Are Northern Virginia Hospitals Ready?

Projections show a critical lack of hospital beds and ICU beds.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

Northern Virginia's health care system could be overwhelmed by an influx of patients infected with the novel coronavirus, according to an assessment from the Harvard Global Health Institute. The projections show hospitals in Fairfax, Arlington and Alexandria could quickly fill their available beds with patients, forcing administrators to either expand capacity or make the kind of life-and-death decisions about care that Italy has been forced into by the crisis.

"The numbers seem very daunting," said Thomas Tsai, assistant professor at the Harvard Global Health Institute. "Our goal was to motivate collective action so we are not making decisions when the epidemic is hitting individual hospitals."

One scenario presented by the institute paints a grim picture for the Arlington Hospital Referral Region, which includes Fairfax County and Alexandria. Assuming the virus infects 40 percent of the population and social distancing allows for the disease to be spread out over six months, more than 10,000 hospital beds would be needed to handle the crush of new patients. That's about 1,000 percent of available beds. Even if hospital administrators cancel most elective surgeries and double the number of beds available, that's still five patients for every hospital bed.

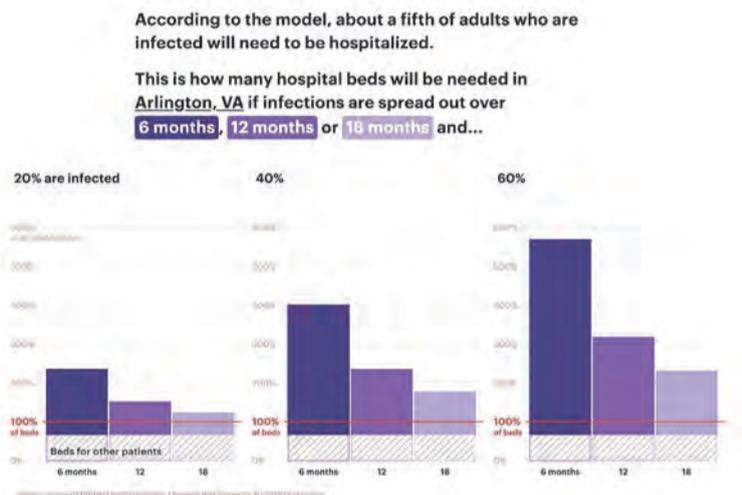

"Nobody really knows what the disease course is going to look like," said Tsai. "So it's important to stay grounded on what we do know, which is our bed supply and our ICU supply."

The data on intensive care unit beds is even more ominous, a particularly unsettling dimension of the projections because these are the patients who would need ventilators because of the intense respiratory problems associated with the disease. Under the scenario where the virus infects 40 percent of the population and social distancing allows for the disease to be spread out over a six-month period, more than 2,000 ICU beds will be needed. Even if most elective surgeries are canceled, according to the Harvard projections, that would still put the the need for ICU beds at 700 percent. That's seven people for every available ICU bed.

"This is looking exclusively at hospital beds based on predictive modeling," said Julian Walker, vice president of communications for the Virginia Hospital and Healthcare Association. "There are also many other healthcare facilities in this state, outpatient surgery centers for example, that are not counted in the hospital bed totals that could also be pressed into service in the event that there is a real medical surge issue here."

IF NO STEPS WERE TAKEN at social distancing, health experts say, the course of the disease would be about one month. That would totally overwhelm the system and create an unworkable crisis. Spreading the course of the disease out over six months would require a sustained effort at social distancing, an effort to flatten the curve that is still in the early stages.

"We are moving into a period of sacrifice," explained Gov. Ralph Northam as he cancelled all Virginia schools for the rest of the academic year. "We all need to take care of each other from afar because social distancing is the only path forward."

Even if the course of the disease is spread out over 18 months, which would require a massive and unprecedented effort at social distancing, the predictive model still shows the system in Northern Virginia does not have enough capacity. Assuming every elective surgery is cancelled, doubling the availability of ICU beds, Northern Virginia will have a 150 percent need for ICU beds. That's two ICU beds for three patients who need respirators in September 2021.

"We are underprepared for this kind of an event," said Kevin Peach, chairman of the Local Emergency Planning Committee in Alexandria. "That's why people are behaving the way they are and that there's such an elevated panic."

HOSPITALS ACROSS VIRGINIA are taking steps to prepare for the potential crush of patients flooding their emergency rooms. Elective surgeries have been postponed or cancelled, placing a financial burden on the industry. Mary Washington Healthcare in Fredericksburg has already set up a field hospital, and other hospitals are exploring the idea of setting up their

Distance Learning Begins on April 14

Superintendent's letter to Fairfax County Public Schools' families.

Scott Brabrand, Superintendent, Fairfax County Public Schools, has sent the following letter to the FCPS families on March 26, 2020:

Dear FCPS Families,

Now that the governor has ordered all Virginia schools to remain closed through the end of the academic year, FCPS, with the support of our School Board, is planning to begin distance instruction and learning with our students on April 14.

Launching a distance learning plan to reach 189,000 students that engages nearly 16,000 classroom teachers is a complex challenge. We acknowledge that distance learning cannot reasonably replace daily in-person instructional programs, and we will not be trying to replicate the regular school day. Our Distance Learning Plan provides for students to continue learning in developmentally appropriate ways, while being mindful of their health and wellness. The plan includes paper learning packets, video broadcasts, lessons/assignments and learning materials posted to Blackboard and completed individually or collaboratively, along with scheduled web chats.

Our Instructional Services team held web conferences with elementary and secondary principals last week to communicate the plan for staff training and resuming instruction. Teachers will be returning to work virtually on Monday, March 30 in order to complete their distance learning training.

Please be assured that this plan was created with the understanding that some of our staff and families may face challenges participating in distance learning, and we will all need to work together in the best interest of our students.

Here is how the Distance Learning Plan will work:

High School Distance Learning Plan
Students will engage in teacher-led, teacher-supported and independent learning in all courses. During the week of March 30, teachers will be contacting students to reconnect, provide review material for concepts taught prior to closure, and prepare for classes starting on April 14.

Middle School Distance Learning Plan
Students will engage in teacher-led, teacher-supported and independent learning.

Elementary School Distance Learning Plan
Students will engage in teacher-led and independent learning.

There is also time for teacher check-ins, virtual chats, phone calls and emails with students.

Learning packets will be distributed by mail to all students (PK-6) beginning the week of March 30.

The FCPS Online Campus will resume operation on March 30. At this time, students registered for the self-directed Economics and Personal Finance course as of March 19, 2020 for either summer session 1 or summer session 2, will also have the ability to begin the course online through Virtual Virginia.

Distribution has begun of a limited number of Mifi devices, or wireless hotspots, to high school students in need who do not have any access to the internet at home. Schools have been contacting families directly to arrange for the pickups, by appointment.

Middle School Distance Learning Plan
Students will engage in teacher-led, teacher-supported and independent learning. Learning packets will be distributed by mail to all students in the four core classes: Language Arts, Math, Science, and Social Studies. Distribution will begin the week of March 30.

Middle school students will be engaged in virtual, teacher-directed learning in the four core classes along with world languages (HS credit) beginning the week of April 14. Elective teachers will post learning activities to Blackboard.

Distribution of laptops began this week for students in need who do not have access to a device at home. Schools have been contacting families directly to arrange for the pickups.

Elementary School Distance Learning Plan
Students will engage in teacher-led and independent learning. There is also time for teacher check-ins, virtual chats, phone calls and emails with students.

Learning packets will be distributed by mail to all students (PK-6) beginning the week of March 30.

Grateful, Scared and Hopeful

On the front lines of the pandemic.

BY WINIFRED ALLEN

As I reflect on the last few weeks and the changes that I and my co-workers throughout Fairfax County are navigating, the first word that comes to mind is gratefulness. Difficult times have pushed us together in ways that we could never have imagined, and I'm grateful more than ever for everyone who is coming together to protect our community.

Day in and day out, Fairfax County nurses, social workers, first responders and educators -- along with grocery workers, home care providers, hospital staff, and countless others -- are on the front lines keeping our community safe and healthy. In the middle of this pandemic, I have seen how hard everyone is working to implement changes that seem to occur minute by minute while we maintain services for the community and try to care for our own families. I see co-workers continue to show up every day, despite their fears, because of their dedication and love for what we do.

I see my fellow mental health professionals providing comfort and counseling to our community members with mental illness. I see our housing staff working to ensure that every family has a roof over their heads and that no one loses their homes. I see our community center staff making sure that seniors still get health care, food, and companionship. Their courage and commitment are incredibly inspiring.

As a Board member of the Fairfax County Government Employees Union, SEIU Virginia 512, I also hear my co-workers' concerns regarding safety and health. I hear the fear that some express now that coronavirus is at our doorstep. We are afraid for our loved ones and for the people we serve. And when we learn of fellow employees directly affected, as we did last week, it hurts us all because we are not just co-workers, we are family. We are bonded by our employer, Fairfax County, but we have banded together in unity to take care of each other.

I am so grateful for my co-workers who support me every day so that I can continue serving those in need. I am so grateful for our union, which is fighting for all working families every day. I am grateful for Chairman Jeff McKay and the Board of Supervisors for listening to and partnering with us to keep our community and our workforce safe.

Now we are standing with working people across the country with urgent demands for our federal government. Every one of us on the front lines need protective equipment such as gloves, masks, and cleaning supplies, as well as expanded opportunities for telework so we can continue to serve our communities. We demand paid leave for all impacted workers so everyone can care for their own families no matter where we are from or what race we are.

While it's clear that many challenges are coming, I know that the gratefulness I have now for the people who make our community a wonderful place can expand. I know that if our elected leaders take action now, all of us can look back at this critical moment with gratitude.

The writer is Mental Health Therapist and SEIU Virginia 512 member.

Foster Dog or Cat

BY BARBARA HUTCHERSON

Lost Dog & Cat Rescue Foundation (LDCRF) in Falls Church has pledged to continue taking in animals in need during the COVID-19 crisis, when shelters across the country are facing disrupted operations and the looming likelihood of exceeding capacity. To make room to help overburdened shelters and their animals, LDCRF is asking the community to please step up and host a foster dog or cat in the coming week, and even consider adopting. Fostering is a fantastic way to take advantage of extra time at home, and as an added bonus: isolation is much less stressful with a four-footed friend!

During this anxious time, we are all faced with some difficult decisions. Our shelter partners are feeling the strong effects of significantly decreased adoptions and are quickly running out of space, many of whom have had to close their doors to the public. Many rescue organizations are also at capacity and unable to help municipal space and are happy to help. We will do what we can to alleviate this recent pressure on our shelter partners. To do so, we'll need even more people to adopt and foster dogs and cats over the coming weeks.

In accordance with guidance from the government and national animal welfare organizations such as American Pets Alive! (AmPA!), Lost Dog & Cat Rescue Foundation is working under enhanced protocols and procedures to promote public health. We've shifted to adoptions by appointment and are now having supporters meet dogs outside where it's easier to maintain social distance whenever possible. Lost Dog & Cat Rescue Foundation is a nonprofit animal rescue organization in Falls Church, intaking and adopting out nearly 2,000 dogs and cats per year. Its primary focus is on rescuing animals at risk of euthanasia in municipal shelters, where space becomes an issue. LDCRF also participates with national organizations to rescue animals in the wake of natural disasters and in the event of large-scale hoarding cases. LDCRF runs a vibrant "dogventure" program that allows members of the community to take a dog out for a few hours or a day.

Bill Glikbarg bglikbarg@aol.com

I have been active for more than 20 years in various community theater groups at the fabulous MCC Alden Theatre. I would like to see that The Alden Theatre continues to support shows from community and professional groups for the McLean audiences. Currently, I am Treasurer of a not-for-profit active community theater group at The Alden. I am also a past president of a homeowners' association in the MCC tax district. Hence, I believe I understand the need to balance the financial constraints of the MCC with the need to provide great services to the McLean community.

Melanie Sletten mel_sletten@hotmail.com

I wish to run for the Board of the McLean Community Center. As a volunteer at many local theaters, including The Alden; at the Arlington Food Assistance Center; at special events for the MCC; and as a Master Gardener, I would like to contribute to the well-being of others, both those living today and those yet unborn. As a Methodist, I'm taught to do all the good I can do wherever, whenever, for whomever, and however I can. I have some ideas I would like to propose which might better support the center and perhaps more residents within the jurisdiction.

Barbara Zamora-Appel bgzamora@gmail.com

I am a three-year McLean resident with two children attending Churchill Road Elementary. My family and I love the sense of community and particularly enjoy the programs the MCC offers. I believe that my skills and professional work experience in the private, public, and nonprofit sectors would benefit the MCC. Governor Issues Statewide Stay at Home Order for Virginia

On Monday, March 30, Gov. Ralph Northam issued a statewide Stay at Home order to protect the health and safety of Virginians and mitigate the spread of the novel coronavirus, or COVID-19. The executive order takes effect immediately and will remain in place until June 10, 2020, unless amended or rescinded by a further executive order.

The order directs all Virginians to stay home except in extremely limited circumstances. Individuals may leave their residence to seek medical attention, work, care for family or household members, obtain goods and services like groceries, prescriptions, and others as outlined in Executive Order Fifty-Three, and engage in outdoor activity with strict social distancing requirements.

The executive order also directs all Virginia institutions of higher education to stop in-person classes and instruction. Private campgrounds must close for short-term stays, and beaches will be closed statewide except for fishing and exercise.

“We are in a public health crisis, and we need everyone to take this seriously and act responsibly,” said Northam. “Our message to Virginians is clear: stay home. We know this virus spreads primarily through human-to-human contact, and that’s why it’s so important that people follow this order and practice social distancing. I’m deeply grateful to everyone for their cooperation during this unprecedented and difficult time.”

Last week, Governor Northam issued Executive Order Fifty-Three closing certain non-essential businesses, prohibiting public gatherings of more than 10 people, and directing all K-12 schools to remain closed for the rest of the academic year.

Fairfax County Urges Residents to Stay Home

Fairfax County strongly urges residents to follow the stay-at-home order issued by Virginia Gov. Ralph Northam today.

This order is critical to help slow the spread of the coronavirus as cases continue to climb across the state with 225 confirmed cases in the Fairfax County Health District. Social distancing is the most effective method to limit the disease’s transmission.

The governor’s action, which remains in effect until June 10, means that residents should stay in homes with only a few exceptions for essential activities, including:

- Getting groceries or medicines.

Caring for a sick family member or friend.

Getting medical care for yourself

Going outside for exercise for yourself or pets (although not in groups larger than 10 people).

Getting essential social or government services.

Traveling to and from work or place of worship.

Do not go out unless you need to go out.

“To date, this has been a suggestion to Virginians,” said Northam. “Today it’s an order.”

Cooking in the Age of Coronavirus

Turning pantry staples into delicious and nutritious meals.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

During this time of social distancing, more time spent indoors and fewer trips to bare-shelf supermarkets, stocking the pantry with a food supply that's meant to last for weeks has become the new normal. No longer is dining out an option. From potato chips washed down by soda to canned tuna paired with frozen broccoli, cooking and eating food that's on hand can throw an entire household into an unhealthy culinary rut.

"This is not a snow storm that will melt in a few days. This isn't the time to eat more brownies, drink more wine and munch continually because you don't have much structure in your life," said licensed nutritionist Janet Zalman, MS, of the Zalman Nutrition Group. "You can't say, 'I'm going to go back to eating healthy when this pandemic is over,' because we don't know how long it's going to last. Eating healthy and keeping our bodies healthy can make a difference in a crisis, especially for preexisting health conditions like heart disease, obesity and diabetes."

With a little creativity, it's possible to turn pantry staples into healthy, but savory dishes that can be soul-soothing during this time of heightened anxiety, says Terri Carr of Terri's Table in Potomac. "Stews, chilies and soups [made with] ground meats, potatoes, canned beans and tomatoes and stock or broth cooking in a slow cooker or on the stovetop for a couple of hours release aromas that are inviting and comforting," she said. "Pasta dishes can be very diverse depending upon what ingredients you have available. They don't have to be limited to typical pasta sauces. Adding lots of onions, a bit of garlic, parmesan and even greens at the end of cooking the pasta can be very tasty and healthy."

The right mixture of herbs and seasonings can turn ho-hum meals into flavorful powerhouses. "Pesto is a terrific change and several types of pesto are easily available at grocery stores," said Carr. "I add leftover chicken to pasta dishes to provide protein and use up leftovers. Adding sundried tomatoes gives a big flavor boost in pasta dishes."

Even with the limited availability of some foods, it's still possible to find key ingredients to stock a healthy pantry. "Whole-grain pasta such as brown rice or buckwheat is a complete protein and you can add beans and vegetables on top of that for a complete protein ... option," said Teri Cochrane, author of The Wildatarian Diet — Living as Nature Intended, and founder of the Global Sustainable Health Institute. "Dried beans or canned, organic beans are very cost-effective. You can get a bag of dried beans for less than two dollars. You can sauté frozen vegetables and when you pair that with brown or wild rice you can have a full protein meal for almost pennies per person."

A pantry stocked with a carefully planned array of staples can keep meals healthy and interesting.

"There are no frozen vegetables right now, but fresh vegetables are still in the supermarket," said Zalman. "You can wash them with soap and water."

From savory to sweet, ideas for preparing that produce abound, says Zalman. "You can roast carrots," she said. "Apples are around. You can make baked apples if you want something sweet. Have it with yogurt or ice cream or almond milk and you have a dessert."

Instead of reaching for a bag of potato chips, Zalman suggest slicing and baking sweet potatoes that have been brushed with oil and sprinkled with a dash of salt. "You can make popcorn on the stove and add herbs, a drop of salt unless you have high blood pressure," she said.

When the butcher section of the grocery store is low on meat, it's time to think inside the can. "If you want turkey burgers, but don't have turkey use canned salmon and make a salmon burger," said Zalman. "It's delicious inexpensive and healthy. 'If you have kids you can make casseroles like a tuna casserole or a salmon casserole.'"

In fact, healthy cooking is a way to spend the extra family time we're given. "A good way to get families together in the kitchen is [making] things from scratch such as soups and breads or treats," said Cochrane.

"If you want turkey burgers, but don't have turkey use canned salmon and make a salmon burger. It's delicious, inexpensive and healthy."

largest event, typically draws approximately 10,000 participants.

Absentee voting for the MCC 2020 Governing Board Election, currently underway, will continue through 5 p.m. on Wednesday, May 13. The McLean Day in-person voting, stipulated in the Center's Memorandum of Understanding, will be held at MCC, 1234 Ingleside Ave., as scheduled from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, May 16.

Questions? Please call the Center at 703-790-0123, TTY: 711.

For more than 50 years, Share has provided support to local residents in and around McLean. As the community prepares for the full impact of the COVID-19 spread and world response, Share continues to closely monitor the situation with the health and safety of their clients, volunteers and larger community as their top priority. "We know that our clients will be affected economically and emotionally as businesses suspend operations, workers lose tips or shifts, and some find difficulty in accessing benefits. This is not a time to stand alone. Share is part of a broader network of services across Northern Virginia. We will continue to partner with organizations across our region aiding the working poor to provide as much assistance as we possibly can," said Don Frickel, President, Share, Inc. in a Special Report on the Share response to COVID-19 pandemic. "Please visit our website, Twitter and Facebook for more information on our developing response and to keep up-to-date on the hours of operation of our food pantry. Forty Units Strong

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

Social distancing doesn't mean social disengagement and no comforting. And who wouldn't appreciate a Love Parade even if the participants cried? On Thursday, March 26, two weeks to the day after students K-6 last walked out of Cunningham Park Elementary School in Vienna, teachers, administrators and support staff gathered at the school's parking lot. Each one had decorated their vehicle and now stood ready to kick off the "Love Parade," their mobile greeting card 40 units strong in a show of support to students during the coronavirus challenge.

"There are going to be tears," said Katie Le, Principal of Cunningham Park Elementary School. "This is a happy-sad-moment. We are fortunate to be geographically so close to our students and have the support of the Town of Vienna Police Department and Mayor Laurie DeRocco. Teachers and staff would drive through the school's neighborhoods waving and cheering their students who waited on porches and driveways.

All Fairfax County Public Schools closed Friday, March 13. March 23, Virginia Gov. Ralph Northam extended the statewide school closure order through the rest of the academic 2019-2020 school year. Life had changed rapidly for these students—no end of the school year goodbyes and well wishes and no after school programs, sports practices and play dates with friends. Kitchen tables turned into the children's classrooms. Living rooms turned into parent office spaces.

The decorated cars and vans continued to pull into the lot—some with balloons, some with handwritten posters sharing words of encouragement and some decorated solely with a teacher's name written boldly across the top of the windshield. "We are so excited to get out of the house and see my students," said Ellen O'Hearn, Cunningham Park Elementary School art teacher accompanied by her children, Nick, 14, an eighth grader at Thoreau Middle School and Chloe, 12, a sixth grader at Stenwood Elementary School.

School librarian Meg Brinkhuis decorated her vehicle with a banner created by her daughter, Celeste, who was supposed to participate in graduation ceremonies in June. It read: "myON and Tumblebooks." Social distancing in her van Brinkhuis called out, "These are digital books any child in Fairfax County Public Schools can read." Custodian Jose Lopez made a banner and taped it to the side window of his van. It said: "The custodian team misses each and every one of you...We love you." Teacher Meghan Mancuso peeked out of her car and said, "It breaks my heart that I won't see the children until summer or longer."

Principal Le looked out at the parking lot filling with teachers and support staff ready to roll. "I simply want to say that since students can't come to us, we are coming to them."

Cunningham Park Elementary Love Parade is a mobile greeting card of support.

Cunningham Park Elementary School students, Morgan Manning, 5, and Jonah, 8, of Vienna wait in their yard for the Love Parade by teachers and staff at the school. The children made crayoned messages of affection and caring to ricochet back to their teachers and others at the school.

Distance Learning Begins

Principals will send parents a published schedule of instruction.

Literacy and math content will also be made available on FCPS Cable Channel 21 (check your local listings or stream online) beginning the week of March 30.

Teacher-student virtual connections are encouraged.

Specials teachers will post learning activities to Blackboard.

ea teams to create accessible resources for English learners. English learners (ELs) will participate in grade-level instruction and activities as well as engage in English Language Development (ELD) activities to simultaneously develop English language proficiency, content understandings, and Portrait of a Graduate attributes. It is important for students to read, write, speak and listen to English every day. FCPS is creating ELD resources that incorporate a variety of reading, writing, listening, and speaking activities.

English Learners and families will receive support from ESOL teachers and school-based Parent Liaisons. Additionally, FCPS provides Parent Information Phone Lines for families who speak a language other than English. Phone responders will answer questions and connect families to resources.

Parent Information Phone Lines:
Amharic 571-423-4957; Arabic 571-423-4952; Chinese 571-423-4953; Farsi 571-423-4954; Korean 571-423-4951; Spanish 571-423-4950; Urdu 571-423-4955; Vietnamese 571-423-4956.

3rd Quarter Update

The third quarter grading book is not closed. We are working to ensure that students will have the opportunity to complete all assignments issued prior to the closing of schools before we close the third quarter. We will provide maximum flexibility for our students to be sure they can get those assignments submitted.

Distance Learning Timeline

The Virginia Department of Education (VDOE) provided guidance to school systems not to require any new instruction during the past two weeks. As a result, FCPS quickly developed parent resources to support continuity of learning. Tens of thousands of individuals have utilized the tools in Blackboard, our FCPS website as well as the programming available on our cable channels.

Factors that need to be addressed to begin distance learning include:

Technology infrastructure availability for all students

The diverse learning needs of our students

Appropriate teacher training to ensure fidelity of implementation

Laptop distribution to approximately 15,000 middle school and elementary school students in accordance with health department guidelines, one student at a time

Printing and mailing of 125,000 learning packets weekly to homes across Fairfax County

This distance learning plan also recognizes the challenges of FCPS staff members working from home trying to take care of loved ones while ensuring their own health and safety.

In Conclusion

We are being challenged in ways that we didn't imagine just a few weeks ago. Our teachers are professionals who are adjusting, adapting and learning to do whatever is necessary to create meaningful learning experiences for your students. Thank you for your support and patience. Our schools and teachers will be connecting with you in the days ahead as we embark on this distance learning mission.

This is the first of several communications you can expect to receive that will provide details and guidance about the distance learning plan.

Please continue to encourage and support one another as we face this unprecedented challenge.

Sincerely,
Scott Brabrand,
Superintendent

Resources for Special Education

FCPS staff is working hard to prepare distance learning materials to ensure that all students have access to educational materials and activities, including our students with Individualized Education Programs and 504 Plans.

Many disability-related modifications and services may be effectively provided online. These may include, for instance, extensions of time for assignments, modifications to assignments, videos with captioning or embedded sign language interpreting, accessible reading materials, and speech or language services through video conferencing. The Office of Special Education Instruction has developed and posted on the FCPS Continuity of Learning webpage, an Accommodations Toolbox that includes strategies and resources on how students may be able to access accommodations at home.

Continuity of Learning resources are also posted in Blackboard as well as on the FCPS public web located at: <https://www.fcps.edu/news/coronavirus-update-academics-distance>. In addition, FCPS is currently reviewing additional online platforms to ensure accessibility for all students and teachers.

own field hospitals. The governor has also relaxed regulation on steps necessary to establish new hospital beds.

"During this public health emergency, government rules about establishing hospital beds are being relaxed," said Walker. "So all of the tools that are available are being explored and leveraged."

Walker also noted that the Virginia Healthcare Emergency Management Program was set up after 9/11 to prepare for a variety of public health emergencies. Participants include public health officials, state government leaders, the hospital community, first-responders and public-safety personnel. For more than 20 years, these groups have been engaged in strategic planning, operational planning, information sharing and resource coordination.

"The planning and prep work to respond to these situations is something goes on on a regular basis," said Walker. "And that kind of collaboration that has existed for the last 20 years is being brought to bear by assembling all of the stakeholders and assembling the resources to try to combat this head on."

GOVERNOR ORDERS STAY-AT-HOME ORDER

Governor Ralph Northam issued a statewide Stay-at-Home Order this week to protect the health and safety of Virginians and mitigate the spread of the novel coronavirus, or COVID-19. The executive order takes effect immediately and will remain in place until June 10, 2020, unless amended or rescinded by a further executive order. The order directs all Virginians to stay home except in extremely limited circumstances. Individuals may leave their residence for allowable travel, including to seek medical attention, work, care for family or household members, obtain goods and services like groceries, prescriptions, and others as outlined in Executive Order 53, and engage in outdoor activity with strict social distancing requirements. The executive order also directs all Virginia institutions of higher education to stop in-person classes and instruction. Private campgrounds must close for short-term stays, and beaches will be closed statewide except for fishing and exercise.

GOVERNOR ORDERS STATEWIDE CLOSURES

Cancer in a Pandemic

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

So far as I can tell, I'm being treated as per usual. Meaning, treatment for my recently diagnosed thyroid cancer is on track. On track meaning multiple hospital visits at two health care facilities (some even on the same day) over five consecutive days to include four radioiodine injections, pre- and post-treatment CT scans, lab work, miscellaneous other medical appointments and a low iodine diet to boot spread out over a nearly six-week interval including one over-night at the hospital.

To say I'm looking forward to the experience would be naive. To say I'm looking forward to killing the remaining thyroid cancer in my body would be more accurate. The thyroidectomy I had in late January was very successful but approximately 15 percent of the cancer remains, embedded under my collarbone and elsewhere. Consequently, treatment of my pre-existing/underlying stage IV non small cell lung cancer will be further delayed while we address the thyroid cancer which the surgeon was unable to remove. And now that I have my schedule, as of March 27, I now know when and where and how the process will play out.

One potential major complication: the coronavirus pandemic. Given the screening questions I have been asked of late when calling for medical information, if I am unlucky and somehow become infected or come in contact with someone who has been diagnosed or travel/have traveled to an area of the country/world particularly hard hit, I am guessing my treatment stops/never gets started. And not to be too paranoid about something which hasn't even happened yet but, I'd just as soon not become another statistic and/or not get my cancer treatment and allow my two types of cancer to live on without any checks or balances. (Generally speaking, if the cancer is left alone, it likely won't spontaneously go into remission. Quite the opposite in fact and therein lies my fear of having 'cancer in a pandemic.')

I imagine that at any time over the next six weeks, a hundred things could change that could adversely affect my treatment/schedule, many of which are beyond my control. And not that I'm a controlling person, but when it comes to medical treatment that might actually be saving/extending my life, I do become a bit preoccupied. And if push does come to shove, so to speak, there's not much that I can say or do about circumstances (staffing issues, medicine shortages, reduced hours, increase in patients, etc.) which might affect the availability of health care. As a cancer patient, you 'd like to have a little predictability given that your normal routine is hardly what you anticipated. However, none of us anticipated a pandemic and now all us patients are waiting for chips to fall and wondering/hoping our names will be on the treatment list.

Unfortunately, cancer treatment is not hit or miss. It mostly needs to hit. And if some of the hits can't happen when protocol says it should, there is reason to be afraid. But being afraid now, before any of these pandemic-related complications have even occurred is a waste of time, energy and emotional wherewithal. I don't need to worry yet. If any of these worse-case scenarios do happen, there will be plenty of time to worry later. At the moment, I'm scheduled, I'm not sick and I'm able to social-distance, self-isolate and shelter-in-place until further notice.

I just wish 'further notice' wasn't a month from now. So much can happen to so many at so many places, most of which I can't prevent. And yet, if these happenings are not prevented, it's possible the powers that most likely be will inform me that circumstances have overtaken their plans and my treatment will have to be delayed. I'm so close. Thirty days however is an eternity for a cancer patient. Somehow, I have to stop watching the calendar. I have to watch my "ps" and "qs" instead and avoid any unnecessary social interactions. I'd like to think that come the end of April, I'll be ready, willing and available. I just hope that I can say the same thing about the medical professionals and hospitals where I'll be getting treatment.
