. In effect, we have over-purchased. The toilet paper manufacturers have used our predispositions against us in order to take a greater share of our household budget previously allocated for toilet paper.

I don’t need six super mega rolls in our bathroom. But I do want to see at least six rolls in reserve (aid and comfort you might say). If the six rolls in reserve were single or doubles, their size would be irrelevant. The number of rolls was more important - in my head. And now, because of the toilet paper manufacturer’s insistence that size matters, I am forced to buy these spare-tire, donut-sized rolls that I can’t possibly use no matter what “snowmageddon” might hit us. But I can’t stock my shelves with reasonably-sized rolls because their unit cost is prohibitive compared to the big roll multipacks. As the consumer I am, I am loathe to overpay for such household necessities. So I buy in bulk, stuff my shelves with ply and go about my business. I just wish I had more than a hand in their decision-making.
